After the business meeting the delegates adjourned to the Macdirn Cafe where the Kingston Softball Association were hosts to the visiting delegates. The enthusiasm of the delegates and the harmony of the meeting, point to a very successful season for the game in Eastern Ontario where the girls have large followings.

PICTORIAL GOLF INSTRUCTION

Pivot Is Essential to Good Golf

The golfer who stands flat-footed and swings at the ball without bringing his pivot into play as of his body will never make much of a golfer. Unless we pivot we will not be able to get any great amount of distance. In the picture here we find the golfer at the top of the swing. As we can see, his head, left knee and body have not moved but the golfer has now got into the habit of pivoting the better for his game.

LAWN TENNIS By WILLARD LOCKER

HOW TO PUT STROKES TO SUBMIT OF COURT PLAY

Concentration upon each shot is the vital essence of tennis. Keeping your eye on the ball is the soul of success in full play. Keeping your concentration upon the other elements of the game will only take so much attention for second nature will serve that you form the right habits. Court play means, What to do" and "How to Do It" are Siamese twins. Each must be practiced and studied separately to produce perspective and relationship and consequently function. When playing your shot, you do not need to know where your opponent is or what he is doing. Never watch him. Your eye should always be on the ball. Your opponent is nothing ever more than a convenient machine for returning the ball to you so you can make another perfect shot.

Determine to put every ball with a purpose to a chosen spot. Decide on this spot before your opponent has hit the ball back and no matter where the ball comes, stick to your choice.

You have from the back court four shots to choose from: on the forehand, 1, the crosscourt shot and the straight sideline shot; 2, on the backhand also, the crosscourt and straight sideline shot. Use these four shots to manoeuvre your opponent out of position so you may finish the point.

Be willing to play many shots before your opening comes, but be ready for your opportunity to clinch the point. Always sacrifice speed of shot for steadiness. At any cost keep the ball in play.

WOMAN LEADER IS AGAIN ARRESTED

Dharsana, India, May 22 (CP)—For the second time since succeeding to the leadership of Mahatma Gandhi's civil disobedience campaign, Mrs. Sarojini Naidu was arrested during a raid on salt depots here in which one hundred of her volunteers were injured and many others arrested. Others arrested were Manilal Gandhi, son of the former leader, Mahatma's secretary. Pyarlal, Imam Hussain, a Moslem fellow-worker of Gandhi's.

At the same time armed police raided the headquarters at Bombay of the All-India National Congress. All office workers, including the president of the Bombay Council were arrested.

CANADA CEMENT SCORE VICTORY IN QUINTE LOOP

Defeated Trenton In One-Sided Game at Point Anne

Canada Cement won their first home game in the Bay of Quinte League by taking the Trenton team into camp yesterday afternoon at Point Anne by a score of 23-5. The Cement tribe were by the driver-seat all the way and they coasted home easy winners. Superior fielding and the superlative faculty of clouting the ball hard in the pinches paved the way for their victory. The homesters went to work early, and by dint of hard work managed to convince themselves firmly in the lead and there they remained, while the Trenton club battled away trying to whittle down the advantage.

Frank Bennett was on the mound for the Point Anne team and in seven innings he allowed the Trenton five hits and buried effective all round ball. He was given air-tight support by his teammates while Frank Coyer behind the plate held him up in superior fashion. "Sunny" Green went to the mound in the eighth and the visitors went hitless for the rest of the pastime.

Gaulin and Anderson on the slab for the boys from Billie Fraser's enterprising town did not fare nearly so well. He dished up a bag of tricks on the mound but eighteen hits were scored off his delivery in six innings while Cook was picked for four hits in three innings. Bennett, Gaulin and Coyer were the swatsmiths for Canada Cement, all coming through with long drives.

Point Anne won their two impressive victories are well on their way to the championship of the Bay of Quinte League. These games are played each Wednesday afternoon and the Cement will entertain their next opponents on June 4th.

Line-ups:

Canada Cement—Frank Bennett, p; Frank Coyer, c; Murney Green, 1b; S. Green, 2b; Gaulin, ss; J. Kerr, 3b; J. Mesnick II; Hutchings, rf; Strachan, cf.

Trenton—J. Anderson p; J. Massicur, c; H. Long, 1b; O. Bergard, 2b; M. Kennedy, ss; A. Scarlett, 3b; F. Filion lf; Cook, cf; J. Miller, rf.

Umpires—W. Gaulin, Point Anne, and Treverton, Trenton.

TORONTO DEFEAT NEWARK SQUAD

Bisons Bow to Baltimore Orioles—Colts Divide with Cats

Toronto May 22.—Coy Cantrell hurled two-hit ball for eight innings in the first game of yesterday's double header with the Newark Bears and the Leafs won 6-4.

Al Hervin was a complete mystery to the O'Neill clan in the second game and the Bears cleated to a 6-1 victory. The even break enabled the Bears to take the series two games to one, but it did not prevent them from tumbling back into last place.

A double victory would have put the Leafs within three points of the league leaders. As it is they are a little more than half a game behind.

Cantrell stood the Bears on their ears for eight innings, loaded he did walk five in that stretch. Then, with the Leafs leading 6 to 0, the big right hander became over-confident, slipped up, or lost his stuff.

Rochester, May 22.—Rochester finished its first home stand with 12 victories in 16 starts as it divided a twin bill with the Jersey City Black Cats. Jersey won the first contest, 5 to 4, shellacking the delivery of "Lefty" Irvin and Ira Smith while Bob McGraw held off the Cats in the second fray for a 6 to 4 win, his third of the home season.

Bill Outen found McGraw for a home run in the second game with two men on base to make the contest close.

Rochester left tonight for Montreal the Wings still carrying a grip on first place.

Montreal, May 22.—The Reading Keystones gained an even break on their four-game series here when they captured the final game of the visit from the Royals 11-7.

The Key's pounded Vangilder and Chast for 14 safe hits, including homers by Georgo Quellich and Country Clark. Quellich also got two doubles. Szymorski pitched the last two innings and held them hitless.

Buffalo, May 22.—Although they stung Lefty Bolen for three long hom ers the Bisons were forced to bow to the Baltimore Orioles, 6 to 5, in the final game of the series here yesterday, giving the Birds a two out of three setes on the series.

Ki-Y League Entries Come in Slowly Thru Misunderstanding

Unless the boys who claim they want to play hardball are more prompt in getting their teams enlisted in the Ki-Y league, it will be quite some time before the league can go into action. Apparently there is some misunderstanding on the part of quite a number of boys about the city in connection with the hardball. As a result of signing a list which was circulated about the city a few weeks ago, the boys take it for granted they are already on a team managed by the sponsors of the particular petans list. This however is not the case as these lists were circulated solely for the purpose of finding out if the younger boys of the city wished to play hardball. Any boys who are desirous of playing ball with the Ki-Y League are advised to get busy in the district they reside and form their own team or if they wish to enter a school team or Sunday School team this will be quite acceptable. All teams and prospective teams are advised to get an older boy or man to act as their manager and coach.

Boys wishing to enter teams or obtain information about the Ki-Y league will communicate with the secretary of the league, Ralph Morden at the Y.M.C.A.

Camp Committee Hard at Work

J. E. Shortt, Secretary of Local Association Is Director

The Committee in charge of the Belleville Boys Camp at Moira, Lake held a regular meeting at the Y.M.C.A. last evening and laid plans for the camp to be held this coming summer. Promotion, transportation, budget, site and equipment, programme and leadership all received attention, and the Camp this year should exceed in attractiveness and programme any Camp held thus far. Additions will be made making for Camp comfort and efficiency. The Camp will be held on Moira Lake from July 2nd to 11th, for boys from 10 to 15 years of age. Mr. J. E. Shortt, General Secretary of the Y.M.C.A., was appointed as Camp Director and will have charge of the Camp administration. The Camp will be open to all Belleville boys and those from neighbouring points in Hastings County. Church and Sunday School Groups will be accommodated and provision made for Tuzis and Trail Ranger Boys, and Boy Scouts to take their Tests, while at Camp. Following is the Camp Committee:

A. W. Armstrong, chairman; G. B. Smith, H. W. Ackerman, N. Thompson, R. L. Brown, J. E. Shortt, secretary;

Representatives — Rotary — John Hocston; Kiwanis—Dave Moran; Y's Men—Vernon Weir; Ministerial Association—Rev. Robt. Hall; Retail Merchants—T. R. Smith; Boys' Work Board—Don Williams.

CHARGED WITH THEFT OF $300.00 LIQUOR

Arnold Brown, who work, at Corbyville, appeared before Magistrate Mikel this morning charged with taking a quantity of liquor from his employers, the Canadian Industrial Alcohol Company, to the value of $40.00. When asked whether he wanted to be tried by the magistrate or remain in custody or under bail to be tried by a Judge and jury, Brown claimed he did not understand. Crown Attorney Bryson Donnan explained it to him again in a slightly kfider voice. Still Brown couldn't understand. "Take him up on the 'bill' for a week on remand to let him think it over. That 'innocence' stuff won't go here," exclaimed the Crown Attorney finally, in exasperation.

Allowed His Liberty

William Kenne, who was arrested here a week ago and held on a nominal charge of vagrancy, was allowed to go this morning, provided he got right out of the city. He was advised by the police to return to Cleveland promptly and stand his trial on a minor charge that awaits him there.

Joseph Hackett, of Melbourne, hopes to establish his claim to a share of the $268,000.00 fortune left by William Jennings, manufacturer, of Birmingham, England.

The average unit sale in many stores has declined about 10 per cent. during the last six months.

POLICE COURT

Wilfred Paradise, this city, on the 15th of May is alleged to have crashed into another car on Church street while driving in a reckless manner. He was summoned yesterday by the police and failed to appear, claiming that he had to go out of town. At ten thirty yesterday morning, however, it is claimed by the police that Paradise was standing on the "four-corners". This morning he was detained and when brought before Magistrate Mikel did not guilty to the charge. He was remanded until to-morrow morning.

The lend-a-hand mission circle of South Bay Church held its May meeting at the home of Mrs. Stephen Wilson. Mrs Gladys Healy with an attendance of nineteen members and visitors present. A splendid programme was enjoyed by all present and offering of $1.40 was taken. Next meeting will be held on Friday evening, June 13th at Miss Marguerite Peterson's. South Bay. At the close of meeting the hostess dispensed tea.

Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Lowery and Mrs. Nelson Mitchell spent a day recently with their mother, Mrs. Will Lowery, Long Point, who is seriously ill.

Mr. and Mrs. Webster Walmsley and son Elbert were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Manning Brooks.

Mr. and Mrs. Percy Dalnard of Brighton were guests of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Dalnard, on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Ross Jeffrey of Port Hope spent the week-end with the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Jeffrey and family.

On Wednesday night about 11:30 the constant ringing of the telephone awakened most of the families on this street. A fire had broken out in the shop and house owned by Wilbur Brooks at Milford and is now operated by Will Ferguson who resides about half a mile from the shop. The shop and the large frame house adjoining was burned to ground. Had it not been for the rain that night the whole of the village would probably been burned as most of the buildings are frame and close together. Mr. and Mrs. Ferguson had just moved in the week before and as they were not at home all their furniture was destroyed by the fire. Mr. Brooks carried a small insurance and does not intend to rebuild. Cause of fire is unknown.

COTTONS DEFEAT CONTINENTALS IN SOFTBALL TILT

League Champions, Canadian Pacific to Meet Senators

(Special by Staff Reporter)

Trenton Ont., May 22—Two big innings in which the Continentals scored four runs in each were enough to win their game with the Trenton Cottons 10-1 night at Bay Shore Park. This was the first game played since a week ago Tuesday last owing to the wet weather, and although the diamond was still a little damp, fast ball was played.

Trent Cottons picked off on run in the first innings and another in the third, and from then on were blanked, although they filled the bases with only one out in the fifth, and then failed to score. Continentals did not get going until the fourth when after filling the bases on walks and an odd hit, three base runners were forced home, and another scored, then in the sixth some lucky clouting along with a few walks resulted in four more. Tonight's game is between the league champions last year, the C.P.R. and the runners-up, the Senators.

DRIVING PILES AT NEW BRIDGE

No Detour Will be Necessary While Construction is Under Way

(Special by Staff Reporter)

Trenton, Ont May 22.—The pile driver at the new overhead bridge was placed in position yesterday afternoon and work of driving the huge timbr foo piles for the earth was started today. These piles were made necessary when it was found that there is a type of quicksand bottom where the new bridge is to cross the tracks.

Both C.P.R. and C.N.R. have large gangs of men working in conjunction with the Grant Brothers Construction Company, and according to Mr. Empey, the superintendent, the work will be completed in good time, probably by the last of October. There will be no detour, as the old bridge will be kept open until the new one is ready to use.

SONS OF ENGLAND HOLD CHURCH PARADE

(Special by Staff Reporter)

Trenton, Ont., May 22 -Next Sunday, May 25th, the united lodges of the Sons of England will hold a church parade at Dormouth. All lodges in the Quinte District are expected to attend, and the service will undoubtedly be an impressive one.

The Only Thing That Helps Her Lame Back

Ontario Lady Uses Dodd's Kidney Pills

Mrs. J. S. Reid Speaks Very Highly of Canada's Foremost Kidney Remedy —Dodd's Kidney Pills

Enterprise, Ont., May 19 (Special)—"Anytime I get a Lame Back I turn to Dodd's Kidney Pills and they soon do the work," writes Mrs. John S. Reid, well-known and highly respected resident of this place. "I have used them for years. As I occasionally take a Lame Back. They never fail to do the w.r."

With the winter months approaching sudden colds and chills, invariably the work of the Kidneys. Often the results are serious, for, if the Kidneys weaken, harmful uric acid and other poisons are allowed to escape. Backache, dizziness and urinary disorders should not be neglected. Trenton, Ont., May 22 The monthly meeting of the Mother's Union was held on Tuesday afternoon in Canterbury Hall, with a large attendance The meeting was postponed a week ago owing to the inclement weather. Afternoon tea was served at the conclusion of the business meeting, which was greatly enjoyed by the present.

COLLEGE STREET SCHOOL CLUB TO HOLD FIELD DAY

Races and Ball Games Will Complete The Big Day

(Special By Staff Reporter)

TRENTON, Ont., May 22.—College Street Home and School Club will hold its annual Field Day, which has come to be an event of much interest, on June 3rd this year instead of May 24th, as had usually been the case. This was the decision reached at a meeting held at the School on Tuesday evening.

Various sporting events, such as races and other track events, and jumping and pole vaulting will make up the athletic card, while refreshments will be served and a baseball game played. Relay teams representing College Street School and Dufferin St. School will race, and other races will be put on for the children. Mrs. R. Roberts is president of the College Street Home and School Club and Mr. V. Carswell and Mr. W. White will have charge of the athletic end of the programme.

STUDENTS HAD NARROW ESCAPE FROM INJURIES

(Special By Staff Reporter)

TRENTON, Ont., May 22.—Two Brighton High School students had narrow escapes from serious injury at the school on Tuesday, when an improved oxy-acetylene blow torch which they had made exploded sending glass flying in all directions Gerald Fiddick and Charley Moran were the inventors, and both were more or less injured, pieces of glass lodging in their hands and faces, and narrowly missing their eyes. Glass was taken out of each lad's face not a half an inch from one of their eyes. Both boys are honour students in chemistry and were able to return to school yesterday after receiving medical attention.

600 ARE INJURED AS POLICE IN INDIA RESIST SALT RAIDS

Bombay, May 22.—The third leader of the civil disobedience movement, Mme. Sarojini Naidu, was arrested Wednesday while directing the assault of volunteers on the Government salt depot at Dharasana.

The attack was far more than a skirmish. More than 2,000 volunteers took part in two fierce raids—fierce, although they were professedly conducted on the non-violent plan.

They staged two attempts to get into the salt factory, one in the morning, the second at 4 o'clock in the evening, and each lasted more than an hour. More than 600—almost a third of the Gandhi following engaged—were taken from the scene with injuries which preventing their going on, as the raids extended their stretcher with all the strength at their command.

HYDRO EXTENSIONS

CORCURG, May 22.—It is expected that six and a half miles of Hydro line will be built the coming summer in Darlington Township. The prospective line will run north on the Scugog Road, through the Village of Hampton to the Sixth Concession of Darlington. The necessary contracts have been signed, it is stated, to ensure the erection of this line. Later it is expected the Villages of Enniskillen, Tyrone, Burkerton and Solina and the farmers along this line will be served.

DISTRICT JEWS MET AT TRENTON

Belleville Hebrews Join With District Brethren

Trenton, May 22—A colorful scene was enacted Sunday evening in the Liberal Association hall, where Jewry from Trenton, Belleville, Picton, Madoc, Toronto, Hamilton, congregated to celebrate the induction of the Torah, the unchanging and unchangeable constitution of the Hebrew people. Trenton, in whose honor the holy service was introduced, is the smallest congregation in Canada, boasting only ten members, of whom Mr. Fred Gitelman is president, Mr. D. Herman secretary, and Mr. J. Black, treasurer.

The ceremony of the Torah over a car parade was held and the Torah was placed in the vacant auditorium.

Then the guests set to merrymaking, for the induction of the Torah is followed by a wedding supper. At the head of the table sat Mr. John J. Gerber, chairman. Beside him sat the guest of honour, Mayor W. A. Fraser.

In his introductory speech the chairman gave a brief resume of Judaism, emphasizing that Judaism is a moral force, a spiritual illumination, a social mission, and for that reason, Judaism although age-old, is still satisfactory to the Jew.

Mayor Fraser, in reply to the chair, gave a first hand account of conditions in Palestine.

Rabbi Ben Gerstel of Belleville was glad at the mayor's true word picture of Palestine, particularly Jerusalem, as Rabbi Ben Gerstel lived most of his life in that city.

A brief speech was made by Mr. Gitelman, who welcomed the guests and gave an outline of the history of the Bible, also the work leading up to the organization of the Trenton Jewry.

This was replied to by Mr. Louis Kreeh, president of the Belleville congregation.

Mrs. A. Safe, Belleville, president of the ladies' auxiliary, congratulated the Trenton Jewry on their wonderful spirit in their new undertaking of founding a synagogue in Trenton. This was replied to beautifully by Mrs. J. Black, Trenton.

Mr. J. Merker, the dean of Trenton Brighton High School students had Jewry, spoke eloquently on the importance of the Torah.

Mr. W. Wise, Trenton also gave a brief resume of events leading up to the forming of the synagogue.

Mr. Soloman Samuels and Mr. Abraham Diamond, both members of the Belleville Bible Class, of which Chairman Gerber is president, spoke briefly on topics relating to the Jew.

Mr. Fred Saplos in a violin solo, pianist, supplied musical entertainment during the evening.

In closing the chairman extended the appreciation of the guests to the ladies of Trenton, who added much to the success of the gathering. The meeting closed with God Save the King. It is regrettable that Mr. W. H. Ireland, M.P.P., was not able to be present. The committee tried to get in touch with him but unfortunately, could not do so.

COMPROMISE ON BURIAL PLANS

Anglican Clergyman Conducts Funeral Service of Robt. Hunter

Kingston, May 22.—The dispute as to which side of the family should have charge of the funeral of Robert Hunter, aged 70, of Maple Lawn, Pittsburgh Township, who died Monday on the eve of a court action in Toronto, has been settled temporarily. Mr. Hunter turned to the Roman Catholic faith lately. He had suffered a stroke of paralysis, and the soundness of his mind was called into question in an application presented by his son.

Both sides yesterday agreed to follow the interim injunction granted by Judge Lavell, who directed that the body should be taken from the home of his son-in-law, Edward Graham, Maple Lawn, and removed by another undertaker to the home of the late Mr. Hunter's sister, Mrs. Thomas Hogan, East Street. Accordingly the body was removed yesterday and instead of the funeral being conducted with Roman Catholic rites, as desired by deceased's wife and daughter, Mrs. Graham, the service was conducted by Rev. A. O. Cooke of St. Mark's Anglican Church, which Mr. Hunter had attended at Barriefield. The body was placed temporarily in the vault in Cataraqui cemetery.

The original action entered by the son, William J. Hunter, will be re-entered at Toronto. The son is surviving executor of the father's will, and on this account Judge Lavell decided that he should have the right of directing the funeral. The family is divided in religious beliefs.

The courts have yet to decide whether the body is to be buried in a Protestant or a Roman Catholic cemetery.

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, THURSDAY, MAY 22, 1930.

If you should ask us the question . . .

we would say..

There are 7 Reasons why we sell Silvertowns

One of these reasons is

The Product Itself *

Here they are:

* 1 THE PRODUCT ITSELF
Made of scientifically-mixed cords, water-proofed by Vulcanizing Fluid, and scientifically designed for traction and long wear.

2 REPUTATION
Goodrich Silvertowns are backed by the reputation of a name that is known the world over as one of the largest tire manufacturers.

3 SERVICE
Years of experience and unsurpassed resources in the hands of the factory-trained Goodrich Silvertown Tire. Naturally, this tire stands for Goodrich Satisfaction.

4 PERFORMANCE
Goodrich Silvertowns have proven their performance under all kinds of conditions.

5 MILEAGE
Millions of Goodrich Silvertowns are now delivering more and more mileage, and are proving the economy of Goodrich Silvertown Tires.

6 VALUE
Thousands of motorists driving now should be in your own state that no other tire gives you a better mile per dollar value.

7 DEPENDABILITY
The quality of Goodrich Silvertowns . . . the reputation of the manufacturer . . . the service and performance . . . challenge records . . . these combine to give you DEPENDABILITY in Goodrich Silvertown Tires.

Fundamentally, our success depends on the quality of the tires we sell. 8 Years of experience in selling tires has taught us that Goodrich Silvertowns give you the greatest dollar value.

The famous Goodrich "Water Cure" toughens the tire evenly throughout and insures maximum resistance to wear. They are tough clear through to the innermost ply.

Regardless of the make of the tire you now own, drive around and let us check your air pressure. Our service will add thousands of miles to the life of your tires.

When you are ready to buy Goodrich Silvertowns . . . call on us.

* DESIGNED FOR TRACTION AND LONG WEAR

Left—The Goodrich Silvertown made in standard and extra heavy sizes. Center—The Goodrich Cavalier made in popular sizes. Right—The Goodrich Universal Silvertown for trucks and busses.

"COPYRIGHT AND FOR SALE IN BOOK FORM AT ALL BOOK STORES"

A day or so later I gave the signal and the gunners all came. We shot ten and let twenty-two go. And on May 1st they all circled high and took the airline Hudson Bay Limited.

That year did not bring me quite so many inquiries. One interested man asked how many I thought would come next spring; I said, "Possibly sixty or seventy-five." He said, "Is that so?" I replied, "I can't know." But on March 4th, 1910, they started coming again and for two weeks the flock kept getting larger until there were over four hundred. We shot twenty-six and allowed the rest to go north, although we could just as easily have shot two hundred. But before they left I was fortunate in getting a picture. Do not kill all you can but "Let the mother go, that it may be well with thee, and that thou mayest prolong thy days."

The last contingent left April 27th. By the way, this is the earliest I ever knew the last of them to leave.

Right here I wish to make an explanation, that although we shot twenty-six, they were not all eaten by us shooters, but were given around to our nearest neighbors.

On February 20th, 1911, they started coming from the South again, and in less than three weeks there was a small cloud of them. Really I did not know there were so many Canada geese on earth.

As I have previously stated, my home is three miles north of Lake Erie, and these geese most always go to the lake for the night; and by times when the first bunch would be alighting in and around the ponds at my home, you could not see the south end of the string of them, circling.

One morning we neighbors were shooting a few at the north pond. We shot into a family of ten and noticed "Don't shoot, boys, they are too far off," but the words were too late. The bangs of the guns were the only reply I heard, and two geese fell dead; one extremely large gander fell with a broken pinion; the other two flew away to the lake. As my request the boys gave me the big gander. I took him to the house and performed a surgical operation on him, myself. I first tied the severed arteries with strong linen thread, then cut the end of the wing right off and let him go in the park. In about an hour the other two geese came back circling very high. By this time there were fully one thousand geese around the premises; all seemed to be honking to bring them down. Finally they circled over the park and this big, broken-pinioned fellow gave a honk, and instantly they answered and started to lower, making the air fairly hum as they descended. They lit near the house, with their wounded brother. To be brief, on May 2nd, the geese migrated with the big flock but the big gander never left his broken-pinioned brother. Really he was one of the most self-sacrificing alphta of my life to see this big gander give up all his liberties of this North American continent, and voluntarily live in captivity with his brother. We named them David and Jonathan.

Dear old Jonathan! How he would get David to back clear across the pond, then run against the wind and try to fly! Yes I have seen this happen fully twenty times a day; Jonathan would fly across the pond, but when he saw his brother David was not coming he would alight and swim back to him. This alight took the desire to shock out of most of my neighbors, and there has not been a goose shot on my premises since.

When fall came we thought possibly Jonathan might go South, but no; neither our cold nor winters, nor the extremely hot summers could drive him from his brother.

Jonathan's noble ways soon won the admiration of every visitor that came on our premises. While David was one of the heaviest wild geese I have ever seen, Jonathan stood a little taller, but not quite so heavy-set. He was very powerful and active; more so than any goose we have on the premises. Having both wings to defend himself with he always faced an approaching enemy. They lived together in the park for seven years, but sad to say, in January, 1918, one morning when I looked out the window, here was dear old Jonathan lying dead on the snow near the centre of the pond where they always roosted. The hand-writing on the snow told the story. A great horned owl had attacked them in the night. Two other eight or ten wing-clipped geese, including David had run under the evergreens and shrubs. Jonathan having both wings, gave the enemy battle, but being handicapped in the darkness, the owl sunk his grappling hooks into Jonathan's head and put his eyes out, killed him and ate his neck off right at the breast bone, drew some of his entrails and ate them. Useless to say we all felt sad, and the telephone rang time and time again that day. "Is it true an owl killed old Jonathan?" "Yes." And with a sigh they would hang the receiver up.

But I was determined to avenge his death. The other geese did not come out that day. When night came I concealed a trap in dead Jonathan's feathers, as I knew this murderer would come back. And the next morning this bird-eating devil was fast. Really I could have burned that owl at the stake with a good heart.

In 1912, owing to the weather being very cold and snowy, the geese did not come until March 16th.

On Good Friday of the last-mentioned year the wind blew a perfect gale, and there was a five-acre field full of geese here, as thick as in any picture shown with the exception of one where the ladies have driven them into a huddle. A piece of sheet iron blew off the engine room at the tile factory and rolled end over end until it struck the wire fence that enclosed the geese field. Every bird screamed and took flight, going with the wind. When they were about a half mile away they turned to come back, but this iron was bright on one side and they could see it. There they stood, floating in the air. Only we older people that have seen the clouds of passenger pigeons, back in the seventies, have any idea of what this sky-full of geese looked like. I stood and looked at them for a few minutes. Then I went and took the tin and again that day,

FARM REPORTS

PROPER GRIT IS IMPORTANT FOR RAISING CHICKS

'Are Two Types on Market; Necessary to Chickens' Health

HOW TO TELL

Ways to Determine Proper Kind of Feed for Birds

The type of grit used for feeding chicks is important.

In general there are two types of grit on the market. The first type consists of acid soluble stone, mostly calcium salts, such as limestone, phosphate, rock, gypsum, etc. The other type consist of granite or other materials that do not readily dissolve, even in strong acid.

The gastric juice that acts on a feed for a chick's stomach is acid in reaction just as the gastric juice is acid in your stomach. It contains considerable hydrochloric acid. As a consequence, when acid soluble grit is used it quickly dissolves and leaves the gizzard free of any grinding material.

If you are not sure of the kind of grit you are feeding, put a few pieces of it in a glass of vinegar. If small bubbles keep rising from the stones after the first few minutes, the material is soluble acid and should not be used as grit. A soluble grit may be responsible for certain types of paralysis, diarrhea, toe-pecking, cannibalism, feather-eating, slow growth and poor feathering.

Any grit that dissolves in acid is simply supplying additional lime to the ration. An excess of calcium probably is just as bad as a deficiency since it means extra work for the digestive system to dispose of it.

A grit that is easily pulverized in the fingers should not be used even though it is insoluble in acid because it will be ground up too quickly. If the grit is to grind grain and grind grass, it needs to be hard and tough.

Fairly light-colored or shiny granite is undoubtedly the most satisfactory grit material to use. It attracts the chick's eye, and is hard, rough and insoluble in acid. Birds have a strong instinct to pick up shiny things. They often pick up small pieces of coal because it is shiny, even though it is too soft to be good grit. Obviously, the instinct to eat grit is one of the most strongly inherited, traits of birds.

It is theoretically possible to raise a bird and feed it no grit, but few, if any commercial poultrymen can afford to keep chickens that way. Chicks that are not fed grit are inclined to eat litter or other fibrous material that goes through the intestines without being ground, and in consequence tears the intestines, causing hemorrhages. Intestinal injuries, due to lack of proper grit, or worms probably are the cause of nine out of ten cases of bloody droppings, believed to be coccidiosis.

If you want the chicks to grow rapidly and evenly, be well-feathered and not eat each other up, keep a fair amount of granite grit in the mash hopper at all times. By putting the grit on top of the mash the chicks are sure to get what they need.

McCoy's Cod Liver Extract Tablets—so rich in health-promoting, invigorating and rejuvenating elements —that's the secret how so many thin, anaemic men are adding sturdy, rugged flesh on their scrawny frames—how they're building up amazing power of endurance, great vitality and energy.

Cod Liver Extractives have been prescribed for years by world's greatest medical authorities for rundown, weak, nervous men, women and children.

The great energizing, flesh-adding and health-regulating substance found most abundantly in the livers of the lowly Codfish, has been extracted and put into delightfully pleasant and palatable sugar coated McCoy's Cod Liver Extract Tablets.

30 tablets cost only 60 cents at Doyle's Drug Store or any drug store and if any skinny man doesn't gain at least 5 pounds in 30 days—his money back.

FLOWERS

Some flowers often cause much annoyance by refusing to freshen up after they are cut and placed in water in the house, especially if some little time elapses from the time they are cut until they are placed in a vase.

This condition may be remedied by cutting the stems under water after they have been taken into the house and not exposing the cut end again to the air.

When the stem is cut in the open air the normal functioning of the plant draws air into the cut stem, form ing tiny bubbles. This prevents the circulation of water through the stem and will follow. Cutting off a portion of the stem allows the water to circulate and the bloom will freshen up. The procedure in which the bouquet should be placed should have sufficient room for water to cover the stems well and at night it is an excellent idea to place the flowers in some container where the stems can be deeply submerged if it is desired to prolong the life of the bouquet.

Another device is to sear the stems over the flame of a gas stove before putting the flowers in water. This is excellent treatment for many kinds of flowers. The stem should be cut just before searing. Searing closes the passages in the stem and prevents the escape of sap. Poppies need treating by this method to make them stand well.

It is always better to cut flowers with a sharp knife, making a clean cut instead of the usual methods of scissors, which crush the stem. A sharp cut after they are taken in the house is advisable when they have been cut with scissors.

At this season of the year branches of many early blooming shrubs may be cut and brought into the house and placed in vases to open their blooms. The forsythia and pussy willows are much used in this manner. They give a fine example of the effectiveness of simplicity in flower arrangements as a few stems of the straight growing willow and one branch of forsythia will prove much more effective than a thick cluster of tangled branches.

NEW VEGETABLES BY HYBRIDIZING

There are two methods of originating new vegetables, hybridizing and what is known as "pure line" breeding. Hybridizing is the production of new varieties. Pure line breeding does not involve crossing. The first produces new varieties, the second produces new strains.

Per example, stringless green pod beans are sold according to strains. They are all stringless green pod beans, but one strain will produce larger pods to a plant. The development of this strain is by pure breeding, the theory of which was developed through experiments with barley beans by Prof. Johannsen of Copenhagen, whose conclusions are now a classic of the science of breeding.

There is a norman variability in plans aside from the variations caused by cross breeding, plants from selfed seed of the same variety will show differences in the size of pods, the number of seeds in the pod, the size of the foliage or other characteristics. These plants are selected for some particular quality and self-fertilized. All the plants originating from the original "pod plant" self fertilized, will produce the characteristics until they become fixed. This plan was very similar to that by Prof. Johannsen in making up a "pure line."

Superior strains of any variety of a vegetable usually are developed by pure line breeding, the selection of some plant, which seemed of superior quality to its fellows of the same variety, segregating it, self-fertilizing it and saving the seed and sowing it until a sufficient supply is obtained to market it.

A pure line consists of a group of individuals having a normal variability of its own and the offspring of which breed true to their particular type through self-fertilization. It is a process requiring patience and time.

There are selected strains of Golden Bantam corn produced by hybrids in which Golden Bantam has been one of the varieties used as parents.

THREATEN U. S. LEAD IN WORLD FARM PRODUCE

New York Company Says Agriculturalists Are in a Bad Way

OVER-PRODUCTION

Progress of Foreign Agriculture Has Been More Than Astounding

With all due allowances for the popular assertions that the U.S. farmer is a chronic grouch, and that for political purposes his condition is revealed in the worst possible light, there is ample basis of fact in the conclusion that his position in the last few years has become increasingly difficult, says the Standard Statistics company of New York, in a current survey of the agricultural situation of which follows:

"Progress of foreign agriculture during recent years affords considerable basis for believing that American agricultural supremacy is seriously threatened. Lessening dependence on American sources of supply is resulting in a marked reduction in exports of our two largest crops—cotton and wheat. Foreign producers are according growing recognition to the advantages of modern cultivating methods, and export sales of domestic manufacturers of agricultural machinery are of impressive proportions.

"To intensify the present plight of American farmers, general over-production of basic commodities exists everywhere, effecting a depressing influence on prices of raw materials, and consequently, on the purchasing power of a majority of the world population. Dependence for a number of years on American loans to finance the re-establishment of their industries, foreigners are now burdened with a volume of interest payments which constitutes a formidable and increasing proportion of their funds ordinarily available for purchases of American goods.

"All this leads to the conclusion that foreign sales of domestic agricultural products—and all materials for that matter—will be consummated increasingly on a strictly shopping basis, subject to competition in foreign markets. Future trends of American crops will probably be in the direction of smaller quantity and better quality. Outlook for manufacturers of agricultural equipment is bright, but tempered, nevertheless, by the necessity for facing the growing distribution of foreign producers."

FARM NOTES

All the summer flowering bulbs may be set out in May. To assure a continuous supply of gladiolus, they can be set out at biweekly intervals. The rule is to plant all bulbs as deep as the diameter.

When you consider your headstrong as a permanent addition to your home place and realize that two, three or more years are required until your shrubs and trees attain the beauty of full growth, then you will appreciate the value both of time and careful planning.

Make use of hedges. They are practical and they are beautiful. Where hedges serve effectively as boundaries, screens or borders they also delight the eye with their fresh green leaves, their flowers or the colored foliage and bright berries of the advanced season.

That junior farmers in Ontario have been quick to realize the value of special short courses in agriculture, is evidenced by the keen interest they are showing in this particular branch of agricultural education. This year, the attendance at the special short courses of the Ontario Agricultural College located at Guelph, is 160, a considerable increase over former years. The courses offer in dairying, poultry, livestock, agriculture and drainage.

Peter B. Kyne

"I am taking orders from the king," Burney reminded her with mock coolness.

"Then go to bed," the princess replied cheerfully. "Thank you for a wonderful entertainment. Breakfast at nine. Good night."

Ken Burney and the king exchanged brief glances and Burney nodded almost imperceptibly.

"Good night, boy," said the king, kindly.

When the king and the princess found themselves alone the girl asked:

"Dad, who is he?"

"He claims to be the son of old Pe ter Burney, a California cattle man of no acquaintance. If this be true (as I'm not going to take his word for it) he's an American with a slight strai.

—say one eighth—of Castilian blood in him. Just enough to give him tar, persment and make him carefree, easy and prodigal. His alleged father is one of the finest gentlemen in Cali fornia. Old cattle stock, you understand. Fine, years behind time with his code.

"I have always liked old Felix, but never knew he had a son. I hadn't many money dealings of time to time, with his cattle as security, and while I realized that as an operator, he was not a gilt-edged risk, still I could always send a man to count his cattle at any time and find more than the number he represented he owned when making the loan. This boy, Ken, says my lawyers closed in on him a year ago and took the cattle for the loan. Well, we were abroad then, Muriel, and I never knew anything about it. My head can't hold every detail of my business. However, if we took the cattle we gave him the best market price for them and remitted him the difference between the selling price and his debt. Of course, with his ranch unstocked, old Felix has to lease it to some other cattleman, and now Ken says he's retired, and the doctors tell him he hasn't many years to live. I imagine I'll be able to buy that ranch some day at a reasonable figure, particularly if this boy gets himself killed which he's extremely apt to do."

"How dreadful, Dad! I wouldn't like to see him killed," the girl remarked thoughtfully. "He's so young and merry and gallant and so filled with the joy of living. He seems a trifle frivolous, but somehow, I think that's just a smoke screen to hide a lot of real courage and sound common sense. He strikes me as a gentleman of what has been a sort of dilettante cowman."

"Oh, I imagine he knows cows well enough. He was brought up on the Santa Ines Rancho and they ran about three thousand head. The trouble is old Felix spoiled him for the business by raising him a gentleman and giving him too much money to spend. Why, the young fellows used to play polo! Now that old Felix can no longer support another gentleman in the family, the boy's broke and a wanderer in search of a riding job. Apparently he realizes that cows are the only thing in life he really knows and the thing about and he has occurred to him to cultivate his acquaintance with me, for he has been hanging around the palace for the past week, hoping to get a chance to speak to me. Well, I'll give him a job. I'll make him my private secretary. That will keep him around where I can watch him and see that he doesn't get himself killed. Good night, dear."

"Good night, Dad," the girl replied, kissing him affectionately.

Ken Burney was awakened next morning by a knock on his door and the voice of the king's valet announcing breakfast at nine o'clock. He found the king and princess awaiting him in the breakfast room.

"Good morning, Mr. Burney," the king greeted him. "Sleep well?"

"Yes, sir, thank you."

"Ken, dear," the princess said, "I've been telling father about your plan to enter the polo tournament and he thinks it a splendid idea. He says he will be glad to lend you a string of ponies and that you may have the use of the royal polo field for practice. Isn't that splendid?"

"Very kind of you, sir," Burney said to the king. "I'll be glad to enter the tournament, but I'm afraid I'll have to forget polo. A wise decision."

"Are you going to employ him, Dad?"

"Of course I am. He needs a job, have it to give and I might as well be a chance on him, for his father's as an anybody else. But he's the country gentleman, even in his chaps, for the good of his immortal soul I'm going to put him over the jumps tomorrow. The El Ranchito riders with him will have to associate with him for a time—there's such a thing as blind class hatred, you know —until they realize he knows his business and that, dude that he is, he's a man, too. If he stays on old Geronimo ten seconds they'll know him for a rider and a game one. And that will help him a deal."

"But suppose he should be thrown and hurt?"

"Cowboy luck," the king replied indifferently. "His father has been a cowman and had laid the foundation of the boy's present vast fortune; although he had given his heir-apparent certain educational and cultural advantages unknown to Grandfather Bardin's day, he had also raised Brad ley Bardin a thorough cattleman, in order to fit him for his heritage and equip him with ability to add to it. And now well the old man had wrought the Western cattle world now know."

The present king had started his practical education in the bunk-house with his father's riders at thirty dollars a month, and had worked up slowly; in the process he had been thrown many a time and oft, and had had broken bones to prove it, but it had never occurred to him, in the pride of his youth, to avoid a horse just because the animal was disrespectful. He chuckled now as he recalled his own days as a broncho twister. He was in a reminiscent mood.

"I've been working for your grandfather five years, Muriel, and had served and won at poker sixty-four hundred dollars when the old man got wind of my bank account and decided it would be fun to take it away from me. I think he was testing me to see if there was any truth in the saying that a fool and his money are soon parted, for he offered to bet me ten to six I couldn't ride a red roan outlaw we'd had on the ranch for five years. The best riders in the country had never stayed on that horse after the fourth jump and my father was very proud of that horse. He'd maintain anywhere and anybody that was a top-notcher in his own particular line, whereas if this outlaw had been a dude cowpuncher Dad would have shot him to save feed.

"Muriel, this horse had everything. Why he could wrinkle his back and throw a good man, but his specialty was whirling like a pin-wheel, simultaneously pitching high, hard and hard crime so continuously he was a four-footed advertisement for the secret of perpetual motion! He just bored you proper and if he didn't throw you in the first four jumps you fell off. And I knew this because I'd tried him out in private—and in those days it required an extra bad horse to make me extend myself.

CHAPTER VII

"Well, my father was always a bit stingy with me. He made me work for every dollar of spending money I ever figured. Consequently, I yearned to take ten thousand dollars away from him and after a while I figured out a way to swindle him. I bet six thousand against his ten and reduced the bet to writing so there wouldn't be any argument about it afterward, because I knew my father would crawlish on me if I gave him a real opening. So I carefully subjected myself to the rules that I got his mind off one important point and he signed up with out noticing his error in failing to stipulate the place of execution. That let me free to choose it, so I chose the dry, sandy river bed of the Rio Ardo. The old man made no objection. He figured I'd picked the sand of the river bed to save myself from being so badly hurt, when I was thrown, as I would be on the hard ground of the corral. Anyhow, I was his son and he was willing enough that I should have the best of it in falling so he sat on his horse and grinned like a fool while a couple of the boys helped me saddle the outlaw.

"Now this was not to be a rodeo ride, where you start out of a chute and finish when the pinter goes off which is when the judges figure you have done your best and the horse has done his worse. This was to be a contest to a finish, winner take all. Fortunately I knew this horses' habits. When you first corked him he'd make four broad jumps, with his back arched, and come down hard each time. If that didn't do the trick he'd stop and do his stuff within an area of twenty feet. He'd let you get comfortably set in the saddle if he was kept blindfolded. So I faced him in the direction I desired then got my assistant removed the blindfold and we were off.

"On the second broad jump he was off the firm sandbar and into the stream, where about two inches of water flowed over something my old man didn't know existed at this spot —and hat was a patch of quicksand about eighteen inches deep. A zero alcoholic horse would have whirled out of it the moment he felt his front feet going down but this horse was a lunatic and a creature of habit, besides. He just had to make those four broad jumps or bust, so he made them—and discovered I was still aboard. So he stopped and started to work on me in earnest, only to discover I'd confound him as well as my old man.

"That horse just couldn't do his stuff because, in that shallow quicksand, he couldn't get any traction, and in about a minute he was blowing and sweating and trying to climb out. I wouldn't let him, and there he worked until all the ambition was out of him and I scratched him fore and aft until he stood still under it and just bawled like a spoiled baby.

"Of course Father screamed murder and tried to make a charge of swindling stick, but he couldn't go back on the written bet, so finally he paid it. Years later he admitted I'd saved him a million dollars by giving him a libel ad education in the matter of covering all the possible contingencies in a contract."

"As I recall Grandfather," Muriel retorted, "he was a ten-minute egg and you're just like him. I want you to give that Ken Burney a good job on your California ranches. You have no right to permit him to risk his life in your employ here."

"Well, it's his business, honey. He has a man's right to rail his own hoop."

"But don't you realize, Daddy, that you're just subsuming murder by employing him?"

The king was irritated. "There's entirely too much to-do made over this blood of rascals these days," he growled. "A lot of loose thinking and sticky gush is wasted on the killer but none on his victim. This boy, Ken Burney can kill Martin Bruce in cold blood and then, with my money and political influence back of him, he can plead not guilty by reason of insanity and a jury of twelve good boobs and true will turn him loose to kill somebody else. Of course, just to appear orderly, they'll send him to an insane asylum, where he can catch up on his neglected reading for three months; then the doctors will examine him, declare him sane and he will go back to his friends and be congratulated on two counts—one for going insane and the other for recovering."

His mood changed suddenly. He chuckled. "And that young idiot tackled Martin Bruce in his own ballwick. Lord, what a lion-tamer the boy would make!"

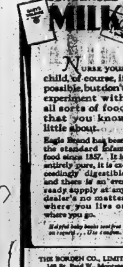
"He isn't an idiot," the girl defended.

"I don't understand his modus operandi," the king continued. "I gather that he took Bruce by surprise, disarmed him and then made a monkey out of him. Undoubtedly, at real fist fighting he could have stretched Bruce in half a minute, yet he preferred to annoy him to humiliate him by slapping him to enrage him, to so imbue him with hatred and a yearning to even the score as to make a killing inevitable the first time they meet. Muriel, I'm certainly glad that that boy's funeral expenses unless he consents to listen to reason."

The girl was exasperated. "But you're encouraging him not to listen to reason," she protested. "How can

"I'm not inconsistent. That young fellow has made up his mind to bring himself forcibly to my attention by doing for me something he knows will please me very much. He's heard some gossip around cow camps, has put two and two together and made four. I don't know what his game is, but I suspect that the first point called for in his plan was the rough-housing of old Martin Bruce, but whatever his plans are, they're his and I have no business to interfere.

"You forget, my dear child, that I started young, and that I'm an old man now. All of my lieutenants who started with me are old men too. Old age in the executives is what atrophies a business and I'll be shot if, when I pop off, I'm going to leave you an atrophied business, to be handled by old men. I need new blood in my business. Young blood, bold blood, clean blood.



"I'm going to start with Kenneth Burney and give him a try-out; notwithstanding the fact that I have known him but two hours, he's my idea of a general manager for El Ranchito. He fascinates me, Muriel. Of course I could send him away to another ranch where his life would be as peaceful and safe as a monk's in a monastery. But I don't want to and I know he wouldn't accept such a job, because he'd feel he hadn't earned it and that I was trying to be nice to him as a sop to my conscience for closing out his father's cattle.

FOUR EXAMPLES OF MOTORING ECONOMY

TO illustrate the big cash saving you can make by adopting Castrol, we show four examples in which four motor car owners driving different makes of cars and living in widely separated parts of Canada have slashed their oil bills. An ordinary motor oil at 35c a quart is expensive . . . it gives only 500 miles before a change is necessary. Castrol at 50c a quart is Economy! Castrol gives not just 500 miles . . . but 2,000 MILES WITHOUT CHANGE. It is a lubricant that talks dollars and cents and makes no bones about it.

EXAMPLE 1.

Showing comparative Annual saving made by Chrysler 70 owner, using Castrol at 50c per quart instead of an ordinary oil at 35c per quart. Crank case capacity—6 quarts.

Mr. J. P. L. of Sherbrooke, Que., driving a Chrysler 70 covers 20,000 miles in a year's time. Castrol gives him 2,000 miles without change. Thus he requires only 10 changes of oil a year. If he used a 500 mile oil he would require 40 changes a year. Here is his cash saving:

40 changes of an ordinary oil @ $2.10 per filling	$84
10 changes of Castrol @ 1.50 per filling	30

EXAMPLE 2.

Showing comparative saving made by Studebaker Commander owner using Castrol at 50c per quart instead of an ordinary oil at 35c per quart. Crank case capacity—8 quarts.

Mr. R. H. M. of Toronto, Ont., drives a Studebaker. Last year he covered 30,000 miles using Castrol. He changes his oil every 2,000 miles. Thus he required only 15 changes. Had he used an ordinary 500 mile oil, he would have found few 60 changes. He made a real saving as these figures show:

60 changes of an ordinary oil @ $2.10 per filling	$126
15 changes of Castrol @ $3.00 per filling	45

EXAMPLE 3.

Showing comparative saving made by Chevrolet owner using Castrol at 50c per quart instead of an ordinary oil at 35c per quart. Crank case capacity—4 quarts.

Miss K. P. B. of Halifax, N.S., drives her Chevrolet Sedan about 14,000 miles a year. Formerly she used a 500 mile oil. Now she uses Castrol and changes every 2,000 miles only. Her saving figures out like this:

28 changes of an ordinary oil @ $1.40 per filling	$39.20
7 changes of Castrol @ 2.00 per filling	14.00
Her Saving	$25.20

EXAMPLE 4.

Showing comparative saving made by Packard owner, using Castrol at 50c per quart instead of ordinary oil at 35c per quart. Packard crank case capacity—8 quarts.

Mr. G. N. D. of Vancouver, B.C., drives one of his cars, a Packard Eight, about 12,000 miles a year. He uses Castrol and drains and refills his crank case after every 2,000 miles of driving. Thus, he requires only 6 changes of Castrol a year. He would require 24 changes of a 500 mile oil:

24 changes of an ordinary oil @ $2.80 per filling	$67.20
6 changes of Castrol @ 4.00 per filling	24.00
His Saving	$43.20

Showing the minimum amount you will save on lubrication by using "Castrol" at 50c a quart instead of an ordinary oil at 35c a quart, whether you drive annually 10,000 miles, 20,000 miles or 30,000 miles.

How Much Can YOU Save?

If your car is not listed in either chart shown here, get out your pencil . . . and figure out just how much you can save in a year's time by adopting Castrol! You will find that every time you fill your crank case, Castrol saves you from $2 to $4. For the sake of easy figuring, do not consider "make-up". BUT REMEMBER: only half-pints much Castrol is required for "make-up" as any other oil!

LOSING NEWS VALUE

Departure of the Graf Zeppelin which passed over the Atlantic last year twice has been made on another flight across Neptune.

But the start of the airship was not given such prominence in the press as last year.

Ocean flights in airships are becoming more certain and reliable and hence much of the notoriety and news has dropped out of these transatlantic efforts.

It may be some day—but it is probably far hence—that flights over the ocean will be no more news than the flight of a plane across the sky over Belleville or the departure of a train out of the two stations in this city every so often each day and night.

OVER THEIR COFFEE

Manufacturers of Belleville have their own organization which will over the flowing cup of coffee discuss problems of their own. This should result in cooperation of manufacturers and in clear understanding of their real needs and united action in any effort.

Talking of coffee houses sends the mind back to the history of the coffee houses of Old London where the news of the day and politics were the theme of discussion as well with the gossip of the day. The ancient coffee house was an important institution.

So under the benign influence of the fumes of coffee Belleville produces its factories and other industries may carve something important for the good of the city, the district, and themselves and their employees.

GUARDING WOODLANDS

How close a watch the efficient forestry service is maintaining over the crown lands in Ontario is indicated by the successful work of the district service under direction of Mr. H. W. Crosby, district forester, whose office is at Tweed. Through a network of four hundred telephones, sixty workers are able to localize a fire from many miles distance and to have fighters on the scene in less than five minutes. In the event of an outbreak there is the assurance that foresters can be reached by telephone and will leave at once for the scene. How effective this measure of protection is is proven by the fact that practically all the fires this spring which was "a bad" spring owing to drought and high winds were minor fires and were kept within ten acre bounds.

What this means to the country in wealth of forests and timberlands can hardly be estimated. But it means the preservation of many thousands of dollars worth of lands. It means more, the assurance that no fire will get out of bounds and that tourists need have no fear in entering upon the hinterlands for recreation for camping and fishing.

When the Forestry Department takes such care to preserve the woods by the creation of an efficient system such as is in operation in this district, it becomes the bounden duty of every one while in the woods to see that no fires are started through careless leaving of camp fires or throwing of matches, and cigarettes. The individual can afford to exercise a little care when the province is willing to spend money to save the wooded areas.

RUNNYMEDE

The preservation of Runnymede to the British people sent a thrill through the hearts of the millions who look to that spot where liberty's charter was signed, sealed and delivered. It will not be cut up into building lots as was hinted but will become a historic site and shrine to the empire forever. The National Trust had not the money and a private gift made Runnymede forever safe as a public heritage. Lady Fairhaven made the gift in the name of her two sons and herself. She is of American birth but that shows how people of the United States look back to Runnymede.

Every school boy thrills yet with the story of the signing of the Magna Charta where the recalcitrant monarch was hedging and dodging the great issue. Adults also thrill with the thought that this historic lowlying ground where the barons, the then champions of liberty drove John, the symbol of autocracy and irresponsibility into a corner where he signed the charter of British liberties.

England has often been likened to a garden and it is but fitting that Runnymede a scene so closely associated with the trend of British history should still be a silvan scene seven hundred years and more after the immortal marks were made by the king on the parchment at Runnymede. There is something calm and quiet about this place. It so much resembles the calm retreats of British public men after the turbulence of scenes in business and political life. It is a symbol of the innate charm and the peace of English and British character and the love of the people for homelike scenes. The barons could be strong as iron in a setting of silvan delight but once their aim was gained, they became as calm and harmless as the iron of Hubert which had once been so dangerous, to the unfortunate Prince Arthur.

"Are you wearing spectacles, old man?"

"Yes. Through cross-word puzzles I've contracted an optical defect. One eye travels vertically and the other horizontally!"

SIDELIGHTS

Lilacs are lovely ladies,
Slow stepping down the ways.
With half remembered phrases
From half forgotten days.
They bring our hearts the perfume
Of all the bygone Mays.

Their gowns are quaintly fashioned
Of green and lavender,
Voluminous in pattern,
Rich-scented when they stir,
Flinging to winging breezes
Largess of May-time myrrh.

They are serene and gracious,
Slow swaying in the air;
Alike at dusk and dawning
Superlatively fair;
Beloved by all who cherish
The fragrance that they share.

They dance decorius measures
With careless cavaliers,
Who leave them while they curtsy,
Nor stay to dry their tears;
The scent of dew-drenched lilacs
Will linger through the years.

SUNSHINE WILL COME AGAIN, runs the cheerful refrain of an old song, which advises "harbor not sorrow, cares come tomorrow, sunshine will come after rain," or words to that effect, the favorite song of one Charles T. Ellis a delightful singer of the long ago. Monday and Tuesday one could hardly get a pleasant look along Belleville's great business thoroughfare, but Wednesday, all was different, all faces were wreathed in smiles hardened arteries began to "unlax," rheumatism twinges faded away and life began to look worth while again. S'Funny how our spirits respond to the weather just like thermometers, we must be mercurial.

ORGANIZATIONS FOR DOING GOOD seem to be multiplying, an evidence that civilization must be getting better, and instead of trying to Do each other GOOD, endeavor to do good to each other. An organization not very widely known generally because its work is done quietly and unostentatiously is the Community Welfare Council of Ontario, headquarters in Toronto, which has for its object social research community surveys, better public understanding of social needs and promotion of adequate social services in municipality and province. This organization recently made a dental survey in a rural Ontario community in which the teeth of 283 children were examined, most of the children being from farm homes with a few from villages. Fourteen schools were visited, 283 children examined and only twenty-nine children found with all teeth in good condition. Two hundred and fifty-four of the children needed the attention of a dentist while only fifty of the children had previously received care from a dentist. One hundred and sixty of the children had from four to twelve teeth needing dentist attention. Fifty percent of the children examined showed indication of under nourishment, much of it doubtless due to the condition of their mouths which made adequate mastication of the food difficult or impossible.

15 STEEL TOWERS, 60 MEN AND 400 PHONES GUARD DISTRICT FORESTS

System Make Possible Detection and Location of Fire Quickly

FIRE CONTROLLED

H. W. Crosby, district forester, whose office is at Tweed, Ontario, has a staff of sixty men engaged under the forestry branch, who keep constant watch of about three and a half million acres, mainly of crown lands. So complete is the network of 400 telephones and fifteen 80 foot steel towers so that within five minutes of an alarm of fire, men can be on the scene. If a fire should threaten to get out of bounds, the forester has authority to call out the settlers to help in fighting the flames.

This spring has been an unusual spring on account of the early drought and throughout the entire territory under Mr. Crosby's direction, there have been about 120 indipient fires of which fully ninety per cent were controlled within ten acres. High winds and the dry condition of grass and soil were the agencies which created a special fire hazard this spring but the network of the Forestry Department is so complete that the outbreaks were rapidly controlled. Indeed so fire got out of control or extended over into the next day after the discovery of the fire. The territory covers part of Hastings, Peterborough and part of Haliburton, as well as parts of the counties east of Hastings. In the western area of these there were about sixty fires almost all caught into the incipient stage and quenched.

The efficiency of the system of forestry fighting was demonstrated recently when a fire was reported from a tower in Durham township as having been discovered to the west. Other towers reported the signs of fire and the result of the discoveries was that the fire area was barrowed down to within three hundred yards though one of the reports came from a tower sixty-five miles to the east, the Parham township tower. By crossing on the lines of direction form which the fire was reported the foresters were able to localize the locality of the blaze within a few yards. Such efficiency is amazing to those who are accustomed to haphazard guessing as to distances.

Such an efficient fire fighting machine in the forests gives assurance that the forests are well guarded day and night and that there is no danger of an uncontrolled outbreak of fire in the crown lands.

Recent reports which came out regarding fires in some northern townships were greatly exaggerated.

Vocational Study and Education of Today

Mr. Ferguson of Vocational School Addressed Kiwanis Club

Kiwanis Club at their weekly luncheon held in the Queen's Hotel Tuesday entertained as guests Arthur Jones, Chairman of the Board of Education, and Kiwanian George Ferguson in charge of the Vocation School at the Collegiate Institute this being Vocational Day. Both gave instructive addresses on the work being accomplished in this splendid school in the way of preparing the students for the serious business of life in a vocational way. There was also present Mr. Ernest Ritchie, first president of the Kinsmen Club of Toronto, who explained to the members the purposes of the new organization. President Imlah occupied the chair and Capt. Evans collected the fines. James Bankier led the singing and also contributed a solo in his pleasing manner, Ross Hunter accompanying. The committee dealing with the meeting night met at the close of the meeting but no decision was made as to the possible date. It has been decided however to hold the function at the Country Club instead of the Quinte Hotel.

Vocational Work

Arthur Jones, chairman of the Board of Education, introduced the speaker of the day, giving a resume of the work that has been accomplished by the Vocational Committee of the Board. After two years of preparation the Vocational School has worked out beyond the fondest expectations and the surrounding town is hosting at Belleville as the centre of education for this district. During the past week the entrance classes of the various public schools have visited the Vocational School and this has been a great benefit in creating in the minds of the children a desire for higher education along this line. The speaker also gave credit to P. C. MacLaurin for his foresight and his work in connection with the new school. At the present time said Mr. Jones, there are 285 students in the Vocational School and 360 students in the Collegiate Institute. The Board of Education is now administering nearly $1,000,000.00 worth of property, said Mr. George Ferguson during his address paused around samples of the students' work in the machine shop and draughting room and these elicited the praise of the members. The progress in the Vocational School has been most marked, said Mr. Ferguson, and it is expected that a full class of students will be attending from Trenton at the next term. Descendo will also be sending some students for the Vocational School. Other branches of Vocational training will be taken up, it is expected, by the Board of Education in the near future.

Appreciation was expressed by Kiwanian Fred Deacon. Mr. Deacon, invited all to inspect the new Vocational School while the classes were in session.

Mr. Ferguson said in part:

"You, as fellow citizens of Belleville undoubtedly believe in education as an essential factor in community progress. Evidence of this fact is to be found in the splendid schools, both public and secondary which are obtained in this community. They are second t onine in the Province. Since you have enthusiastically supported a very progressive educational policy, I take it that you are interested in knowing more of the details.

"With the completion of the new school two years ago, when the third department was added, it ushered into this community the latest development for the education of the modern youth. There is considerable misunderstanding as to the aims, method and standing as to the aims, method and organization of a technical school and as a Vocational teacher, I therefore welcome the opportunity of espousing its cause.

"The elementary or public schools with their music instruction, organized sports, dental and medical supervision, are so complete in their organization that they have relieved the homes of almost the entire education of the children from the ages of 6-14. The demand is everywhere insistent that schools shall assume great and, ever greater responsibility in meeting the larger duties which are now thrown upon them by the changed social and industrial conditions.

"The apprenticeship system, which in the middle ages surpassed in interest and range, all forms of general and liberal education, now ceases to be an effectual method of occupation al training. It has disappeared completely from the professions and for commercial or industrial occupations where apprenticeship still continues, it is of low condition.

Complete Training

"The secondary schools have been driven to fill the gap and are endeavouring to assume the responsibility for the complete training of students up to the age of 16 and frequently over; training infinitely superior in its aim and accomplishment to the old apprenticeship system in that it endeavours to combine the finest elements of apprenticeship plus theory and related knowledge, with a general cultural training.

"This is an industrial and commercial age. In the struggle of modern industry to produce goods cheaply, three elements are of importance—raw materials, labor saving machinery and organization. The most important asset to any state is the value of the individuals themselves. While conservation of natural resources and promotion of industries is important and the development of trade has tremendous benefits and conversation of life and stability in the individual workers is supreme. Next to that comes the provision for opportunity for satisfactory employment. Without these we cannot have an intelligent, industrious, resourceful happy and contended people. The greatest asset of the state.

"If, then, the commercial and industrial activities of the people are to be of benefit to the individual and to the state, it is evident that the education for a great majority of the people must have a vocational aim and result.

Contrary to the view held by a surprising number of people, the vocational school is not, and cannot possibly be a trade school in the accepted sense of the term. Rather, it is a means of providing a general education, but arranged so that the subject matter of the course shall be directly related to the real problems of daily life.

"The aims of the course stated briefly are: 1. The preparation of the body, mind and spirit, for following some useful occupation. 2. The cultivation of mental powers, the acquisition of knowledge and the development of the scientific spirit with direct reference to an occupation. 3. Preparation of the individual so that he may intelligently deal with community and state problems and also make discriminating use of his leisure.

The Royal Commission on Industrial and Technical Education on whose report the present Vocational Education Act is based, made certain comments on the existing educational system, which I shall quote. 'The educational work was becoming so bookish, and, worse than that, was developing into school systems that had few points of contact with or relation to industry, agriculture or housekeeping life.' The Collegiate and high school course, to which this quotation referred does meet an important need in preparing students to enter the professions, but is wasteful of time and effort in providing that type of education for those who are to enter industrial, commercial or home making activities.

In Ontario, about 65 per cent of those gainfully employed are engaged in trade, commerce or industry. Therefore, it is correct to assume that 65 out of every 100 students who are at present in school will eventually find their way into trade commerce or industry. Either; they must arrive there, ignorant of what is expected of them or their vocational and commercial education must be studied and developed in the most thorough manner in order that it may prove effective in preparing this large body of workers to render sufficient service and to obtain their greatest success in life. Secondary education along Vocational lines as a special training for industrial and commercial occupations is just as essential as the special training for the professions.

"Of the 460 or more students attending the Collegiate Institute, (this is not including the Vocational School,) only about 10 per cent continue their education and graduate and about 1-2 of those who graduate enter University. Those who drop out before completing their academic course and who enter the industrial field without specialized training, such as may be received in a Vocational School, have to learn by the sorrowful pick-up, trial and error method. Undoubtedly every student who does not intend to enter the professions or who is unable to attend four or five years at school should register in the Vocational Department. Here, he can secure a good general education combined with preparatory work leading to various occupations. The fundamental purpose of this education is to help youth—to enable those on the verge of young manhood or young womanhood to step confidently and competently into the respective forms of life work instead of, as so often, by the doubtful and wasteful process of hit-and-miss, hire-and-fire.

"Dr. Chas. Elliott, late res. Emeritus of Harvard University makes this comment on Vocational Education—'this combination of book work and shop work is the most perfect education that the world has ever seen.'

"Many boys and girls have not been able to decide by the time they have passed the entrance what occupation they would like to follow. The Vocational Department, by putting such pupils into intimate touch through its laboratories, shops, household arts and commercial departments,

EMBARRASSING MOMENTS

THE LEADING LADY

By Jasper B. Sinclair

Tommy Armstrong studied the girl's profile approvingly. She was sitting across the aisle from him, eyes intent upon the landscape flashing past the train window.

A wisp of brown hair strayed from beneath a closely fitting hat. A well chin lent an air of sided piquancy. He could not see her eyes, but somehow he knew they must be blue.

Tommy wanted to speak to her, but something in her attitude held him aloof. After all, just because you happen to be riding in the same car with a pretty girl is no reason why you should speak to her.

And then Tommy was presented with an opportunity. The most commonplace and banal of all ways.

The train was swinging southward down the long grade leading into San Luis. Going around a sharp bend a book that had been perched perilously close to the edge of the girl's seat slid onto the floor.

Tommy was out of his seat in an instant.

"Thank you," murmured the girl, accepting the book from his outstretched hand.

"Not at all," said Tommy. "Pretty isn't it?" he continued eager to converse further.

"What—the book?" Tommy thought he caught an amused twinkle in her eyes. They were blue, too.

"No—the scenery," indicating the panorama of purple and green that was the Santa Barbara forest.

"Yes, it is. I love it down through here," resumed the girl simply.

"Are you going far?" Tommy sat down, uninvited, in the seat beside her.

"I'm going to Hollywood. To start work on my next picture," she added naively.

"Oh, I see! You're in the movies?" he queried inanely.

She nodded. "I've already played five pictures. And you?"

"That's where I'm headed, too," responded Tommy. "I'm on my way down to Locke's studios. I—I write scenarios."

"Oh! That must be interesting work. I'd like to try my hand at that some day.

"There really isn't much to do," Tommy modestly declared. . . .

"I'm sure there must be," disagreed the girl. "Anyone can play in pictures when they're told precisely what to do and how to act. But it's different writing the stories themselves.

"Not so much," he murmured. "They usually tell you what to write. Then it's simply a case of seeing the story down on paper, having the producers tear it to pieces and rehashing it a dozen times. By the time you are through, everybody on the set has had a hand in it."

"I wonder——" and she looked out of the window an instant.

At that point Tommy adroitly turned the conversation into safer channels. A little more and he would have drifted into dangerous shoals.

They talked of many things after that. The time passed altogether too swiftly for Tommy, and presently the train was heading into Los Angeles.

"I suppose there'll be a brass band waiting to welcome home the leading lady?" Tommy laughed.

The girl shook her head. "Nothing like that. They don't even know I'm coming back, yet. You see——" She hesitated, pursing her lips as though on the point of explaining something further.

But the train came to a jolting stop and she never did finish the sentence. In the excitement of gathering his own belongings, Tommy remembered that he had forgotten to ask her name.

He lost sight of her for a moment in the crowd on the platform. Then he saw her getting into a taxi.

"A fine guy you turned out to be!" he reproached himself. "Don't even know her name, or what studio she's working in!"

"Oh, well—it probably doesn't matter. And her a leading lady, too! She must be—though I don't recall ever seeing her face before.

Tommy did not bother much about that angle. He was thinking deeply of a pair of blue eyes, a piquant chin and a stray wisp of brown hair.

The following morning Tommy presented himself at the studios in response to a summons from Locke.

"Good morning, Armstrong," the director greeted him. "There's a Miss Rainbow in the next room who is engaged in writing the story for your next picture. I want you to go in and talk over some points of it with her."

"Very good, sir."

When Tommy stepped into the adjoining office, he stopped abruptly just inside the door.

He was staring into the eyes of the girl on the train. Then he brightened in response to an answering twinkle of amusement.

"I thought——" Tommy hesitated, uncertain what to say.

The girl laughed deliciously.

"You didn't expect we'd meet so soon, did you?" she queried.

Tommy gulped. "No, I didn't," he confessed "Or I'd hardly have told you what I did. You see—" he felt

HARBOR WORK BEGUN

Cobourg, May 18.—Repairs to Cobourg Harbor requiring about three months' work and to cost about $3,6,000 have commenced here. Improvement through these repairs is expected to give it rank as one of the finest harbors on the north shore of Lake Ontario.

Some explanation was forthcoming. "Sometimes I get tired of pictures and I've often dreamed of being able to write a story for one—and—and——"

"I know," the girl nodded, quietly. "And sometimes I tire of thinking up ideas for pictures and often dream of being a star and—and——"

Then they laughed together, secure in their knowledge of a human failing to envy the roles played by others in the drama of life.

Tommy sobered instantly. "I'm not producer, and I can scarcely offer you a part in any picture, but——" he hesitated again.

"But what?"

And when Tommy looked down into her appealing eyes he felt sure of his answer.

"But I can offer you a part, not in reel life but in real life as.....my leading lady."

Drive Carefully!

over the Holiday . . . and at all other times

Suit your speed and your caution to traffic conditions around you

RECKLESS driving may be fast driving—or it may be slow.

Speed limits define only the maximum speed under the most favourable traffic conditions. Under certain circumstances these speed limits are not permitted by law. No motorist is justified in driving at any speed which would endanger his own safety or the safety of others on the road. Suit your speed and your caution to traffic conditions around you.

Over the holiday . . . when the Highways of the Province will be crowded with cars, be extra careful. Be ready for the careless driving of those who are reckless. It may save you or your car from injury.

Because of the increasing number of vehicles, traffic conditions each year become more involved and traffic control becomes more difficult. The support of every good citizen is required to save motorists and pedestrians from injury and death. You will do your part if you always observe the Seven Rules for Safe Driving, and take all other precautions when you are driving a car.

Seven Rules for Safe Driving

You must observe them and ALL other precautions ALL the time

1. Have your car in perfect mechanical condition—particularly BRAKES, STEERING GEAR and HEADLIGHTS.
2. GIVE YOUR UNDIVIDED ATTENTION TO YOUR DRIVING. In passing traffic, be sure there is a place for you in the traffic line ahead.
3. Never attempt to pass on curves or steep grades.
4. In entering main streets or highways, or in approaching a railway crossing where a full view of the track is obscured—STOP and LOOK.
5. When other vehicles try to pass you—LET THEM PASS.
6. When making a right turn, keep to the right of the highway; when making a left turn, keep to the centre.
7. Always SIGNAL before you slow down or stop in your course, and never BACK UP before ascertaining that the road behind is clear.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

LOVES INSTRUMENTS

John Francis

"What about lunch at Toni's, I'll go down town shopping this morning?" Molly Henderson smiled at Joe over the steaming plate of hot cakes she flashed across the table toward him. Joe glanced up from the morning paper, his eyes reflecting none of the keenness dancing in hers.

"You still have a hankering after Toni's, what about some other place nearer down town?"

Why the deuce did women hang on to sentiment for years after it had become threadbare? Joe thanked his lucky star that men weren't like that. Romance in a woman's life, died hard with a man it's different.

Molly laughed a low, rollicking laugh.

"Of course, I'd rather go to Toni's than any place in town, think of the wonderful times we've had there."

She stirred her coffee thoughtfully.

Joe didn't feel the least thrill at the memory. The soft light in Molly's eyes made him feel like a traitor. It seemed foolish to go trailing way up to Toni's when there were more convenient places to lunch. It wasn't as if they had to count their pennies like they used to before he had been taken into the firm. They could afford lunch at the best place in town now.

Much time Molly suggested going to Toni's, he determined to make some excuse, but he always found it hard to do, and because he did it usually made him feel that he was being forced into something he didn't want to do.

The memory of Molly's radiant smile when he told her he'd meet her, would haunt him all day, mostly because he couldn't share the thrill she got out of, what Joe called, warmed over romance. They were old married folks now—that is, they had been married five years. It was the monotony of the daily grind that made Molly's try ing to live over out-grown thrills, appear so childish. Yes, that was it, it got on Joe's nerves.

Molly had her house to look after, just as he did his business, why couldn't she be sensible and go on with life as he did. She was no longer a child, she ought to know that after the first years of married life, things just naturally settle down to a humdrum, come-day, go-day, sort of singsong affair, with the high notes that used to send a thrill down your spine, conspicuous for their absence. Joe was sure that he loved Molly as deeply as he ever did but as the years went by, love just lost some of its glamour, yes that was it. Those thoughts accompanied Joe on his way down to the office, once there he dismissed the subject and proceeded with the day's work.

During the course of the morning he received to phone Molly he couldn't meet her, that he had a business appointment, but it occurred to him that she wouldn't be there when he called.

Kenyon, the bookkeeper's assistant wanted him to run out to the club at lunch hour, for nine holes of golf. They were both housed for the spring tournament and wanted to talk things over. It would have been a real break in the day's round. Joe felt that it was Molly's fault he had to pass up the opportunity.

He was in anything but a pleasant frame of mind when he joined the stream of humanity that oozed forth from the broad entrance of the Priddity Trust building, into the midday air.

It was a hot day, and the long ride in the crowded bus, up to Toni's restaurant, was far from a refreshing thought.

Most of the office force had found their way into the cool retreat offered by the nearest lunch room. Joe made his way toward the bus stop. Near the corner he ran into Peter Maynard. He was emerging from a florist shop, a bunch of, what appeared to be, pink roses wrapped in green wax paper, held lightly in one hand. In the doorway he paused to wipe the perspiration from his forehead. Joe caught his arm.

"What's the occasion," he asked, as he noticed in Peter's good natured face, something that seemed to stem along the wrinkles and look itself in the softness of the radiant light that smiled out at Joe from behind the gold rimmed spectacles.

"I'm taking a half holiday—part of my vacation. You see, it's our wedding anniversary, our fortieth, and we are going to celebrate. Mary doesn't know it yet, but we are going down the river on a little excursion, like we used to before we were married. I'm taking her there—they are like the roses I took her that night, it'll please her, it takes such little things to make a woman happy. Ever think of it, Joe, just how forgetting the little things that make so much fun about. Not much to do for them after all, is it?" he asked, smilingly.

Joe's gaze dropped before the light in Peter's eyes. Eyes whose lustre had been dimmed by the passing years, only to brighten their inward vision. The bus came, Joe held the crowd back until Peter and his roses were safely inside. Peter's step wasn't as firm as it used to be.

"See you later, a little matter of business I forgot to attend to," he called to Peter, stepping aside as the man behind allowed his way past.

Later he surprised Molly almost as much by appearing at Toni's with a huge bunch of pink roses.

"Joey, what ever does this mean?" she gasped, burying her face in their pink fragrance.

Joe, rather flushed and ill at ease, was glad the table was in a secluded corner, yours are they had chosen it because they were courting.

"Oh, your birthday is sometime this month, isn't it?" he laughed, trying to speak casually.

"It's today, that's why I wanted to come here.

Remember the time you had Toni arrange a regular birthday dinner, "make and fill" on small scale for him happily, the pink roses held close to her breast....

Peter sighed, it takes such a little thing to make a woman happy. Joe reached across and caught Molly's hand in his.

"Sure I remember honey, and I held your hand like this." His fingers closed over hers, and he was surprised to find that the feel of her soft hand gave him.

Maybe after all he was wrong, sure he was, he'd book Molly up to Look at the kick Peter got out his fortieth anniversary. Perhaps remembering the little things was the one sure way of rising to an occasional high note in married life. He'd keep that in mind.

INSECTS HAVING EFFECT ON BEAN

Considerable beans are attached by the seed corn maggot, Pegomia fusciceps, which also injures several other vegetables, as well as peas. The root maggot attacks the roots and destroys the plant, but the chief mischief is done to the seed leaves as they first appear above the ground.

Good soil, well fertilized, to ensure a rapid growth of healthy plants, will enable them to resist the attack of the maggots and escape serious destruction.

The bean weevil (bruchus obtectus) is a very small insect about one-tenth of an inch long. Due to a covering of dense fine hair it is grayish brown in color. It is oval in shape and the head is bent down. The end of the abdomen is not covered by the wings.

The eggs are laid upon the young bean pods; the grubs, as soon as hatched, bore through and enter the beans inside. The adult stage is reached in the autumn, when the beetles emerge, if it is warm. If they do not come out they remain all winter in the ripened bean. They will increase and multiply in the dry seeds, if uninfested.

Fumigation as soon as practicable after they are harvested is the best means of killing the insect. This is done by putting them in a barrel and pouring on them one ounce of bisulphide of carbon for every 100 pounds, and then closing the receptacle tightly and leaving it for 48 hours. At the end of this time the insect will be dead. As the fumes are explosive and inflammable it should not be used near any light or fire.

Quick Pile Relief

No Salves or Cutting

Pile sufferers can only get quick, safe and lasting relief by removing the cause—bad blood circulation in the lower bowel. Cutting and salves can't do this—an internal remedy must be used. HEM-ROID, the prescription of Dr J. S. Leonhardt, succeeds because it removes this blood congestion and strengthens the affected parts.

Take HEM-ROID tablets as sold by druggists everywhere, have such a wonderful record for quick and lasting relief, that J. S. McKeown always sell them with guarantee of money back if they do not end all Pile suffering.

QUALITY and VALUE EATON GROCETERIA OPERATED BY THE EATON CO QUALITY and VALUE

FLOWERS NEED MUCH SUNSHINE

In a small area, which is shaded by trees or buildings, where it is desired to grow flowers, the garden design should be adapted to the conditions of sun and shade.

Instead of attempting to impose a set pattern of beds upon this area, without regard to whether the spots in which flowers are to grow are in the sunshine or not, the owner should make a diagram which shows the area in sun and shade or partial shade, and arrange his plantings so that the flowers are placed where they will enjoy favorable conditions.

The relation of a garden to the sun is known as its aspect. Where conditions of sun and shade are not uniform on both sides of the garden area, it will probably be impossible to employ a design which is symmetrical but this will be no handicap; with a little ingenuity a most interesting effect can be worked out employing unsymmetrical balance. In beds which are in full sunlight, the annual flowers and sun-loving perennials can be grown. In beds which are in partial shade, the flowers which do not enjoy the full sun, such as the primulas, columbines, pansies, can be grown; and here many of the native flowers will find congenial conditions. Lilies usually prefer a partly shaded location.

Densely shaded areas are ideal locations for garden seats out(or ?)s tables, and lawns where games are played. If this sort of use is not advisable, then there are many shrubs which will grow in the shade. Where even grass refuses to grow, a paved area can be made, surfaced with flagstones, brick or crushed stone; and here plants in pots can be grown of varieties which thrive best in the shade.

Before selecting a design for your garden, the conditions which are important in determining the success of planting be examined, and a design should be used which is adapted to these conditions. Besides sunshine, but drainage, oil and contour of the ground are important.

Vocational Study and Education

with a variety of occupations, may help them discover the kind of work for which they are best adapted and so solve this important problem.

"For instance, a young lad, whose father was a plumber, entered one of our schools. The father, with an eye to the remuneration and the sort of work he frequently enjoys under the sink or in the cellar while his helper is away getting a bigger wrench, insisted that the boy be given an opportunity of preparing at once for the plumbing vocation. As is the case in all Technical Schools, he was required, during his first year, to take a limited amount of instruction in all the shops, along with his academic work. As a result of this broadening experience and the opportunity to try out in other vocations, he chose printing and before the close of the first year showed a decided indifference to plumbing. As a result of the year's tryout in a variety of shops, that boy is now an instructor, and let us hope, contented worker, and a good citizen.

"The practical classes for boys which have thus far been organized, in our school, are Woodworking, Auto Mechanics, Machine Shop and Draughting. Provision has been made in the building for the organization of classes in Electrical Construction. As was previously stated the school does not propose to teach students the trade associated with any of these shops. Our school is not a trade school. For the majority of skilled trades, it is impossible for any school to carry through a complete training programme. The absence of production conditions, limitations in the variety and size of work put through, render this impractical. Nor can the school attempt to give specific training for specialized factory jobs or special trades. It is possible, however, to cover the fundamental principles, which underlie the main branches into which industrial activities are grouped, viz. Metal Work, Building Trades couple with draughting which is the language of industry and essential to success in every phase of industrial life. It is the purpose of the course to give instruction in the theory underlying principle and related knowledge of industrial work rather than manipulative skill, with the object of training pupils for advantageous entrance into industry.

"Consider e.g. the Machine Shop course in the metal group. Students who chose to specialize after completing the first year general course will devote at least 30 per cent of their time to the practical application of the subject in the Machine Shop proper, 10 per cent in draughting and 20 per cent in related mathematics and science and the remaining 40 per cent in general cultural subjects, English Composition, English Literature, British, Canadian and Industrial History, Economics, Civics, Physiography, Geography, and Physical Training.

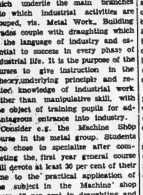
"The Science and Mathematical course of the Technical Students does not include much of the theory which is given in the Collegiate course yet it covers all the practical application offered in the work up to and including the senior Matriculation. Indeed, with a fully organized course, such as obtained in the older Technical School, Physics and Chemistry go farther than the Collegiate course.

"As an illustration of what is meant by advantageous entrance into Industry, the Windsor-Walkerville Technical School has for several years had a working agreement with the Ford Motor Co., of Canada, in which the latter agree to absorb all the graduate students who have specialized in Machine Shop Practice. So satisfactory is the training offered that these students are now admitted as Junior apprentices to the tool making department on the same remuneration as those graduated from the Ford Trade School viz. $18.00 per week.

"In London and Hamilton the appreciation of the technically trained student is known by the fact that for nearly two years the school has been unable to supply the demands of employers for graduate students. The same can be said for Toronto, of graduates in draughting and printing.

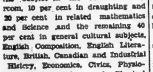
"Here, in Belleville, we have not as yet reached the placement stage, since there will not be any students completing the course for another year. No doubt a contact with local industry will be established as soon as the need arises.

"And now, just a few words about what has been accomplished thus far:



"The greatest care has been exercised in the selection of tools and equipment consistent with price and the needs of the community, to the end that the instruction offered shall conform to the latest in industrial practice. We started in, less than two years ago with a student body to whom industrial activities were absolutely foreign. At the close of the first year the students were given the opportunity of selecting one of the four vocational classes in which to spend the remainder of their course, does not exceed 400 hours, it represents a considerable accomplishment. It is true that manipulative skill has not been developed to any extent, but the students know the fundamental principles underlying this work and can apply them to other conditions. Along with this they have been receiving a general education.

"The opinion is held by many public and High School teachers that only the boy or girl who cannot succeed in regular classes belongs to the Vocational Department. This theory also remains in the mind of many of the intelligent public and administrators, regardless of the fact that all recent investigations by reputable psychologists have conclusively demonstrated that there is no connection between vocational aptitude and ability to succeed in business.



"The student of less than average intelligence will not, in all probability manage to complete a secondary school course, and is therefore barred from a professional career. Obviously the vocational course will do him the greatest good, and in many schools, special courses are arranged for this group. But the course is not intended for this type of student, only. Many of our most successful business men today, rose from the industrial ranks, as well as from the professions. George Westinghouse and John Fritz of the Bethlehem Steel Co., started as machinists. There is opportunity for the most brilliant student through the Vocational Department.

"Finally, good citizenship, Vocational excellence, and worthy use of leisure should be kept in mind with etiskill acter. A well educated man must have the power to think and reflect, to grow in mind and soul, to assimilate knowledge and acquire sources of information. But he should also have the power to do. Many know much, but lack the power of doing and making. To accomplish these things, involves self knowledge, self mastery and self control. With these at command, success is assured. And this is the objective offered for all the students.

An O'l for All Men.—The sailor, the soldier, the fisherman, the lumberman, the out-door laborer and all who are exposed to injury and the elements will find in Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil a true and faithful friend. To ease pain, relieve colds, dress wounds, subdue lumbago and overcome rheumatism, it is excellent. Therefore, it should have a place in all home medicines and be amongst those taken on a journey.

HEPBURN, CONSERVATIVE CANDIDATE IN PRINCE EDWARD

REVOLUTION IS CRY OF RESIGNED PRESIDENT

British Prepared for Any Trouble Which May Develop—Woman Sentenced.

BOMBAY, May 23.—CP—Authorities are well prepared for any trouble that might arise through the plans of the Indian Nationalists for mass raids on the salt depots at Wadala and Dharavana on Sunday, Police, reinforced by troops have been placed at strategic points where disturbances might occur.

Things were comparatively quiet today throughout the district of the recent disturbances. At Shelapur curfew order was rescinded today and the Royal Pustliers had a sports' meeting attended by the public. The atmosphere was altogether friendly.

There were indications of a grave situation here following the speech by V. J. Patel, resigned President of the Legislative Assembly, who pleaded for "revolution and still more revolution". Within the speech was concluded a hundred thousand Nationalists who had been listening to Patel surged through the streets shouting "Down with British, away with the British goods".

Mrs. Sarojini Naidu, who took over the leadership of the disobedience campaign from Tyabji, successor to Gandhi, was today sentenced to six months' simple imprisonment for leading raiders on a salt depot Wednesday.

Stock Market is Blamed for Deaths

Wilkesbarre, Penn., May 23 (CP)—A triple murder and suicide were discovered today on the farm of Ernest Snyder, 60 year old wealthy fruit grower.-Snyder is declared to have shot his son-in-law, his daughter and grandson before hanging himself in the garage. Stock market losses are said to have driven him to the crime.

FROSE DEATH OF OFFICER.

MONTREAL, Que., May 22.—CP—Police are investigating the death of former police detective Patrick O'Donnell, whose body was found in St. Lawrence River today.

PROTEST SUSPENSION

LONDON, May 23.—CP—The Executive Council of English Baptist Federation decided today to hold meetings all over England in protest against the suspension of immigration in Palestine.

MOTORIST FINED IN POLICE COURT

Wilfrid Paradise was found guilty today in police court of failing to return to the scene of an accident and was fined $10.00 and $19.50 costs. Mr. Paradise, it is alleged was responsible for an accident at the corner of Church and Station streets, and without ascertaining the damage caused, drove away from the scene. It is also alleged he did not stop at the "stop sign" and had he done so, the accident would have been avoided. The permit of the driver was revoked for six months. The fine was paid.

ATTEMPT MADE TO ASSASSINATE MALTESE LORD

Lord Strickland Central Figure in Dispute Escapes Death

VALETTA, Malta, May 22.—CP—An attempt was made today to assassinate Lord Strickland of Sizergh, prime minister of the Maltese government. He was fired at point blank three times but was not injured. A man named Mile was seized by police and charged with shooting.

Lord Strickland, himself a Catholic has been the central figure in an eighteen month dispute between the Maltese government and the Vatical which rose when he the prime minister was said to have refused to allow a Franciscan priest, who was a British citizen, to be transferred against his will to Sicily on orders of the Superior of the Community of Malta.

The dispute reached an acute stage when the Roman Catholic hierarchy forbade Maltese Catholics to vote for the government in the elections.

PRESENTATION ON BEHALF OF CITY

Miss Frances Wims Accepts Position at General Hospital

Miss Frances Wims, who for the past three years has been employed in the City Gas Works office, was last night honoured by the Mayor, the city council and the staff of the City Hall, and presented with a beautiful Sheaffer pencil before leaving her present position for that on the staff of the Belleville General Hospital.

On behalf of those present, Mayor Reid called for the presentation and addressed to Miss Wims his regret at losing her efficient services in the interests of the city gas department, but expressed his satisfaction that she was still to remain in Belleville. He also spoke highly of Miss Wims' work during the time she had been at the city hall, and wished her every success in her new work. Miss Wims thanked her friends in a few suitable words for their kindness. She will assume her new duties at the Belleville General Hospital on Monday, May 26th.

Racketeers Burn Victims Alive

Chicago, May 23 (CP)— A new horror in gangland thrust itself upon the attention of police, when reports were heard that fifteen men have been burned to death in a underworld crematorium. The charred bones tied in a sack found in the forest reserve lent strength to the police theory that instead of taking their enemies for a "ride", racketeers are burning them alive.

SIXTEEN NURSES WERE GRADUATED FROM HOSPITAL

Gala Scene at St. Thomas' Parish House When Nurses Receive Diplomas

PRIZES PRESENTED

Dr. J. A. Faulkner Addresses Graduates Class and Gives Advice

Sixteen graduate nurses, the largest class to graduate from the training school of the Belleville General Hospital, last night received their reward after three years of training and effort, at the annual graduation exercises held in St. Thomas' Parish Hall. The platform, banked with ferns and baskets of beautiful cut flowers, made a fitting setting for the impressive event. Following are the graduates:

Graduates

Winnifred Almey, Trenton; Ursula Babcock, Odessa; Keitha Brickman, Tweed; Marjorie Alice Bray, West Huntingdon; Eleanor Blaikie Cryder, man, Hampton; Amy Ellen Derbyshire, Trenton; Gladys Helen Fitzgerald, Belleville; Marie Marguerite Gordon, Demorestville; Dorothy Adeline Kirkpatrick, Cobourg; Helen Young, Kingston; Pearl Alice Nicholson, Cobourg; Florence Irene Reid, Belleville; Ethel Grace Rodgers, Frankford; Keitha Pearl Sine, Frankford; Jewel Edna Thompson, Tichborne; Rhea Leola Wager, Marysville.

The graduates entered the hall preceded by the nurses-in-training and Miss Mary Mikel, superintendent, and Miss Collier, assistant, and took their places on the platform. Each graduate was immobile in the white uniform of the hospital and carried large bouquets of deep red roses, tied with ribbon. When seated the company made a beautiful picture and friends and relatives who packed the hall, fell justly proud of them. "O Canada" was sung by the entire gathering and Dr. Bell then read two passages from the Scripture, followed by a deeply impressive prayer, and the repetition of the "Our Father."

Mission of Nursing

Mayor Reid, who had the honour of being chairman during the first half of the evening, welcomed the gathering and spoke a few complimentary words to the graduates and their superintendent, Miss McIndoo. "I consider it a great honour to fill this position," said Mayor Reid, "for it is a rare thing for one person to be thus honored more than once, therefore I was happy to accept the kind invitation extended to me." "We must look back three years," continued Mr. Reid, "to really understand the wonderful achievement these young ladies have made. They have wearied wistfully day and night to reach their objective, to make something of them, a task to fill their position fittingly and worthily. No one can help feeling proud of their achievement, they have set the pace of the commencing years of their life, ready to receive their diplomas and go out into the world to do their wonderful mission. We are here to congratulate them on what they have done. During the past three years while they have been in training, thousands of patients have passed throughout the hospital, and they have given to these unfortunates one the very best that was in them. "You are going out to do a wonderful work," he told the graduates, "and you should first remember that you are a woman and seeing that you are a nurse, for what is more wonderful than to be a woman. We can think of our mothers, the shining light in each of our lives and thank God for a woman." Mayor Reid concluded by assuring the nurse that anything either he or the, City Belleville could do for them while he was the Mayor, they had only to call upon him.

Diplomas

The three diplomas, representing the Belleville General Hospital, the Kingston Hospital and the Royal Alexandra, were presented to the nurses by Mrs. W. C. Mikel, who accompanied her presentations with a few words of personal congratulation to each graduate. Mrs. Mikel told the audience what a high standing each nurse had to achieve before she was

Former M.P. of Prince Edward Chosen on First Ballot

HUBBS SUPPORTS CHOICE

(By Staff Reporter)

Wildly cheering Tories yesterday nominated Brigadier General B. B. Hepburn, of Picton ex-M.P., to carry their colours for Prince Edward-Lennox in the forthcoming Dominion elections this summer. General Hepburn received the nomination on the very first ballot and the old Parish House in which the meeting was held, was rocked to its foundations with the salvos of cheering which greeted the announcement. John Hubbs, who has represented Prince Edward-Lennox for the past nine years in the Federal House, took his betting like a man and said he would back up General Hepburn to the utmost of his ability.

It was a three-cornered fight right from the beginning, for though sixteen names were nominated for the convention, General Hepburn, John Hubbs and Fred Newman were the only ones who would allow their names to come before the convention for the first ballot. Mr. Newman is at present in England, attending the convention of the Empire Boards of Trade, but in a letter which he sent to the president of the Prince-Edward-Lennox Conservative Association he stated that he would let his name come up for nomination.

Gen. Hepburn Asks Support

"I can only win," General Hepburn said, "with your undivided support and help in the coming election. I ask you to do what you can for me. If I am elected for the Federal House it will be purely and solely through your efforts. I will give my all first to Prince Edward county and secondly for the Dominion."

Prays to Back Bennett

John Hubbs, M.P., stated that the convention was lucky to have a candidate at all. "But" he said, "I am right here to give him every support in my power. I will do for him all that I can do. Just as all pull together and not lose this riding in the Liberal landslide which is sweeping the country."

HOW AND WHEN HOLIDAY WILL BE CELEBRATED

The holiday will be celebrated on Monday, May 26th under civic proclamation. The Retail Merchants at their meeting decided in favor of keeping open on Saturday and closing all day Monday and this recommendation was passed on to the City Council for action. Mayor George A. Reid and the city council passed favorably on the suggestion and a proclamation was issued to that effect. Those who are fortunate to hold positions that ceases work on Saturday at noon will have a splendid holiday until Tuesday.

Nothing in the way of entertainment has been arranged for the holiday excepting the senior ball game between Kingston and Belleville. This is an annual event and the fans should be out in support of their team. Many will take to the open waters by cars to follows in the footstepe of Isaac Walton their patron saint. The pickerel season is just opening and some fine catches have been recorded. Chisholm's Rapids, Healey's Falls, Madoc Lake, and the Trent River are places, where the Pickerel abound. Others will go to the trout streams in the northern part of the count while the motoring public will likely take to the open road. The weatherman promises fine weather for Monday.

MADE IN CANADA WEEK

When you spend even only $1.00 on Made-in-Canada goods you are helping yourself, your family, the Canadian manufacturer and the Canadian store-keeper.

And, when an organization like the Metropolitan Stores with branches from coast to coast puts it in the power of Canadians to purchase thousands and thousands of dollars worth of high-class merchandise the wheels of Canadian industry are kept going, work is provided for Canadian workmen and Canadian money is kept in Canada where it can do the most good.

With this in view the Metropolitan Stores from coast to coast have decided on the most gigantic of all sales when only Made-in-Canada goods will be featured.

Friday May 23rd TO Saturday May 31st

Every Metropolitan Store from Halifax to Vancouver will join hands in this big sale when merchandise will be sold at cost and less than cost. It is not a money making sale but a sale to help Canadian industry and advertise Canadian products.

This sale will commence Friday, May 23, and will continue every business day until the following Saturday, May 31.

Special Items will be introduced every day and we urge you to take advantage of these festive offerings.

We also advise you to watch the windows of the Metropolitan Stores as much of the sale merchandise will be displayed and we would like you to see the high-grade article and the low prices being asked AT THIS SALE ONLY.

Stock up at this sale and help the Canadian workman and the Canadian manufacturer and KEEP THE CANADIAN DOLLAR AT HOME.

GUESTS AT HOLLOWAY

On Monday evening the Young People's Society of Grace United Church, Trenton, were the guests of the Holloway St. Young People's Society. Despite the heavy downpour of rain upwards of 75 young people gathered in the Sunday School parlors. A splendid programme was presented by the Trenton Young People following which the Holloway St. society entertained their guests with a number of games and contests. At the close of the evening refreshments were served. This meeting marked the closing of Holloway Young Peple's Society which will reorganize early in September.

ATHLETIC SOCIETY FORMED

An organization meeting of the Holloway St. Athletic Association was held in the Sunday School rooms last evening. The following officers were elected for the coming season: Hon. Pres.—Rev. L. S. Wight; President—Alfred Higgs; Vice-Pres.—Hazel Smith; Secretary—Katharine Anderson; Treasurer—Harold Mott; Entertainment Committee—Doris Thorne and Wm. Morgan; Grounds Committee—Thos. Byrne and Wm. Van Tassel.

GRADUATED AT TORONTO

Misses Emma Jean Cooper, Cobourg and Doris Aileen Rorke, Madoc, were among the graduate nurses to receive diplomas at the Toronto General Hospital graduating exercises at Convocation Hall last evening.

POST OFFICE HOURS

All public officials excepting City officials will hold Saturday as the holiday. The banks will be closed as will the Government Liquor Store. All these places of business will however be opened on Monday. Assistant Postmaster J. V. C. Twitch gave to the Ontario Intelligencer the hours that will be observed on that day at the postoffice. The public lobby will be open from 8.00 a.m. to 6.00 p.m. and the general delivery, registration and postage stamp wicket, from 8.30 a.m. to 10.30 a.m. The money order and Saving Bank wickets will be closed all day. There will be no delivery by the letter carrier and there will be one collection in the evening made by the collector of mails.

PLANE WAS DAMAGED

One of Leavens Bros. planes flew over Deseronto on Sunday and in making a landing at Mohawk plains dropped into a mud-hole. The plane was somewhat damaged.

CELEBRATE ON MONDAY

All the public schools of the city as well as Belleville Collegiate Institute will celebrate Victoria Day on Monday with a holiday. Chairman Arthur Jones of the Board of Education announced last night. St. Michael's Academy is also closing on Monday in celebration of the occasion.

SPOKE AT NAPANEE

The cheesemakers of Addington county held their first annual meeting last night in Napanee. J. P. Griffin, of Toronto, and J. L. Irwin, Dairy Products Grader, of Belleville, were the two speakers of the evening. The meeting was one hundred per cent. attended.

EUCHRE AND DANCE

The Canadian Legion will hold another of their regular euchres and dances in the Legion Hall this evening. This will be one of the last affairs of this nature to be held by the Legion until after the summer season.

awarded the diplomas.

The presentation of pins was made by Miss Collier, who also spoke briefly to the nurses and extended her congratulations.

Gold Medallist

To Miss Derbyshire of Trenton went the high honour of winning the gold medal for general proficiency in her work. Colonel Vandervoort made the presentation and wished her the same success in the practice of her profession as she had achieved in training.

The silver medal was won by Miss B. Cyderman of Hampton, and the presentation was made by Dr. Cronk.

At this point of the proceedings Mayor Reid was called away on civic business and gave over the chair to Mr. Tanahill who acted in this capacity for the remainder of the program.

Miss Jewel Thompson of Tichborne was presented with the prize for the highest marks in Pediatrics, by Dr. Hill. The prize for the highest marks in Anatomy was won by Miss Winnifred Almey and presented by Dr. Morgan; for the highest marks in Medicine, Miss Marie Gordon, presented by Dr. Blakelee; for the highest marks in Surgery, Miss Amy Derbyshire, presented by Dr. Faulkner; for the highest marks in Hygiene, Miss Keitha Bice, presented by Dr. Cronk. Each doctor in making his presentation congratulated the winner.

The George S. Trudell Prize was won by Miss Pearl Nicholson of Cobourg and was presented by Mr. Tanahill. Mrs. Cresmell-Shaw presented the prize for the highest marks in theory in massage to Miss C. Kemp, and to Miss Derbyshire for the highest mark in practical massage. The presentation of syringes to each graduate was made by Dr. Cronk.

Miss Keitha Brickman was awarded the prize for neatness and this was presented by Miss McIndoe, the superintendent, who explained that in marking this award several points were taken into consideration, namely, the personal appearance of the nurse while on duty, her personal appearance while in civilian dress, the neatness of her room in the nurses' home during her three years of training and the way in which she executed her work in the hospital. Miss Brickman therefore is to be highly congratulated in winning this prize which I consider a great honour," said Miss McIndoe.

The prize for the highest marks in Obstetrics was awarded to Miss Keitha Bice by Dr. Connor.

Dr. Connor then presented to the audience Miss Kirkland, to whom the McGill University had awarded a special scholarship for her fine standing during her post-graduate course in the hospitals in Montreal. Dr. Connor explained that this was a great honour for Belleville as Miss Kirkland had to compete with nurses from seven other hospitals in the province.

The impressive Florence Nightingale pledge was taken with the nurses by Rev. Robert Hall. Each nurse repeated the pledge in unison.

The address of the evening made to the nurses by Dr. J. A. Faulkner was highly inspiring and follows in full:

Dr. Faulkner's Address

"Nursing as a profession is a developed organization of the last few decades but nursing the sick must have had its origin from the beginning of life upon the earth. Will it be for us all that we have such a group in our social economy to assume such important responsibilities. It is therefore our duty as citizens to help to develop the best material obtainable by having good training schools, efficient superintendents and sympathetically supported by the general public.

"You young ladies forming the largest class to graduate from the Belleville General Hospital, have come to us from various parts of the province. There must have been some impelling motive, some purpose, some good reason prompting you to choose the course of your lives, possibly from one of leisure or pleasure to that of nursing. There was something in your heart and soul that prevented you doing something else and forced you to one of choosen such a noble profession. That which I wish to impress, is the ideal. You knew or anticipated, that it was not all a life of ease, and came prepared to endure and suffer what ever was necessary to attain a certain purpose. That spirit so exemplified by your action is to be commended.

"Your life in the training school has been one of three years' duration and has demanded of your physical being all you could give. From 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. you have toiled without relenting. It is hard to conceive how a class of young women working twelve hours a day and studying lectures after such physical effort could go through final examinations with such glowing results.

"The Medical Staff who have had the privilege of lecturing to you have reason to feel proud that you have paid such close attention to the theoretical work and that you have shown good knowledge of this work. The Associate Staff and the Active Staff have found it a pleasure to work with you in your training. It may have seemed hard at times when little clouds arose, but these have been dissipated by mutual understanding and closer co-operation. You can always be assured that what may have been said in haste has been with the best motive and for the best good to you. Your interest should be for the best both for your training school and for yourself. While it is a training school there must be training and that means discipline. You will find that the hardest master is your best friend and you can be assured that you will always have the heartiest co-operation of those with whom you have worked and with whom you have associated.

"Tonight you are graduating. Now you are standing at the door of opportunity. For three years you have toiled and studied. You have been developing those qualities that are essential to the care of the sick. While your graduation is an evidence of a certain attainment, please do not let it be the end of your endeavours. Before many years have passed if you continue in your professional work you will realize that your best efforts have been since graduation. Be not satisfied with your present attainments. The field before you is full of opportunities. Some of the needs will appeal to you as you apply yourselves to advanced study and post graduate work. The large hospitals will require supervisors and superintendents, the Victorian Order of Nurses must have recruits. School Nursing is an important branch, social work of various kinds and many other avenues are open to you. Be always anxious to improve yourself and keep building upon the foundations of the past.

Properly Trained

"You are now trained nurses. To be properly trained means much. You have had certain qualities born with you, that have been developed and some changed. If the School has helped in any way to foster the Spirit of true nursing and develop those qualities it has succeeded. We shall be proud of you if in your nursing life you shall always practise your profession, exercising those virtues that must be the part of a good nurse.

"During your work certain qualities have been outstanding. Your devotion to duty, your kindness, especially to the aged, your careful and tender handling of the sick and injured, your reference in giving information to satisfy idle curiosity, your cheerfulness and willingness in carrying out the wishes of many physicians, your tact in dealing with the patients' friends have all been demonstrated to a marked degree."

MUSIC

Queen Alexandra and Queen Mary School Choirs Heard on Empire Day Program

In the first of two Empire Day programs Queen Alexandra and Queen Mary public school scholars presented on Thursday evening in the collegiate auditorium a concert of high order. A chorus of hundreds of children from these two institutions were heard in stirring national airs and songs. Under the baton of Mr. V. P. Hunt, supervisor of music in the public schools, the young choristers have developed a volume, a sense of rhythm and precision so that they caught the full spirit of the numbers in which they appeared. From the opening strains of "O Canada" to the singing of "God Save the King", the same high standard of excellence was maintained. "The Maple Leaf" and "Ye Mariners of England" by Dr. Calcutt were well rendered. But the choruses were not only imperial and national in a broad sense but they also as in "The Minstrel Boy" and "Annie Laurie" and others gave touches of the lyric of Ireland, Scotland and England. The Schubert number "Who is Sylvia" was one of the choicest numbers on the program. "Rolling Down to Rio" showed how well trained these choristers were in that they caught the lilt of this song. Two two-part choruses were sung "The Harp That Once Through Tara's Halls" and "Now is the Month of Maying" by the senior choirs were real achievements. The junior choirs in two numbers also did honor to themselves.

The work of the primary classes in a series of four numbers was not to beforgotten. Two young pianists Mary Vose Thomson and Eva Bowler pupils of Miss Handley A.T.C.M., were applauded on their numbers. Peter Waite, sang a patriotic number "Changing the Guard at Buckingham Palace" well. The number by the girl contestants of 1920, "Smiling Through" was well done while the boy contestants in "Passing By" gave a very fine number. The Collegiate band played a number and Miss Helen Luscombe sang two effective songs. A cadet song was a feature.

"Mother Goose in Health Land" a health play was delightfully put on by little boys and girls of Queen Mary School, many of them in costume grouped about Betty Morgan as Mother Goose. The latter made a hit with her part and her young supporters were lively and keen in their roles. The entire effect was exquisite and it set a healthy lesson for the young. The cast was directed by Miss Helen Cooper and Miss B. Ketchenson.

"Mother Goose in Health Land"

Mother Coose—Betty Morgan.
Tommy Tucker—George Bell.

Mr. Arthur Jones, chairman of the Board of Education, was in the chair. He congratulated the scholars and the supervisor, Mr. Hunt, Miss Bessie Barlow, who was accompanist and Mr. Jack Greene, who played the cornet with the choruses. Miss Handley, who has music classes in the school and Mr. Ross Hunter.

Col. W. N. Ponton, chairman of the music committee of the Board of Education, expressing his pleasure at the success of the year's training in music and in the high standard set at the Empire Day concert called for a show of favor as to the proposal of having the chairman of the board and the supervisor forward to Their Majesties, the King and Queen, today, greetings from the schools and Board of Education of Belleville. The audience expressed approval of the proposition by applause.

Col. Ponton paid tribute to Mr. Stillman of the committee and referred to the lamented death of a musiclover and truster, Donald G. Bierker.

The audience was not as large last night as expected owing to counter attractions but tonight when the other school put on the second program, there is assured a very large audience.

Winners of the competition for those two schools this year were:

Board of Education Shield—Winning Choir—Senior—Queen Alexandra School.

Music Committee of the Board of Education Shield — Winning Choir — Junior—King George School.

RAILWAY BOYS GRAB 2ND GAME IN TOWN LEAGUE

C.P.R. Score Six Runs in One Frame to Defeat Senators

(Special by Staff Reporter)

TRENTON, Ont., May 23.—C.P.R. won their second start in the Town Softball League last night when they came from behind in the last innings to completely overwhelm the Senators scoring six runs and taking the verdict by 10 to 5. Senators scored first, tallying one in the third frame and they held the lead until the fifth, when the railway boys notched three on some loose fielding coupled with walks C.P.R. scored another in the sixth, but the Senators, nothing daunted went out in their half of the sixth and scored four runs to give them a one-run advantage. In doing so, however, Carswell, Senator pitcher, strained his ankle, and this had something to do with the deluge of runs which came in the next inning, and which gave the C.P.R. the game.

Ernie Bowler pitched good ball for the C.P.R. and while he lasted, Seager did well for the Senators. He retired in the fifth inning in favour of Carswell, after he had walked several men. Carswell, with the bases loaded in the sixth, dumped down a double which cleared the runways, and put the Senators in the driver's seat, but they were unable to hold their own and run lead in the final innings. Frank Delisle and H. J. Smith umpired.

Senators, Johnson, Anderson, Chase Miller, Carswell, Seager, Dixon, Ferguson, Lott.

C.P.R., Cook Pillon, Steenburg, Scarlett, Larry Long, Rosenplon, Webb, Bowler.

DRY WEATHER NEEDED AT PORT

Heavy Rainfall is Responsible For Holding up of Work

(Special by Staff Reporter)

Trenton, Ont., May 23.—Warm and dry weather is absolutely essential before work on the new Airport will reach the proportions expected, it was stated yesterday. At present, two of the three huge tractors on the job are stuck in the mud, and work has been at a standstill all week on account of the wet weather. The field is quite flat, and so much surface water remains on the ground that even the chickens cannot work.

The steam shovels at the point of land south of the Highway have been forced to suspend operations because the trucks which carry the dirt away cannot reach the shovel, there being too much mud. The tiling machines before the last rainfall had been laying about three thousand feet of tile per day.

Only two of the ten farms bought by the government to be made into the airport are still standing, and it is expected that these families will be moving in the near future. The buildings on the farms will be torn down this summer, but it is thought that the orchards which cover some of the farms will not be taken out until next year.

Given dry weather, work will proceed at a great rate, and by the end of the summer residents of this district will hardly know that section.

FINAL MEETING OF BABY CLINIC HELD

(Special by Staff Reporter)

TRENTON, Ont., May 23—The regular meeting of the Well Baby Clinic was held yesterday afternoon at the Town Hall, and a large number of mothers and children were in attendance. These clinics will be discontinued for a month in the summer, it is stated, probably through July. Miss Haslam, V.O.N. nurse, is in charge, and the clinics are sponsored by the Local Council of Women.

TRENTON GOLF CLUB TO OPEN

Special Features Are Arranged For Monday Holiday

(Special by Staff Reporter)

Trenton, Ont., May 23.— The official opening of the Trenton Golf Club will be on Monday, May 26th, when the annual President vs. the Vice-President match will be played over the links at 10 o'clock in the morning. At ten-thirty the ladies will compete in a nine hole twosome and driving competition, while the afternoon will be devoted to nine hole mixed foursomes. Bridge and afternoon tea will be served at the Club House as well. A splendid programme for the summer months including inter-club visits has been arranged and a most successful season is being looked forward to.

erals. The Progressives in the House (and here I am going to let you into a little secret that has not been known before) have announced that they will follow the lead of Bennett. They say that if Mackenzie King is going to be a Protectionist that they might as well support a man who knows more about "Protection" and is a real "Protectionist" in his beliefs."

Nominees Decline

In refusing the honour that had been thrust upon him by nomination, James Hepburn, brother of the general, said "I cannot allow my name to come before this convention. I have not the time for the necessary work that is entailed by nomination."

Professor Marlyn, of Picton, also refused to allow his name to come before the convention. "The real leader in the House is Bennett, not William Lyons Mackenzie King," he said. "In 1911 Bernard Hepburn won the riding and he is one of the old boys yet. John Hubbs has been in two terms."

Writing from England, Fred Newton announced that he would allow his name to come before the convention for nomination. "Hubbs," he wrote, "has had his time and his honour." The same thing applies to General Hepburn. Is it not better to have your humble servant to take a related position?"

When nominees spoke John Hubbs, M.P., said that he sought the nomination and asked for the support of the convention. "I am here," he said "to tell you this afternoon that I do want this convention. It isn't for my own glory that I want the nomination it is for the riding. You know I man has not got much chance to do anything for his constituency when he is in the Opposition. But I can say that anybody who ever came to John Hubbs was not refused. I think that the Conservatives are going to get in power this election and I would like a term with our government in the saddle. I think Bennett will be the next Prime Minister of Canada."

In appealing for the convention, General Hepburn said, "My name is not going in front of you for your consideration. My record has been clean. You know me and you know my record. If I am successful it will be my intention to get to know the people of Lennox better. If you give me the nomination, I will guarantee not to betray your trust in me. I will give you one hundred per cent. service."

The Parish House yesterday afternoon was jammed with delegates to the convention. There was no question of any delegates being absent. They were all present, alternates and all one hundred per cent. The day was hot and fans were handed out to all in the building, but the men, dressed in their Sunday best, would not take off their coats as there were women delegates present in the room. Even the ladies sweltered. All the men and delegates, including reporters, were barred from the meeting until the candidate was elected, so there was nearly as large a crowd outside the building as inside.

Following the B.C.I. Cadet inspection which will be held on Wednesday, May 28th, the officers of the Cadet Corps will give a dance at the Belleville Collegiate Institute on Friday, May 30th. The event promises to be a gala affair, and the cadets and officers will attend in uniform. Admissions will be by invitation only, and any persons desiring invitations may obtain them from the dance committee as follows—Allan Sprague, Angus McPee, Vera Lane and "Si" Williams and Mr. Howard.

The two gymnasiums at the B.C.I. will be used for the dance and a fine piece orchestra will supply the music.

WHAT IS LOVE?

By Beatrice Fairfax

What does love mean to you? Love may be the most magic word in the world, but it speaks many different magics to many different persons.

After centuries and centuries of loving and talking about love, there is no complete general agreement as to what love really is.

To many girls and boys, being in love is taking part in an entertaining flirtation which lasts a few months perhaps, and is promptly replaced by another.

There are older people who will tell you that love means far more than that. That it rarely comes more than once in a lifetime and then only to men and women capable of experiencing it. According to this belief, many of us must go through life without ever knowing what love is at all.

Still others question whether love even exists. And so on.

"In all this talk about love simply what is a matter of thirty asked me. In an interesting letter. "I have been happily married for ten years and have four children, my husband and I are very fond of each other. But the truth is that there has never been even the least bit of excitement in my feeling for him. Does this mean that the people who say that love is a divine craziness are talking nonsense?"

Would you say that this is a typical case? Do you know other wives like that?

And how about the 18-year-old who confided: "Don't you think it's funny and old-fashioned when people talk about love coming only once in a lifetime? If I were not in love practically all the time, I would think I was growing old or something. There is nothing like the first few weeks of falling in love with a good-looking boy. Once I was in this state six months. But usually it's over soon. I've been in love for about a month. He seems perfect. I feel as if it would last forever. But it won't.

The point is this: "How shall I know when I strike the right one, the one that I can marry, the one who can always keep me interested and happy?

"This really bothers me."

Is this letter typical?

Does this girl know what love is?

Or, shall we accept the testimony of the grandmother of 60, a widow, or the young woman, a widow for some years, and the mother of a large family, who said to me of love: "It is the only thing in life that matters. It is heaven."

But, after all, what she really meant was first love. She was thinking of her first husband, who died young. She had loved at 16 and married then. Two years later, the young husband was dead. For the woman, all the poetry and glamor and thrill of a lifetime were compressed into that early experience. Later on, and for many years, she was a devoted wife and mother.

"But the ecstacy of first love," she said, "is something that can never be regained."

Do you agree with her?

Or do you believe, with many others that first love is child love or puppy love, and that however sweet and charming and touching it may be, it is a thing that, ten years later, one smiles gently to recall?

Is it your idea that one has to be really adult, so far as age is concerned—that is, at least past one's teens—and also grown-up in every sense in order to experience fully this greatest and most thrilling emotion, of which human nature is capable?

Or do you suspect that all these notions of love that I have mentioned are just a little far-fetched and that love is really the commonest as well as the most beautiful thing in the world? Do you believe that 21-year-old John and 20-year-old Mary, tucked away in their tiny suburban bungalow, know just as much of love as any Romeo and Juliet? Is love, in the real sense, actually within the reach of all of us?

Some day I will tell you what I think about this question.

DEWATERING OPERATIONS BEGIN FOR MODERN FILTRATION PLANT

18,000 Bags of Cement Will Go Into Purification Plant

Belleville's new filtration plant is in the process of being transformed from an architect's sketch to a reality. When completed it will be one of the most up-to-date plants for the purification of water in Canada.

Mr. J. W. Argo, graduate of Varsity, and consulting engineer at the plant, will check all materials carefully that are to be used in the concrete to see that they come up to the strict requirements in regard to quality and proportion. Concrete is composed of stone, sand and cement, and it is of vital importance that these are used in the correct proportion.

There are two hundred and eighty-eight feet of cribbing used in developing an area. A diver is now engaged in sheeting the outside of this cribbing. The sheeting is necessary to reinforce sufficiently the cribbing.

Mr. Bob Allen, diver, employed by the Patterson Construction Company, has been going this under-water work for the last twelve years and understands it thoroughly. In his twelve years of diving, Mr. Allen has never had a serious mishap, though at times he has worked at a depth of between fifty and sixty feet of water. His diving suit weighs one hundred and seventy-five pounds. He also wears two leaden-soled diving boots weighing twenty pounds each. These help him in maintaining his balance while submerged.

In five hours of diving Mr. Allen finds it necessary to come to the surface for twenty minutes only. Mr. Allen receives his air supply from a Sisby Gorman Pump which is operated by two men. This dewatering work is necessary, because one corner of the new plant will extend beyond the present shore line and considerably below the water level.

Construction is rapidly going ahead in connection with the new boiler plant. The old stack has been demolished and the boilers have been removed from the old boiler house. Men are already engaged in unloading cement from the cars on the siding. Mr. W. M. Goodwin, construction superintendent, estimated this morning that in the neighborhood of eighteen thousand bags of cement will be used in the construction work.

The transformer station now supplying the pumphouse with power is being replaced by a temporary station until the completion of work when a permanent power station will be installed. Many temporary buildings have been erected including offices, storage-houses and carpenter shops. Mr. Goodwin stated that towards the end of next week steam shovels will be used in the excavation work for the new plant. All construction work is in full swing and the time is not far off when Belleville will have clear, cool, properly purified water throughout the year.

Mrs. J. S. Feid Speaks Very Highly of Canada's Foremost Kidney Remedy —Dodd's Kidney Pills

Enterprise, Ont., May 19 (Special)—"Anytime I get a Lame Back I turn to Dodd's Kidney Pills and they soon do the work," writes Mrs. John S. Feid, well-known and highly respected resident of this place. "I have used them for years. As I occasionally take a Lame Back. They never fail to do the trick.

With the winter months approaching comes colds and chills, which double the work of the Kidneys. Often the results are serious, for, if the Kidneys weaken, harmful uric acid and other poisons are allowed to escape. Backache, dizziness and urinary disorders should not be neglected. Use Dodd's Kidney Pills to stimulate Kidney activity. This treatment relieves you of discomfort, and wards off Rheumatism, Lumbago and Sciatica. An occasional course of Dodd's Kidney Pills will prevent Kidney disorders.

RADIO FANS CORNER

If the reception had just a little more pep behind it or more volume perhaps we might make ourselves believe that the reception last night was good, but somehow the pep doesn't seem to be there.

Friday night again and that brings us a long list of good programs. First and foremost the Raybestos Twins at 6.30 with the Bonnie Laddies, vocal trio; Jim Whalen, Lou Noll, Charlie Kenny. Lannie Ross, tenor and the orchestra under the direction of Robert Armbruster. WEAF.

At 7 E.S.T. the Cities Service orchestra with Jessica Dragonette and the Cavaliers, Leo O'Rourke, tenor, and the orchestra. WEAF also. At 8 E.S.T. and still with WEAF we'll hear the Cliquot Club Eskimos with their sparkling music that fairly sets your feet to dancing.

The Raleigh Revue at 9 E.S.T. and heard over WEAF, and it features such entertainers as Osman and Arden, piano duo. The Rovers, male quartet and a splendid orchestra under the direction of Wm. Daly. The master of ceremonies will be Alfred Shirley.

Might as well finish out WEAF's programs for the evening I suppose. At ten E.S.T. Vincent Lopez's orchestra from the Hotel St. Regis and that means we'll hear some real music.

WJZ presents at 7.30 E.S.T. of course, the Hickok program with Phillips Carlin and Raymond Knight putting on a burlesque skit, "The Tigrolese Pulls a Shell Game on the Hare."

At 8, still over WJZ, will come the Interwoven Pair, Bill Jones and Ernie Hare. A good time will be had by all.

We heard Rudy last night, now tonight we'll hear Will Osborne and his orchestra. Rudy and Will don't get on very well together.

ANGRY MANAGER SUES DRAMATIST

Judge Fines Author One Franc; Muse Was Absent

(By Josephine Hamblin, Canadian Press Staff Correspondent)

Paris, May 23.—Precocious Spring in France is having its repercussions in the courts.

The other day, it was the case of the reluctant Muse. An author had undertaken to deliver a play in Three Acts, "The Veiled Lady," by a certain date. The manager of the Theatre for which it was destined, exasperated by repeated delays, took proceedings against the dramatist. The unfortunate author, in his defence, said he had sought inspiration both on mountain and sea. But the Muse had eluded him. He had been waiting for Spring.

The Judge fined the author one franc and warned him that the Muse must be more prompt in future.

Today it is the turn of Spring in Court. Spring, it seems, is demoralizing both scholars and parents.

Windows of French schools, kept jealously shut in Winter, are thrown open in Spring with one accord. The sun, the calls of the birds, the fragrance of blooming hawthorn hedges, the sight of green fields, the echo of tempting brooks, assail at once the eyes and ears of the scholars. The result has been an unusual outburst of truancy. All along the delicious mountain streams of the Cevennes, in the byways of Normandy, in Brittany and especially in the wooded hills of Gascony, once dear to the heart of D'Artagnan, boys are found wandering carefree, dirty and disheveled, happily indifferent to all the vaunted culture of France.

Some communes look on with indulgent eye. Not so Senlis. This roman ite retreat outside Paris, rich in its mediaeval lore has tempted so many students to play l'ecole buissonniere that the schools are practically deserted. But Senlis has a conscientious commissioner of police. He summoned his men and delivered this ultimatum:

"Enforce strictly the law of truancy. Every child found loitering in field or road during school hours shall be apprehended and conducted back to school and the parents shall be summoned."

Almost every day you may see a gendarme conducting a youthful merrymaker to school by the ear. There's the officer of order repairs to the domicile of the guilty to serve notice on the parents. But there the commissioner meets his supreme disillusionment. He had thought he was re-inforcing the authority of the parents. Too often, he finds they too are absent—following the primrose paths of Spring.

TORONTO TIED WITH ROCHESTER

Reading Scored Third Consecutive Victory Defeating Skeeters

TORONTO, May 22—Johnny Prudhe home was a good pitcher yesterday, the Buffalo Bisons were in a charitable mood and the Leafs won the opening game of the series, 5 to 1.

The success put our boys into a tie with Rochester for first place, the Red Wings having dropped an engagement to the Montreal Royals.

Seven scattered hits were made off the Prudhomme tossing. The Bisons secured their lone run of the contest in the sixth inning. Any chance they may have had earlier in the game to manufacture some runs was snuffed out by three swiftly executed double plays on the part of the Leafs.

The Bisons received some pretty good pitching from Dixie Leverett, but they didn't back him up as a pitcher should be backed up. Dixie didn't back himself up much either, Leverett also allowed seven hits and whiffed three.

MONTREAL, May 23.—Herb Thormahlen, leading International League pitcher, chalked up his sixth straight victory of the season when he turned back the Rochester Red Wings 7 to 5 in the opening game of the series yesterday.

Manager Holly shuffled his batting order and put Lee Head, his slugging catcher in fifth position and the result was that the Royals showed more power with the bat than at any time this season.

Newark, May 23.—Baltimore's batters belted Toff Newark pitchers for 13 hits and an 8 to 3 victory yesterday in the opening game of the series.

Monte Weaver, on the mound for the Orioles, also was nicked for 13 blows, but kept them well scattered and contributed a homer to his own cause.

Bob Nunn, Bears' catcher, also hit for the circuit.

The Birds collected five doubles, two by Gill.

READING, May 23—Reading scored its third victory in a row here yesterday, defeating Jersey City, 9 to 5. Jersey City made three home runs and Reading one.

Oyten, Solkirk and Jorgens hit for the circuit for the Skeeters while Pyle stood whaled one over the wall for the Keys.

Both starting pitchers Henderson and Welsh, were knocked off the hill.

Bob Ashpermann drove across the winning run in the seventh with a single.

ON THE SPORT TRAIL

Monday opens the season for straw hats, pennies, lime drives and home runs. On the Queen's Birthday the Ball will be pried off the local baseball season and Kingston Club will be the visitors here. The baseball pot is starting to boil merrily although it must be confessed that the interest of other years has not been manifest this Spring. This is chiefly attributed to the fact that Belleville and Kingston will compose the Central Ontario League, Oshawa and Peterboro having dropped out.

Nevertheless these two clubs, despite the many handicaps with which they are faced, have decided to carry on and a series of games will be played, four in each city. This is not at all appealing to many but the two clubs must be congratulated for their zeal in giving the fans baseball at least.

Reports from Kingston would indicate that the Limestoners will field a first class outfit and the Nationals will have to be at top form to grab the opener. The Kingston club have always provided real opposition and this year with the material at hand they should be stronger than ever.

Bob Elliott last year with Deloro will line up with his first love and will fill Gibson's place at short stop. Arnell, Hewitt Smith, Howard Reid, Bobo Britten, Del Cherry, Lanny Parris and a number of other equally well-known performers are still in Kingston and have turned out with the 21st Battalion club. It is reported that the international Harry Salmon will also play with the easterners which will certainly strengthen their infield. There are few better than the red-head.

Manager Walter Gerow will again be in charge of the local corps and he will try out practically the same gang. Of course Alex Weir will be expected to bear the brunt of the pitching burden, and he's success on the mound in the last two years leaves no room for argument that he is a first class hurler. Ferguson will be likely to at first base and he is in a class by himself as a first-baseman. Vern Weir is slated for second base while George Scott will probably go into short-stop. Scott made a good job in holding down a similar berth with Deloro last year and their is little doubt but that he will fill the b'll. He's brother Bob will guard the red-light corner and Chris Sherry and Ken Rice constitutes over on the west side of the diamond.

The outfield has presented somewhat of a problem for Manager Gerow but some of the younger talent are showing real class and he may be able to choose a reliable trio from the host of available material. Darrah a promising youngster from the east end has attracted the eye of the coaches while Creighton, the same slugging boy who played for Ciacos is making a great bid for a place. Harry Blakely flashy short stop who fell by the Albany, New York, ball player's axe in one of the city's hospitals may be able to play here until late in June. If he does, the managerial worries will be somewhat relieved.

It is also stated that lines are out for Tommy Fulmer promising young south-paw. He would be a splendid addition to the hurling staff. At any rate the season opens on Monday when the fans will get the first peep at the 1930 edition of the Nationals. This should be an appropriate opener and the club must receive support if they are to carry on successfully.

The Belleville Nationals formerly the Beavers, of which Mr. Allan Meagher is Manager, will make their debut on Monday night at the armouries at 6.30. Belleville will be an exhibition fixture and will prepare the locals for the opening of the Bay of Quinte League.

The local Nationals played an exhibition game in Kingston last week under most trying conditions and Manager Meagher had an opportunity to look over the material. He has some promising stars under his wing this year and expects to turn out one of the best clubs in the district.

Secretary R. H. Ketcheson of the local Fair Board reports a large number of entries for the 3rd of June races here. He is quite confident that the best sulky horses in the country will be here for the holiday. Peterboro has been the mecca for race horse owners all winter, Billy Smith has a couple of promising colts coming along and all the local track. The race meet will apparently be the chief attraction here for the King's Birthday.

"Vinny" Utroski formerly of the local Nationals is pitching for the Peterboro General Electric team this year. Utroski appears to be making good progress and the Examiner reports that he will be one of the electrical clans' first string pitchers this year. Utroski was popular while here and fans will watch his career with interest. He played hockey with the Lindsay Intermediates last year.

TOTEM, SMEAR WHITNEY STABLE PAIR RACE WELL

Victoria Stakes Run at the Woodbine Track Thursday

Toronto, May 22.—The Harry Payne Whitney Stable, which is racing here for the first time in some years, gathered in another plum at the Woodbine meeting when the New York sportsman's pair of two-year-olds, Totem and Smear, finished one-two in the running of the $2,500 added Victoria Stakes. The Victoria which was carded as the fourth event, brought a field of nine to the post, Totem backed pair, Justiciary and Fair Speed, were withdrawn. The Whitney pair were coupled in the mutuels on the others and were top heavy favorites. Robertson had the mount on Smear and Workman was astride Totem.

The start was a good one and Sustain was quickest away, closely followed by Smear. Totem broke fifth. In the run to the half mile pole Sustain, Smear and Bubbling Out were racing head to head and Totem was fourth a length and a half away. Workman was busy on his mount to keep him from dropping back. Swinging around the far turn Robertson shook off opposition and opened up a lead of one length. Totem was still fourth and as they came into the homestretch Workman was driving him. The colt responded with a good effort and was a length and a half back of Smear at the furlong pole.

In the last sixteenth Totem, finishing strong and full of courage, drew alongside of Smear and when he got on even terms with the latter Robertson took his mount in hand and at the finish Totem beat Smear out one length, scoring length and a quarter away finished Sustain. The latter, rather a good looking youngster by Broome, who races for Bryan O'Farrell-Randolph, was in the heat of contention the entire trip. He has a rare good turn of speed as the fractional time shows.

Sustain ran his first quarter in :23 and a length off fastest at the half, which was run in :46 4-5. Decide was a keen factor at the top of the stretch, where he was fighting it out with the leaders, but he weakened at the end. The net value of the stake to the winner was $3,500. Totem's victory was the third that the Whitney Stable scored at the meeting, and by two other races Hasbrook finished second and Crazy Coot third.

A Difficult Explosion Shot

When in a trap with a deep bank between the ball and the green, one must consider the shot carefully, especially if the ball lies in too close to the side of the trap.

It is essential that one must dig deep using the explosion shot and that he must make sure to go deep in the sand taking enough of the ball with the niblick.

It is best to play out to the side rather than try for the centre of the green if there is any chance of making it mistake by not getting the ball out at the first attempt.

MALONEY DEFEATS VOGEL IN FEATURE

Toronto, May 23.—Jim Maloney's mighty arms twisted in a full nelson tamed the villian Kari Vogel in the main match of the wrestling show at the Arena Gardens last night, but like most anticipated battles, grudges and feuds the struggle developed into a furious test of super-strength against aggressiveness and the former won. Maloney was floored for the first fall in 25 minutes but after 10 minutes in the second round the Celt evened the match when he clamped on a full nelson but he foiled his fingers to secure the grip and it took Referee Jake Forbes almost a minute after Vogel conceded the fall to unloosen the locked hands, which had gripped firmly under the tremendous pressure. Vogel was still shaken from the grip when the bout was resumed and the Irishman ended it in three minutes with an other full nelson.

DIGS UP BEER ON FARM, NO OWNER ISSUES NOTICE PROSPECTING IS BARRED

Morris, Ill., May 23.—W. T. Hornsby farmer, restricted rigidly all prospecting rights on his farm last night.

He dug up a bottle of beer while making post holes a few hours before he issued his prospecting prohibitory mienio. The beer, in excellent condition, was the product of a Morris brewery long before prohibition. Horns by said indications were that more bottles of beer might be found.

"So if there is any further digging to be done," he added, "I'll attend to it personally."

YANKS TROUNCE THE ATHLETICS

Uhle's Pitching Enabled Detroit to Win From Chicago

Philadelphia, May 23.—The New York Yanks swept both ends of a double-header with the Philadelphia Athletics here yesterday up to 1 and 20 to 13, dropping the A's three games behind the league leading Senators.

Babe Ruth hit two home runs in the first game, bringing his three-game series total to five. Pipgras and Chapman also hit home runs for the Yankees. The A's lone run in the seventh was the first scored from Pipgras in 2 innings.

The second game was a free hitting contest that saw 36 hits and ten home runs. Gehrig hit three for the Yankees, six with the bases full. Ruth added his twelfth home run drawing into a tie for the major league leader ship and Lazzeri also hit a home run for the Yanks.

Washington, May 23—The Washington Senators made it four straight wins from the Boston Red Sox by taking both ends of a double-header here yesterday 3 to 2 and 13 to 1.

Hadley and Gaston hooked up in a pitching duel in the opener, Gaston weakening in the seventh. Hadley allowed a single in the first but held the Sox hitless, until the eighth. The Sox, however, got no hits but two runs in the ninth. Hadley struck out eight men and collected a double and a single at bat.

Chicago May 23. — George Uhle's pitching and hitting enabled the Detroit Tigers to win the second game of the series from the White Sox here yesterday 6 to 1. Uhle allowed six hits scored two runs and drove in another.

The Sox scored first in the second inning when Jolley homered. The Tigers tied it in the third, when Hollingshed went to third on an error and a fielder's choice, scoring on McManus sacrifice.

Cleveland, May 23.—The ball of Lefty Blue and Heinie Manush decided a battle of pitchers here yesterday and enabled the St. Louis Browns to make it two straight wins from the Cleveland Indians. The score was 3 to 2.

Clint Brown and Warren Collins had one bad inning apiece. The Tribe bunched three hits off Collins in the fourth to make their two tallies.

SEE . . . AND PLAY SAFE

The old way of choosing chiropractic's shoes was by what seemed to fit. Perhaps they fitted correctly, perhaps not. But once growing bones were hurt the damage was done. Often, too, it was found the shoe did not fit—that they cramped toes—distorted feet—and did permanent harm.

Now Jack and Jill try-on shoes with windows in them enable you to see exactly how little feet fit into the shoes.

VISIBLE FITTING
The visible system of fitting Jack and Jill shoes has been taken away the "perhaps." Now you SEE and play safe.

LAWN TENNIS

By Willard Crocker

II. MEANING AND OBJECT OF COURT PLAY

Watching a strong championship tenn's match, creates the impression that there is a definite meaning and object back of everything the players do. Each of the various strokes are used at the proper time and court tactics and manipulation of the opponents position is like a game of chess or checkers. We are stating the real secret of the game of tennis. So if you are a beginner, we want to find them out and use them ourselves.

THE MENTAL—WHAT TO DO WITH THE BALL
COURT TECHNIQUE COURT STRATEGY
THE PHYSICAL—DOES IT
STROKE EQUIPMENT
POSITION & FOOTWORK SKULL THROUGH PRACTICE

CONCENTRATION

The meaning of court play is the functioning of each department of the game: court technique and strategy, position, stroke equipment, foot work and physical effort, all controlled by the mind and ability of the player.

The object of court play is to use each of these functions to manipulate your opponent into a position where he fails to win the point you are after. The successful use of court play is determined by the quality and calibre of your tennis technique and your ability to adjust yourself to meet the needs of each situation.

For this fundamental idea in mind: 1. Each shot or series of shots makes a point; 2. Each point or series of points makes a game; 3. Each game or series of games makes a set; 4. Each set or series of sets makes a match.

Concentrate, therefore, on each shot and let the player and match take care of itself. Learn where each ball should go and why; carefully build up the necessary stroke machine to make it go there and above all, CONCENTRATE.

Advice to Lovelorn

By Beatrice Fairfax

Seeks an Occupation

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 17, rather pretty, somewhat popular, not very strong and undecided as to how to earn my living. My cousin became a trained nurse, in two years married a doctor and is not very happy. Are most nurses contented, do you advise me to become one?

GOLDILOCKS.

A few nurses do marry doctors, but I assure you the chances are very much against it. So if you should decide to take the training, of course that a trained nurse must undergo, do not carry in your heart any hope of achieving that particular kind of romance. Since you are not strong it is probably not the career for you in any case, so I advise you to think no more about it. Is there no kind of work that you would be interested in undertaking for its own sake? If not, why not try a business course?

WHEAT RECORDS LENGTHY GAINS

WINNIPEG, May 22.— Prices on the Winnipeg grain exchange surged forward at opening today, wheat recording its longest gain in sometime. Advancing prices at Liverpool were reflected in the early rise bu reports of good export business from this continent was the chief cause. May wheat shot up 1 1-8 cents per bushel to $1.11 1-4 .Profit taking however, wiped out the advance shortly after an was the case in the July and October wheat also.

OBITUARY

FRANK MEAGHER—EDMONTON

Mrs. P. Corrigan, John street, received word late yesterday telling of the death of her brother-in-law, Mr. Frank Meagher, of Edmonton, who had died suddenly in that city. The message was brief and did not give any details.

The late Mr. Meagher was formerly of Marysville. He had been in Edmonton for seven years past. He was a conductor on the Canadian National Railways, and when last heard from was in good health. His wife was form erly Miss Bessie O'Sullivan of Marysville. Deceased is a cousin of Messrs. George and Charles Meagher of this city.

MRS. ELIZABETH GEEN

One of the oldest residents of Thomasburg, in the person of Mrs. Elizabeth Burlington Geen, passed away last night at the home of her daughter, Mrs. G. F. Carleton, Thomasburg, after an illness of some duration. The late Mrs. Geen was in her eighty-fourth year and had resided all her life in that community.

Her husband, the late Charles Samuel Geen, predeceased her many years.

She was a member of the Anglican Church and was held in high esteem by a large circle of friends. The late Mrs. Geen is survived by two daughters and four sons, Mrs. C. J. Carleton with whom she resided, Mrs. G. A. Ireland, Avondale, John, Albert and Murney of Thomasburg, Charles of Hawkesbury, also one brother, Mr. Jr Mouck of this city.

Jack Miner and the Birds

and Some Things I Know About Nature

by

Jack Miner Himself

COPYRIGHT AND FOR SALE IN BOOK FORM AT ALL BOOK STORES"

Yes, they apparently noticed by advertisin. I now how it turn ed out my heart bobbed over with more love than ever for these two beautiful birds, and as I started for the house I couldn't help but thank Almighty God for the Canada goose and the American eagle, and ask Him to hasten the day when this whole world mass of humanity will settle their differences as these lovely birds did on this occasion. As I took the cartridges out of the rifle and hung it on the porch, I caught myself singing the chorus of an old song my mother used to sing:

"If I were Queen of France,

Much more the Pope of Rome,

I would have no fighting men abroad

Nor weeping maids at home."

All this world would be at peace.

Every king should have his rights,

For I'd have them that make the quarrels

Be the only ones to fight."

Yes, such good lessons as this are continually starting at one who is on speaking terms with the Canada goose.

Some time ago I purchased a pair of Egyptian geese from a breeder in Illinois. As they have such beautiful plumage I though they would add to the attractions around my home, but they turned out to be meaner and far more treacherous than stagnant ditch water, continually hunting trouble with any creature whom they can dominate. November 14th, as I was out feeding the birds, they caught a wild duck and both pited in, and would have killed her in less than a minute only that a big wild Canada gander heard her squawk. He left his family, who were feeding, flew across the pond and with one blow from his powerful wings he knocked that Egyptian goose all but cold; the other Egyptian took the hint, lost in time giving the duck her liberty. And that Canada gentleman was back at his post in less than twenty seconds.

CHAPTER XXIV

Nesting Canada Geese

In 1907, the third year I had my clipped Canadas, one pair nested, and every season since I have had one to three pairs raise young. This is the very first time these old ganders especially expose their incomparable, clean, noble ways which even we hu-

One spring I had a painter from town. On spring I had a painter from town out here brightening things up a little, so one day I told him to paint the cornice of the bird house, which is about seven feet high. I paid no more attention to him, but went on with my work at the tile factory, about three hundred feet away. All at once I heard a scream that was joined with language too loud to look well in print. I got out just in time to see this scared man come rolling over the brick walk his legs and arms sticking up like odd sections in a Ferris-wheel. To see and hear him wrinkled my red face into a broader position; he came towards me with both torn shirt-sleeves fluttering in the wind and white paint dabbled on one leg of his trousers, without either hat, paint, pail or pipe. He began to reel it off, Then it all came to me in a flash that I had forgotten to tell him about the goose-nest that was concealed in the weed near that post. And now it was too late to give him any explanation, for really he did not know whether he was bitten or stung. While he was not much a particle, he was nearly frightened into fits, and he could not, or would not, believe there were only two geese there. I finally went and found his pipe, Christy hat and paint pail, but he never would go back in that enclosure, and worse still, I doubt if he has ever forgiven me as he thought I put up a job on him.

One picture would do for all the pairs of Canada geese I ever saw nesting. While the gander takes no part in building the nest nor setting, him about, on the eggs, as some birds do, yet he is always guarding her and is never over two rods away, seeing all enemies before they do him. He will usually lie flat on the ground, his black neck and snake-like head straight out, and if any creature goes right on by, all is well; but should one note him and stop then he will suddenly jump on it from an unexpected quarter. His looks and hissing hooks will almost frighten any other creature into decline; and while fright wning is his chief defence, yet I know from personal experience how he can bite and hang on like a bull pup while he deals unbelievably heavy blows with the first joint of his powerful wings. The worst blow I ever got in my life was from an old gander that I caught to tar; he struck me on the jaw wtih the first joint of his deoded-up wings and believe me, I had the mumps for weeks.

While I have seen the geese run at a domestic fowl or so, yet she does not pretend to do much fighting. She usually leaves that strenuous exercise for him, and depends on his protection; and well she may, for he never fails her. He will even leave the cornice of the bird house, which his family and fight for her.

A pair once nested near the tile kiln and a collie dog attacked this gander. The goose won out, but the dog bit the end of his backbone right off. I saw the blood running down his legs and in a few days I noticed he was always on the one place, lying down on his sweetheart. I went over and found he was sick and was so weak he let me pick him. I saw what was wrong, so I went and got the turpentine bottle and poured some in this deep, big cavity and fully a spoonful of maggots rolled out. I then brought the dear old fellow water and food, but it was fully a week before he could stand up. He finally got well, and I still have him, but he was dying at his post. His name is Tom Johnson.

I never saw the wild geese go near where one of these pairs was nesting. So one spring I took fully ten bushels of corn and scattered it around near a nest. And the thousands of geese that came here would not combine their forces and go near, after the corn, or interfere with his preserve, but would prefer flying all over the country to feed where some of them are continually getting shot. This will explain to you how they respect each others' rights.

CHAPTER XXV

Our Model Canada Goose

While I am writing as plainly as I dare, yet I want you to keep An eye between the lines.

For two springs in succession, two pairs of my geese nested on the bank of the north pond, just one hundred and twenty feet apart, each gander always guarding and never going thirty feet away. An old goose I had in my flock apparently couldn't control nature and she went and built a nest on the bank right between these two pairs of geeders or about sixty feet from each nest. These ganders did not interfere with her in any way shape, manner or form; but if an enemy approached her, both these ganders would leave home and would attack him with fury, while if you went near either of their nests, only the one would fight you; the other would stay at home. Both years every egg in their nests hatched, and the young were hearty and strong. This old, or single, goose set for five weeks on four eggs the first year, and I let her set seven weeks on five eggs the second year. I broke every egg, and not one showed any sign of fertility. Remember, this is not almanac history; these are the facts, as I know them.

Do these geese inbreed ?This is a question that apparently bothers a great percentage of us smart human beings, and often in the spring of the year when the geese are sitting around by the hundreds I hear this question asked by all sorts or visitors; I think this is chiefly because of the extreme uniformity of these birds both in size as well as in color.

I have tested this out sufficiently to satisfy all my curiosity. I went so far as to keep four full brothers and sisters in an enclosure by themselves for nearly three years, and they lived together as brothers and sisters only. But March the third year I heard the two geese giving love-sick cries and they kept fighting the wire towards where some wing-clipped ganders were. So I opened the gate and let them together, and inside of two weeks they paired off with these strange ganders.

A young goose will lay four eggs the first year, and usually five the second. After that I have had them lay as high as seven, but in this wild state I know they must lay as high as eight for I quite often see an unbroken family here with ten in it, eight young and the parents; but six is the average brood of young.

During my life I have often crept upon a deer or peeped over the top of a hill at a moose, and with the frosty air in my favor I have watched them fully three-quarters of an hour, or until I got frose out, just drinking in pure nature. Time and again I have taken a little twig in my fingers and cracked it, and I am sure the deer's hearing is at least three times as sharp as ours, or what I might hear at twenty feet the deer would hear at sixty feet, but the hearing of moose is not as sharp as that of the deer, nor their eyes as quick to locate one. Of all the creatures that carry the latest electric equipment with them I know of none to compare with the Canada goose. One bright, frosty day in January, when the snow was about six inches deep, my wing-tipped geese were out of the wind with their feet pulled up. There they sat on the crusty snow like so many fireless cookers. I called them to dinner, but they replied "bring it to us." When I would toss three kernels of wheat in the air all would honk, but when I went through the same motion, empty handed, they would not answer. I stepped the distance and it was over three hundred feet. I am sure this beats saw the three grains of wheat that distance.

FINAL APPROVAL

Vatican City, May 22.—Canonization of the eight Canadian Jesuit martyrs was finally approved at a semi-public consistory which was held today presided over by the Pope.

GALT MOTORISTS ESCAPE DEATH

Truck Struck at Crossing Reduced to Junk

Galt, May 23.—George Wehrstein, 18 years old, and Wesley Thompson, 43, of St. George are in the local hospital today. How they escaped death is unexplainable since the truck in which they were riding, which was struck by a Canadian National Railways passenger train at a level crossing a mile south of here, is nothing but junk. The two were gathering milk. The truck got halfway up the hill and stalled, backing down. Starting again, it was gathering momentum when the crossing was reached, and the train, travelling at 30 miles an hour, struck it, carrying the wreckage and the two men a considerable distance. The trainmen and nearby farmers expected to find the men dead. Wehrstein, the driver, suffered from shock, a cut scalp and lacerated finger. He may leave the hospital tomorrow. Thomson suffered scalp and internal injuries. While his condition was serious, the doctors held out hope for his recovery.

EMBARRASSING MOMENTS

CATARAQUI GOLFERS PREPARE SCHEDULE

Kingston, May 23.—Arrangements have been completed for the lady playing members' matches of the Cataraqui Golf and Country Club for this season.

The following are the matches arranged with other clubs.

On June 11 Kingston will take part in the competition for Ottawa City and district clubs at the Rivermead Course, Ottawa.

The Rivermead club will come to Kingston on July 3, and although Watertown, N.Y., has not yet been heard from it is expected that they will play here on July 10. The Cataraqui club will be visitors at Cataraqui golf course on July 24, and Brockville ladies play Kingston ladies on July 31.

The Bay of Quinte Club of Belleville play here on Aug. 14, and Kingston members will go to Brockville on Aug. 23. Kingston members visit Bay of Quinte Club at Belleville on Aug. 28, and on Sept. 4 Belleville Golf Club plays at Kingston. The final fixture of the season is Kingston at Rivermead, Ottawa.

OIL INDUSTRY BACK TO NORMAL AFTER SEVERAL YEARS' ROMP

Dutch Shell and Standard Oil Make Peace—Situation Better

By F. B. Reeser
(Special to The Ontario Intelligencer
Copyright, 1930)

Toronto—A very important statement for the oil industry was made at Cleveland this week by E. B. Reeser, president of the American Petroleum Institute at the semi-annual meeting of the National Petroleum Association, when he said that for the first time in its history the petroleum industry is approaching a balance between production and consumption.

There has been a serious condition of over-production in the oil industry since 1926 which has resulted in price cutting wars all over the world, thereby making it difficult for producing companies to make what they consider fair profits. The total world production of oil in 1929, according to preliminary figures, published by the Department of Commerce at Washington, reached 1,468,600,000 barrels, which was an increase of 13 per cent over 1928. The United States produced 67.7 per cent of the total compared with 68 per cent in 1928 and 71 per cent in 1927, indicating how production has been getting under control in that country. The production of crude petroleum in the States last year increased more or less steadily up to August, which was the peak month. A decrease then started and the output went steadily down for the last four months. This however was due more to the steadily decreasing demand and stocks of oil on hand accumulated in all months except November. The three largest producing states are, in their order, Texas, California and Oklahoma. These three States last year accounted for 84 per cent of the total output.

California Reduces Output

California has been one of the chief causes of increased output owing to the rapid development of various new deep sands at Santa Fe Springs. Since the first of the year California has reduced its output very considerably. The heads of the Petroleum Association in trying to curtail production allotted 210,000 barrels a day to California. On April 12th output was running at 617,700 barrels daily. It is now said that California will reduce its production to 550,000 barrels a day which will then permit withdrawals from stored stocks and be decidedly helpful to the general oil future, as this western state has more than 30 per cent of the country's stored gasoline.

Price Cutting War Ended

Indications that the situation abroad is also very much better are plentiful. All the oil consuming countries in the world are at last arriving at something approaching parity as to the price instead of one company underselling another. Settlement of the price war on gasoline and kerosene in the Dutch East Indies has just been effected, resulting in an increase of 8c a gallon above the war level. The new price went into effect last Monday. The significance of this is said to be that peace has been made between Royal Dutch Shell Company and Standard Oil of New York, two great oil organizations which have been at war in the world's foreign markets for several years.

The Wall Street Journal says this week that the price increase in the East Indies brings that market back to a world parity price level, that is to say that prices now represent the export market price in the United States plus transportation and allowance for profit. This is expected to stimulate exports from California, thus reducing stocks of oil on hand. A price parity basis is also expected to be arrived at soon in China, the Orient and Mediterranean ports. The British market, where prices were formerly 8c a gallon below the world parity is also now on a parity basis. The difficulty in Britain had been that the Royal Dutch Shell Company were trying to keep Russian oil out of the country but an arrangement has now been made with the Russians.

Barrons, the weekly financial paper of the Dows Jones Co., stated recently that all sentiment in the leading oil centres of the United States was most optimistic for the first time in many years. With oil foreign markets will on the way to world parity basis, making for profitable operations and conservation efforts being intensified in the United States and foreign producing fields, a general feeling in oil circles now is that the outlook, as Mr. Reeser said this week, is approaching the balance between production and consumption for the first time in its history.

LITTLE BENNY'S NOTE BOOK

Pop was smoking and thinking in his private chair and ma sed, Well Willyum, I bawt my Spannish shawl today, thank you.

Morning pop would get the bill for it, and pop sed, I hope you dident make the mistake of picking out the most expensive one in the place.

I shold say not, quite the contrary, ma sed. Of corse there wasent anything worth looking at under 80 dollers because it seems you cant get a real Spannish shawl for less than 80 dollers for love or money. The young man who waited on me was a real Spanniard, too, at least his hair was cut qite long down his cheeks rite next to his ears, she sed.

In other words his hair was Spanish, pop sed, and ma sed, Anyway he seemed quite intristed in selling me a while shawl with red flowers, and I admit it reely was a feast for the eyes and a joy to the touch, but it was 130 dollers and I had no intention of asking yo to pay 130 for just one Spanish shawl.

Yes gods I hope not, pop sed. 80 dollers seems quite plenty, and even for that they should of thrown in an emergency fringe or something, he sed and ma sed, Well thats a way I felt, I felt even 80 dollers was quite a good eel to lay out for one shawl, no matter how Spannish it was. Im sure I havent been married all these years without lerning a little about economy, she sed.

I hope not, but I'm not as sure as you are, pop sed, and ma sed, Well then just listen to the fony little deal I put over. I tawked and bargained and outwitted him until at last, he agreed to give me the while shawl with the red flowers and an ordinery 80 doller one, both for 195 dollers, which is a clear saving of 15 dollers, and instead of having just one Spannish shawl I have 2, one prettier than the other, much prettier, and think of all the extra money I'll say for 15 dollers.

Yes indeed, Im glad you dident buy a dozen shawls or 2 mile of smoked myself to deth on the profits, yes gods pop sed.

MORE AUTOMOBILES

One For Every Eight Persons

Registration of Motor vehicles in Canada for 1929 reached 1,193,880, according to figures published this week. It is thus indicated that there is practically one motor for every eight persons of the country.

Province P. E. Island, estimated population 1929, 88,100; total number 6,141; total motor vehicles number of persons per motor vehicle 14.0.

Nova Scotia, pop. 1929 530,600; total number 130,229; number of persons per vehicle 6.7.

Alberta pop 1929 646,000; total number 99,850; number of persons per vehicle 6.5.

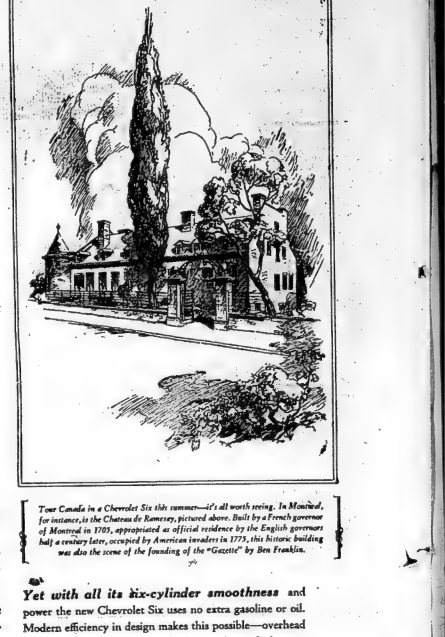
British Columbia pop 1929 501,000; total number 95,047; number of persons per vehicle 6.3.

Yukon Territory pop 1929 3,000; total number 198; number of persons per vehicle 15.2.

N. W. Territories pop 1929 9,400; no cars.

Canada pop 1929 9,706,800, total number 1, 197,880; number of persons per car 8.2.

Although Canada is still behind the United States in the number of cars owned in proportion to population, it is assured that the automobile will come into more demand as roads are extended and improved. The time-saving factor of automobiles making them indispensable under prevalent customs.



Coincident with the development of automobile usage is the appalling record of accidents on the roads. The figures of casualty insurance companies signify that the automobile is the major factor of all accidents. The astounding damages frequently caused by motor mishaps create a vital need for automobile liability insurance. This branch of coverage is considered the most important form of automobile insurance and the underwriting of it is strewn with losses.

In many quarters it is believed that heavier restrictions should be imposed before the right of driving a car is given. Some people hold that a man should not be permitted to own a car before he has proven his financial ability to settle damages arising from any accident for which his car is responsible. It is argued against this suggestion that such an obligation does not tend to reduce accidents. The root of the trouble seems to be the laxity of driving requirements. If these were stiffened up, the cause of motor accidents would be largely removed, and there would be fewer damage claims to meet.

The new open-air rink at Whitpaine, in Bedfordshire, has already cost over $200,000 to lay out. The opening of it may occur during this summer.

IT'S WISE TO CHOOSE SIX

Do you know what a difference six cylinders make?

Make Sure of Extreme Economy, yet Satisfy Your Modern Performance Ideals

Tour Canada in a Chevrolet Six this summer—it's all worth seeing. In Montreal, for instance, is the Chateau de Ramezay, pictured above. Built by a French governor of Montreal in 1705, appropriated as official residence by the English governors half a century later, occupied by American invaders in 1775, this historic building was also the scene of the founding of the "Gazette" by Ben Franklin.

IT is wise to choose a six-cylinder motor—for in order to get six-cylinder smoothness—Chevrolet smoothness—it is necessary to have six cylinders.

Six-cylinder smoothness takes out vibration and roughness. This saves the motor, the body, the passengers, and the driver. Drivers who try six cylinders never want less. Yet many people have not availed themselves of the advantages of six-cylinder performance because they have not discovered how little it costs to buy and operate a Chevrolet Six.

Yet with all its six-cylinder smoothness and power the new Chevrolet Six uses no extra gasoline or oil. Modern efficiency in design makes this possible—overhead valves—high-compression power from ordinary fuel—very latest high acceleration carburetor—close-fitting, long-wearing pistons—crankcase ventilation—air cleaner. You can really have extreme economy and still satisfy your modern performance ideals. Chevrolet brings truly modern transportation within reach of all who can afford any car.

This very low-priced car lasts longer, not only because of fine materials and over-size parts, but also because it is a six. The big, smooth, 50-horsepower six-cylinder Chevrolet engine is always "taking it easy". From crawling to racing speeds, everything is smooth. There is no feeling of strain.

Come to our showrooms. Drive this brilliant car. Then you, too, will realize why it's wise to choose the Chevrolet Six. Ask about General Motors' Owner Service Policy and the G.M.A.C., General Motors' own deferred payment plan.

THE SAINTED MAID

France has been celebrating the five hundredth anniversary of the entry of Joan of Arc the Maid of Orleans into Compiegne.

The fame of the Maid will never die. No human reputation seems so sound as that of Joan of Arc. It will in its romance, its high principle, its remarkable story of woman's achievement, rival any series of facts or fiction that can ever be written. The story of the life of the Maid of Orleans is of keener interest than that of any of the great political events of history.

Her canonization as Saint Joan was the culmination of a life and character which have interested humanity for five centuries.

Womanhood and girlhood cannot but be proud of the Maid who has set her mark on life in the world for all time to come.

MILLIONS OF TOURISTS

Two million tourists pass through Belleville! Would anyone believe it! Yet Ontario had over seven million tourists last year and Belleville got a nice percentage of their number whether they passed through the city without stopping except for the red light at the main intersection or whether they spent the night at a local hostelry, or camp or tourists' rest.

The estimate is staggering and sets the mind rambling in the effort to appreciate what it means. Truly the world has changed from the rye and barley growing days when long caravans of grain used to come into Belleville via the Madoc road, find their way down over the upper bridge to the docks for export to the United States. People of those days tell stories of long processions of waggons wending their way to the waterfront, much like the streams of motorcars which now thread the main avenues of the city in the summer time, but with horses and grain and not cars and human freight.

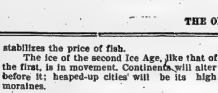
A SECOND ICE AGE

The preservation of perishable goods is an essential of our civilization. Modern cities, it might be said, stand upon billions of cans, for more exactly, they stand on cans and ice. Ours is as much a second ice age as an age of steel. Forget the art of simulating ice and steel will not stand long, says "Fortune" a new magazine.

Metropolitan civilization, made possible by the commercial preservation of foods, has produced the Metropolitan Purchaser. The Metropolitan Purchaser lives in a small apartment. She has no children, or two instead of seven. She has a telephone on her kitchen wall and she orders food from day to day in small quantities as she needs it. She has ideas about bacteria, a religion of antiseptics and no place to put a quarter of beef. She will not accept crackers out of a barrel nor pickles out of a tub but buys both in sealed and trade-marked containers. This is all very well for the dealer in flour or sugar. But how can the dealer in perishable meat and fish turn out a trade-marked, packaged, factory product of uniform value and participate in the profits of such a market?

The fish industry knows the answer. The meat industry is learning it. The vegetable and berry growers are less puzzled about it than they were. The answer is: by freezing, but not by freezing in the ancient sense; by freezing with a difference.

Frozen meats and fish have been handled commercially for a long time. But the Metropolitan Purchaser does not like them. She refuses to buy them when she knows what they are.



Berries, particularly raspberries, are successfully frozen and marketed. With vegetables it has been found that flavour and colour can be retained, texture alters. Asparagus collapses. Corn on the cob goes soggy. String beans are slightly limp". Peas, on the other hand, are "equal to cooked fresh peas in all respects."

But with the exception of the texture of fruits and vegetables, the technical difficulties in the way of quick-freezing of perishable goods seem to be surmounted. The difficulties in the way of retailing remain considerable. Quick-frozen goods of 15 to 20 degrees Fahrenheit. They must be displayed, in order that eye-appeal may overcome the prejudice against frozen foods. The display case must be protected against loss of cold and formation of moisture, fogging the glass. It must be so built that the chilling unit can be defrosted without raising the temperature of the case. And it must be capable of very low temperatures. The General Electric is at work on such a case, as are other manufacturers.

Assuming, as the facts permit, that the major problems will be solved, it is obvious that economic consequences of the first importance will follow. Electric refrigeration in the home becomes a necessity and the modern perishable foods are bought, frozen, in large quantities, kept until needed, thawed and eaten as though fresh. In the towns the drug stores which in general have better refrigerating equipment than the grocery stores) become the general stores, displacing the butcher shop and the fish market.

The packers become able to receive the heavy August and September runs of fancy grass-fed cattle which, because of their watery flesh, are useless for slow-freezing, butcher them, quick-freeze them and so establish the price to producers. So also the fish industry wipes the shadow of Friday from the sea and stabilizes the price of fish.

The ice of the second ice Age, like that of the first, is in movement. Continents will alter before it; heaped-up cities will be its high moraines.

SIDELIGHTS

THE DARK

The dark is kind and cosy;
The dark is soft and deep;
The dark will pat my pillow
And love me as I sleep.

The dark is smooth as velvet,
And gentle as the air;
And he is good to children
And people everywhere.

The dark can see and love,
Without a bit of light.
He gives me dreams and resting;
He brings the gentle night.

God made the dark so daytime
Could close its tired eyes
And rest awhile in comfort
Beneath the starry skies.

The daytime, just like children,
Needs rest from work and play
So it can give us children
Another happy day.

God made the dark for children
And birdies in their nest.
All in the dark He watches
And guards us while we rest.

ETHICS OF THE FOURTH ESTATE

H. A. Gwynne, editor of The London Morning Post and president of the Institute of Journalists, recently offered a prize for the best "Code of Rules for the Guidance of Journalists." This has been awarded to Guy Innes of the Australian Newspapers Cable Service for the following contribution, published in the Journal of the institute:

The Realm ye inherit is spacious—John Milton stood guard in the gate;
And shall ye do less than continue the Fourth as a noble Estate?
The First and Second Commandment (the Law and the Prophets in Sum):
A confidence always is sacred; whoever has made it, be dumb.
Now these be the Permanent Rulings. Submerge for the thirst time and drown.
Or go to the stake without flinching—but not let your newspaper down.
Stand up for "The Rag" to the utmost, to the last and the least paragraph;
And always stand up for the Owner—trust him to stand up for the Staff.
Beware above all things of Libel—the biter is sure to be bit;
Of facts be you seven times certain; and if you're not certain, omit.
Were verification spontaneous, these evils would call not for cure;
You suffer persistent misgiving? Go, ask for a proof, and make sure!
Guard well against bearing false witness—no matter how tempting the fake.
The power of a lie is but fleeting. Its tinsel a brilliant mistake.
Nor is the truth dull; it may sparkle more brightly than Gideon's sword.
And almost as good as good news is the just and appropriate word.
Be known for your legible copy, nor scrawl for the Sub to cut out;
Be accurate; learn your quotations; and check them again when in doubt.
Recall, in the night of impatience, when Heaven has made you a Sub.
The day of your earlier strivings—and be not too hard on the "cub."
Yea, do not be merely a butcher (the Poet, men say, must be born;
But the Sub., be is born and made also.) Touch nothing you do not adorn.
As gall is less bitter than wormwood there are fluids more deadly than ink;
So buy not your news with a cocktail, and sell not your views for a drink.
Be brief, if possible- brilliant—but brief as your training affords.
(See Genesis on the question. Twelve columns Six-forty-two words!)
Invention- creation or record—where's your assignment be laid,
As one who has toiled in the galley, I offer these Tips to the Trade.

LETTERS to the Editor

219 Dundas St. E.
Belleville, May 19, 1930.

The Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer,
Sir,

The news published in a Canadian newspaper, that the Duke of Montrose owing to the ever increasing burden of taxation, which falls so heavily on the British landowner, has decided to dispose of a considerable part of his estate to meet his obligations, will be received with mixed feelings.

To those people who see no good in landowning, whether they be Duke or Commoner, the news will be hailed with delight, but to that greater number, who can see the good these Dukes have done, and who can view the panorama of events with unprejudiced eyes, the news cannot be received but with regret. There are few men more skilled in farming than the present Duke, and his financial position every attention. He proves an exception to the rule prevailing in Great Britain, that where one has to contend exigencies, whereby the farmer might have a lean year, rents are reduced. The nucleus of farmers' security on property is rarely resorted to, and many years have elapsed since a Duke of Montrose ever found it necessary to sell out a farmer, although many occasions have arisen where he would have been within his rights in doing so.

The Lcxcy and succession duties of the Conservative government under Lord Salisbury, and the subsequent land taxes of the Liberal government under Lloyd George proved a burden which will be borne by the British Landowner. So heavy indeed are these duties that they amount almost to confiscation.

The splitting up of these estates has brought no improvement in farming conditions but in almost every instance the reverse has been the case. Few farmers are more skilled than the present Duke of Montrose, and as an agrarian judge he has no equal.

Part of the Dukedom includes Ben Lomond, which, while not the highest mountain in Scotland, is the one perhaps best known. The fact that it rises sheer from the edge of the Loch appears to add greatly to its height. A panorama of rare beauty bursts upon the view of the traveller who is fortunate enough to stand on the top on a clear day. To the east Edinburgh Castle can be made out, and to the south the rolling hills of the Lowlands, with the English hills beyond. With a good glass the traveller can make out Skiddaw and Helvellan, while across the Firth of Clyde, which appears to lie at the foot of the mountains, the dim outline of the coast of Ireland is seen. The highlands stretch away to the north, a succession of mountain peaks.

Mountains that like giants stand
To sentinel enchanted land.

The east side of the mountain slopes on Loch Katrine.

Where in the mirror bright and blue
The hills huge outline you may view."

Helens Isle is in the centre of the Lake and one is tempted to make one's ustine that lady as she rows across the Lake to meet the Scottish King James V, who is hunting in the neighborhod under the guise of James Fits James.

"While down through the pass, the Archer men."

The district, however, has other claims to fame. Centigueus is Balfour, the churchyard of which is the remains of George Buchanan, greatest scholar of his day and generation. He is perhaps best known as the tutor of Queen Mary of Scots, and of her son King James VI. On the side of Ben Dorun some miles to the north, Ossian the poet of the Gael is said to be buried.

Ossian last of all his race
Lies buried in this lonely place."

Around Ben Lomand and the Loch the Hunting Cameron's Rory used to wield his power and levy taxes on all who come within his sway. A short drive will take the visitor to Aberfoyle, where may be seen the cage by which the Dugald Cratur made matters too hot for the English officer. The tree upon which the poor hangs may well be the one upon which Bailie Nicol Jarvie was nearly hanged himself.

"My conscience hang a Bailie and a Magistrate o' the city
O' Glencoe, its no possible."

Wordsworth the great English poet together with his sister Dorothy travelled through the district on foot, and he has left his impressions in many of his inimitable poems. "Sweet Highland girl" he writes of the Scottish schoolgirl whom he encountered at Inermaid.

"A very bower of beauty is thy earthly dower."

The present Duke is a descendent of the great Marquis who in 1644, "Led the Highland host through wild Lochaber moors."

To meet the Duke of Argyle whom he completely defeated at Inverlochy, blow the Marquis was himself overthrown at Philliphaugh and subsequently executed publicly in Edinburgh are matters too well known to your readers that a repitition of the story would lay one open to the charge of egotism.

Yours truly,
John A. Hyslop.

YELLOW TOMATOES

Yellow tomatoes, although by no means new, often prove a decided novelty in many communities.

Most important of all is the yellow Ponderosa, a beautiful tomato to look upon and equally good to eat it has a distinct flavor and its chief use is to eat raw. It is a rich golden yellow and of the same size and quality as the red Ponderosa which is usually classified as a "purple" tomatoe. It grows to enormous size.

The yellow and red Ponderosa mixed in a salad offer a pleasing color arrangement.

Another yellow tomato less known than the yellow Ponderosa is the Golden Queen, smaller and of more regular shape than Ponderosa. It is also earlier than Ponderosa. It has the same golden color as the yellow Ponderosas but many contestants will say that no tomatoe has the flavor of the yellow Ponderosas.

Even the northern states where the growing season is shorter a new tomato has been bred by the North Dakota experimental station of especially early ripening known as Red River. It is a cross of Sunrise and Bonny Best. It is a red variety wherever it has been tried for its earliness, the scarlet color of its fruit and the regular and uniform size.

The yellow pear tomato one of the miniature of the Pomfret has achieved considerable vogue for preserving as it gives a bright yellow color when cooked that is very attractive.

It will soon be time to get the tomato plants out and the planting growing so that they will be allable enough to set out as soon as warm weather arrives. It will be interesting to start seed of the more unusual tomatoes at home. The standard varieties can however, be supplied in plants by the seedhouse or market gardener. Try some of the yellow as a novelty and change from the red varieties.

Select two types of tomatoes, one for canning and one for salads, during the summer months. The round regular shaped tomato is best for salads. The heavier, meatier kinds are more valuable to give canning material. Tomatoes and the planting growing so that they will be allable enough to set out as soon as warm weather arrives. OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

DAUGHTER OF TROPICS

By

Louis Raybold

Copyright, 1930, International Features Service, Inc.

Lazy, foam-flecked waves slapped softly at the rotting piles of the old wharf where the Cocpra Queen lay moored and the tropic sun shone hotly down on the dozen or so native boys that darted up and down the gang plank.

Jim Saunders, whose boys they were and whose cargo it was that was being loaded, stood with his hands in his pockets and stared out across the blue Pacific with troubled eyes. He was mulling over part of a letter which the Copra Queen had brought him.

"Dear old Jim:

You have probably heard of the death of your poor sister. Doubtless you already know also that your brother-in-law has confessed it was he, not you, who took that money. Anyway, Mother and I are selling at once to tell you in person how sorry we are for the misunderstanding."

There was more, much more, and the letter was signed, "With love, as always, Pamela Wayne."

At last the secret, which he had sacrificed reputation, job and fiancee to keep, was out. Well, it made no difference now that Little Anne for whom he had done it was dead. Yes, that part of it was all right. Jim squared his sturdy shoulders. Rather darn nice of him to know he could go back to the States any time without facing an unmerited jail sentence.

But this threatened descent of Pamela and her mother was not to his liking. He was through with a love that had been so ready to believe him guilty, so quick to thrust him out.

Yet he could not stop their coming nor, with dignity avoid a meeting.

Suddenly, Jim laughed. A hearty, stirring laugh that made the native boys stop short in their tracks and stare at him. A scheme had popped into his head.

Pamela and her mother would have to put up in Tiva Tiva and depend for news of him on the few boats stopping over their steamer would make. For that brief space of time Jim would become lord which white men who drifted to the South Seas dodging justice were all popularly supposed to become—a beachcomber. He could not imagine Pamela caring for a beachcomber.

He took the one other white man in this part of the island into his confidence. The man who had grown to be his friend, Cary Leland.

Cary with his daughter, Leila, lived in a hibiscus smothered bungalow back in the hills. Sometimes he wrote clever and salable stories that found their markets in London. Sometimes which was much sadder, he suffered from temporary mental aberrations that took him off strange wanderings into the island's wild interior. Then Leila flew to Jim and together they went after him and brought him home.

Today he was his better self and his eyes fixed on Jim, heard it all, too, with sympathetic interest.

Pretty, sun-browned Leila, her dark eyes fixed on Jim, heard it all, too, for some reason or other, however, the success of the scheme did not seem to her so certain as it did to the other two. Wouldn't Jim still be Jim to any girl who loved him, even disguised as a beachcomber?

Three weeks later Pamela Wayne sat in the dining-room of the rickety old shack known as French Margot's old Hotel. Cool and poised and elegant she leaned across the table and looked into the eyes of an unkempt, shabby clad man whose hands, hidden from her view, were clenched until the knuckles whitened and the nails bit the flesh. Jim hadn't foreseen the stirring of old memories which the sight of Pamela would occasion.

"Come back home, Jim," Pamela was pleading. "I can tell by your eyes that you haven't sunk as low as you pretend. I have seen men—well, for the past three years I have been connected with the Organized Charities and I am used to down and outers."

Slowly Jim's hands relaxed. Inwardly he smiled. He saw now why his plan had failed. Pamela was finding him interesting as a "case"! He appealed to her instinct for reforming people. He must think quickly now to get himself out of a situation more intolerable than he had expected.

"It is too late, Pamela," he declared.

FALL ON BARGE FATAL

Owen Sound, May 18.—John Wilkie, 54 years old, fell down a hatchway on a barge in the harbor and died on the way in the hospital. Mr. Wilkie leaves a wife and a large family. An inquest will be held.

Margaret Ballingall is a modern "You see, there are some things which can never be undone."

He thought Pamela paled. "You don't mean you've—you've gone native Jim!" she murmured. "That you've married one of these girls!"

It hadn't been what Jim meant at all. "I didn't—" he was beginning when a small tornado burst in at the door, her dusky halo windblown, her tanned little hand at her throat.

"Leila!" cried Jim, jumping to his feet and throwing a protective arm about her slender form. "What is it, dear?"

Out of breath, Leila could only point towards the hills, but Jim knew what she meant. Cary had hit the trail again and he must go after him at once. As Leila darted away, he turned back for a word of explanation and farewell to Pamela.

To his surprise she had risen and stood facing him with an expression of utmost scorn on her face.

"So you have done that very thing, Jim Saunders! Fallen for a native girl. Well, stay with her! With your —your Le-la, or whatever her name is. —and I wish you every happiness!" The next instant she had swept from the room.

Jim stood for a second as if turned to stone. "Le-la—native girl—" Then he understood. Pamela had taken Cary's sun-browned little English Leila for a daughter of the tropics. Did Pamela know nothing of racial differences? And it was just like Pamela to believe the worst.

Suddenly Jim whistled softly. Heaven above, what an idea Pamela had given him! With the glow of a great happiness warming his heart, he hurried after Leila.

APPLE CROP IS CALLED GOOD

Prince Edward Grower Interested in Grafting, Doctoring, Replanting

Prospects for the apple crop in this district are good, according to experts and many of the leading orchard owners in this vicinity. Apple production is one of Ontario's most important industries and many fine varieties are produced from the Bay of Quinte district, including Northern Spies, Talman Sweets, McIntosh Reds and a number of cooking varieties. Reports from farmers in this district all point to a good harvest and it is hoped that an almost full crop will be taken off.

A little difficulty has been experienced during the past two weeks, according to authorities on the subject because of the cold weather which has prevented the bees from doing their part of the work on the apple blossoms. However, now that warm weather has again come around no harm will be done from this cause.

Inquiry was made as to whether or not rabbits and mice have done any damage during the winter months, girdling the trees, and although reports from Western Ontario show that the trees have suffered considerably from this form of pest, this district has escaped any destruction.

The majority of the orchards have already received two sprays, the prepaint and the paint spray, and before the season has advanced much more the trees will receive the third and fourth spray which will effectually kill off any scab or infection on the trees.

Mr. W. C. Dempsey, who owns a large orchard near Ameliasburg, stated this morning that his trees were in first-class shape and that a particularly fine harvest was being looked forward to. A considerable amount of work has been going on this spring in grafting, doctoring and replanting of trees. This good work should play an important part in increasing the production in this district.

Belleville and Trenton district have many fine orchards and Prince Edward County is famed for its apple orchards.

PORTRAITS OF DOCTORS MAKE FINE SHOWING

Collection of Medical Men and Some of Their Subjects

Toronto, May 22 (C.P.) — There probably ought to be a law against permitting reviewers to review in the spring. It is too risky. Something untoward is likely to happen," wrote Florence Davies, the other day, in the Detroit News. This warning applied the possible damages of spring fever makes quite an impression. If these notes having to do with doctors and medicine, a feeling of security prevails. If the spring fever is severe cures will be handy.

Who knows that the building of the Academy of Medicine in Toronto, is also somewhat of an educational art gallery in which hang a number of prints, (a few of which are fine originals), and paintings as to the layman curious to learn about medicine with the help of "images". An important group out of this collection was offered to the institution by the late Sir William Osler.

The most familiar figures among the famed men portrayed in the prints and paintings are Dr. Edward Jenner, the discoverer of vaccine and Dr. William Harvey who discovered the circulation of the blood, in the seventeenth century.

If it did not sound irreverent one would say: "If you wish to find all first glance the engravings and pictures what is what, Edward Jenner, look for the cow. "The artists who have represented this famed scientist, have always, without exception added a cow to the picture. It is a simple and picturesque way of telling the story and after finding that 'the virus of cowpox could be preventive of smallpox. It avoids the arduous details of a medical treatise and it is direct and naive.

From the historical viewpoint, the engraving by Raimondi showing Edward Jenner performing vaccination for the first time on a baby is noticable. What the mother is about to inoculate the infant who is in its mother's arms, a large window is open, in the background, and a kindly cow is seen peeping through.

From the art viewpoint and among the more beautiful prints there is one of William Harvey with a sort of unrolled map of the blood circulation designed like a coat of arms, which is quite fine and most interesting.

A portrait of Thomas Sydenham and one of Sir Samuel Garth engraved by Hairston are done in the brilliant technique which came to a peak during the seventeenth century. Both of these prints are interesting also in that they bring to mind the memory of these two famed Englishmen, the first of whom is considered the father of English Medicine, the English Hippocrates, the other a well known doctor, also famous for his "mock-heroic poem": The Dispensary a satire in which he ridiculed the apothecaries and mercenary physicians.

Two prints (from well known paintings by Teniers: "The Alchemist" and "The Country Surgeon", are good examples of the craft of wood engraving when it was considered an artistic achievement to be able to translate into black and white the creative work of famous painters.

The most picturesque note in the entire collection is offered by a color print of A. Barrere. It is a cartoon of a few of the best known bacteriologists, clinical surgeons, gynecologists and general practitioners of the time in France. A few freaks, just out of the alcohol jar included in that humorous collection of medical men seen in bloody aprocks and grotesque attitudes. Two of them wearing high hats, several are holding knives and other aggressive tools which are anything but promising of a good time.

Old fashioned paintings are still very much in favor with physicians judging from the calibre of those served by the Toronto Academy of Medicine. As one enters the building, one is greeted by "The Country Doctor", an oil signed by Paul O. Wickson and dated 1892. It is a snow scape and on the foreground there is a sleigh from which smiles the Doctor, "Gossip", a genre painting in the style of George A. Reid is another old timer included in the art collection of the Academy.

The name of J. W. Foster survives among medical men, in the memory in which he was able to portray truth fully some of the early medical methods of the Academy of Medicine in Toronto. His portrait of Michael Barrett founder of the first medical school here, is done in the manner of a good French Salon portrait of the past century and with little exception, the best the portrait of Augusta Stowe Cullen, the first woman to graduate in medicine, from a Canadian University and which was painted by Allan Barr and presented to the Academy, only recent by Dr. Jean Cullen Ross. Another painting which hangs by the side of that of J. W. Foster is done in very different colors and is one of strong contrasts of warm and cool tones. It is an interesting piece of character study and one that undoubtedly will stands out in one's memory with all its features.

It also agrees with the view that science and art are the two rails on which to safely travel toward beauty and truth. Both branches, science and are additions and eliminations desirable in order to make a notable entry into the list of the greats and yet the start is there and it is worthy of notice.

CANADA TO SEND YOUNG TEAM TO CATTLE JUDGING CONTEST HELD IN ENGLAND JULY 8TH

One Nova Scotia Lad Winner at Royal Winter Fair—13 Years

(Special to The Ontario Intelligencer Copyright, 1930)

Montreal—On June 28th next, there will sail from Montreal, on the White Star liner Albertic, Canada's first International cattle judging team, representing the boys' and girls' cattle clubs of the Dominion. The team is to compete with teams from the United States and Great Britain in the International judging contest conducted at the Royal agricultural show in Manchester, England, July 8, under the auspices of the National association of boys' clubs of Britain.

Canada's team, selected at the Toronto Royal Winter fair last fall from those contesting in the Canadian National Railways dominion-wide cattle judging contest, includes an Ontario representative, Clifford Baldwick of Barrie, Ont., a New Brunswick representative, Cedric Kirkpatrick, of Wirral, N. B. and a Nova Scotia boy, Gordon Campbell, of Berwick, N. S., the latter boy being but 13 years of age. These boys had the highest aggregate marks in the all-Canadian judging competition fair.

The team goes overseas under the joint auspices of the Canadian department of agriculture at Ottawa and the agricultural department of the Canadian National Railways. The boys will undergo a special judging training course in Canada prior to sailing and also in Britain before the contest to be held at Manchester during the Walsh supt. of agriculture of the Canadian National system, who is in charge of each for the team.

The team selected includes three of the brightest boys in cattle club work in the Dominion. Clifford Baldwick, who has made himself one of the most outstanding boys in the junior farmers' judging contests at Toronto this year, is the son of English immigrant parents who came to Canada from Peterboro, England, some years ago. Clifford was born in Barrie, Ont., in 1913, and went to England with his mother when his father joined the 70th "Canadian regiment for service overseas. The family returned to Canada in 1919 and took up land under the soldier settlement scheme.

Yeoue Clifford has been in junior farmer club work since 1924. He won this year the grand championship in a two weeks' short course at Ontario Agricultural college and was also a member of the 1929 Royal Fair five hundred party of Ontario boys.

Gordon Campbell, of Berwick-East, Nova Scotia was the youngest club member competing this year, being only 13 years of age. He is second youngest in a family of 9, descended from old-time residents of that part of Nova Scotia. His father has a fine herd of Holsteins, and Gordon himself took second prize with his calf at Amherst fair, the club of which he is a member taking first in the group.

Cedric Kirkpatrick of Wirral, N.B., belongs to the Hoyt and Wirral Ayrshire calf feeding club and is this boy's third year of the club. He is 19 years of age, and the son of A. Kirkpatrick, of Wirral. He has been some years in club work and has a brother in his own club aged 10.

TRUE DAUGHTER OF EVE FOUND

American Woman Has Traced Family Tree To Original Seed

Although it is popularly believed that everyone is descended from Adam and Eve, Mrs. Henry Clay Shipman of Mason City is one of the few persons who has documentary evidence to prove the fact, says the Des Moines Register.

For Mrs. Shipman, who was Jennie Pauline Swits McKee, has spent twenty years in compiling a complete genealogy record of her family.

Charlemagne An Ancestor

A summary of the record shows: Royal ancestors of the Swits family include William of Orange, Henrietta Gale Blount and Charlemagne.

Jan Peek, another ancestor of colonial days when New York City was termed New Amsterdam, was the founder of Peekskill, N.Y. Philip Livingston, a signer of the Declaration of Independence, is included in the family tree.

Mrs. Shipman's mother was a Van Patten and her grandfather, Frederickse Van Patten, was one of the fifteen first proprietors and founders of Schenectady, N.Y.

And So On Back

Going further back, a direct line is traced from Charlemagne, emperor of the west, to Maromir, king of the Franks in 413 A. D. From Maromir the line runs directly to Priam, but-band of Phrygia.

In a detailed history, Tros, Noah, Lamech, Methuselah, Enoch, Jared, Mahalaleel, Cainan, Enos and Seth are named. The 115th generation terminated with Adam and Eve.

From the Frankish lines, the descent includes Emperor Charles Louis I of France, Otto the Great, duke of Saxony; Henry I of Germany, Hugh Capet of France, Henry I of France; Philip I of France and Louis IX.

Proved Her Eligibility

Through her records Mrs. Shipman has proved her eligibility to belong to the Colonial Dames, National Society of American Colonists, Daughters of the American Revolution, Daughters of the Huguenots, Founders and Patriots, Families of Royal Descent, and the Daughters of 1812.

The genealogy is to be handed down to her three children, Guy Clark McKee of Sioux City, Grace McKee Wilson of Omaha, and Pan Harmon McKee of Milwaukee.

FIRST PERMANENT SOLDIER TO ATTEND

Kingston, May 23.—The first soldier to enlist in the Canadian permanent force, ex-Sergt. Instructor William R. Abbott of Maple Creek, Sask., has arrived in the city to attend the reunion of the Royal Canadian Horse Artillery, of which he was the first to join in 1872.

Despite the fact that he is in his 85th year, Mr. Abbott is in good health and still farms at Maple Creek, of which he was formerly mayor.

He served in the volunteers in England before coming to Canada, in a regiment where "the soldiers boarded themselves and grilled at night." In 1871 he came to Canada and lived in London for a while, then coming to the "A" Battery School of Gunnery.

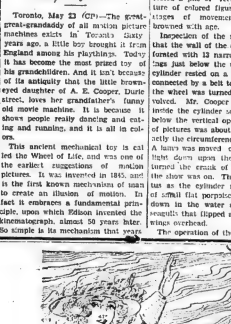
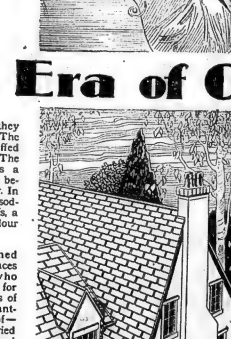
GRANDADDY OF THE "MOVIES"



Machine From England Works on Principle of Present Day Movies

Toronto, May 23 (CP)—The great-great-grandaddy of all motion picture machines exists in Toronto. Sixty years ago, a little boy brought it from England among his playthings. Today it has become the most prized toy of his grandchildren. And it isn't because of its antiquity that the little brown-eyed daughter of A. E. Cooper, Duke street, loves her grandfather's funny old movie machine. It is because it shows people really dancing and eating and running, and it is all in colors.



This ancient mechanism of to-day led the wheel of life, and was one of the earliest suggestions of motion pictures. It was invented in 1845, and is the first known mechanism of man to create an illusion of motion. In fact it embraces a fundamental principle upon which Edison invented the kinematograph, almost 50 years later. So simple is its mechanism that years in cellar and garret, and countless children's fingers have failed to injure its smoothness of operation. But in its very simplicity lies its wonder, the wonder of a complicated machine age at the primitive and amazing discoveries of man upon which it is based. The odd old plaything looks at first glance like an old round cake tin perched upon a pedestal. Inside is rested a pile of "reels", strips of picture of colored figures in successive stages of movement. They were browned with age.

Inspection of the machine revealed that the wall of the cylinder was perforated with 12 narrow vertical openings just below the upper edge. The cylinder rested on a pivot, which was connected by a belt to a wheel. When the wheel was turned the cylinder revolved. Mr. Cooper placed a reel inside the cylinder so that it lined it below the vertical openings. The strip of pictures was about a yard long, so neatly the circumference of the cylinder. A hand was moved over to shed its light darts upon the apparatus. As turned the crank of the wheel, and the show was on. Through the apparatus as the cylinder revolved a series of small flat purposes darted up and down in the water accompanied by sounds that clipped and flopped their wings overhead.

The operation of the machine is bas

The Era of Change

WITHIN our time they have all vanished. The oil lamp has been snuffed out by electric globes. The automobile has come a dromedary in 1910 has become a running panther. In place of drab, weather-sodden old fashioned roofs, a gleaming pyramid of colour now arises.

These old-fashioned things hold honoured places in our memory, yet who would exchange them for the works and wonders of today? The modern Brantford Asphalt Slate roof with its rich beauty, varied colours, permanence and fire-safety. What widespread advantages this alone has brought!

Security against the menace of sparks and flying embers has been given to thousands of Canadian homes. Brantford Asphalt Slates are bringing lasting reductions in Fire Insurance premiums for more Canadian home owners every year.

Permanent protection under the severest weather conditions is another feature of these slates. Wind doesn't loosen, sun does not warp, nor driving sleet harm them. When properly laid they will never run, peel or crack.

Their surpassing beauty is a source of never-ending pride. There are colour treatments to suit every type of residence.

Ask your Brantford Roofing dealer to submit estimates of cost. Also write for free booklet "Beauty with Fire Protection"—a comprehensive treatise on the proper type, finish, design and colour for your roof.

CHAPTER VIII

"I'm curious about that boy. I want to see him in action. I've got to test him out, even at the risk of his life, for if I do not test him out how am I to discover whether he is or is not worth the boots in? a hollow? Somebody has to step into my boots some day, Muriel. Whom have I got? A lot of fine, capable, aging men who each year pass more and more of their responsibilities down to their juniors. What's the use having sharp teeth if you're going to be fed on spoon victuals? I size up that Burney boy as one who, in playing poker, plays table stakes; in rolling the bones he prefers one flip and have it over with; his creed is to take a chance, to let the tail go with the hide—and cultured, educated, highly intelligent gentlemen who live by that code are as scarce as the dodo. They're the sons of leaders I'm looking for. I want men who are smarter than myself and I'm nobody's fool."

"And tomorrow night," the girl murmured absently, "he'll be berthed in the bunkhouse with his menial, moral and intellectual inferiors. Yes," she added, "and his social inferiors".

"But not his professional inferiors," the king reminded.

"It will be very hard on him, Dad. Why don't you make him assistant general manager and let him occupy a room in Mr. Graydon's house?"

"His leadership qualities of leadership will develop more quickly in the bunkhouse, "His Majesty, in his wisdom, defended. "I graduated from a bunkhouse and he can do the same or get out—provided, of course, that tomorrow I conclude definitely to let him in . . . . I'm sorry I forgot he was a cowboy and invited him to dinner here. That was a tactical error."

"Why not? He's a gentleman also. I found him charming, delightful and very amusing and you know, Dad, good company is scarce here. May I not invite him to dinner again?"

"I care not to, Muriel. As I usually think you have your own way with me."

Ken Burney rose at dawn, bathed, made his way silently out of the king's house and over to the corral, where he found his horses. His outfit was piled neatly on the ground just outside the gate, so he extracted from it a clean shirt, a change of linen and socks, a brush and comb, a small mirror and a having outfit, toothbrush and paste. In the shelter of the closely bounded corral he changed his linen at the watering trough he shaved, brushed his hair and teeth and, his toilet completed, performed a grooming service for his horses, after which he sat on the top rail of the corral and waited for the ranch cook to ring the breakfast bell. And when that "cookie of the soup" resounded over El Ranchito, Mr. Burney slid precipitately from his perch and joined the rush with some forty other men.

Entering the mess hall, he slid into the nearest seat, nodded, murmured a "Howdy" to the men nearest him and felt in, in silence like the others. Nobody paid any attention to him; with them eating was a sacred function, to be gotten over as quickly as possible. Burney ate leisurely, however, lingering to smoke a cigarette over his second cup of coffee, with the result that he found himself alone in the mess hall when Art Graydon, the general manager, entered and took his seat at a small table in a corner. A red tablecloth gave indication that this table was sacred to him.

Graydon was a tall, slim, iron-gray man with iron-gray eyes that had acquired a permanent squint, due to forty years of sunlight and snowfall. He glanced inquiringly at the stranger as he entered, whereupon Ken Burney rose up, bowed and wished him good morning.

"You're hellish polite for a cowhanddy," Mr. Graydon observed casually. "It ain't necessary to stand up when I come around. Them courtesies is reserved for the king." A mildly humorous gleam came into the squinty eyes as his straight glance roved over Ken Burney. "Come over to show my boys how the rough ones should be ridden?" he asked.

"No, sir, I came over to see you for a riding job, but while I got into the right church it seems I stumbled into the wrong pew. I met his Majesty first. I thought he was you and asked him for a job. However, he thought I'd better pass my entrance examination before he recommended me to you."

"Good old King Bardin," Mr. Art Graydon murmured appreciatively and emitted a thin, small smile of inward satisfaction.

"So," Ken Burney continued, "if it's all the same to you, Mr. Graydon, I'll be glad to show you what I can do. I understand from the king that he'd like to see me ride a horse called Geronimo."

Again Mr. Graydon smiled the small smile of inward satisfaction. "The king must have a grudge against you, mister. And, come to think of it, when'd you talk to him? 'Tain't usual for him to pile out this early."

"I dined with him and Miss Muriel last night and slept in a very lovely guest-room with a bath."

Art Graydon paused, apparently paralyzed, in the act of spearing a strip of bacon. "You et with the king?" he demanded.

"He was gracious enough to invite me and I was hungry enough to accept. Besides, I got in rather late and dinner was over here."

Evidently this information did not sit well on the Graydon stomach, and Burney was sufficiently quick-witted to realize this. "I hope you will not hold my delinquency against me, Mr. Graydon," he begged. "Credit me with having sufficient good taste to slip out of the castle before the family was up and come here for breakfast. I know my place."

"Glad of it, son. If you didn't I'd show it to you." Graydon added a moment later: "The old man dogwone seldom forgets his. Reckon he had his reasons this time. What's your name, mister?"

"Kenneth Burney, sir."

"A mile inclined toward the dark meat, eh? Well, we'll just call you Smokey an' that'll do until you have the payroll. Of course I aint sayin' I'll take you on, although I could use a good-top-hand just now, but if I do take you on, you remember to keep away from headquarters until you're rent for, and then don't linger to pick wild flowers on the way. The king ain't none too patient. His middle name is Speed. We got to have some discipline here an' hanchhakin' the king don't go. I play no favorites."

This pronouncement, Art Graydon made without rancor, without brag and bluster. He meant no offence and Ken Burney understood this thoroughly.

Breakfast was prolonged two hours that morning, in order to accommodate a dozen or more riders who drifted in from neighboring ranches with their bucking horses. From the bunkhouse in front of the bunkhouse where he sat smoking Ken Burney observed a dozen automobiles arrive and deposit their passengers in front of the king's house and presently the king and the princess appeared, leading their guests down to some raised benches set out under a fringe of box elders on the edge of the field where the rodeo was to be held. A stout fence protected them from injury in the event that a wild horse or steer should attempt to stampede in among them.

CHAPTER IX

To Burney presently came Art Graydon. "The king says him an' his guests will be honored if you start the fireworks on Geronimo," he announced solemnly.

"The king hath spoken," the victim remarked blithely. He picked up his saddle and walked out on the field where two cowboys were holding a big black gelding. He sighed. He had never known a good bucker that wasn't a black or a bay. As he approached, he mounted man rode up, drew Geronimo's head across his mount's neck and seized the outlaw by the ears, while another man blindfolded him. The horse submitted to saddling with out unusual protest, and when he was ready to be mounted, Ken Burney turned to Art Graydon, inquiringly.

"You ride him with the headstall an' halter shank", that grim individual informed him. "Ons arm free an' raised above your head as all times an' if you pull his head down so he can't buck proper you'll be disqualified. You scratch him forward on the first three jumps an' rearward on the next three; you don't claw leathrr an' you stay with him until the gun goes off an' the bars pick him up."

"Associates rules. I know them backward. By the way, does His Majesty offer a prize for this?"

"Sure does. Sonora Stobbin' cheap about the big boss on the Fourth o' July .A hundred dollars special if you win, nothing if you lose—so you pay your own hospital bill, if any?"

"A hundred dollars special prize, eh? Well, Mr. Graydon, you trot over, borrow one and tell the king I'm riding special—an exhibition ride for the sport of kings and not in open competition. Say to him, please, that if I win I desire the prize to go into the pot as added money in the bucking contests to follow. Tell him themall order cow boy is quite content to ride for a job."

Art Graydon immediately rode across to the king's bench and delivered the message. "There's a true-blue sport for you," Muriel Bardin cried, and applauded .But the king wrinkled his nose. "Grandslander playing to the gallery," he sneered. "He's pretty well convinced he'll be thrown, so he's saving his face and making a big I AM of himself. I don't like his methods."

"How ungrurerous of you, Dad," the girl charged. "You know very well Gercnimo has never been ridden. Bet you a hundred dollars my unknown knight rider him to a bawling finish."

"Taken," said the king. Then Art Graydon blew a whistle and Ken Burney vaulted into the saddle. Instantly the blindfold was withdrawn and the show was on. Across the field the outlaw bucked madly, but the rider kept his right hand uplifted, his legs scratching three times forward and three times aft. Suddenly the horse changed his tactics and leaped sideways at least a dozen feet, That trick had never failed him previously, but strangely his rider swayed with him and stuck.

Promptly Geronimo tried sunfishing Still pitching he metamorphosed himself into a equine pin-wheel. But still his rider stuck—and suddenly, in rage and chagrin, Geronimo stopped—and commenced running, with only an occasional pitch—and the king nodded to Art Graydon, who fired his six-shooter. Instantly the lassera, who had been following the outlaw, ranged in alongside of him and picked him up; Ken Burney slipped from Geronimo's back to a seat behind the saddle of the near hazer and thence to the ground, where he stood for a moment wavering on his feet, slumped to his hands and knees, remained there a few seconds, and then pitched forward on his face. But nobody paid any attention to him and in about three minutes he rose, stripped his saddle off Geronimo and started sorrowfully to retire. But a shout from the king halted him; the kingly command to approach was evidenced by a peremptory arm signal.

With his saddle in hand Burney reported. "Don", said the king, "you're a young devil. I nerved did see the beat of you. I gave you sivty seconds on that horse and ten would have been a miracle."

"Yes, it was fifty seconds too long, sir. You embarrassed the horse and me."

"A bit dirty of me, I admit. But you are on the payroll. Art Graydon has been promoted to you."

"I thank Your Majesty."

His Majesty glowered and would, in all probability, have scratched him for his impudence, but the dusty form of address had not Muriel interrupted "Why did not you remain for breakfast, Mr. Smokey?" she inquired.

He doffed his sombrero and turned away, "See what you've done to him," the girl charged the king quaveringly. "He was bleeding from each nostril and each corner of his mouth."

"So I observed," His Majesty replied regretfully. "These rough-riders get more or less shaken up on occasion. but they get over it." His hand closed over his daughter's. "Honor has been a long time looking for that man," he whispered. "How badly I need men who aren't afraid to bleed in my service! An exhibition ride, eh? And he declined the hundred-dollar prize—with three dollars in his pocket! Something magnificent about that young man!"

"I'm sorry for him, Dad," said Muriel. "There's something pathetic about him, with all his bravado."

"Gentlemen down on their luck are always more or less pathetic" he reminded her.

The rodeo dragged on. At twelve-thirty the barbecue was served and Muriel saw her knight squatted on his heels on the outer fringe of the barbeque ground, gnawing disinterestedly at a fat rib of beef. When her sympathetic nature suggested to her that she approach him and make polite inquiry as to his possible internal injuries, he rose and walked away to join a group of other riders, and her father noting this, grinned maliciously at her. "His name is Smokey now" he remind ed her. "He's out of your social circle now, my dear, and, consequently, out of your life."

She bit her lip and favored him with a glance of pretended irritation, whereas he laughed, for well did he love a kingly jest.

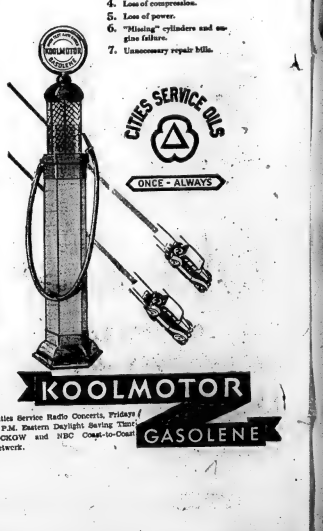
BEWARE OF GASOLENE WEIGHTED WITH GUM

Gum in gasolene is a chief of power. It makes your engine labor—It makes your valves fight to get free—it robs your motor of valuable compression.

Don't put this extra burden on your motor by thoughtless purchases of gasolene.

Insist on Koolmotor Gasolene, the original high test, anti-knock green gas. Harmful gum has been removed from this powerful, clean burning gas. The mini-gum process descriptive of the extra care and extra refining used to produce this superior motor fuel has reduced the gum content in Koolmotor Gasolene to a harmless minimum.

Koolmotor Gasolene vaporizes quickly, burns freely, leaves no sticky, gummy deposit behind. It is full of power, full of speed, ready to go when you are.



Keep your motor clean—give it a chance to do its best—relieve it of the burden of gum-stuck valves. Keep your tank full of Koolmotor—the gasolene that's free from harmful gum.

FEMININE FLIER BREACHES LONG GAP TO AUSTRALIA

POLICE WEAVE WEB OF EVIDENCE AROUND NORTH COUNTRY FOLK FOLLOWING MYSTERIOUS BLAZE

Provincial Authorities Probe Circumstances of Tweed Fire

COMPLICATED YARN

Alleges Mechanism of Phonograph Placed in Debris

Sensational developments followed the arrest and commitment for trial of Thomas Ash, Mrs. Clara Knight, and Ozas Aylsworth, all of Tweed, yesterday, when the Provincial Police arrested William Hearns of Kingston, Mrs. Ethel Woods of Napanee and Mrs. M. Parks of Kingston on charges of fabricating evidence for the offences for which the three first named are charged, Mr. and Mrs. Knight are charged with attempting to obtain $1,000.00 from an insurance company for furniture, which was alleged to have been burned in a fire, which destroyed the Knight home in Tweed. Provincial Constable Hill of Madoc and Provincial Constable Bert Hanmer were assigned to the case and have thoroughly covered it from every angle.

It is alleged by the police that the furniture was not burned in the fire but was distributed about the country by the Knights and Ash. A phonograph in particular was the piece of furniture with which the police were concerned, and the story of the movements of this machine will be told when the Knights and Ash come to trial.

It is understood statements were secured by the police from the three arrested yesterday afternoon. It is further alleged by the police that the phonograph was taken by Mrs. Knight and Ash to the home of Thomas White in Kingston shortly before the fire in Tweed took place. Mrs. Parks is a housekeeper in the home of Mr. White. Shortly after part of the machine were taken out, it is alleged by the police, and scorched. Hearns, Ethel Woods and Mrs. Parks with White drove to Tweed and deposited the pieces of the machine in the debris of the burned home. Some time afterward these parts were dug up and were to be used in evidence for the Knights and Ash at their trial.

The Provincial Police by a circuitous route found that Hearns had a machine on investigating were told a story in which little credence was placed. They continued investigation and on Thursday Hearns was arrested and appeared before Magistrate Mikel charged with fabricating evidence and remanded for one week. Later a statement was given to the police by Hearns and the arrest of the other parties followed. Mrs. Woods and Mrs. Parks were arrested when they went to the Provincial Police headquarters yesterday afternoon to see Hearns, who was in custody.

FORMER CANTERBURY BISHOP SINKING FAST

LONDON, May 24.—Archbishop Lord Randall Davidson former Archbishop of Canterbury lapsed into unconsciousness this noon. He is seriously ill and is not expected to live. He is 82 years of age.

Wife Was Hurt; Husband Jailed

Joseph Rogers, 68 Dupont Street, Toronto was sentenced to seven days in the county jail and ordered to pay costs amounting to $19.00 or a further seven days by Magistrate Mikel today in police court when found guilty of being intoxicated in charge of a motor car and causing an accident. The accident occurred near the Cemetery Crossing there before midnight and his wife, Mrs. Mary Rogers, was severely cut about the head and lower limbs, when she was thrown bending from the truck which her husband was driving. Sergt. H. Storey of the Provincial Police and W. O. Pride, Traffic Officer were at the scene and arrested the accused. Mrs. Rogers was taken to the surgery of Dr. Morgan, West Bridge Street, and after her wounds were dressed was taken to relatives in the city.

Rogers was driving a truck eastbound and just west of the Cemetery Crossing on the King's Highway struck a car proceeding west driven by C. M. Skinner, Peppler Avenue, Toronto. Both officers allege that Rogers was on the wrong side of the highway, Skinner having the right wheel three feet on the north shoulder of the highway. Both cars were considerably damaged in the collision.

Weatherman Promises Smiling Skies for the Holiday Here

It has grown to be an accepted fact that for some unaccountable reason, the weather man invariably sends us rainy weather for the 24th of May, Queen Victoria's birthday, and today was no exception. Early this morning the weather was fine and warm but as the clock moved on the sky clouded and before ten o'clock a heavy downpour had started which lasted for an hour. Intermittent showers occurred all day and the temperature dropped from a high of 72 registered at the pump house yesterday to a low of 50 registered today. However, Belleville citizens may yet fool the weather man and beat him at his own game, for who cared if it did rain today. It was not a holiday in the city and the only people that were put out were the housewives at market. Monday is the day that counts and probabilities have decreed fine weather. Monday has been declared a civic holiday in this city by the Mayor and it will be observed by all stores and places of business within the exception of banks who are celebrating the holiday today.

FIND 4 DAY BABE UNDER TREE, WOMAN IS HELD

Brockville, Ont., May 24—(CP)—Following the discovery last evening of a female infant, only a few days old, crying pitifully underneath some trees in a wooded area adjoining St. Lawrence Park, Mrs. Annie Pettem, 32, was placed under arrest later last night by the police and held on a charge of abandoning a child under two years of age. She was remanded to jail until Tuesday next.

The police learned the child was born in St. Vincent De Paul Hospital, on Sunday last and that Mrs. Pettem left the institution yesterday afternoon.

According to the story told by her, she left the child under the trees later in the afternoon and it had been in the open for five hours when discovered by some boys who heard its cries. She has been living apart from her husband for some time and when arrested was on the breakwater on the waterfront in company with a young man.

PREMIER PLANS MODEL COURSE

Prime Minister Howard Ferguson Launches Program

GUELPH, May 24—As an aid to the work of the Ontario Agricultural College in promoting scientific farming in the province, the Ontario Government will launch a program to reach the farmers in back region communities by means of extension courses.

Premier Howard Ferguson made this statement at the laying of the corner stone for the new administration building at the Ontario Agricultural College.

"One cannot estimate what it means to the agricultural industry, when scientific learning is applied," declared Premier Ferguson to the gathering of 500 students, visitors and faculty members. "The government proposes to emphasize to a greater extent than ever before, extension courses in scientific agriculture. All those who want to come to the O.A.C. can't do so for various reasons and these extension courses will be brought to them. The ones who cannot come here are the very ones we want educated in the scientific principles of agriculture.

The research foundation is investigating agricultural problems and this work will be carried on in co-operation with the college here.

"Not only is this Government anxious to keep in touch with events but we are always desirous of keeping ahead of other countries. The future of agriculture in this province is bright.

"Many people bemoan the fact that machinery is displacing farm labor. That applies to every industry and execution under the sun. If we are not to keep pace with progress, if we are not to make use of inventions, and if we are not to use our ingenuity, we simply stagnate."

Suicide Pact on Michigan Shores

CLENCOE, Ill., May 24—Identified by papers in his pocket as William C. Murray, of Toronto and his bride of only a few days sat last night in a motor car overlooking Lake Michigan, clasped hands and then consummated what the police believe a suicide pact. Each had been shot once in the temple. A pistol was found in the man's right hand. Girl's identity was not yet established.

FIRE DANGER IN NORTH ONTARIO ENDED BY RAINS

Downpours Help to Extinguish Threatening Forest Blazes

Kirkland Lake, May 27.—Drenching rains and a changed wind ended the fire danger here last night and a blaze which swept through the bush parallel to the town was brought under control.

The fire started at 10 o'clock yesterday morning when a sudden change of wind surprised fire rangers who were burning out and near the Kirkland Premier mine. The flames jumped from their control and rushed through a mile of country on a quarter-mile front.

Miners and the fire department from Kirkland Lake were called out and a mile of hose was laid to battle the fire while fire rangers began ditching frantically.

The fire has brought under control about 4 p.m. and little damage was done according to Fire Chief R. J. Maddeson, of Kirkland Lake, who led h's town force into the battle.

Another fire was reported burning close to the Ferguson highway between Cobalt and Temiskami, near Goward. Heavy rains in that district have eliminated most of the danger, reports here said.

WHEAT PRICES

Winnipeg, May 24—(CP)—Wheat market could not shake off its quiet state today, but prices advanced fractionally out of sympathy with strength at Liverpool. All three wheat delivery months were quoted slightly higher. At 1.02 1-8. May was up 1-4 cent per bushel. July moved up 3-8 to 1-8 cents at 1.00 7-8 to 5-8. October was up 1-4 to 3-8 at 1.11 3-4 to 7-8.

AVOID AUGUST 4 ELECTION DATE

Premier King and Hon. R. B. Bennett Discuss Matter

OTTAWA, May 23—Both agreeing that it is out of the question to hold the Dominion general election on August 4th, which is Civic Holiday throughout Ontario, Premier Mackenzie King and Hon. R. B. Bennett, Opposition leader, pledged themselves yesterday in the House of Commons to make every possible effort to have Parliament dissolved as soon as possible.

Unless Parliament is dissolved by Thursday next, the election cannot be held until July 28, which seems to be the date at which both leaders are shooting. Under the new election law however, the polling must be done on a Monday and it cannot be sooner than 51 days after the issuance of the writs. Thus, if Parliament does not get through in time to permit a July 28 election, the election cannot be held until two weeks later, that is, August 11th.

OPPONENT FOR MAYOR BETTEZ

THREE RIVERS, Que, May 24—Philippe Bigue, K.C., law partner of Senator Jacques Bureau will appose ex-Mayor Arthur Bettez, M.P., at the mayoralty election set for June 2nd, it was announced today.

BELLEVILLE CAMP IS PRAISED BY TOURISTS FROM FAR AND NEAR

Every Convenience Provided Here For Travelling Motorists

Belleville now has one of the finest and best-equipped city tourist camps in the province. Tourists from all parts of North American Continent voiced this fact in no uncertain manner in the camp's official registration book. Here are a few of the many complimentary remarks taken directly from the registration book this morning: "first-class camp, excellent camp; best yet in Canada; camp ok; fine and clean; best camp in Ontario; camping for six years and this is finest camp yet; splendid camp; excellent service; will be glad to return; perfect in all respects." Perhaps this note was the most significant of all: "We have travelled over two thousand miles from Massachusetts through Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Quebec, this is the best-equipped camp we have found, enjoyed our stay here very much, we have found Mr. N. Nelson very courteous and anxious to make his guests comfortable."

There are three kitchens two showers with hot and cold running water, fourteen tables for picnickers and Mr. Nelson stated there was accommodation for fifty more. The kitchens are equipped with gas-jets and laundering facilities. Mr. Nelson stated that he would appreciate it if visitors would come down and see for themselves just why Belleville's tourist camp has brought such a splendid name to the city.

Tourists from Toronto and Montreal have already visited the camp this year and Mr. Nelson is preparing for what will undoubtedly be the biggest year in the camp's history. The Supt. stated that in the four years that the camp has been in operation, there has been a substantial increase in the number of visitors each year. The buildings have all been freshly painted and the camp is now in readiness for the official opening on May 30th.

Gandhi's Wife Allowed in Cell

No Violent Outbursts Reported From Troubled Areas Today

BOMBAY, May 24.—For the first time since his interment, Mahatma Gandhi today was allowed to receive his wife in Yeroda Jail. Except for the orderly celebration the Nationalist today remained quiet. No violent outburst was reported from the usual trouble district. The Nationalists today celebrated Dharasana Day making it an occasion to celebrate a "victory" there against the British police and the armed forces in the course of raids upon the salt depots. The raids were suspended temporarily but will be resumed tomorrow.

Mrs. Satayavati, leader of the "lady volunteers" was arrested today by the police on an order to give a security to cease demonstrations of rebellion.

JAMES CURRY DAFOE

James Curry Dafoe died yesterday at noon at the residence of his daughter Mrs. George Cadman 9th Concession of Thurlow, Madoc Road. The deceased was born in Sidney Township and had resided there and in Thurlow township all his life. At the time of his death he was in his 87th year. Mr. Dafoe was a faithful member of the United Church at Farlingheath for the past two years. He was a carpenter by trade. Surviving relatives are, four sons, W. C. of Belleville, R. W. of Phenix, N.Y., Glen of Forsbern and H. P. of Corbyville, also one daughter Mrs. George Cadman, two sisters, Mrs. Nancy Sine of Frankford, Mrs. Elmira Paisley, Trenton. INTREPID FLIER NEGOTIATES THE TIMOR SEA; IS RECIPIENT OF CONGRATULATIONS FROM KING

ATTEMPT AT RECORD

Forced Landing and Bad Weather Delayed the Trip

PORT DARWIN, North Australia, (Canadian Press) May 24.—Amy Johnson, 25-year-old British girl flyer, reached this city today, from Atsamboea, Timor after a flight of four hundred miles across the Timor Sea, completing the 19-day flight from Croydon, England. She left there May fifth, in the hope of beating Bert Hinkler's 15-day record trip to Australia but a forced landing and bad weather left her four days behind. At one stage of the flight she was two full days ahead of the schedule.

LONDON, May 24.— King George today sent his hearty congratulations to Miss Amy Johnson the first British woman to fly alone from England to Australia. The message said "The Queen and I are thankful to know of Miss Johnson's safe arrival and heartily congratulate her upon her wonderful and courageous achievement".

GOLFER LANDS FISH WITH A GOLF CLUB

Detroit, May 24.—C. J. Hamilton recommends a number 3 iron for fishing. Driving form the number 13 tee on Renmor golf course near here yesterday afternoon, his ball landed in the creek.

Selecting an iron, he swung viciously. He missed the ball, but struck a fish which had been nibbling at the pellet. The fish landed on the bank. At the club house, it was weighed in at eight pounds.

Sharp, Staccato Renditions by Torpedo Brigade Caused Flurry

Bellville has a red menace!! Verily there are recruits from Queen's Park in our midst. Last evening, when the town time-piece was striking ten, thirty-one people, peaceful law-abiding citizens, had surely been shot at and missed, precipitately sought safe shelter in nearby cars. There was a yell, an inhuman, terrifying screech and a lady shrieked "Help me!"

Traffic stopped, then slowly continued on its way. Policemen with truncheons flying here down on the disturbers. There was no attempt at speech-making. What was that over there? A hand was raised above some one's head. There was a deafening explosion, a blinding flash arose from the side-walk. Four figures darted into the shadows of Alley-Way like the blackness that was night. The boys had eluded the police, and were going after another supply of torpedoes.

JUDGMENT RESERVED

In the case of Rutitan vs. the King and Charles V. Billie as the third party concerning a motor accident. Mr. Justice Kelly assessed the damages as $100.00 to Camille Rutitan and $2500.00 to George Sullian for injuries received, but reserved judgment as to the degree of negligence of the parties concerned but did not award any damages, he stated in the heading of his article in the Ontario Intelligencer of Wednesday last. His Lordship in referring to evidence dealing with alleged liquor in the car, the men giving that evidence for the defense were William Holland and Lewis Green and not William Rodgers or Charles V. Billie as stated.

SOCCER GAME AT KINGSTON

Belleville Soccer team left today for Kingston to play Kingston United in the opening game of the season.

Belleville team will be composed of the following players—Blaker, Rand, Ballinger, Perkin, Colclough, Keenan, Johnson, Parks, Norridge, Kennedy, Haselton.

Belleville team expect to do well this season and will make a strong attempt to bring the Kingston and District Soccer Cup to Belleville.

The attendees for this cup are King ston Brockville and Belleville.

PUBLIC SCHOOLS TRAIN FOR RE-

LAY MONDAY MORNING

Yesterday afternoon at the Fair grounds teams from seventy of the public schools were working out in preparation for the Deseon Cup Relay which takes place at the track on Monday morning at 10.30 a.m. At least four of the schools will be represented by teams in this event and possibly five. Monday's race is expected to produce some keen competition amongst the various school teams and there is considerable speculation as to which team will win the honors this year.

Besides the public school representatives, a group of boys from the collegiate were engaged in track and field events in preparation for the interschoolastic meet which takes place at Kingston on June 6th. Later in the afternoon the park presented a busy scene with the ball team practising and a group of T members employed in track and field events. Amongst these latter were several runners who will participate in the 6-mile run for the Stroud Trophy on Monday morning. It is expected that this race will have a good entry this year with runners from Prince Edward County, Belleville and vicinity.

BLOSSOM TEA AT Y. M. C. A.

In the auditorium of the Y. M. C. A. on Thursday was a scene of a delightfully arranged afternoon tea under the auspices of the group No. 4 of the women's Association of the Tabernacle Church. The room was charmingly decorated with spring blossoms, mauve and white lilac, and the tea table held a silver basket of various shades of pink and mauve tulips, tapering mauve light ed candles added much in the way of cheer.

A large number of guests visited the tea rooms during the afternoon and were graciously received by Mrs. (Rev.) McCutcheon and Mrs. Sharpe. Mrs. J. E. Walmsley presided at the tea table assisted by Mrs. Grose and Mrs. Ryal and Mrs. Laughlin, Mrs. Scott, Mrs. Reid, Mrs. Bastier, Mrs. Dunlop and Mrs. Calnan served. Mrs. Palmer relinquished the tea and Mrs. Phillips added the guests. Mrs. Godson capably executed the duties of treasurer. Convenors for the afternoon were Mrs. French and Mrs. Boyd. During the afternoon Mrs. Moffat entertained with piano solos, Miss Arbuckle was the reader while Miss Lorene Bell and Miss Ruth Bell with Mrs. Duff accompanist delighted the audience with solos. The proceeds of the afternoon were very gratifying.

CATARAQUI CIRCUIT CALLS MEETING

The Quarterly Official Board of the Cataraqui Circuit has extended a call to the Rev. Dr. J. R. Sermour of Belleville, to succeed Rev. Dr. J. R. R. Cooper, M.A., B.D., Ph.D. Mr. Seymour has accepted the call.

FINAL EXAMINATIONS

At Queen's University yesterday the final examinations took place of students, who were studying medicine. Among those who will receive the degree of M.D.C.M. are Austin Walters and J. Cummins of this city. Wm. Bowers of Sulphide, Albert Haig of Tweed and Scot Elliott of Hungerford Township.

FIREMEN HOLD LADDER DRILL

A ladder drill was held yesterday afternoon by the members of the fire department under direction of Fire Chief Lynch. The drill was held on the Elvins block and was one of a series of regular weekly drills of the department which includes hydrant exercises. The ladder drills are especially helpful in that expert knowledge and experience obtained may be useful in saving life should a conflagration break out in the business district endangering the lives of people living in flats.

ROBBING MILK BOTTLES

Milk money placed in milk bottles for collection by the milkmen in the early mornings is disappearing again on the west hill, and it is evident that the collectors are early risers.

TENTING TO-NIGHT

Touring motorists are beginning to take advantage of Belleville's tourist camp, Dundas street, and already several tents have been observed indicating that the annual event, the Covered Gas Wagon is under way earlier than usual this year.

WILL GO ABOARD R-100

Two Belleville fliers in the persons of Arthur Ind Walter Leavens have received tickets of inspection which will enable them to go aboard the R-100 when it arrives at Montreal. The tickets, which are given only to licensed Commercial pilots, and for this reason it would appear that these men will be the only Bellevillians to inspect the huge dirigible while it is in Canada.

TO FORM GLIDER CLUB

Mr. "Mike" Sinclair, who for the past two years has been Air Pilot Instructor for the Leavens Brothers, has opened a Ground School in Belleville and if sufficient interest can be enrolled, will start a Glider Club. Mr. Sinclair proposes to build a Glider, along approved patterns, in the hangar just above the Greene Motor Sales on Coleman Street. No doubt there will be many in Belleville who will want to take up this thrilling and novel sport.

ATHLETES TRAINING

About ten athletes were out at the Fair Grounds last night preparing for the track and field events which will be run off at the Belleville Fair this year. One whole day is being set aside for these events, and the management feels that it will be an experiment well worth trying. There are at least many youths in this city and district who are of Olympic material if handled in the right way, and under the capable direction of Mr. Ralph Worden, several are coming along in great shape. In addition, it is proposed to have Mr. Walter Knox, coach for the Ontario Amateur Athletic Commission, come to Belleville to give instructions before the Fair dates.

DELIGHTFUL AFFAIR

A large number from Belleville attended the Hastings and Prince Edward Regimental ball in Picton Armouries last night. The Military Ball is regarded as the most brilliant affair of the social season and last night's event was even better than any of its predecessors. The officers attended in uniform and the scarlet tunics formed a colorful contrast with the beautiful gowns. Harold Rich and his Versatile Canadians from the Palais Royal, Toronto, furnished delightful dance music.

SOFTBALL SEASON OPENS

The girls' softball season will officially open at the armouries lawn on Monday night when the Nationals of Kingston, combination club, composed of Supreme and Treasure players will meet the Belleville Nationals, formerly the Beavers. This game should attract a big crowd as it will open the softball season with a real bang. Both of these clubs play in the Eastern Ontario group. The Bay of Quinte League will open on Tuesday night. The local Nationals have a right smart line-up and Manager Allan Meagher expects to take the visitors into camp. Ex-Mayor Morley Daff, representing the Belleville Amateur Athletic Association, Harold Woodley, President of the girls' softball association and Col. Eric Ketler of the 15th Argyll Regiment, will officially open the season here. The guns will get under way at 6.15.

BARGE RAMMED BRIDGE

A serious accident was averted at the Bay Bridge yesterday when a large barge being towed up the Bay, snagged one of the old piers near the swing span and did some damage. The barge, proceeding up empty, was towed by one guy rope and while passing through the bridge the course was changed and the forepart scraped the pier. Fortunately no damage was done to the giant, nor the barge. Had the boat been proceeding at a faster rate of speed the results would have been more serious.

COLLISION AT CEMETERY

When cars driven by T. R. Moffat of Tweed and Earl Jackman, of Belleville collided near the Cemetery Crossing west of the city yesterday afternoon both cars were more or less damaged, but no one was injured. The Jackman car was travelling west, following the Moffat car, and it is stated that Mr. Jackman attempted to turn into the Belleville Cemetery as Mr. Moffat tried to pass. A collision was the result. The damages were amicably settled.

FILTRATION PLANT PROGRESS

Work is proceeding satisfactorily upon the filtration plant under the contract of the Patterson Construction Company. Forty men are employed and it is expected that this number will be increased to one hundred next week. Alderman Wolten, chairman of the Waterworks committee is pleased with the manner in which the work is going forward.

CHILLS AND MEASLES

One of the employees on the filtration plant work fell in the bay a week ago and was confined to bed with pneumonia chills, but as he was ready to resume work he was taken ill with measles, and now thinks that all the hard luck in the world was dumped upon his shoulders.

TENNIS TOURNAMENT

The tennis season at the Bay of Quinte Country Club courts will officially open on Monday, May 26th at 9 a.m. Tournaments will be played all day. The men will open the ball at the second inter-club match the ladies' tournament will commence at two o'clock in the afternoon. A number are expected to take part in the day's play.

GRADUATED AT O.A.C.

Mr. Allan Dempsey, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Dempsey of Amelisburg yesterday received his degree of B. Sc. of Agriculture at the Ontario Agricultural College. Mr. and Mrs. Dempsey were present at the convocation exercises. Mr. Dempsey is a graduate of Albert College and a graduate of the Belleville High School where he took a prominent part in the athletic life of the school.

PARK TO OPEN JUNE 1ST

Inquiries as to when Victoria Park would be thrown open were made this morning, revealing the information that the opening date would not be before June 1st. Mr. Ernest Bowerman, head of the Parks Board stated that the weather was much too cool for bathing and that the date of the opening rests entirely with the conditions of the weather. If the weatherman sees fit to send us warm sunshiny days during the next few weeks, the park will be opened but if on the other hand it remains cold the opening will be postponed until warmer days.

BROKE INTO COTTAGES

Norman Chase and Allan Mitchell were arrested yesterday afternoon by the Chief of Police at Frankford and today appeared in police court before Magistrate Mikel. Mitchell was charged with breaking and entering the cottages of G. W. Ketcheson, John Lill and J. W. Davison on the Trent River and Norman Chase was charged with receiving stolen goods. No evidence was taken both men being remanded for one week.

NATIONALS PLAY KINGSTON CLUB IN OPENING BALL GAME, MONDAY

Locals at Top Form For First C.O.B.L. Engagement at Fair Grounds

Belleville will have a real holiday feature on Monday in the form of the opening ball game of the season when the Kingston Central Leaguers will clash with Belleville Nationals at the Exhibition park. These two teams will compose the C.O.B.L. and will play a series of eight games, the winner to proceed into the Ontario playdowns.

The locals have put in a strenuous week of practice under the watchful eye of Walter Coyne, Manager and they are reported to be in tip-top shape. Some new material has put in an appearance and all have created a fine impression.

Alex Weir is likely to be the pitching selection for Monday with "Penny" Mills behind the bat. Harry Mills will be at first base, Vern Weir at second, George Scott at short-stop and Bob Scott at third. The outfield will be chosen from Darrogh, Harry Blakely, and a number of other younger players.

The should be a splendid game as the Kingston team always brings up a hand-picked outfit and will give the Nationals a real tussle. The officials are preparing for a big crowd and providing the weatherman is on his good behaviour, the stands should be filled to capacity.

There will be opening ceremonies with Mayor George A. Reid, R. A. Elliott, President of the Central League and the Ontario Baseball Association, George Stokes, Supt. of the local Division of the Canadian National Railways and Buddy Pratt, President of the National Club officiating.

This is a fine holiday attraction and the Nationals are anxious to get away on the right foot with a victory.

TO ATTEND SERVICE

Quinte Friendship Chapter, R.A.M. will attend Divine Service at Christ Church tomorrow morning. Companion Rev. C. E. Clarke, will conduct the service and preach the sermon. Minto Chapter members and other members of chapters throughout the district are cordially invited to attend. The Companions will meet at the Masonic Temple tomorrow morning at 10.30 o'clock and will march in a body to the church.

GALA NIGHT AT THE REBEKAHS

Seventeenth Anniversary Was Celebrated in Fitting Manner

On the 23rd day of May, 1913, Quinte Rebekah Lodge No. 138 was instituted in this city and last evening the 17th anniversary was commemorated in a fitting manner. The assemblage was held in the spacious lodge room at the I.O.O.F. temple and a number of visiting members present in addition to many members of the local lodge. Frankford, Stirling, Madoc, Thomasburg, Tweed and Trenton lodges were represented.

Among prominent members of the society were: Miss Crank, of Trenton, Assembly Conductor; Mrs. J. Taylor, of Brighton, District Deputy President, of District No. 46 and Mrs. Meggison of Frankford, Past District Deputy President.

In the early part of the evening a short but interesting programme was carried out. This part of the function was presided over by Bro. H. Rannon, Past N. G. of Belleville Lodge I.O.O.F., No. 81 and District Deputy Grand Secretary for this district. The programme and those participating were as follows: Vocal solos by Mr. H. Howard and Jack Andrews; piano solos by Miss Davis and Master R. Lennox, and dances executed in a fitting and interesting manner by Miss Kitty John also and Miss Kathleen Harris. Bro. Bro. A. L. Green gave a brief address referring to the society and the good it was doing and he also gave some excellent advice to the young people who were present in reference to reading good books and attending entertainments that were of an elevating nature. The chairman also gave a few appropriate remarks.

A musical contest proved to be interesting and was participated in by many present. Ray Lennox at the piano played a few bars of twenty well known songs and a prize was given to the person who could name the greatest number in the shortest time. Mrs. C. H. Clow, who is a member of Maple Leaf Lodge, No. 23, Brockville, was the winner, the having named all the songs.

A few games of progressive euchre were played and prizes awarded to the successful competitors as follows:

Ladies—Mrs. R. G. Taylor of Brighton, first; Mrs. Wm. Wood, second.

Gent.—O. F. Reid, first; H. Rannon, second.

Mrs. H. Rannon was the winner of the door prize.

At the conclusion of the card games dainty refreshments were served during which the birthday cake, adorned with seventeen lighte candles were cut by Mrs. E. Craig, of Brighton, who was referred to the position it used to be present and washed Quintena Lodge every success.

The pleasing evening was brought to a close by many indulging in dancing, music for same being supplied by Mr. Robson.

Mrs. Kate McCurdy of Toronto, was the first Noble Grand of the lodge but was prevented from being present owing to illness. Miss Gladys Bunnett is at present the Noble Grand of the lodge.

Efficient Training In Music Is Given—Other Talent

The auditorium of the Collegiate Institute was filled to capacity when the second Empire Day concert was given by pupils of the King George School and Queen Victoria School last night. That progress has been made in singing in the public schools under the direction of Professor V. F. Hunt is astounding and by the hearty encores that followed each number it could be seen that the parents and those interested appreciated the work that was being done. Arthur W. Jones, chairman of the Board of Education, presided, and Col. W. H. Purnton as chairman of the music committee, who has been behind the movement since its inception, spoke a few words on the value of singing among the pupils of the public schools.

It would be unfair to state that the schools performing last night were of a higher standard than previous but it can be said that they performed brilliantly. From the first chorus of "O Canada" and the "Maple Leaf" to the final number, pronunciation, intonation, rhythm and harmony were always present. The primary classes of the schools sang four little numbers in a pleasing manner and Doris Bessie Barlow, A.T.C.M., is in charge of pianoforte in the schools. All the boys and girl contestants for the present year gave two beautiful numbers, "Smiling Through" and "Passing By". The Ryhm Band of King George School gave two numbers and were much appreciated. Jack Green again favored with a cornet solo and the Radio Four entertained with two numbers in their always pleasing style. Other choruses were given by the different schools.

LAUNCHING BIG CAMPAIGN FOR PAVED STREETS

Standard Paving Will Lay New Roads at Trenton

Special by Staff Reporter

TRENTON, Ont., May 24—Now that the contract for the paving in Trenton has been awarded, the Standard Paving Company having gotten the contract, work will be started on this great improvement to the town's beauty almost immediately. It is not known which road will be started first, but it is likely that it will be the continuation of Front Street to the Wooler road, as the road from Trenton to Wooler will be the first outside the town, to be paved this summer.

It is expected that by the first of the week, the equipment will start coming in, and as soon as enough is here to make a start, activities will commence. Local labour will be employed and with all the other construction jobs in and around Trenton, most of the unemployment which has prevailed here for some time should be relieved.

When Dufferin and Front Streets are paved it will be a great addition to the town and its system of permanent roads. At present both streets are in bad shape and motorists avoid them as much as possible. Trade from Prince Edward County should increase when the Carrying Place road is paved and Dufferin Street is paved to meet it. This road at the present time is extremely rough and bumpy, but it is expected that it will be paved this summer.

WELL-PLEASED WITH PROGRESS AT SMITHFIELD

Fleet of Fifteen Heavy Trucks Operating at Overhead Bridge

Special by Staff Reporter

TRENTON, Ont., May 24— Mr. Grant, of the Grant Brothers Construction Company, building the new overhead bridge between Trenton and Brighton was here yesterday and looked over the job. He seemed well pleased with the progress which has been made under the capable supervision of Mr. E. G. Empey, the superintendent, and it is an almost sure thing that the work will be finished by the last of October. A large gang of men and much intricate machinery is in place at the scene of the work, and a fleet of fifteen heavy dump trucks are also on the job.

Couple Recover From Injuries

(Special by Staff Reporter)

Trenton, Ont., May 24—Mr. Gordon Weller, and also Miss Ethel Weller were able to leave the Port Hope Hospital within the past day or two, and are now at their home here, following a motor accident which occurred early in the week near Welcome, on the King's Highway.

At the time of the accident, it was thought that Miss Weller's injuries were more serious than later proved to be the case. The car, a large touring, was completely wrecked.

Rummage Sale Yields Nice Sum

Tag in Trenton June 14th For Victorian Order Nurses

(Special by Staff Reporter)

Trenton, Ont., May 24—The sum of $117.00 was realized from the annual Spring rummage sale held under the auspices of the local council of women last week according to the treasurer's report presented at their regular meeting.

The Tag Day this year will be held on the 14th of June, and the proceeds as usual will go to further the work of the Victorian Order of Nurses. All citizens are familiar with this work and are urged to give generously. Nurse Haslam gave her monthly report regarding the work of the Victorian Order of Nurses, and stated that she would appreciate donations of clean white linen.

COMBINED MEETING OF SCHOOL CLUBS

(Special by Staff Reporter.

Trenton, Ont., May 24—The College Street School and Dufferin School held a combined meeting at College Street School yesterday afternoon when their annual Empire Day Concert was given. A large number of the parents of the pupils attended, and an excellent programme was given by the students.

LAW FORCES CHILDREN TO CARE FOR FATHER

PETERBOROUGH, May 24.—The appeal of Mrs. Mabel Coulter and Robert Porter of Pontypool, against Magistrate W. H. Floyd's order directing them each to pay their father, Robert Porter, $3.50 a week under the provisions of the Parents' Maintenance Act has been dismissed by Judge O'Connor.

The father had applied for an allowance under the Old Age Pensions Act But the local pensions board ruled that the applicants should not be entitled to support under the Parents' Maintenance Act.

Porter's two children objected to assisting their father in his old age, because of his alleged desertion of the mother and family forty years ago.

VICTORIA DAY

Though Queen Victoria has been dead over twenty-nine years her name is preserved in this day. Victoria Day has not lost its charm for the people of Canada for it recalls the long-est reign of English history, the reign of a woman ruler and it is a holiday at a season when a holiday is much appreciated.

To the little boy who indulges in fire-crackers as his father did when Good Queen Victoria was on the throne, the day means much.

With it has been associated an observance known as Empire Day, May 23rd when the great story of empire-building is illustrated in the schools of the land. Empire Day in the schools and Victoria Day a holiday carry on a patriotic idea which must be of much good to the young

THE CHILD AND MUSIC

Teaching a child music when he is young is an idea which is working out well in Belleville as the programs on Thursday and Friday evenings in the Collegiate demonstrated when hundreds of Belleville's younger population were heard in programs of music of marked appeal. The course of music study in the schools has been marked by successive steps of progress every year and this year's events reached a climax of effect.

"Catch them young." If you wish to have an audience of intelligent listeners to music.

For the past seven or eight years balts have been thrown out in various parts of the country in special concerts for children.

In New York, Walter Damrosch began it with the Symphony Orchestra, and has now sought a wider-spread audience in the radio-broadcasting field.

With the amalgamation of the New York Symphony and the Philharmonic Societies, Damrosch's earlier work has been taken over by Ernest Schelling, and the success and future effectiveness of these concerts is guaranteed by the efficient interest of Mrs. Charles E. Mitchell chairman of the Young People's Concert Committee. What the future will have in these efforts in New York and elsewhere is prophesied by Olin Downes, in the New York Times.

"Future audiences will undoubtedly be much better informed and accustomed to orchestral compositions than the majority of the present musical public.

"They will start, in many cases, where their parents stopt; they will develop standards of taste and solidly founded opinion befitting equally the cultivated amateur or professional musician.

"The musical education of children is certain to reach far and in many cultured directions."

Belleville scholars have in music acquired something of which they can be proud in the days to come. They have entered into a new kingdom, one of many which childhood inhabits, and they will never lose a taste for the delights of song.

MICE, RATS, MEN, ELEPHANTS

Somebody in Toronto is exonerating mice and failing rats for a Dr. Hoxton humanity so loves mice (?) that there will be jubilation over the removal of the blame from the little rodents and the placing of it upon the bigger creatures. Of course mice probably have enough to their blame in the way of damage without taking on their shoulders responsibility for a fire started by rats.

If human beings were elephants they would be as much frightened as ever over the failure of the rat fire responsibility for the mouse is a terror to the big fellow who carries the trunk. Human beings will not be much affected by the news, except to say: "Why bother us about it.

PROPERTY AND TAX RETURNS

Income tax collections are larger this year than last year. Part of this increase is doubtless due to increased efficiency in the method of collection and to the fact that the public know what is demanded of them in regard to the filing of returns.

In addition it is a healthy sign—stock prices may swing this way and that, but the fact remains that there is ground for encouragement, that there is a solid basis of optimism in the wealth which Ontario possesses. It is on the basis of this solid wealth and not on the basis of speculation that prosperity is built.

All in all, the returns for the year are most assuring to those who have any fears of depression.

CEMETERY PROBLEMS

Cemeteries create problems in the larger centres which fortunately are not experienced in a place like Belleville where the problem is solved by the removal of burial grounds to long distances from the centre of population. Ancient cemeteries for instance, in old London have been turned into parks when those who were buried beneath have long been forgotten. But the disposition of the dead is the deadly problem of the authorities in large centres. Dr. Hessler, health officer of San Francisco recently stated that cemeteries in California would reach their limit in twenty-five years. The difficulty is to get new sites and to handle old cemeteries which have been caught in the expansion of larger cities.

He is of the opinion that a city like San Francisco might consider seriously the question of burial at sea. He thinks the common sense method would be cremation.

THOSE WHO RETURN

Ere the evening lamps are lighted,
And, like phantoms grim and tall,
Shadows from the fitful fire light
Dance upon the parlor wall.

Then the forms of the departed
Enter at the open door—
The beloved ones, the true-hearted,
Come to visit me once more.

With a slow and noiseless footstep
Comes that messenger divine,
Takes the vacant chair beside me,
Lays her gentle hands in mine.

Uttered not, yet comprehended,
Is the spirit's voiceless prayer,
Soft rebukes in blessings ended,
Breathing from her lips of air.

O, though oft depressed and lonely,
All my fears are laid aside
If I but remember only
Such as these have lived and died.

—Longfellow.

FOOT BRIDGE PEDESTRIANS complain that the bridge is still used as a bicycle speed-way to the danger and discomfort of walkers. Another complaint is based upon the antics of some daring young men who seek to emulate their courageous but decident brothers in arms who rocked the boat—they rock the foot bridge to show their strength and stability while every body else who happens to be on it feel like throwing them into the Moira. Pests of the footbridge who become a continuing bother are preparing for an early appearance in police court to tell it to the Magistrate and see if he will laugh.

KENNETH BURGESS, of Toronto, twenty-two years old, supporting a young wife and wee baby, wishing to augment the family exchequer sadly depleted by irregular employment during the winter, decided to make some extra money doing parachute jumps at Sunnyside. After instructions from an experienced jumper he left a plane two thousand feet from the ground. The parachute did not open, and he was killed. With the impetuousness of youth he was not willing to wait until the silver lining in the domestic cloud were visible but challenged fate on one throw and lost. Now his young wife and baby are worse off than before. All of which should go to show that courage should always be tinged with caution.

TORONTO PAPERS have a great time scolding each other, while old Aunty Globe, in righteous aloofness broods over her journalistic chicks and chides occasionally when the clamor becomes too strong. Good old Aunty made a slip the other day in giving out advance prognostications about the race horses, and the Stately Star immediately called her to task. Aunty admitted the error and offered a more or less acceptable alibi. Now the Terrible Tely is waxing hot over a new racing bill threatened at Ottawa which would make it a misdemeanor for a newspaper to print any advance information or misinformation about race horses or races and only the Meek and Mild Mail and Empire is pursuing the even tenor of her ways, heard or backward or interested in any hot tips on Ice Cream to beat Whipped Cream or What Have you.

MODERN ETIQUETTE

By Roberta Lee

Q.—Should one wear many jewels in a public place?

A.—No; it not only shows bad taste to make a public display of them, but it is also a temptation to thieves.

Q.—Should the bridesmaids and ushers ever walk up or down the aisle together at a wedding?

A.—No. They should never be together.

Q.—What subjects of compensation should be avoided at the table?

A.—Doleful subjects.

WEDDINGS

WICKENS—BATES

A marriage of much interest to the wide circle of friends of the bride and groom, was solemnized on Thursday afternoon, May 22nd, at the United Church Parsonage, Ameliasburg. Prince Edward Co., by Rev. J.D.P. Knox. The contracting parties were Mr. Murray Charles Wickens, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wickens, and Miss Hazel Pauline Bates, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Bates, all of Murray, Northumberland Co. They were attended by Mr. Harry Moran of Murray and Miss R. Olleen of the Bank of Montreal Staff, Frankford.

CHEYNE—McTAVISH

St. Andrew's Presbyterian church was the scene of a charming early spring wedding today at one o'clock when Margaret Loella, daughter of Rev. Dr. W. P. McTavish and the late Mrs. McTavish, was joined in the holy bonds of matrimony to Mr. James Paterson Cheyne, B. Sc., of Toronto, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Cheyne of Scotland. The impressive service was performed by the father of the bride, Rev. Dr. McTavish assisted by Rev. Dr. Seymour.

The bride entered the church on the arm of her father to the strains of Lohengrin's wedding march, beautifully rendered by Professor E. Wheatley. She presented a picture of loveliness in her frock of silk-spotted net over a foundation of Lucerne blue, with long bouffant skirt reaching to the ankles, and tight bodice. Her large picture hat with drooping brim, and tinted shoes, were in a corresponding shade, and she carried a flower bouquet of roses, lily of the valley and forget-me-nots. Miss Fern McGuire of Toronto accompanied the bride and wore a frock of peach taffeta. She carried a bouquet of butterfly roses. Mr. Ivan Hopkins of Toronto accompanied the groom. Mrs. Ivan Hopkins sang "Because" during the signing of the register.

After the ceremony the wedding party repaired to the Hotel Quinte for the wedding reception. The room was beautifully decorated with ferns and spring flowers.

Mr. and Mrs. Cheyne left late this afternoon by motor for Muskoka where they will spend a few days before motoring to Toronto where they will reside. The bride was smartly attired in a black and white three piece ensemble with tuck-in blouse of eggshell crepe. She wore a smart black hat of baku straw and carried a black and white purse, envelope style.

The out-of-town guests at the wedding and reception were as follows: Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Hopkins, Miss Jennie McTavish, Miss Fern McGuire, Mr. and Mrs. Rodgers and two daughters, Winnifred and Lillian, Miss G. Cheyne (sister of the groom), Mr. Robert Windsor, all of Toronto and Mr. and Mrs. Carl A. McCoy of Madoc.

IN MEMORIAM

NOYES—In loving memory of Elsie Jeffery, beloved wife of R. J. Noyes, who passed away May 25th, 1929.
Gone from us, our loved one,
From the home she loved so well,
God needed her in Heaven
When He called her to his fold.
It is lonesome without you, dear Elsie,
And ask the weary way,
But we know you feel the same
S nce you were called away.
How we long and long for her,
Whatever lands we view,
Memory keeps her in our hearts,
We will always think of you.
Sadly missed by sister Effie and brother Charles. m24-1td

DEMANDS PROBE OF BEAUHARNOIS

Charge Made By Alberta Progressives on Project

Ottawa, May 24—Monarchs of Canadian finance were charged with colossal misrepresentation amounting to fraud, were branded with such epithets as "greedy, unfeeling, cold-blooded parasites" and "money vultures," and a judicial inquiry was demanded into the biggest power and navigation project ever launched in Canada when Progressive and Conservatives united today in an attack on the Beauharnois power proposition and its sponsors, on the floor of the House of Commons.

Moving the adjournment of the House to discuss "a definite matter of urgent public importance," Robert Gardiner, Progressive leader, bandying sums fit to defy the average man's imagination, analyzed the Beauharnois financial structure and charged that R. O. Sweezey of Montreal and his associates received a total of $104,800,000 for promoting the scheme.

Mr. Gardiner demanded an explanation from the Government as to whether it had an agreement with Mr. Sweezey and his associates to turn over to them for emolument the whole of the unallocated flow of the St. Lawrence River. This insinuation met quick denial from the Government benches.

GRUESOME FIND ON LONELY ISLE

Police Probe Brutal Slaying —Arrests Expected Hourly

Montreal, May 24—(CP)—"Thrill murder" in which the victim was tortured before death, freed him, is believed by the police to be behind the finding of a body, hacked to pieces and tied in newspaper parcels on an island in the St. Lawrence river. A further parcel which gave more definite clue was found on the island today and police claimed an arrest was imminent.

While investigating the police found in Montreal an apartment containing a blood-soaked mattress and several parcels containing blood. The police believe the victim to be a 17 year old boy who has been missing since May 10.

GIRL FLIES SAFE

Surabaya, Java, May 24—(CP)—Amy Johnson, British aviatrix, landed safely at Hallimbitu last night after a hazardous flight over Java. An air search was about to be commenced when word of her arrival reached here. She left here late last year and established a her longest trip by water of her entire journey from England to Australia.

BUDGET EVOKES NOBLE'S PRAISE

London, May 24—The House of Lords last night adopted by 193 votes to 26, a motion in favor of Imperial economic un ty—a term which Viscount Elibank, who moved it, declared he preferred to translate as Empire free trade.

"This House," as the resolution ran "views with grave concern the serious and increasing depression manifesting itself in the manufacturing and agricultural industries of this country, and the expanding figures of unemployment. This House is of the opinion that the most practical and immediate remedies are to be found in a comprehensive policy of safeguarding and anti-dumping, and a Imperial economic unity."

The Marquis of Huntley moved an amendment which he subsequently withdrew, favoring a conference of all British parties to consider measures to be taken to meet the current depression by an agreement on non-political lines.

The debate attracted an unusually large attendance. Peers crowded the Opposition benches. A long line of from the galleries. The bright-hued turbans of two Indian Princes lent a touch of color from the front. Among the members of the House of Common who stood at the foot of the throne was the Right Hon. Winston Churchill, a deeply interested spectator.

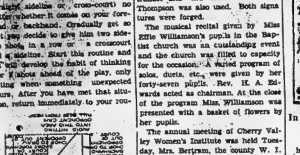
WEATHERMAN PLAYS JOKE



Winnipeg May 24—Manitoba almost sweltered and Alberta plainly shivered as the Weather Man played a practical joke on the West yesterday. Thermometers registered as high as the mark in Winnipeg, while a merciless sun beat down. Edmonton awoke yesterday to find three inches of snow on the ground and a spring blizzard raging.

Only in Northern Alberta did snow make an appearance, but Meteorological Office forecasts indicate its invasion into Saskatchewan and Manitoba by today. In no cases is the snow expected to go any crop damage.

Jack Miner and the Birds

and Some Things I Know About Nature

by

Jack Miner Himself

"COPYRIGHT AND FOR SALE IN BOOK FORM AT ALL BOOK STORES"

But there is no branch in my nature study that has caused me to sit up and take a more bobbing-over, sympathetic interest than to see these poor enclosed birds come to me for protection when they need it. I have seen as high as six lying in front of my dining-room window at once; in fact, I have picked up as high as seven in one spring that came here and died of their wounds. What touches my heartstrings more than ever is that the wounded ones always come to the park pond and usually sit on the side nearest our house. Possibly while we are eating dinner one will stand with his breast toward us and dress the ground made by a knockout in his breast; then to get him closer we put the field-glasses on him, which show the details; and here the feathers are all fallen out for fully a half inch around the deadly, dark little hole that is oozing him so much inward pain and leaving his life hanging in the balance. I tell you any human being having a heart and actually knowing the facts about these poor creatures needn't be surprised to find his eyeballs swelling.

And to see how they heal their broken legs is still more interesting. On April 16th, I found a female of eight came home with one leg hanging down which was undoubtedly broken by a large hawk shot. He had no more control over it than he would have of a stick tied to him. When he lit I noticed he lowered until he got the right spot, then he lowered away and came straight down into the water. There he stayed with head up and watched until his family went and fed. Then, while they watched on, he went right up and hovered until he located the ear of corn preferred; he then carefully lowered, and turning the ends of his wings sideways for crutches, he let his body carefully down, leaving his broken leg straight out beside his tail. Then reaching out with his long neck he pulled the ear of corn under his breast and pigeoned the kernels off until he had sufficient. He then put his wings out again, making crutches of them, and with a peculiar spring he was in the air and came down in the pond as before. On the third day he was standing on the bank with his broken leg straightened around in place, and from a distance he looked to be standing perfectly still, but a close investigation showed there was a constant twitching in the broken limb. We timed him, and this dear old father stood exactly in the one spot and in this same position for over six hours at a time. In less than three weeks it was evident that the bones had knit together, for when he would alight on the ground he would just throw himself a little to one side and let his weight down on the one leg; as he walked he would put his leg away through the motion, just touching the toes to the earth, taking the weight off with a short, quick stroke of the wings. The fourth week he ceased to use his wings for assistance, but would put his foot down and go limping across the lawn. During all this time of his untold suffering and agony, this admirable creature never ceased his duty, but kept a constant watch over his loved ones and if the least thing happened out of the ordinary around the premises, he would speak quickly to them about it. Exactly one month from the day he came here, wounded, he led his family very high and they all floated away on the air, headed for the North.

The above is only one out of dozens of cases that have come to my observation. Out of the thousands of Canada geese I have closely examined, I have never seen one with a leg or foot healed crosswise, and there are always odd ones, here with broken legs. We have seen one or two with one leg a little shorter than the other. In that case the other leg is always a little the longer.

I know of no bird or animal that can equal them for getting well after being wounded. It is said that a cat has nine lives; if that be true, the Canada goose has at least eighteen, nine on each side of the border.

In March, 1912, a pounded goose came to our park, crawled a mile in the water, then walked quietly towards the house and finally lay down, its feet on the inside of the park fence, fast exactly thirty feet from our dining room window. I went out to it. She should not let me pick her up, but would allow me within four feet of her. That night it mowed fully six inches, and she rested nearly all under but her head. I looked and thought she was dead, so I went up to her, upon the opposite side of the fence and she did not move. I opened the gate and approached, but before I got within ten feet of her she awakened and would have flown but that I withdrew. (Notice how she knew I was not inside the inclosure.) Well, that goose did not move ten feet for three days, eating a little snow now and then but not a grain of feed. I threw shelled corn beside her and she ate a few kernels. As the bank of snow had all melted on the fourth day, she walked to the water and drank, but came right back and lay down. But in about three weeks she was going over the top again. This goose had no limbs broken, but was shot through the body.

One of the most encouraging facts that have been demonstrated by my experiments with these wounded, ingrent creatures is how readily and gladly they will come to man for his protection, or how easily this promise of our heritage is confirmed: "Let man have dominion over all."

Previous to 1910 our Canadian Government ignored all the requests my friends and I made to help me feed these birds, which belong to the people of America; and as I am not a man with means, I just feed them enough to tickle their palates and give them a desire to come back. The result is they scour the country for miles around, getting the ears of corn that are mostly knocked off by the corn-binders. This of course gives the shooter an opportunity, and one day in April a neighbor who was ploughing nearby saw a single goose. He noticed it was going very slowly and making a sort of wavering, so he stopped and watched it. Instead of rising over the trees and dropping in the pond on which center the boughs and came to the ground near the house. Little Jasper, who was then seven years old, was playing outside. Running in the house he said to his mother, "Mamma, goose out here; goose out here, mamma. His mother saw by his looks and actions there was something out of the ordinary, so she went out with the little tot and he pointed under a spruce tree, the boughs of which touched the house. And there the goose, with her wings spread, lay dying. They called me from the factory, but when I arrived it was stone dead. On examination I found a buckshot hole under the wing, and it was evident that her "powerhouse" was punctured. The clotted blood on one foot proved to my satisfaction that she had been shot fully five minutes previous to dropping. Then I traced the blood back from where I picked her up and found that she lit within ten feet of our back door, for there, on the brick walk, was a big splash of her blood. In a few hours I found that this goose was shot over five miles away.

Do you wonder at me loving them? Can you blame me for feeding them beyond my means, when this is only a faint, roughly-written picture of their trust and confidence in me?

The real home of love is the heart, but the brain is apparently given power to educate the heart to either love or hate. But any man who does not love those who first love him, I don't think has either heart or brains, and to say he even has a gizzard would be a disgrace to these birds.

CHAPTER XXVI.

Do Birds Have a Language?

This is a question I have to answer, and I am fully prepared to say "Yes; yes, I know they do." As proof of this statement, one could shut me up and blindfold me, and if I can hear the wild geese I will tell you a certain portion of their actions, while if I were to hear a Chinaman talking I wouldn't know whether it was cleaned windows, dirty laundry, or ham and eggs he wanted me to have.

The evening last spring, after the wild geese had gone to the lake, I strolled back to the north pond to visit a pair of my own geese, but could not find them, nor would they answer my call. I came to the conclusion they had gotten out, and as I have had this pair thirteen years it became anxious. Daylight the next morning found in over half a mile north of the pond, watching and listening, to find trace of them.

SENATE REJECTS NEWSPAPER BILL

Ottawa, May 24.—Senator Beique reported in the Senate yesterday that the private bills committee had thrown out T. L. Church's bill on the ownership of newspapers. This bill would have required the registration and publication of the list of stockholders of each paper before it could receive postal facilities. He said the committee considered newspapers in the several reports they now made were giving all the necessary informations to the public and that it would be unduly imposing on them to add to these reports.

The bill to provide for an eight-hour day and fair wage on Government work passed the Senate. The Pensions Act was referred to a special committee of 26 members.

Cupid Gets a Scoop

By Blanche Naylor

The fourth floor of the Daily Mirror was like a section of the Tower of Babel. Although all of the type-writers had originally spoken the same language, each had the manner in which they had been mandolined had made the accents vary.

Jagie Gwynn tripped a rapid staccato on her machine and finished with a grand finale. Her pencil flew over the page she had just written and her lips puckered in an soundless whistle, as she surveyed it ruefully. The city editor was such a crab and wholly proof against all feminine wiles.

John Brant frowned as he watched her from the corner of his eye. Jamie Gwynn was as out of place, if one judged by appearance, as a Dresden doll in a foundry. Petite, fluffy, and blue-eyed, was the type men fought to fetch and carry for, instead of being a part of the give and take of a newspaper office.

When a month before Brant had entered the office late he had groaned in spirit as he eyed his new neighbor at the next desk.

"She'll want her pencil sharpened, filed and pointed every hour," he said. I know 'em—these baby-doll reporters," he muttered to the society editor, Dorothy Lane, who laughed when he dubbed a "good sport" and was always ready to do a friendly turn.

But Jamie Gwynn had not waited to be friendly and John had been unresponsive. From the messenger boy to the managing editor she was a fine masculine force were her slaves, or would have been had she paid them any attention. Only Jack Blake's and John Brant's square shoulders seemed so sturdy and dependable, and she used to run her fingers through his unruly brown hair as he bent over his machine pounding out rapid fire copy against the deadline.

The City Editor passed out the assignment slips for the morning edition. Brant's read, "Cop Fight on the Angeli otti murder. Dig up some motive."

Janie Gwynn chewed the end of her pencil reflectively as Brant studied her slip. Then she pouted her red lips and jammed her little blue hat down over her golden curls and rose to the elevator. She and Brant were the only passengers.

"What did you get?" she asked with breezy comradarie as they shot to the ground floor.

"Angeliotti murder," he grunted uncommunicatively.

"Oh!" she gasped, and then disgustedly, "and I had the Federated Club-women's Convention."

"Well, that's your line. Stick to it," John advised shortly.

"Well, really!" and Janie looked at him like an angry kitten trying to put a bull terrier in his place. "You don't say so? I guess I can do as well—better on a murder case than you can," and she flounced through the swinging doors without another glance his way.

Brant strode down the street. Women were nuisances on newspapers any way, his supercilious frown seemed to say, but he eyed Janie's trim figure hat as it bobbed up and down through the crowd.

The Italian Quarter, colorful and malodorous, was less noisy than usual. There was a sinister undercurrent. Men in dark groups talked in low tones, hurriedly watched. His inquiries elicited little information. The Angeliotti apartment house was so full of people of them was known to their neighbors.

At the door of the Angeliotti home Brant was halted. Mario Angeliotti, broad-bosomed and black-browed, bar red his way.

"No, you can't in jail. No, there was nothing to say. No, she did not read the newspapers.

Suddenly Brant's hand was thrust aside and under his arm there ducked a small determined young woman.

"Mrs. Angeliotti, I would not bother with this newspaper person. Here, I've brought Luigi and Benito home from the Lafayette where my friend, Miss Warner, teaches, and they tell me that you will give me some of your marvellous spaghetti. I haven't had any real Italian spaghetti for years." She turned to John with a gesture of dismissal. "How can you worry a poor woman at such a time?" and leading the two children inside, she closed the door in his face.

Brant's jaw dropped. Then his lips tightened. Fat chance for a story with a she-reporter jamming the works in this manner, he fumed. Then with a light in his eye like Napoleon advancing upon Waterloo he sauntered over to the cobbler shop across the street.

Pietro Vanelli, the cobbler, was little more communicative. Oh yes, Tony Angeliotti was in jail for killing Andrea Sardoni, it was said, but no one apparently knew the reason. Brant plied insinuating questions but got only grunts. His shoe was finished and he was paying the money into old Vanelli's wrinkled palm when he saw a blue hat flash out of the Angeliotti door and down the street. He gave chase.

"What do you mean by butting in on my assignment?" he stormed as he came abreast a small person who was frantically waving a taxi down.

"Your assignment?" she stormed back. "A pretty mess you were making out of it. If you knew these people like I have learned to know them at the settlement—here, get in," as the taxi drew alongside.

"How listen—Tony Angeliotti and Andrea Sardoni lived in Naples when they were small boys. Andrea was a priest, greedy. Once he killed a sheep belonging to Tony's little crippled sister. Andrea Sardoni was a miser and he owned all of these houses around here. Angeliotti's fruit stand was blown down in a storm and he could not pay his rent, and Sardoni was going to make him move as he has many others. There was a quarrel. Angeliotti struck Sardoni and he fell, his head hitting the pavement. The people are all glad but they are afraid to talk. Now there is your story."

Brant stiffened. "Why, it is your story. You got it."

"Oh well," Janie powdered her nose deftly and fluffed her hair in front of her cars. "I got it for you. We want our paper to get the news."

"You little brick," John said apologetically, and as Janie raised her eyes to his and he read the question in their depths, his heart began to pound He stammered incoherently.

"Wait until tonight," Janie whispered. Then briskly, "Stop the cab here. I've only got ten minutes before that Federated Club meetings adjourns."

THE END

PRAISE

Do you see,
The trees are praising,
Boughing in a whispered prayer?
Do you think,
That they are thanking,

The Anaemic Girl

Who Has Lost Her Charm and Beauty.

"She seems to be losing her looks." This remark is often heard about girls who were once noted for their sparkling eyes, their rosy cheeks and their vitality. The cause is not far to seek—they have become anaemic; that accounts for the pallor and the loss of charm. The anaemic girl, if she neglects her health, may be a sufferer all her life.

Take heed, you pale, anaemic girls. Plenty of fresh air, nourishing food and rest will help you, but what you need most is good blood. Those wretched headaches; that fickle appetite and those terrible heart palpitations can only be banished if the blood is rich, red and pure.

Good blood—the kind that brings good health is created by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. The whole mission of these Pills is to build rich, red, health-giving blood. The Pills are sold by all dealers in medicine or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Gringo Privateer

By

Peter B. Kyne

In the afternoon, on his horse Rowdy Ken Barney roped and tied a calf in section and a quarter seconds and won first prize. Then he gave an exhibition of fancy roping and trick riding that won the plaudits of guests and competitors alike. And when the rodeo was over he found a vacant bed in the bunkhouse and retired, supported by collect—but not collected—internal economy, and he prepared, at least in stimulate farming, to wages next day.

After Sundown Ken Barney the King sent for Art Grayson to report at his castle. "Well, Art," he began without any verbal fanning, "what do you think of that mo nowing, Smokey?"

"He'll make a top-hand, sir."

"What have the men got to say about him?"

"He's won their respect by proving he knows his business, and they like him because he's unspoiled despite he's be a bit on the high an' mighty an' he ain't."

"That's good. Art, how old are you?"

"Fifty-six."

"You've been with the Bardin Land & Cattle since you were sixteen and you've been the last twenty years on El Ranchito. It hasn't been an easy job."

"Well, it does seem to carry a lot more worries, lately, boss."

"That's because you're not so young as you once were, and managing El Ranchito is developing into a young man's job. Art, you've got a wife and four children and it isn't up to me to suggest that you are to take the chance you used to grapple with as a single man. Kind of lonely here on El Ranchito, isn't it? The king went on musingly. "Your children are getting to high school age and there isn't a high school in this county.

"Art, I'm going to divorce you from hard work—and worry. You're assistant—no, superintendent of the Bardin Land & Cattle Company, which means that I'm going to shove half my job on to you. You'll reside in San Francisco and that job will be to drift around among the Bardin ranches, keep in touch with what they're doing, ride some cattle buying, attend to the land leases, make land approisals—oh, there are any number of important jobs for you to do. Still, I want you to take it easy. Executives should let the other fellow do the hard work. Pack a pet soon as you can and drag yourself and family out of here—at the Bardin expense."

Grayson favored him with a grateful glance and a deprecatory smile. "I'm willing, boss. I'd 'a' been willin' any time since I turned the fifty post. Whatre you going to put in my place, if that's any o' my business?"

"Your salary is raised five thousand a year, Art—forgot to mention that—and Smokey takes your place. I don't like that name Smokey. It fits his complexion but he isn' the sort of man to labor along under a familiar nickname. Hereafter his name is Mr. Kenneth Burney."

Art Grayson was amazed. "How long have you known this boy, boss? Somehow, I got the idea you never met him before last night."

"Which you're right, as usual, Art. I've been playing a hunch that he'll do."

"Well, he's got sand an' he can ride an' rope with the best. If he knows cattle—"

"I don't give a hoot if he doesn't carry a cow from a sheep. We've got all Martin Bruce to the north of us and Miguel Calleago to the south of us and at least Burney knows that. He's got to get rid of these two hombres, in order to hold his job. He can't manage El Ranchito for me and operate to the red ink, and he realizes he can never operate very deeply in blue ink while those two skunks continue to mess up. By making him general manager I automatically hand him a problem he's got to solve or quit. The old's worth fighting for, isn't it?"

Grayson nodded. "But, boss," he protested, "if he's a professional killer, why don't you put him on his hands and knees, just to hold down one of my jobs? I don't blame him for being peevish I'd have felt outraged, myself, if I'd had to wait as long for the gun as I forced him this morning. Time certainly does drag when a feller's giving an exhibition ride on old Geronimo!"

Art Grayson knew better than to argue with the King. "Well, then, I reckon you won't be promoting me for a while yet," he suggested.

"Oh, yes. My program stands. Ken Burney will be the general manager tomorrow morning just the same. I've just fired him from his riding job."

"Oh, Bradley Bardin, you darling!" a voice cried ecstatically, and the king suddenly found himself being embraced and kissed by his sole heir.

"You been spying on your old man," he charged.

"Keep quiet—you. And you're going to take him out of that awful bunkhouse, darling?"

"Of course, of course. Art, tomorrow morning you move the sulky pup into decent quarters!"

Grayson promised and shortly thereafter took his departure. At eight o'clock next morning he telephoned the king. "Smokey's gone," he announced.

"Gone? Gone where?"

"Search me. Tom Bledsoe says his bed was empty when the outfit rolled out this morning; his stock ain't on the corral, so it won't do any harm as if your new general manager just naturally saddled up an' drifted on account of him takin' you serious about bein' fired. You know he wasn't informed that he'd been fired from one job to take over a better one."

"The ungrateful young pup." His Majesty shouted. "I'll teach him his place. Art, you put a couple of good men on his trail, follow him as far as he goes and tell them to bring him back if they have to hog-tie him. I want him back, understand. No substitute will do. He's the only man in my employ who never took me seriously."

"I'll go myself," Art Grayson promised, for it had been his business for forty years to see to it that the King got what he wanted when he wanted it. On occasion, too, he had been wont to kowtow to the princess!

Shortly after noon he reported to the king as the latter sat at luncheon with his daughter: "I found Burney, sir—"

"Good. Bring him back with you?"

"No sir. He promised he'd come back when he got good an' ready."

"What'd he run away for?"

"He said the princess objected to his hair and he was on his way to town to get it cut."

"Har! Har-har!" laughed the king. He had a habit of bleating like a sheep when aroused to sudden mirth. "So she did, Art. So she did. He must have overheard her. Har-har!"

The nearest town to El Ranchito was Huachita, a straggling adobe municipality that squatted athwart the boundary between New Mexico and Mexico. At the barbor shop in the International Hotel, Ken Burney secured his much-needed hair-cut and shave and while he lay in the chair, being shaved by Martin Bruce, the genial owner of the Triangle Branch, entered and slipped into the adjoining chair. Martin Bruce's face covered with lather had fallen into a doze and not until Bruce's rought voice, ordering a close shave, reached him, was he aware of the proximity of his enemy.

"Didn't recognize me with riding breeches on and soap up to my eyes, did you?" Martin Bruce relieved. When the barber turned his head sideways, Burney saw that Martin Bruce had closed his eyes and the barber commenced lathering his face; hence the former decided that the danger of being rean and recognized by Bruce was slight. Burney would be shaved first and out of his chair while Bruce's barber still scraped away at the latter gentleman's three-weeks-old growth of beard.

"Once over," he whispered to his barb.r. "I'm in a hurry and I don't want a close shave".

When the barber tipped him but of the chair he went at once to the end of the shop to examine his watch in order to avoid the hazard of Martin Bruce opening his eyes and seeing, in the mirror in front of him, the reflection of his youthful enemy standing just behind him. When he was ready for the street Burney sat down and lit a cigarette.

"I thought you was in a hurry," the barber commented.

"Not now," Mr. Burney replied softly. "A little later —perhaps."

He reached in under the left front of his light whipcord coat and drew his pistol in the holster that hung there from his shoulder then waited until the other barber, having shaved Martin Bruces' ruddy face and powdered it, tilted him upright in his chair and asked him what, if anything, he would have on his head. And at that moment Ken Burney spoke:

"Good morning, Mr. Bruce."

Martin Bruce jerked his head in the direction of the voice; then, with an alertness one would never have suspected in a man as old and bulky as he, leaped out of the chair and reached under the clinging barber's apron for his artillery. But the hand did not come out, for the very excellent reason that he saw Burney had him covered—and the enveloping barber's apron had Bruce at a distinct disadvantage.

"If you move your right hand the fraction of an inch, I'll kill you," Ken Burney warned, and walked swiftly toward him. He circled around in back of his victim and with a quick twist removed the apron. In Martin Bruce's right hand reposed a single-action .45, with a four and three-quarter-inch barrel—and the gun was already cocked. With the finesse of the old-time gunman Bruce had cocked it even as he drew it from the holster. With his own pistol, barrel pressing against the back of the old man's head, Burney reached down and removed the pistol from the latter's hand ,thrust it into his rear trousers pocket and then run his left hand over Bruce's person, feeling for another gun. He found it—a smaller weapon than Bruce's own but one of the latter's trousers—and appropriated that, also.

"Will you be good enough, Mr. Bruce," he requested politely, "to sit back in the chair and permit the barber to comb your hair?"

"You'll notice it ain't standin' on end," the grim old wolf replied easily.

"Oh, there will be no killing today, Mr. Bruce, of course. I could have killed you, with three barbers to bear witness shat I shot in self-defense, I trusted to the apron to handicap you and permitted you to have a single weapon before: I pulled mine. To me, however, your elimination, no matter how desirable, would have been grossly inartistic under such circumstances, I prefer more finesse when I turn killer: I prefer to have you sit quietly in the chair. "Gimme a shampoo," he ordered the barber. "Nothin' like lookin' pretty when a feller's in danger o' dyin' with his boots on." He smiled approvingly at his youthful enemy, 'You took a long chance, son."

CHAPTER XI

"I agree with you, sir, that, had I not sited with a commendable sagacity, thereby eliminating those chances long chance I would even now be sitting on the top of a pink cloud twanging a harp."

"I warned you, didn't I?"

"You did——and you meant it and I knew you meant it. We're merely deferring the obsequies, Mr. Bruce."

"What is the big idear, Burney?"

"You owe me two'months' wages and you have to endure it from me while you are living. It would involve a year's time and considerable red tape to collect it from your executor."

Martin Bruce's keen mind broadened into an appreciative grin. "Well, there is sense in that Burney. I never intended to pay you out of it. You could have had a check the day you quit if you hadn't been in such a hellfired hurry to vamose."

"A mere tribute to my respect for you sir. Shall we go over to the bank as soon as you have finished here?"

"Certainly." And five minutes later Martin Bruce, preceded tactfully by Ken Burney, approached the cashier's cage in the bank, where Bruce drawed a check, endorsed by Burney, under the grille. "This is the endorser" the old rascal announced, jerking a thumb at Ken Burney, "I identify him and O.K. the endorsement. Give him the money."

"Burney scooped the bills off the counter and he and Bruce left the bank in the same order they hall entered it. Mind walking down to the livery stable with me?" the young man suggested. "I'm going to saddle up and leave town. After I'm gone you can go back to the barber shop and recover your pistols."

Martin Bruce, for reasons apparent to the reader, uttered no objection. He stood around on the livery stable floor while a hostler led Rowdy out and saddled. Thereupon Ken Burney paid his bill, climbed aboard and raised his hat in courteous farewell to Martin Bruce.

"Just as well you're leavin' the country," the latter called after him. "Take my advice, young feller an' keep goin'."

Burney pulled up and rode back. "I'm not leaving the country, Mr. Bruce. It requires more moral persuasion that any dirty - cow thief can bring to bear to make me lower my tail, I'm on the payroll of the Bardin Land & Cattle Company, and provided my conduct is exemplary I expect to remain there."

"You called me a cow thief," the old man rasped. "I'll make you prove that, Burney."

I intend to prove it, and when I do, this country will be too hot to hold you you old wolf. You've got to be taught that the rough-and-tumble methods of your youth have become decadent. You should reform. Cattle rustling on the scale you practice it went out of fashion quite a number of years ago."

Martin Bruce scratched his head. "Lemme see, now," he said with great seriousness. "The Bardin outfit ship from the station in Cochise County, Arizona. I don't know whether you're aware of it or not, young man, but I'm the sheriff of Cochise County, and in my jurisdiction it's against the law to pack a gun, open or concealed, with out a permit from the sheriff."

Burney smiled sweetly. "When you frisk me for one I shall not resist—and there'll be quite a number of Bardin riders on hand to take care of you in the event you decide to kill me for resisting the inspection. The trouble with you, Mr. Bruce, is that you take in too much territory. In Arizona you are sheriff with authority to enforce the law; in Mexico you're a chief with courage enough to defy the law. But remember: You're amenable to New Mexico law, so watch your step."

"I can roll my own hoop," the old er man replied, and stalked away up town with what dignity he could muster. Ken Burney watched him until he turned a corner, then rode back in to the livery stable, put up his horse and in the harness-room engaged in a game of cribbage with the proprietor for three hours, being careful, how ever to sit facing the door.

When the Head Aches

In the liver of very many people biliousness is the cause of much discomfort, irritability and actual suffering.

And biliousness is the result of a deranged liver.

Headache is the most familiar symptom. Nausea at the stomach, drowsiness, unwillingness to work, loss of appetite, irritability, mental dulness, coated tongue, unclean complexion—such are the signs of torpid liver and sluggish bowel action.

The quickest way to arouse the torpid liver is by the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

For over half a century this medicine has proven its exceptional effectiveness as a regulator of the liver, kidneys and bowels. It stands to-day time-tested and without a rival as a relief for biliousness, indigestion and other symptoms resulting from derangements of the liver.

Fashionably Speaking

By Lucille

DEAR READERS:

From Sherill Whiton, director of the New York School of Interior Decoration, comes this advice:

The average woman who attempts to decorate her own home without the aid of professional advice too often depends upon a self-cultivated "taste" that is intuitive rather than reasoned. This ability may have been partly developed by observation and partly by occasional reading. While both of these methods of increasing one's knowledge are excellent, they often fail to develop the power to analyze truly the basic principles of harmonizing and composing the many elements that produce a thoroughly satisfactory decorative effect in any room. The treatment of a room furnished by a person with this limited training too frequently has the earmarks of amateurism.

The professional decorator appreciates fully the fact that each room is a problem in itself and must be considered primarily from the point of view of the individual needs and the creation of a harmonious relationship of forms, lines, materials, textures and colors, and these elements must be considered as a unit. This is not to say that all movable features. The fixed architectural features of the room are the walls, ceiling, mantel, window and door openings and other structural elements. The movals objects are the furniture and ornaments.

In the matter of form as related to design, it is essential that there be a consistent feeling of similarity in the general proportions of the various pieces of furniture and of the furniture and the background. The room and all things in it must belong together and look as though they were part of one and the same thing. Heavy furniture should only be placed in large rooms. It calls for course textures in wall treatment as well as large patterns in upholstery or drapery materials and strong colors used in small surfaces. This consistency can be seen particularly well carried out in the rooms of the Tudor period of England and those of the early type of the Renaissance in Italy and Spain so often reproduced to-day in southern climates.

The more delicate forms of wall treatment require a corresponding reduction in the size, proportion and detail of furniture and the use of more finely finished woodwork, small eer moldings and smaller patterns in wall-papers or textiles, more finely treated porcelains and accessories, and colors correspondingly approaching the pastel shades.

In any room it is advisable to contrast straight lines with curved lines. A room consisting entirely of straight forms invariably appears stilted and stiff, while too great a predominance of curved forms creates a spirit of restlessness that is not comfortable to live with. If curved lines are unobtainable in the architectural forms of a room, they may be introduced in the draperies, in the back of chairs and davenports or in mirror and picture frames.

An agreeable contrast also should be provided by introducing both horizontal and vertical forms. Long, low pieces of furniture should alternate with high pieces or with groupings of furniture and wall decoration that produce a vertical effect. Rooms have greater unity when a central point of interest is provided. This central point may dominate by its height, width or projection or by its ornamental or color interest.

In endeavoring to attain unity, monotony must be avoided by introducing an element of variety. Where patterned wall surfaces are designated, the eye requires an occasional relief which may be attained by using plain textiles for draperies. The reverse is also true. Where plain colors are used on a wall, the most agreeable effect can be obtained by introducing a figured textile for the window treatments.

Contrast also should be carefully considered between the floor covering and the materials used to upholster the larger pieces of furniture.

Similarity in respect to coarseness or finess of texture should be maintained in all of the decorative elements of a room. Every material may be obtained in a variety of textures, and regardless of the material this relative degree of finish should be consistent.

The largest surfaces in a room, such as ceilings, walls and floors, are and should be comparatively the most neutral in color value. For the second ary surfaces, such as draperies and chair upholstery, two or three colors may be selected that are slightly more brilliant than the walls, and usually not over two or at most three different colors for these. For the color accents in the small objects, such as lamp shades, table runners, pillows, vases and other accessories use more brilliant tones.

Fashionably yours,

LUCILLE

THE DEBUTANTE

Behind the door of Winter
The Spring, on tiptoe stands,
With daffodils and crocuses
And tulips in her hand.

She trembles on the threshold
Then bravely lifts her chin
As if to say, "I'm not afraid."
And, laughing, rushes in.

"....of Cabbages and Kings"

BY POETRY—

If poetry was beat and light
Then, moon and stars;
Tremendous, stupendous
Like thunder at night—
Like sunrise and sunset
And winds at their height,—
Was beautiful, sorrowful
And ever colorful
Like Keats' staples
By still ponds at twilight
Then, O, the vase of it!
The pool of it,
The joy of it.
To read it in the evening
With all the radiance
—Birdsall Otis Edey, in "Rivets."

his "Helen of Troy," and other works based on myths, and his amusing and clever treatment in the modern vein. But this style is not to be confused with his latest book "Uncle Sam."

This is a story in which its chief character "Uncle Sam" is portrayed sensitively and with keen insight. But it is, however, an allegory, and in reading it, it is perhaps well to read the allegor after you read it, rather than follow it along. Better than that, read it twice. You are sure to enjoy it.

"Sam," is shown as the youngest of a family. It is he who always seeks to follow his original viewpoint, who chooses to break away from the family ties and look for fame and fortune in fields far away. The other members of the family are Antoinette, John, Orlando, Frederick and the more familiar name is Fritz. While at first they scoff at him, with the exception of Antoinette who has confidence in him, and John, who is willing to help him, they and their children are glad to come to him for help when he has become a success. It is not hard to understand the allegory, is it?

—Penelope.

Complete Sentences Important

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I received your most welcome letter and thank you for the compliments and kind words. I am glad you are much for the knowledge that I have one friend who thinks and knows I am right.

1. Is a black derby proper for street wear at any time?

2. Is a black lace dress permissable for street wear?

3. Will you kindly let me know if the long sheet of letter paper is fashionable or the double sheet?

4. What shade is best, and should it be monogrammed?

E. K.

Good—I am so happy that my letter was helpful to you.

2. Yes.

3. To my taste, the double-sheet letter paper is far better looking and far more interesting for social correspondence, than is the single sheet. There is something business-like about a sheet that I do not like for social letters.

4. The new ivory shades, just off-white, are beautiful. I think, a double-sheeted paper, of ivory tone, of generous proportions, written with good looking handwriting, in black ink, the paper of as fine a quality as we can afford—this is, to my taste, about as perfect a background as we can get for our letters. White or cream paper is good, too, or light blue, if you like blue.

For your handwriting I recommend that you have a slightly larger paper. Your letter-form is good, and your handwriting is very good. One or two suggestions: Do not abbreviate any words on the envelope or in the head note; and do not write sentences without subjects—that is to say, "I received your letter," not "received your letter." Also, write out the word "and," rather than make the sign of and (&).

NEW HAMLET IS NOW DISCOVERED

John Gielgud is "Most Remarkable Hamlet" According to Times

London, May 24—A new Hamlet has been hailed by the English critics, John Gielgud. He played the part for the first time recently in a production at the Old Vic, under direction of Harcourt Williams, and earned great applause.

The Times' critic says: "Mr. Gielgud is certainly a most reasonable Hamlet. He does not under-act, and he can storm as well as anyone, but he was chiefly concerned to give us Hamlet without that murky and tempestuous figure that most actors portray, the Prince of Denmark. He was very much of a human being. This, of course, may be dangerous, since an actor who interprets much may well forget to speak poetry."

The Daily News, referring to the brief speech made by Gielgud in response to the applause at the conclusion of the play said: "He modestly hoped that later on he would improve his Hamlet, but there was no need for that modesty. This young actor has been gradually working his way to the top of his profession, and his Hamlet has finally elected him as one of the leading actors."

A GARDEN PARTY

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I would like to invite some men and their wives to visit me. I have a beautiful lawn and I would like them to come on May thirteenth, so that I may present each with a bouquet. Will you please give me an idea as to what kind of invitation I should write?

READER.

A charming note of invitation can be made the most fragrant of messengers to invite to such a party, and I suggest therefore, that you send your invitation in this form. Perhaps this will suggest a form to you:

Dear Mary:

My garden is so lovely these days that I do want very much to share its loveliness with you and Tom. Won't you both come to have tea with me in my garden on Sunday, the thirteenth of May, at about four o'clock? I have invited some other friends and I am sure that we can have a nice garden-y time together. Do say "yes!"

Best wishes and friendliest greetings to you both.

Cordially yours.

If you are visiting just a few friends and if it would be possible for you, I think that if would be a beautiful gesture for you to leave a box of flowers with your invitation. It was this box of "posies" that the lovely ladies of by-gone generations have their "gentlemen deliver with such a delightful invitation.

When Babies FRET

There are times when a baby is too fretful or feverish to be sung to sleep. There are some pains a mother cannot put away. But there's no time when any baby can't have the quick comfort of Castoria! A few drops, and your little one is soon at ease—back to sleep almost before you can slip away.

Remember this harmless, pure vegetable preparation when children are ailing. Don't stop its use when Baby has been brought safely through the age of colic, diarrhea, and other infantile ills. Give good old Castoria until your children are in their teens! Whenever coated tongues tell of constipation; whenever there's any sign of sluggishness that needs no stronger medicines to relieve, Castoria is pleasant-tasting; children love to take it. Buy the genuine—with Chas. H. Fletcher's signature on wrapper.

The Reason Why

This, Weak Children Need Baby's Own Tablets

Malnutrition, or inability to derive nourishment from food, is a common trouble with little children and is entirely due to stomach and bowel weakness. Another cause of loss of flesh and sleep is worms.

To correct stomach and bowel troubles and thus banish constipation and indigestion, break up colds and simple fevers; expel worms and allay the pain which accompanies the cutting of teeth is what Baby's Own Tablets were designed for. They never fail to be of aid and can be given with safety to the youngest babe.

Baby's Own Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

JUST BE GLAD

O heart of mine, we shouldn't Worry so!
What we've missed of calm we couldn't
Have you know!
What we've sick of stormy pain,
And of sorrow's driving rain,
We can better meet again
If it blow;

For we know, not every morrow
Can be sad;
So forgetting all the sorrow
We have had,
And put by foolish tears,
And through all the coming years,
Just be glad!

—James Whitcomb Riley.

Indigestion Immediate Relief!

What most people call Indigestion is usually excess acid in the stomach. The food has soured. The instant remedy is an alkali which neutralizes acids. But don't use crude baking soda. Use what your doctor would advise.

The best form is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. For the 50 years since its invention it has remained standard with physicians. You will find nothing else so quick in its effect, so harmless, so efficient.

One tasteless spoonful in water neutralizes many times its volume in acid. The result is immediate, with no bad after effects. Once you learn this fact, you will never deal with excess acid in the crude ways. Go learn more of this true method in a minute.

Be sure to get the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for 50 years in correcting excess acids. Each bottle contains full directions—any drug store.

Correct Manners

—Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman—

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. I have recently broken my engagement. What is the proper thing to do with my engagement gifts? Should they be returned to the people who gave them to me? Or are such gifts kept regardless of what has happened?

1 Should they be returned in person or should they be mailed?

2. If the latter, should an explanatory note accompany them? READER

1. The gifts that were sent to you as felicitations for a status that no longer exist, should be returned when the engagement is broken.

2. Either—whichever is the more convenient.

2. Yes, you should write a note of explanation, that is, a very short impersonal note, explaining that the engagement has been broken, but no explaining why. Something like this:

Dear Mary:

Jack and I have broken our engagement, by mutual consent, so I am returning to you the gift that you so beautifully and thoughtfully sent to me to celebrate our engagement. Since it no longer exists, I feel that I have no right to keep the gifts. I am sure that, with your usual friendliness and sweetness, you will understand.

Thank you always for your goodness to me.

Devotedly yours,

Jane

The Older Brother's Privilege

—Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

DEAR MRS BEECKMAN:

I am to be married in a few weeks and due to the fact that I have no parents, just my four older brothers, I am uncertain as to how my invitations should be worded? My oldest brother will give me away at the altar but I am paying all my own expenses. A. B.

I suggest that also you have your oldest brother sponsor your wedding invitations. This would be especially splendid since he is to give you in marriage. If he is married the invitation should read in the name of both him and his wife. But one like this:

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Adam Benham request the honor of your presence at the marriage of their sister

OLD FORT AT TORONTO RECALLS AWFUL TRAGEDY OF EXPLOSION OF POWDER MAGAZINE IN 1813

Day of Blazing Drama in 1813, After Warning of Approaching Armada

(Special to The Ontario Intelligencer Copyright, 1930)

By R. C. READE

TORONTO—In the old fort the city of Toronto has several slats out of its original cradle. That's what few North American cities have in this age of building demolition when 30-year-old skyscrapers are often startling to be considered such.

One might expect that these prehistoric heirlooms would be carefully preserved as an attraction for tourists, an object of reverence for residents. They are not. They are going to rack and ruin, are covered with rust and dust and cobwebs awaiting the final knockout punch from inexorable time.

The fort antedates the city. Before founding his town, Governor Simcoe in 1793 built a defence for it at the mouth of the harbor — there was then only one mouth — on the banks of a stream to the westward later known as Garrison Creek, and now a sewer. The stream's ravine intended to be used. The lake washed almost up to the front parapet which it heightened with its own banks. In the centre of this was a half-moon battery equipped with muzzle loading twelve pounders and eight pounders. On either side the gunners had been provided with splinter-proof shelters made of logs covered with earth. There was also a two-storey log block-house, the upper storey of which overhung the lower.

Had Indian Type Stockade

The earthwork followed the irregular contours of the ground and embraced a many-angled enclosure in which were barracks, a provision magazine and another big block-house. The buildings on the circumference were connected with a stockade such as the French had built for the Indian wars.

When it was completed, infant Toronto—or rather York—had its citadel, like Quebec, and considered itself as impregnable.

The fort contains records of other builders than Governor Simcoe. Its defences were strengthened in 1816, in 1837 after the rebellion and in 1861 when the Alabama question created fear of war between the United States and Great Britain. Buildings of those periods are still extant. The low red-brick cottages, used as married men's quarters up to 1870, are still occupied.

The historical interest of the fort centres around the war of 1812. Though it practically perished in that affair, that war has put imperishable glory into its one occasion of military use. If it were rebuilt exactly as it was in 1812, it would be an unique sample of the type of fortress that stood on the sight of Montreal and Pittsburgh and Detroit and Sault Ste. Marie and numerous other points during the period of frontier warfare.

Situated as it is on Toronto's main entrance highway, it would attract thousands of tourists. Citizens of the United States make pious pilgrimage to the tablet in Quebec's lower town that marks the spot where General Montgomery fell. They would stand even more reverently while we pointed out the exact spot on the battlements of this ancient citadel where the magazine exploded, and blew up General Pike and over two hundred of his troops.

All Rushed to Arms

That story, Toronto's one contribution to the battles of history, still gives a citizen of Toronto a thrill though not comparable to intensity to the alarm felt by the inhabitants of York when after dusk on April 26, 1813, one of the sentries posted on Scarboro Heights spurred his foam-flecked horse into town with the news that the American Armada had been sighted.

That was a more anxious night for York than even the night of the great fire. "Old and young, rich and poor, high and low," we are told, "rush ed to arms. The mainmd, the wounded, the invalid the reckless schoolboy, the grave judges of the land all abould ered their muskets and fell into the ranks."

The inhabitants, all told did not much exceed 700. Troops in the defence were 300 regulars, 200 militia and a small band of Indians. On the American States vessels were 4,000 foo soldiers.

In the early morning of the 27th the invading fleet was seen rounding Gibraltar Point, west end of the island. It stood in to shore with the obvious intent of landing at old Fort Rouille but the east wind drifted it down the lake and it disembarked its shock troops at what was then called Wolfe's Cove and after the battle of York, "Yankee Cut."

Of 300 of the defending force sent to oppose the landing only 30 returned. While its foot soldiers toiled through the marshes and woods the fleet moved along the shore and bombarded the "western battery," a redoubt about half-a-mile west of the main fort. Taken between two fires from the lake and the land, it was soon abandoned.

Then, beating farther eastward into the wind with its flagship, the Madison, a 24-gun frigate at the head of the line, the flotilla anchored between Gibraltar Point and the mainland and began a long steady cannonade.

Battery Blown to Bits

"They kept up a heavy fire on the batteries, the block-house and barracks and on the communications between them," the British General Sheaffe wrote to the governor. Sir George Prevost, from Kingston, to which he retreated. "Some of their guns were 32 pounders. To return their fire we had two complete twelve pounders and two old condemned guns without trunnions — eighteen pounders."

Outranged, General Sheaffe decided from the first to evacuate the untenable post. The brief defence offered by the sharpshooters in the woods and the batteries was for the purpose of covering his retirement. Had it not been for the explosion of two powder magazines, the battle of York would have been comparatively bloodless.

The fleet thundered. White puffs of smoke drifted over the lake like woolly sheep. Then at the dawn of the morning mist. Round cannon-balls ploughed up the fort's enclosure or rattled through its roof. All this was magnificently picturesque but was not deadly.

The defenders' chief loss of life came from an accident of their own causing. A gunner, by holding his lighted torch behind his back, through his mischance into the travelling magazine, a large wooden case containing cartridges for the great guns. In the words of an eyewitness, who wrote an account of this engagement, "The consequence, as may be supposed, was dreadful indeed. Every man in the battery was blown into the air and the dissection of the greater part of their bodies was inconceivably shocking. The cannons were dismounted and the battery was rendered completely useless."

Blew Invaders Sky High

The fleet fired another salvo. There was silence in the fort. The silence continued. General Pike with the land forces cautiously reconnoitred his precincts. Finding no opposition, he boldly entered with his advance guard of 300 men and, with his staff at his side, sat down without fear of danger to dismantle a gun and proceeded to question a prisoner.

Then took place the real drama of the capture of York. The invaders, without knowing it, were sitting over the "grand magazine," a stone structure built at General Brock's orders under the outer rampart. And at General Sheaffe's orders a fuse had been set to it. The enemy had walked into a death trap.

There was a terrific explosion which the eyewitness describes as follows: "It put a tremendous movement in the earth resembling the shock of an earthquake and looking towards the ships I saw an immense cloud ascending in the air. It had an awfully grand effect. As first it was a great confused body, of a dark colour, which rose from men, timber and earth. As it rose in a majestic manner it assumed the shape of a vast balloon."

The balloon burst and showered the fort with fragments of bodies. Over 200 of the victors and a few of the captives were dead, dying or wounded. But it was not the human tragedy that most afflicted the eyewitnesses. "From the worst horrors we yet to come. "As the flagstaff caught my eye I saw—and oh, how my young heart grieves—the glorious and dear British feelings harried by the sight—I saw the meteor flag of England bow by impious traitor hands to the then triumphant star-spangled banner of America."

A Shrine, not Shambles

But if there was treachery on this occasion the United States troops claimed it was on the part of their enemies. They denounced the blowing up of the magazine after they had taken possession of the fort as the most infamous act of warfare. It was their indignation at this and their grief at the loss of General Pike, whose popularity with his troops bears his name, that caused them to burn the town in revenge. It was in vain that Chief Justice Strachan pleaded that the explosion had been an accident. But in his report General Sheaffe declared, "I caused our grand magazine to be blown up."

Never again did the old fort fire a shot in anger or have one fired against. That was in the days of military drama. For the rest of its active life its history was that of a barracks. The most thrilling call its bugles rang out was the call to the cookhouse door.

Fiction Prices are Cut in Two

Toronto, May 24.—Toronto's book buyers will be able to delight themselves before long with twice as many books a they formerly read for exactly the same cost.

Drastic price reductions on popular novels, general fiction and the more popular biographical and historical works, announced yesterday in New York by four leading publishers, will be reflected almost identically in Toronto and the rest of Canada, it was stated by booksellers and publishers' representatives ere.

Fiction by such well-known writers as H. G. Wells, Mary Roberts Rinehart and Arthur Schnitzler, will sell in future for $1 to $1.50 per copy instead of $2 and $2.50, according to the announcement.

Practically all fiction sold in Canada is printed in the United States and distributed through Canadian branches or agents of American publishing houses. The cut-price volumes will be available here at the same time as they are released south of the line and with little or no variation.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

THE SULTAN'S DELAY

By Laura Reid Montgomery

CopYright, 1930, International Feature Service, Inc.

"I suppose Pamela will be wearing a nice new ring before long," teased Carl.

His brother flushed. "Maybe. Somehow though, I get to wondering if Pam will go on being high-hattish if we decided to hook up. Sadie, now, hasn't any education but she's easy to talk to."

"I'd select Pam, though. She's a wonderful girl and I don't think college did her a bit of harm. Maybe she's trying to live up to your superior intellect, what?"

"She's taking some course now. I didn't listen when she explained it. I want a wife who is a good little domestic and fuss around in a ruffled apron. If she's going to keep on stuying it won't be so apt," said Lance.

When Lance found Sadie leaning over his desk at the office he looked her over critically. Lance was a man who looked upon a situation from every angle before he made up his mind and while he loved Pam for her high-bred reserve, he knew she intended to make a success of marriage if it was humanly possible. His cousin Sadie was a pretty, good natured girl, the result had been disastrous. Nothing tragic, of course, had happened, but the home wasn't such a haven of rest as Lance's abstract subjects were talked to death when the husband wanted to see a musical comedy and the wife wanted to see movies.

"How's big boy?" crooned Sadie, patting a really varnished finger nail on Lance's arm. "Got a heavy date on tonight, I suppose?"

"No. Why?"

"Am covering a Sadie party tonight. I'll get you a bid if you like."

Lance agreed, not knowing at the moment that it meant a real party for Sadie. She was the one chosen to run out and get some cream puffs and pastries when Jerry found the refreshments were short.

And Lance, who had wished that Pam wouldn't look at the right hand of the clock when he had asked her out, found himself fourteen dollars to the bad when he left Sadie at her boarding house. Sadie had romped and played the banjo and made too much noise.

When he called for Pam the next day to fill a luncheon date, made the week before she looked even prettier than he remembered. Pam was plump and rosy cheeked and her eyes, far from a healthily-white face and her eyes were wide and clear.

"You look as though you'd just awakened," he said.

"Mercy, no. I was up in time to see the sun rise. You see my course of study."

"Yes, yes," he interrupted, he didn't feel as though he could bear to hear about Pam's latest fad in elementary drama. For the rest of its active life its history was that of a barracks. The most thrilling call its bugles rang out was the call to the cookhouse door.

"Pam's latest fad sparkled. "If I may choose," she said seriously, "let it be at the Sign of the Blue Teapot."

"That's so far out of the way. Going to rain, too."

"Isn't that place," she contended, "if it rains you can catch a taxi."

They frequently lunched at the quaint little place and the food was delicious. Yet Lance had planned wishing that Pam thought less of her own way. She hadn't once called him wonderful or adorable either, as was Sadie's habit. Instead she regarded him with her dark eyes dreamfilled and maintained a poise which was evidently thoughtful for her pink lips curved agreeably as she walked beside him.

"Pam. Why do you insist upon going miles out of our way to get to this place?" he demanded crossly when at last the bill came with its blue porcelains was between them.

She didn't spring to the front with a pert answer as Sadie would have done. Instead she returned his look steadily and her tone was reasonable as she answered. "I rather like to walk but that isn't the real reason, Lance. I—well, haven't you noticed that I've become almost fat, lately?

"Pfsh!" in his surprise he raised his voice and the waitress glanced back over her blue silk shoulder at the pair. "Is that why you study the menu so carefully before you will order?"

"I have to count up my calories, of course. That's only good business. Bull-like dimples flashed out gaily and an adorable rose ran up to the edges of her dark hair— "of course it's perfectly silly of me, I ought to be above such things but, Lance, the scales here weigh short. When I run up to the house the boulder I always get a thrill when I weigh myself."

Lance stared at this thoroughly feminine person whom he had fancied because of her intelligence. "But if you know they're wrong—"

"I know how utterly ludicrous I am," she agreed, "but you see I have the little card with the weight marked on it plainly and I can't help but feel happier. Then I come here and enjoy my meal. In my course at cooking school I'm learning how to prepare delicious dishes that form a well balanced meal. I've learned almost more there than I did at college—that is of what I'll want to use in everyday life. Every girl looks forward to marriage and—"

"The luxurious room with its yellow walls and its tables set with glass and with ruffled fichus and aprons vanished and Lance found himself in a cheap cafe with a slender girl who was fitting herself for service. She had guessed that he contemplated dropping his bankerchief before her and—"Say, Pam, no one waiting any more time, is there," he strove to keep his voice low and ended in a thread of vibrant love thrill ed though, "I'm mighty glad you are human enough to like to cheat at cooking. Because I'm not sure I love you nne enough to take a course at cookery. What say we act the day right now?"

The fat little blue teapot had a cloud of steam above it and in the faint mistiness between them Lance found himself kissing Pam. He had hoped that Pam would fall so hard for him. He saw a rosy path before him with a wife who had his brains and the desire to serve her man.

"Most awfully sorry, Lance. I had no idea you cared. I'm afraid the story doesn't it? Fred brought it last night. We've been pals a long time, Lance. Don't let it make any difference in our friendship will you?" Her ring sparkled gaily.

Lance dropped his eyes. The lovely flushed face of Mary Ann Sutton belonged to—Fred. And on the floor he seemed to see a White handkerchief. "Miss Sutton had delayed too long.

Graphic Art at Toronto Gallery

Toronto, Ont., May 24—While there seems to be a tendency in New York to confine exhibits this year not to all shown during the spring and summer months the Art Gallery of Toronto (following the mood of a large portion of the more fortunate members of the population who make ready early in May to flock to various country resorts) had no thought for all who attended the private view of May's exhibition. The Gallery is inaugurating its "dull" season by showing of work produced by the members of the Canadian Society of Graphic Art and of paintings of Miss Violet Oakley of the National Academy. The "Miss" attached to the latter's name is some indication of the nature of the work this painter is contributing.

Leaving alone the work bereft of all aesthetic interest which is unfortunately plentiful in the collection presented by the Canadian Society of Graphic Art, one wants to remember the work which makes a good showing and displays imagination and originality.

Toronto, Oshawa, Montreal, Winnipeg, Vancouver and other centres are represented in the exhibition. The outstanding contributions are to be found in the field of wood engraving, in linoleum cutting and in the drawing class. Several of the wood blocks shown represent totem poles or subsidies of motives taken from totems. These are by Edwin Holgate of Montreal, who shows vigor and a wide breath of line, and by W. J. Phillips of Winnipeg who goes into more detail and handles his medium with a greater care. Sleighs and dogs in an arctic or rather-semi-arctic setting are the subjects chosen by H. Eric Bergman whose wood cuts have a beautiful grpsic quality.

George Broomfield of Toronto who has just had a one-man show at The Grange Studios, is an artist of great promise. His line-cuts, both in the choice of the subjects and in the manner in which they are handled augur well of the future of this artist. In the same class is the head of a man by Robert Hall and "Evening" by A. E. Armstrong, also of Toronto.

Grace Coombs contributes three excellent drawings, two of which are done with charcoal. An animal study by this young woman artist is one of the finest works in the exhibition. A study of trees, by Yvonne McKague has a genuine Canadian flavour, so has the pen and ink drawing by Lemoine Fitzgerald. Bertram Brooker holds up with distinction the standard which he has established for his black and white work, this time choosing one of which in particular is classic. Some of the other artists who, in various classes of work offer a relief to the onlooker who has become satiated with the posters and the ads done in American style are L. Trevor Brooker, Mora Collyer of Montreal who contributes two native drawings, Kathleen Daly of Ottawa who shows a good figure work, R. K. Courtley who has a quaint Canadian country spot in the collection, O. W. Jefferys, this Canadian artist who excels in so fitting a style happenings of pioneering days, Sarah M. Robertson who contributes an exquisite water-color, and W. P. Weston of Vancouver who has two interesting pen and ink drawings.

Disturbance Between Burmans And Hindus Fills Hospitals

BOMBAY, May 27.—CP— Serious disorders at Rangoon growing out of the dock strike today had rolled up casualties of sixty dead and seven hundred and forty injured. The disturbance between Burmans and Hindus was continuing with the hospital filled to overflowing and every available police officer on duty.

Apparently disorders had no connection with the civil disobedience campaign which continued to cause the police and cavalry much trouble.

A party of twenty-five volunteers were arrested while attempting to raid the salt depots at Dharasana. Police supressing renewed attacks by Moslems in Shendidrasaar district fired three times into a mob injuring seven. Police were heavily stoned by rioters and one police deputy was knifed and is in a precarious condition.

RESERVED WILL CASE JUDGMENT

All Issues Except Construction Referred to Local Master

The Supreme Court sittings before the Honourable Mr. Justice Hazen was adjourned after hearing the argument of counsel in the case of Thompson versus Thompson. This is an action that was brought by four of the children of the late Virgil Thompson, who died in 1918, against their mother. Ella Blanche Thompson, and their brother, Leonard J. Thompson, to set aside a certain mortgage and a judgment obtained thereunder. Since the commencement of the action, the mother, Ella Blanche Thompson, died and the action was continued as against the brother in his personal capacity and as the executor under his mother's will. There are involved in the action a great many issues between the members of the family, claims and counter claims.

Mr. Justice Hazen has reserved all the issues in the trial to the Local Master at Belleville with the exception of the construction of the will of the father, Virgil Thompson, as to what rights his widow, Ella Blanche Thompson, took under this will. The argument before his Lordship on the construction of the will occupied a whole day and as the construction judgment was reserved, W. D. Pocock, K.C., appeared as counsel for the Defendant and E. M. Young, K.C., and R. E. Nourse of Toronto appeared as counsel for the plaintiffs.

Instead of closing the court his Lordship directed that the sittings be adjourned until Monday, June 16th, at 2 p.m. at which time Mr. Justice Hazen returns for the trial of Principal versus Philpott. The counsel in the action are E. J. Butler, K.C., for the plaintiff; Charles A. Payne for two of the defendants and R. D. Pocock, K.C., for the National Trust Company Limited.

ROPE SNAPPED ABOVE RAPIDS

Fisher Boy Fights Treacherous Water and Rocks Half Hour

Sault Ste. Marie, May 27.—In a half hour battle with boiling white water in rushing rapids, David Tweedie, 16, son of A. G. Tweedie, defeated death below the International bridge here.

Seeking a vantage point from which to cast his lures on a fishing trip, he ventured by means of a rope to an old snow moorcd below the abutments of the bridge. The water roared through the open gates of the compensating dam, creating mad white water in which lurked big trout which refused to bite.

Becoming numb with cold and tired of the sport, young Tweedie crammed his fishing tackle into the pockets of his mackinaw jacket and started to climb his way again to the bridge up the rope by which he had descended through the gates.

Rotten through much exposure, the rope snapped as the boy struggled to reach the top and he hurtled into the mad water as it fumed and boiled.

Tweedie had learned to swim when seven years old, so throwing off his heavy coat he started to struggle against the current, drawing him nearer to the fangs of rocks in the rapids.

There were no witnesses to the grim fight, which the boy says lasted half an hour. Inch by inch he gained his way diagonally across the expanse of rushing water between him and the rocks on shore. Eventually, numbed by cold, he made his way to the ship canal and was cared for by the staff and then taken home. He seems little the worse for his experience.

PRINCE IS KILLED IN PLANE CRASH

BUCHAREST, May 27—Prince Myrcea Cantacuzene, member of an old noble family, was killed in an airplane accident yesterday while dropping leaflets urging the public to demand the return of Prince Carol to Roumania. His wife was slightly injured.

The prince and princess were using a small airplane on their honeymoon flight. The machine fell 600 feet at Bandaa airdrome.

Prince Cantacuzene was acting as a private individual as he held no official position. His family belongs to the highest nobility, but is not related to the royal house, although it ruled Roumania for a brief period in the 1860's. Prince was a strong supporter of Carol, who renounced the Roumanian throne to pursue a love affair in Paris.

600 DEBUTANTES AND MATRONS AT PALACE

London, May 27 (CP).—Six hundred debutantes and matrons have been commanded to appear at Buckingham Palace this evening for presentation to Britain's royalty in the third court of the season.

Illness of the King will prevent his attendance at the third court of the season to be held tonight at Buckingham Palace, it was officially announced today. For some days past the King has been suffering from painful though localized rheumatism of the right hip. It was said the trouble has no connection with the King's illness and hopes to fulfil his engagements later in the week.

WILL SIR OSWALD MOSLEY RELENT?

EARL CURZON RAMSAY MacDONALD

Officials in political circles in the Motherland are still discussing the sudden withdrawal of Sir Oswald Mosley, millionaire Socialist, from the Labor Cabinet, and they admit that the defection of Sir Oswald may have a spectacular effect on the coming general elections, upon which the fate of the MacDonald Government will depend. Above are pictures of Sir Oswald and his wife, Lady Cynthia, who is the daughter of that famous statesman, the late Earl Curzon, and Ramsay MacDonald, much harrassed Prime Minister of Great Britain.

HOLIDAY OBSERVED IN SAFE AND SANE MANNER

Kiddies every year look forward with eager joy to the 24th of May, when an excuse may be had to set off fireworks, explode torpedoes and when night falls to witness a thrilling display of gorgeous fireworks. This year both the 24th and 25th were observed. Last night, in various sections of the city, the sky was made brilliant with skyrockets, roman candles, gigantic pin-wheels and every form of fireworks made famous by Hand.

Belleville and vicinity were fortunate over the 24th (and 25th). There were no accidents resulting from pyrotechnic exploding cannon crackers or other forms of gunpowder. Police report a "safe and sane 24th."

CONCERTMEISTER PLAYED IN RAGS FOR 5 DOLLARS

Golden Notes Failed in Street To Entrance Hearers With Stradivarius

$40,000 INSTRUMENT

Five Dollars Turned Over To Charity By Musician

CHICAGO, Ill., May 27 — CP — Jacques Gordon, concertmeister of the Chicago Symphony Orchestra today hid behind tatters and smoked grease of the blind pauper on a Chicago street corner to decide whether the public appreciated music by itself or was attracted by the society of addicences and the fame of artists. Despite the fact that from his forty thousand dollar Stradivarius flowed the same golden notes with which he has cast the spell over rapt audiences the prince of violinists received only a little more than five dollars in his tin cup, which he later turned over to charity.

STOCK MARKETS

By Jamieson Bone and Company.

The New York market today was narrow but firm. There is little constructive news other than cheap money, and more stability in Grain, with stocks on hand easing off. In the Mining Market there is a very much increased public participation, with a good many of the penny stocks coming to life, and a general firming tendency throughout. Quotations at 2.50 were:

Mrs. Sands introduced Chapter IV. of the drama arranged and conducted by Study Book. This was presented as a Mrs. Nash.

The play, "Dearies", put on by the Y. W. A., was amusing as well as dramatic and was exceptionally well given. The cast of characters were as follows:

Mrs. Main (Matron of Oppaushome) —Mrs. Ernest Sond.

Barbara Black—Mrs. Melville Campbell.

Orphan Kate White— Miss Effie Saunders.

Orphan Lena—Mrs. O. A. Bradley.

Mrs. Clare (wealthy old lady)—Miss M. Hutchinson.

Mrs. Langhorne (Mrs. Chase's grandaughter)—Miss Viola Vallear.

Mammy (Negro cook)—Mrs. Will Jackson.

Among those who held birth day parties recently were, Miss Mary Rorke, Mrs. David Clinton and Mr. Malcolm Thompson.

Mr. Fred Archard, who is in Picton hospital as the result of falling from a scaffold, is progressing favorably.

Mrs. Karl Marden, who has returned home after an operation in the hospital in Toronto, is convalescent at her home here.

Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Fralegh recently entertained their cousins, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. E. Stephenson, Washington, D.C. Mr. Stephenson is acting executive assistant to the Post Master General and acting special assistant to the Attorney General for the post office department.

Among those from this vicinity who were in Belleville last week were, Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Pettingill, Mrs. C. Peters, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Johnston Mr. and Mrs. Albert Weir and family, Mr. Harry Haydon, Mr. and Mrs. P. Doyle, Mrs. Ernest Terry.

Mr. Harold Johnston was among those who sold valuable cows to Mr. Fay of New York, who shipped them from Wellington on Monday.

The rainfall on Wednesday last and the local showers the remainder of the week were welcomed by the farmers in the surrounding country as it had not finished seeding operations and makes the grain look exceptionally well. The countryside is very beautiful at present, the cherry, plum and pear trees are just dropping their blooms while the apple trees are in full bloom and the perfume is wafted on the breeze. Tnis with the pasture fields verdant and green stretching away in the distance and the fields of growing grain showing the ground, makes the residents as well as the tourists realize what a beautiful country we have.

A visit to the green house at Wellington will convince one with the extent of the tomato growing industry in the surrounding country. Acres beds with thousands and thousands of plants are growing here and some have already been taken to the farms Messrs. Roraback and Daniel Pope are among the first to take truck loads to their farms.

Mr. and Mrs. Alex Gilmour and family, Redneresville, were callers at the Johnston home on Sunday.

Miss Mary Trombly, Snow Road, spent the week end at the Johnston home.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Johnston entertained Mr. and Mrs. Robert Sargeant, Mrs. Sargeant, Sr., Snow Road, Mrs. Thos. Johnston, Miss Mary Trombly and Mr. Arnold Johnston at the tea hour on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Smith, Mr. and Mrs. George McKay were noon hour guests of Mrs. T. Johnston and Mr. Arnold Johnston, on Sunday.

JAPANESE LOSE WOOL CLOTH INDIAN TRADE

Tokyo, May 27 (CP)—The future export trade in grey cotton cloth from Japan to British India is regarded here as almost hopeless, as a result of the passage of the new tariff bill by the Indian Assembly. The new measure is already effected.

Last year the tariff collected on these exports in India totalled more than $4,000,000. Under the new bill that total would be nearly $10,790,000.

In consequence, the export of rough made cloth and drills from Japan will probably be virtually suspended and Indian spinning mills will increase in activity. The only hope seen for Japan in the cloth export trade with India is a concentration on the production of finished articles which have a difference of only five percent. in tariff rate as compared with British products. The tariff revision thus is expected to force Japanese spinners to produce finished articles and ship them in much large quantities to regain the ground they will lose in grey cloth. The difference of five percent. will be taken up by cheaper freight and lower costs of production.

One Miller's Worm Powders and the battle against worms is won. These powders correct the morbid conditions of the stomach which nourish worms, and these destructive parasites cannot exist after they come in contact with the medicine. The worms are digested by the powders and are speedily evacuated with other refuse from the bowels. Soundness is imparted to the organs and the health of the child steadily improves.

BEAUTIFUL CAPITALS

The Ottawa Citizen says that the Canadian view is changing in regard to beautification of the capital. Congress is spending three hundred million over the next ten years on the beautification of Washington, which is the equivalent on a basis of population of some thirty million in Canada were such improvements contemplated in Ottawa. The Citizen says: "If $30,000,000 were asked to be spent on Ottawa during the next eight or ten years, the response would be too awful to contemplate." Happily there are signs that this rather narrow view on the part of so many Canadians is changing."

JAY-WALKERS

Jay walking in New York is an offence and the police have been stationed at corners to prevent citizens indulging in the dangerous pastime, which caused four hundred and twelve deaths last year in that city.

Belleville has its jay-walkers who should use their heads and learn that this is very dangerous practice. Not so much of late but for years pedestrians have persistently walked diagonally across the Front and Bridge Street intersection. How they can escape sooner or later the inevitable bumper which is always so near them, is difficult to say, but if they continue and the police do not happen to "get" them, an accident can scarcely fail to occur.

In a city like Belleville, there is considerable crossing of the street where there are no intersections and no markings for crossings. Probably there should be more of these but the present practice is not conducive to sound nerves in motorists with people popping out of a line of cars directly in front of one.

The pedestrians have a right to objection —that is when the red light comes on they are entitled to walk across. But from the left hand swings a motorcar on a right turn and another from the long swing left turn. Pedestrians ought to have as much right with the redlight as motorists have under the green light, though many times it does not appear as if the motorist quite appreciates the predicament of the walker who finds a car swinging on his left hand and forcing him fairly to jump out of the way. It is well known that the pedestrian has the right under the red light to cross and be safe from a turning motorist but does he most of the time get a chance for the exercise of that right?

TOADS

The toad may have an ugly exterior in the eyes of man but he plays an important role in the economy of nature. He is the great enemy of flies and bugs, though man in his worship of beauty is not favorably disposed to the creature.

An appeal has been made to motorists to try and avoid crushing the toads on the highway whither they come at night. One knows what slaughter of the harmless innocent toads has been perpetrated at a time such as the roadwas and sidewalks at certain seasons shows.

If there is any way of saving these creatures, people ought to save it but one knows how difficult it is to avoid stepping on them against one's will on the walks whither rain brings them.

PERMANENT OR NOT

Superiority of permanent roads over ordinary roads is being demonstrated on the west side of the river. Engineers have ceased to fear from the weight of excessive traffic but macadam roads simply cannot stand against any steady increase of traffic. The cost of traffic over Moira Street from Coleman Street to the upperbridge has shown the weakness of macadam as a road surface where there is heavy traffic. Under this traffic there will doubt less have to be repairs made from time to time.

The same condition is seen throughout the rural sections. Roads which bear heavy traffic and are not permanent soon lose their smoothness and become pitted.

The automobile has made the permanent road a necessity, while the latter has undoubtedly assisted in the development of the motor industry.

THE PEARL

You have heard of the panic which would occur if skeletons should discover how to make gold, says J. George Frederick, in the World Traveller. The "gold standard" would totter. Something of the same situation occurred with regard to the "pearl standard," after the Japanese learned how to make "cultured" pearls which none but experts could distinguish. But French courts have decided that cultured pearls are entitled to the name pearl, and so the "pearl standard" is even now in process of adjustment.

What is a pearl anyway? The healthy parent oyster lays thousands of eggs a year, but they float on the surface of the sea until they hatch. The tiny bi-valve, using a greenish fiber root sticking out of it, clings to anything it can and feeds on the minute vegetable and animal forms in the water. Shifting about with the tides, it finally clings to the seabed with its fibrous root until it grows and anchors itself for life—or until a fierce-looking diver grabs it. Oysters have other enemies, however; turtles crack open their shells, fish attack them and worst of all, borers which gradually, like an auger, go through the shell and kill—or it they can't kill, perhaps bring into being a pearl. This parasite borer, or often a worm spewed out by a small fish in the neighborhorhood of the shell, penetrates to the oyster, irritates the very delicate but hardy oyster substance, and a pearl results! It takes years, of course—years of building layer upon layer of "nacre." Strangeby enough, these layers serve as a tribute to the great esteem in which true pearls are held.

SIDELIGHTS

LITTLE HOUSE OF DREAMS

I wish you could see my little house.
Against a sleepy hill.
It has weather-beaten shutters,
And a worn door-sill.
And, oh, it knew my family
For many happy years.
And chuckled at their laughter,
And wept at all their tears.

And now, it's like an old man,
Sitting in the sun,
And it has grown a beard of vines
That carelessly all run
Up and down and round about
It's kind old yellow face,
And makes it look just what it is—
A great-grandfather place.

Perhaps they'll come a happy day
In gold midsummer weather,
When you and I will seek the hill
Of misty purple heather,
And there we'll find my little house
A-smiling to itself,
Because it knows it holds the dreams
I've dreamt about Yourself.

And if you kiss and leave me there,
Its heart will break of pain;
And hearts and love and houses
Cannot be young again.

WOMEN'S LEGS

A London, England court of law awarded yesterday £ 400 damages to a girl for a scar on her leg caused by an accident in an omnibus. The learned judges rightly held, says the Daily Express that a girl's leg was no longer "an obscure place." As a matter of fact, especially when revealed in gossamer stockings, it is often more prominent than her face, and the penalty for doing it an injury is proportionately severe. A generation ago only an exceedingly bold member of the fourth estate would have known whether any given woman had a scar on her leg. They would have had little or no ocular proof that she even had legs at all.

CAMPERS AND BUSH FIRES

Every year regularly warnings are issued to campers and others regarding bush fires. It would have been thought that such warnings would have some effect, but according to a report from Queen's Park there were fifty such fires of varying size reported since Saturday. The report states that:

"There have been six dangerous fires around Mileage 118 on the Algoma Central Railway, with one block of 500 acres still out of control, according to last advices.

"Campers started several fires near Mileage 136, north of Garden River, which are still burning, and lightning caused a number of outbreaks in Township 161.

"Eleven fires were reported from Sudbury district on May 10, and twenty additional ones on May 11. It has been necessary to employ 150 extra men to fight them.

"In one case the forestry fireman had to go within Sudbury's city limits to battle an outbreak.

"Nine fires arising out of Fassett operations in the Township of Ballantyne have been reported in the last 48 hours.

"Pembroke headquarters reports a high life hazard, with fourteen fires on May 11 all of which now are under control."

Of course, all these fires were not due to campers; lightning started some, and they were all the more readily set going owing to the hot weather recently so prevailing. Those no one can guard against, but it is a shame and a disgrace that after all these ears of waraing campers can be held answerable for any of them.

EX-SOLDIER THANKS KRUSCHEN FOR HIS SUCCESS

This is the story of Mr. Chas. F. Kemp, released from the Army in 1921, at the age of 45, without friends, money or influence. A difficult proposition for any man, but Mr. Kemp had the will to succeed. He also had Kruschen Salts. His letter shows how Kruschen helped him to success.

"When I got out of the Army I restarted my business here in 1921. I saw, at the age of 45, I must put up THE fight of my life if I was to come back, and I did not get one penny from Government or anyone else to get back. I am most delighted to tell you that I am well back. Ever since I started this business I have had to keep "Fighting Fit" and I have done so. I open this shop at 7 a.m., never after, and, as a rule, it is 6-45, and I some a few miles to do it. I have a very nice car and I keep it nice myself. Well, perhaps even YOU will say 'How do you do it ?' My answer is, 'Well, if one's liver is not right, one is not real fit,' and I have a very slow liver, so every morning I use Kruschen Salts. "I am 53 years of age and I am without fear of contradiction, that I owe my fitness to Kruschen Salts, taken every morning, year in and year out, year after year, first thing in the morning."

Kruschen causes the liver to release its natural stream of antiseptic fluid, which prevents food fermentation and the formation of poisons in the intestines. At the same time, this fluid stimulates the system to gentle, regular action, preventing constipation and the serious conditions that follow in its wake. Start taking the tiny pinch of Kruschen Salts yourself. In a week's time you will see that you have hit upon the very soul and secret of vigorous, vital health.

Kruschen Salts is obtainable at all Drug Stores at 75c. and 50c. per bottle, and is manufactured at Nº 8, Griffin Brown, Ltd., Manchester, England. Established 37561. Importers: Montmorency Bros., Ltd., Toronto.

SENATORS PLAY SOFTBALL GAMES

Trenton Team Hosts to Toronto And Oshawa Clubs

(Special By Staff Reporter)

TRENTON, Ont., May 27.—On Saturday, the 24th the Senators, of the Trenton Softball League entertained the Oshawa Bakery team and Riordan's of Toronto, at the Bay Shore Park, and although Toronto walked off with the honours the Trenton lads were by no means disgraced, winning out in the most interesting game of the three that were played, taking the Oshawa team into camp in ten innings to the tune of 4 to 3.

The Senators were outplayed and outclucked in the first game against Riordan's, the Toronto outfit winning the top score of 6 to 2. Spectators could not fathom the pecking of Blackburn until too late in the game, while the Queen City team, taking advantage of a few miscues in the early part of the game, scored enough runs to salt the game away.

With the bowler pitching steady ball in the second match, between Oshawa Bakeries and the Senators, the Trenton team gave their best display of ball, scoring one run in the first inning, the Senators held the lead until the seventh inning when Oshawa squeezed a runner over the plate. In the sixth the Senators again scored, and Oshawa came right back with a run. The Senators in their half of the tenth, Oshawa managed to score another run in the eighth when the Trenton team scored in the ninth, but in their half of the tenth, Oshawa managed to score another run to win, finishing 3 to 2. Jordan singled in the Trenton half however, and then Cook came up to plant a long drive into the water past centre field, scoring two runs, and thus winning the game. It was a fine finish to a fine ball game, from a Trenton standpoint.

The Senators were outplayed in the next game, no doubt a great deal of the loose fielding being due to the fact that this was the third game they had played, Toronto won by the score of 11 to 4. The following were the players for the Senators in the three games—Jordan, Cook, Scarlett, Chase, Hegin, Wright, Gardner, Johnson, Lawrence, Hicks, Lott.

Trenton Plan Big Field Day

(Special By Staff Reporter)

TRENTON, Ont., May 27.—One week from today, June 3rd., will likely be a busy time in Trenton for sporting events if interest are scheduled. The College Street Home and School Club are holding their annual Field Day on that date and it is expected that an out-of-town softball team will be here for exhibition games with one of the local teams. In addition, there is to be Trenton to Belleville Road Race—in which it is planned to have two Trenton teams. A Handicap bicycle race between the two towns is another attraction.

Freighter Was Trenton Caller

(Special By Staff Reporter)

TRENTON, Ont., May 27.—Although yesterday was observed as a holiday in this town, the packet freighter, Glen Allan, called here on the start of its trip to Montreal. The tug, Russell of Ottawa, stopped here late last week while supplies were purchased but no cargo was taken on. The Russell is towing a large scow, and it was this scow which struck the Bay Bridge near Belleville when passing through the narrow channel. Fortunately no serious damage resulted.

NEW HOMES ARE BEING ERECTED

(Special By Staff Reporter)

TRENTON, Ont., May 27.—According to figures kept by the town clerk, over fifty thousand dollars has been spent in the past five months on buildings in Trenton. This of course does not include the new water tank being built by the C.P.R. railway, which will cost over $100,000. Several houses are under construction, while the remainder of the money is being spent on repair work.

TRENTON GIRL GUIDES PARADE

(Special By Staff Reporter)

TRENTON, Ont., May 27.—On Sunday last, May 25th, the First Trenton Company of Girl Guides paraded to Canterbury Hall at 10 o'clock to march to St. George's Church where a most interesting ceremony took place, it being the presentation of colours to the Troop by Mrs. (Dr.) W. J. Johnston. They were afterwards dedicated by Rev. Percy Haywood. Mrs. (Col.) W. N. Ponton, of Belleville, Division Commissioner, was present and the parade was assisted by the Boy Scouts and Cubs. The Cubs were under Jr. A. S. M. Gordon Smith, while the Scouts were under Scoutmaster Howard Jarrett and A. S. M. J. Dafoe. Honorary Guide Instructor Sergeant Major E. Almey D.C.M., had charge of the whole parade.

OVERPRODUCTION OF COFFEE IN BRAZIL

Tokyo, May 27 (CP)—Current overproduction of coffee in Brazil may have an important effect on the programme of Japanese emigration to that country, in the opinion of the Ministry of Overseas Affairs.

The Japanese government will advise Japanese settlers in Brazil not to rely entirely upon the production of coffee, but to cultivate cotton, sugar and other crops as well. They will also be urged to enhance the quality of the coffee they do produce rather than increase the production.

Japanese authorities believe that world production of coffee has passed the maximum world demand and that there may be over-production for some time.

Meanwhile intending settlers from Japan to Brazil are being warned of the situation, and it is reported here that the numbers of emigrants has been considerably curtailed.

LODGE ATTEND DIVINE SERVICE

(Special By Staff Reporter)

TRENTON, Ont, May 27.—Trenton Lodge No. 113 I.O.O.F. celebrated the 111th Anniversary of the founding of their order on Sunday last by attending Divine Service at King Street United Church. Rev. A. E. Jones, pastor of the church officiated and chose as his subject the scripture of 1st Corinthians, Chapter 13, the first verse of which is, "Though I speak with the tongues of men and angels, and have not charity, I am become as sounding brass or a tinkling cymbal". Several visiting Oddfellows attended the service with their Trenton brethren.

GANG SLAYING SUSPECTED

DETROIT, May 27.—The body of a man apparently gurdered about two days ago was found last night in a dry ditch in Oak Park, seven blocks west of Woodward Avenue. He had been shot behind the ear. Three pieces of a broken revolver, but were found near the body and next on the ground indicated a struggle. Police believe it may have been a gang killing.

DIED INSTANTLY IN RAIL CRASH

Herbert Sturgess Suffered Fatal Injuries at Kingston

KINGSTON, May 27. — Herbert Sturgess of Kingston, a well-known Canadian National Railways brakeman on a freight train travelling between Belleville and Brockville, was instantly killed on Monday morning shortly after eight o'clock near Kingston Mills when the caboose on which he was standing, buckled when being hooked up with another freight behind.

Near the place where the fatality occurred there is a steep grade and to facilitate climbing this grade the train on which Sturgess was employed undertook to couple on to another freight which was following it. The train on which Sturgess was standing backed toward the second freight which was heading slowly in the same direction. The second freight stopped suddenly to avoid hitting a gasoline car, which was standing on the rail behind it and the caboose of the first freight, on which Sturgess was standing crashed into the locomotive of the standing train. The caboose buckled under the impact, and Mr. Sturgess was thrown upward from the platform on which he was standing and landed between the wrecked caboose and the locomotive. He suffered a broken neck, a fracture of the skull and internal injuries.

Something more than appearance will be necessary for grain to win a prize at the World's Grain Exhibition and Conference to be held at Regina, July 25 to August 2, 1932. All entries getting into the prize money in this Exhibition will it is expected, be in demand for seed. It is because of the importance of the effect of the distribution of this prize seed to farmers in Canada and elsewhere, that the Grain Exhibition Committee has decided that the seed grain standards will be supplemented by a purity test which in reality is the test supreme.

URGES STRICTER MOVIE CENSORS

Wellington, N.Z. May 2 (C P). —"We in New Zealand are paying a big price for the commercialism of the picture stage," declared Rev. Dr. Gibb, spokesman for a deputation before the Minister of External Affairs protesting against the present tendency of moving pictures.

The deputation was representative of Anglican, Presbyterian, Roman Catholic, Methodist and Baptist churches, the Church of Christ, the Salvation Army and the Y.M.C.A.

Stricter censorship not only of the films but of posters advertising them was urged.

"Consult your own year book and see whether we are trending, or indeed where we have arrived", declared Dr. Gibb. "We appeal to you to lighten the censorship and insist that the films shall be such as a decent father can take his wife and children to. It is the duty of the government to protect the morals of a community."

Canon Percival James attacked the posters, saying that while people had to pay to enter the theatres, there was no escaping the billboards. "They shriek at you as you pass by", declared Canon James, who advocated the importation of something better than the "wretched stuff made in California."

Hon. P. A. de la Perrelle, Minister of Internal Affairs, promised that there would be closer scrutiny of both films and posters in the future.

NO CENSUS FOR AUSSIES IN 1931

Plans had been almost completed for a census in June, 1931, and some of the preliminary work had been put in hand. In view, however, of the present financial position of the Commonwealth, the Cabinet decided that the expenditure which would have been involved—between $1,000,000 and $,200,000,—could not be justified.

DISPOSAL KILT FUND OF A.L.I.

Many Subscribers Divert Donations to Help Regiment

After it had been definitely ascertained the, permission would not be forthcoming to adopt kilts, the committee in charge of the fund were notified by some of the subscribers that they desired to leave all or part of their subscriptions with the Regiment to be used for other purposes. It was therefore decided to communicate with all the subscribers in order to learn their wishes before the refund cheques were made out.

So far the result has been gratifying, the majority of the subscribers having decided to leave all or part of the donations with the regiment either for special purposes or at the disposal of the commanding officer. This money will be used for the purchase of trophies for competition, expenses in connection with the regimental dinners and entertainments and in other ways to promote the welfare of the men and increase the efficiency and "esprit de corps" of the Unit.

As is well known, to reach the highest efficiency in a militia unit it is essential that it should have the loyal and practical support of the community and the fine regiments in the principal cities of Canada are greatly indebted to the leading citizens and the public in general for assistance in sheer development. It is pleasing to know that, in the case of the Belleville regiment, such noble public citizens and others are ready and willing to share in the patriotic duty of retaining a unit of which the city may well be proud.

The city council have shown practical and wise patriotism in the support they have given to the creation of a well equipped and well trained militia.

In time of peace, the value of military training may not be so readily evident, but when one comes to consider the moral and physical benefits of the training and discipline not merely to the men themselves but also to the community at large a greater appreciation cannot fail to be forthcoming.

BELLEVILLE NATIONALS SCORE INITIAL VICTORY IN C. O. B. L. DEFEATING KINGSTON PONIES BY 6-2 SCORE

Weather Conditions Kept Attendance Down at Opening Game. Locals Were Better in Pinches, Making Blows Count. Alex Weir Went Route for Nationals And Contributed Long Double For Two Runs. Buck Of Loests And Tetro For Kingston Supplied Fielding Features—Poules Missed at Critical Times.

Taking advantage of the proper hurling of Charlie Jamieson in the first frame and the miscues of his team mates, the Belleville Nationals won the opening tilt of the Central Ontario Baseball League here yesterday afternoon from the Kingston Ponies by a score of 6-2. It was a well played game under most adverse weather conditions, it being cold and raw with wind sweeps across the diamond, and the teams performing in mid-season form. The attendance, however, was affected to a considerable extent, there being but an ordinary week day crowd in the stands when the game got under way. It was really too cold for baseball but the lid has always been pried off the league on the holiday and the real dyed in the wool fans were on hand to give encouragement to the team the management has selected to carry the colors of the Ontario City. The fans went away satisfied with the showing of their portegee and believe they will be a force to be reckoned with before the Provincial championship is handed out.

Opening Ceremonies Brief

With the opening of a season there are generally a few opening ceremonies—but these were not forgotten yesterday. The teams before the game started marched to the flagpole in a body and with Charles J. Symons, chairman of Parks Board, handling the cord, the nine pennants won by the Nationals were run to the top of the mast. Belleville, since they entered senior competition, have won seven C.O.B.L. pennants and by provincial championships, a record indeed to be proud of. Back to the plate went the teams and the opening tilts were brief. Mayor George A. Reid was the batsman, George H. Stoker, superintendent of the C.N.R., the hurler, and R. A. Elliott, president of the league, the receiver. The curves of Mr. Stoker were all to the good but the Mayor had a hard time finding the range. Finally he did foul one off and the game was on.

Fans Surprised

The fans were agreeably surprised at the quality of ball played by the locals considering the amount of practice they have done. The team had one full workout before the game and Alex. Weir, who went the distance on the mound has thrown but little all spring and with hardly any stuff on the ball. Many changes have taken place in the personnel of the team since the uniformes were got out last fall. The infield is the same with the exception of Harry Blakely at short, his place being taken by Lorne Scott, who performed with Quinte last summer. Harry Blakely was an interested spectator and was pleased with the showing of the team. The outfield is entirely made over, their being two local boys and Harold Buck, of Deseronto, Flagler is a newcomer to the league, having played with Belleville some years ago. Cretney was recruited from the Orono team and will be a real strength on account of his hitting. The team appears well balanced and were capably handled in the field by the old pilot of several, Percy Mills, and from the bench by Walter Gerow. Yesterday Peeney gave a the account of himself behind the plate.

A Weir Went Route

The game was not an enthusiastic one, principally because the weather was so disagreeable. The fans shivered in the stands while the players did likewise on the field. The team got to Jamieson in the first frame for four counters and that was the margin of victory. Both teams scored twice in the later frames and played smart ball. Alex Weir, the pitching

Summary—Runs on balls, Jamieson 3; A. Weir 1. Two base hits: A. Weir, W. Mills. Three base hits: Elliott. Double plays: Belleville (Buck to V. Weir, Buck to W. Mills). Hit by pitched ball A. Weir, (Stone). Earned runs Kingston 2 Belleville 1. Struck out by Jamieson 2, by A. Weir 4.

Left on bases Belleville 8, Kingston 4. Stolen bases, Smith, Buck. Sacrifice hits, Jamieson, Tetro, Twigg. Kingston plate, Celling, Belleville bases. Time of game two hours.

Find of Eastern Ontario, started for the Nationals and went the route but was rather tired at the finish. He had a speed ball with an occasional curve, depending on his team mates to hold him up. He allowed but seven hits and only once were the Kingston team capable of hunching their blows and he struck out four, showing control and excellent for early in the season, he walking but one batter and not till the eighth did they get a man to third. His team mates perfectly behind him, having only one miscue and that was on a hard drive on ball to short. Opposed to him on the mound was Charlie Jamieson, a wee mite on the mound, but a hurler of no little merit and caught back on many occasions when his team mates faultered in the pinches. Eight hits were all the Nationals collected but when they came at opportune times and were of the long distance variety. Alex Weir and "Peeney" Mills provided the long distance clouts and they were inserted with runners on the bases. Jamieson struck out two and walked three.

Kingston Team Changed

The Kingston team has been made over and was thought to be the class but Belleville should have little trouble in defeating them in the wire. The infield is strong with Stone, Quinn, Elliott of Dekrow and Hewitt Smith, and Fournier, Arnist and Lasher stand in the outfield. Del Cherry did not accompany the team but will likely be in the line-up when the season closes. Jack Murray, the manager, was disappointed at the showing as the team has had plenty of practice and a couple of exhibition games to lay them up but they could not withstand the bold stand made by the Nationals. The fielding features were provided by the Nationals, when Harold Buck, who signed a National certificate five minutes before game time started two double plays, which in no small measure curbed the opposition. Once he was given from deep centre to second base while in the air and his throw to the plate was a pipeline. Tetro supplied the other feature when he took a foul fly with one hand after a long run.

The Box

Belleville opened the game with a four run barrage. Buck was put out on Quinn unassisted up his grounder and he promptly stole second. Bob Scott grounded to second and Buck pored up to third. Vernon Weir got a scratch hit down third when Hewitt Smith could not hold the ball and Buck scored. Peeney Mills grounded to third and Vernon went to second. Harry Mills walked and Georgy Scott got a life when Lawlor mixed an easy fly, Vernon scoring and Harry going to third. Alex Weir got down to his old own game when he doubled to score Mills and Scott. He was quiet until the fourth when Kingston scored two runs. Fournier, the first man up, singled and Bob Elliott came through with a screaming triple to score Fournier and he later scored on a sacrifice fly to Cretney. Belleville added another when Vernon Weir singled after two were out and went to second on the bad throw of Jamieson. Peeney Mills pasted a curve to centre and Vernon rode home. Incidentally Vernon Weir led the hitters of both teams with three hows, two of them scratches. The last run was forced in the fifth when two errors sandwiched in with a hit scored a run. It was a fair game and will bring the fans out to the next battle.

LAWN TENNIS

V. STROKE EQUIPMENT
Review thoroughly your court areas before you play your chosen shots. The next important step is to determine the strokes equipment necessary to handle the various moments of play. The big weapons of the game are the forehand and backhand drives. On the offensive attack they oppose against the opponents defense and are the implements used to move him around to your desired end. They open the court so you may finish your point. On the defense they are weapons which keep the ball consistently in play until you have weathered the storm and can turn again to the attack. The use of the forehand and backhand chop is attack and defense is at times necessary. It is an addition of accuracy, to the drive.

The use of pace, speed, and spin of the ball in their proper place is highly desirable.

The most important implement in your kit is Service. It is the beginning of every point and therefore of the greatest importance for "Well begun is half done." Put that ball in play and don't waste even one ball. Try to make each first and second serving the same, using simple standard delivery. Rely more on outguessing your opponent than making him down. Get your ball in play and rely on the rest of your game to win the point. The net position gives a good volley once it has reached the net. The essential is to know when to go to the net so it may be used to greatest advantage. The Lob and "smash" of the lob constitute complete equipment necessary for the success of the tenny player.

Belleville Golf Club Opening

Special Prizes Were Given For The Holiday Contests

Male members of the Belleville Golf Club opened the season yesterday with the annual President vs Vice President match. The players representing the latter office carried off the honours for the day. Mr. Lee McIntosh won the prize for the low gross score, Mr. O. H. Scott tieing the low net, while Mr. A. J. E. Allen captured the prize for the scaled hole competition. In the afternoon a mixed two ball foursome match took place and Mr. A. P. Allen and Mrs. C. C. Walker were winners.

The course has never looked better this opening day, the greens and fairways being in perfect condition. The holes have all been lengthened and hazards have been added considerably for long driving. Mr. Joe Cather, chairman of the Greens Committee, is deserving of congratulations on his efforts. Supt. Fleming, Mrs. C. C. Walker is chairman of the House Committee and the interior of the club house presents a pleasing appearance with decorations and spring flower for the holiday.

BASEBALL IS USHERED IN 'MID MOST FRIGID WEATHER CONDITIONS

Ulsters and Top Coats Were Popular at The Ball Park

King Baseball, that venerable and stately figure, is again occupying the throne. The old monarch, looking even younger than ever, was crowned locally yesterday before several Junetime loyal subjects, all of whom once again paid homage to the old master. His reign commences here on Queen Victoria's birthday and usually ends when the leaves are falling.

Frankly speaking it was anything but an auspicious opening. The weather man acted like a misbehaved boy and consequently more than one ball fan dog the sister out of the kitchen closet while topcoats were very much in order. It was really made-to-order football weather, but you can't keep the gyrd-in-the-wool fans away.

The crowd was not nearly as large as that of former years and this may be attributed to the fact that baseball hovered between life and death here for many weeks.

The diamond was in splendid condition. Some said that they never had looking better. The new white lines drawn parallel from the grand stand formed a beautiful comparison with the green grass. Even the old king baseball, to wit, the players, appeared long before game time, and began limbering up their arms. Then on little pellets came from somewhere and the majority looked as though they had remained in the box all winter supply. Some of the players were clean, while uniforms straight from the laundry and the latest cheer chose to parade in soiled variety.

Slowly the stands filled and the fandemonium while the gladiators prepared for action. Five gentlemen came from behind the stand and walked with importance to the centre of the field. They were quite easily recognized as officials. Some of them looked as though they hated the jobs which had been given them. Too players grouped around the flag-pole. There was no mascot but they were defied as the Union Jack was flung to the breeze, followed by the five pennants won by the Nationals.

The men in mufti walked to the diamond and each chose for himself a piece of baseball paraphernalia. Geo. Stokes threw a waist-high offering. It might have been the nipper-dipper but all agreed how. Mayor George Reid waited patiently. Finally he hollered once out to his colleague. R. A. Elliott, prexy of the league, called a catcher that he is one of the best presidents the Central Ontario League has ever had. They conferred and the umpire and the uniformed figures went to their places.

By this time the wind was cutting across the park while the fans hide-and-seek in the clouds.

The umps came out and announced something which nobody understood. Nobody seemed to know the umpsname but he had gray hair and came from Kingston.

Two new white balls were thrown out and the pitcher unrolled himself and looked at the batter in the centre of the plate. One foul. Another foul. There was no excitement in the first frame. Nobody seemed to be up and made things lively. One, two, three, four runs crossed the plate. Almost enough, some one said.

The Kingston pitcher seemed discouraged as one run after the other piled the task harder. He plodded on valiantly.

It was getting colder. Ten fans trifled their ushers from time to time yelling at intervals but it was only a half-hearted effort. One ball went over the fence and another was produced. There was a real dearth of balls. Cutting down expenses, a spectator said. The mascot was kept busy retrieving them.

A score of the customers stung by the zephyrs headed for the exits and more followed convinced that Belleville had won.

Long live the King!

PICTORIAL GOLF INSTRUCTION
(By H. B. Martin)

Upright Swing Produces Straight Ball

The beginner should cultivate the upright swing if he intends to be stylish at golf. It also produces the best results, but in and day out. When we use a flat swing that is, one that comes more around the body, we are constantly in danger of hooking. Again if we fear a hook and let up the least bit elbows and the ball will be pushed off to the right.

Hitting the ball with an upright swing and permitting the club head to continue on through will produce a straight ball. There may be some danger in lopping, but this fault cannot be chronic, nor even serious enough to be considered. Topping is a fault that comes from lifting the head and among stars it is only an occasional occurrence.

BAY OF QUINTE GOLFING SEASON IS UNDER WAY

'Subs and Duffers' Provided the Fun on the Holiday

Yesterday afternoon the subs and duffers match officially opened the golfing season at the Bay of Quinte Country Club. While the weather was anything but conducive to good golf, some splendid scores were published. Twenty-one players composed each team and an eighteen hole match was played. In consideration of the fact that some of those taking part were making their debut in the golfing realm, the scores were particularly good. Twenty-seven points were scored by each team.

At the conclusion of the match, luncheon was served in the club house under the direction of Steward Cunningham. Dr. Blakslee, President of the Country Club was complimented on the excellent condition of the fairways and greens. Messrs. R. J. E. Graham, A. V. Ulmer, W. A. Parker, Dr. Bickle, O. A. C. Weir and R. D. Ponton spoke briefly remarking on the efficiency under which the Club is being conducted. Mr. A. Wray, Chairman of the House Committee, was the recipient of many congratulations for the splendid work and improvements which have been made. Dr. Blakslee urged that the members take a keen interest in the welfare of the club and he pictured a most promising future for the organization.

HOLIDAY RACES

A much larger contingent of spectators turned out yesterday to witness the events of the Y.M.C.A. interpublic school relay and the three mile run than these events have ever been favored with on any previous occasion, which they were run. Heretofore these races have been run on Thanksgiving Day and in making the switch to the month of May the Physical Committee of the Y.M.C.A. was wise thing.

But teams composed of six runners each, were on hand for the Public School event and along with the teams either the Principal or Assistant of each school, which speaks well for the interest taken by the pedagogues when they are willing to sacrifice a portion of their holiday to be with their respective teams. The boys from the Ontario School for the Deaf were deserving winners of the relay as they had to overcome considerable lost ground in order to head down the final stretch. The race was won by them in the very last lap with Queen Mary School giving them a real battle for the honors. The latter team gained a nice lead with their two runners but were not able to hold it against flying finish displayed by the Deaf Boys, who retained their fastest men for the finishing positions. The following is the order in which the teams finished and the runners composing same.

1. Ontario School for Deaf—C. Ormiodley, W. Burtle, G. Bostnari, R. Latour, D. Osborne, R. Foster.
2. Queen Mary School—D. Bradford, J. Keels, J. McBrath, J. Andrews, R. Phillips, B. Hall.
3. King George School—E. Farrar, H. Green, C. Osbourne, J. Harvey, O. Asseltine, J. Miller.
4. Queen Victoria School—R. Stewart, A. Cooper, W. Pepper, O. Langman, R. Morgan, J. Saunders.
5. St. Michael's Academy—R. Doyle, J. McNab, R. Mcservey, J. Forrester, T. Langton, J. Barrett.

Barber Overcomes Handicap

Although he did not start until a minute after the rest of the runners in the three mile run, Clifford Barber of the local Y's Men's Club, was able to overtake the field and finish with a comfortable margin at the end. His time of 16M13S although not particularly fast, was decidedly good for the condition of the track following the rain of the previous night Even with the handicap he had to overcome of half a minute over the next runner to finish, who was Bert Girling. Bert's time for the distance was 16M41S. Nine runners faced the starter and all finished with one exception.

The runners and their time was as follows:

1. C. Barber, 16M. 13S.; 2. Bert Girling, 16M.16.; 3. R. Cirling, 16M. 123.; 4. A. Angel, 16M.; 30S.; 5. A. Ergleton, 16M. 25S.; 6. J. Murphy, 19M. 35S.; 7. S. McElrath, 21M. 20S.

8. B. Fair, 22M. 20S.

A great deal of credit is due some of developing into middle distance runners and if they follow it up, should be heard from in future meets.

HOLIDAY ON GOLF COURSE

Many Competitions for Women at Belleville Golf Club

The women members of the Belleville Golf Club enjoyed their favorite pastime over the holiday although the weather was anything but agreeable. Considerable progress has been made in the play of the women devotees of this popular game and some fine scores were turned in by the ladies' captain, Mrs. A. H. Ketcheson. The course was in excellent condition and the cosy grate fire in the clubhouse was an inviting place after a stiff round on the links. Afternoon tea was served both Saturday and yesterday afternoon many taking advantage of the innovation. The clubhouse was delightfully decorated with seasonable blooms.

On Saturday, an 18-hole medal round was played with Mrs. A. H. Ketchesen winning the low gross score and Mrs. Joseph Gather winning the low net. Mrs. C. C. Walker won the medal hole competition in the first flight and Mrs. "Ted" Orr the same competition for the second flight. Mrs. H. Scott vanquished all on the putting green winning the competition. Yesterday another 18-hole medal round was held, prizes being given for the least number of field shots and the least number of putts. Mrs. Walter Reeves played an exceedingly even game in the first flight completing nine holes in 48, there being 33 field shots and 15 putts in the round. Mrs. John Kerr won the competition for the least number of putts in the first flight. Mrs. "Ted" Orr played a splendid game of golf in the second flight while Miss Marion Lyons and Mrs. Kenneth Hill were tied for the least number of putts in the same flight. Mrs. C. C. Walker and Mrs. Percy Allen were tied for the putting competition and will replay the course at a future time.

PUPILS HEARD IN RECITAL AT PICTON

Pupils of Miss Effie Williamson were heard in a splendid recital which took place in the Baptist Church at Picton. The church was crowded to capacity with the parents and interested friends of the young artists. Miss Williamson made a few introductory remarks and then called upon the pupils, who rendered a very interesting programme. The first part of the programme was devoted to the very youthful section of the class and it would be true to say that so far as the work of these advanced pupils solicited them-selves with similar glory and executed difficult numbers with the utmost ease and skill.

Miss Williamson's pupils presented her with gorgeous flowers. The presentation was made by Misses Mildred McLaughlin and Lillian Dawe, and the address read by Miss Bessie Wheeler.

Miss Williamson expressed her surprise and thanks in a few well chosen words, and the performance ended with the National Anthem.

CITY OF BELLEVILLE

Notice of Intention to Construct a Permanent Pavement on North Front Street from the Upper Bridge to the North Line of Earl Street

TAKE NOTICE THAT:

1. The Council of the Corporation of the City of Belleville intends to construct as a Local Improvement a permanent pavement on North Front Street from the Upper Bridge to the North Line of Earl Street together with curbing on each side of the pavement, together with all rentals and extensions of water services, gas services and mains to be provided and connections from the main sewer to the street line and all necessary works to provide for surface drainage.

2. The estimated cost of the said work is $16,567.00 of which $8,806.00 is to be paid by the Corporation. The estimated cost per foot frontage is $5.10. The special assessment is to be paid in fifteen annual instalments and the lifetime of the pavement is fifteen years.

3. A petition to the said Council will not avail to prevent the construction, but a petition against the work in the manner in which it has been undertaken may be made pursuant to Section 8 of the Local Improvement Act to the Ontario Railway and Municipal Board by a majority of the owners representing at least one-half of the value of the lots which are to be specially assessed therefor.

4. A by-law for the undertaking of the work will be considered by the Council at a meeting thereof to be held on the 9th day of June, 1930, or at a regular or special meeting to be held therefore.

Dated May 12th, 1930.

IN MEMORIAM

MAYNE—In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Robert H. Mayne, who passed away May 28, 1928.

God is good, He gives us strength,
To bear our cross,
He is the one who knows
How bitter is our loss.

We miss him at a thousand turns
In every busy way
For life to us is not the same
Since he has called away.

It's not at the time that pains are shrd
That the heart is torn,
But the accustomed turn in days
And remembrance silently borne.
—Sadly missed by wife and child.

OBITUARY

LATE LYMAN F. MOON

The funeral of the late Lyman F. Moon took place from the residence of his father-in-law, Mr. P. White, 43 Highland Avenue, on Saturday. The service was held at the house at 2 p.m. with Rev. Dr. Bell of Bridge Street United Church officiating, assisted by Rev. Dr. Baker. The Masonic service was taken charge of by his Lodge No. 69, of Stirling and was conducted by Past Master C. B. Johnston, assisted by W. M. Dr. E. A. Carleton. A large number of people attended the last rites and the floral tributes were many and beautiful. The bearers were Past Masters W. H. Reid, T. W. Solmes, W. H. Heath, H. Rollins, C. F. Walt and Bro. A. H. Carrigal, of Madoc. Interment was made in Stirling cemetery.

How a man was acquitted of manslaughter 1,600 years ago is illustrated on the only legal record preserved from the heathen Visting time in Sweden, recently discovered on the face of a rock.

In the British House of Commons members wear their hats while seated.

CUT-IN DRIVERS FORCED CAR IN DITCH

Cutting in" forced a driver to take to the ditch near the home of Col. W. N. Ponton on the King's Highway early last evening. The car was overturned in the ditch but the occupants fortunately escaped without serious injury excepting a slight shaking up. The car was soon righted on the road by a wrecking crew from a local garage and after minor repairs will be again ready for the road. The driver was coming east on the highway while three cars following each other were proceeding west. The last car tried to pass the two cars in front and the second car also took out at the same time as the third. Their numbers were not obtained.

Miss Bernice Davison of this city, was the guest of friends in Kingston, for the week-end.

Miss Leila Totton, Toronto, spent the week-end with her mother, Mrs. B. Totton, Victoria avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Cooper of Elmvale, were the guests of Mr. John Cooper, Bleecker avenue, over the holiday.

Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Hayes and family of Toronto, were the guests of the former's father, Mr. F. Hayes, over the holiday.

Mrs. N. L. Massey of Wadena, Sask. and Mrs. MacLean of Morrisburg, spent the week end with Mrs. S. E. Ladd, Dundas Street.

Mrs. H. S. McKrath and daughter motored to Elmvale this morning and will be the guests of Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Cooper for a short time.

Mr. Thos. Hobson visited at his home over the week end. Two of his friends accompanied him, Mr. Jack Assting and Norm Harnsworth of Brampton.

Mr. Ed. Luster of Montreal, vice-president of the Canadian Industrial Alcohol Company, accompanied by Mr. Luster, were the guests of Mr. Fisher Wilmore, Corbyville, over the holiday.

Mr. John Thompson, Charlotte St., has just returned from Toronto where he has been visiting his grandson, Mr. Jack Reeves. He was accompanied by his daughter, Mrs. Emma Reeves. Both report having spent a pleasant holiday in the Queen City.

Miss Margaret Malyea, formerly of this city will graduate from St. Michael's Hospital, Toronto, on June 4th. The exercises will be held under the auspices of the sisters of St. Joseph in Columbus Hall.

Mrs. J. W. Elmear was tea hostess at the Belleville Golf Club on Saturday and Monday. Mrs. W. G. Mikel poured tea on Saturday while Mrs. J. J. Farley poured tea yesterday. The club house was a picture of loveliness and the rooms were filled with beautiful spring flowers.

Gordon Lane son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Lane of Belleville who has been confined to the Kingston General Hospital following an accident in that city last week is progressing nicely and will be able to leave the institution within a few days. He will, however, be forced to undergo treatment for some time yet.

Congratulations are being extended to Mr. C. F. Edger, he having won the Pharmacy Gold Medal for Prescriptions at Toronto. Mr. Bolder is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Bolder of Melrose, he having served his apprenticeship with Mr. Allan Schryver, druggist of this city. He is also a graduate of Belleville High School.

One of the most pleasant events tendered the nurses' graduating class of the Belleville General Hospital this year was the tea given by Mr. and Mrs. Frank Reid of Trenton Road. Some twenty-six healthy happy young people did ample justice to the bountiful supper provided for their entertainment. The decorations were artistic and the evening spent in games and music went all too quickly and the hour for parting came too soon. A vote of thanks was tendered Mr. and Mrs. Reid for their thoughtful and genuine hospitality and the event will long be remembered as one of the most pleasant given for the 1930 graduates. The event proved Miss Florence Reid, a thoughtful hostess as well as a coworker on duty at the hospital.

NIC FRATICELLI CASE CONCLUDED

Is Given Suspended Sentence On Stabbing Case By Magistrate

Nearly all the cases coming before Magistrate Mikel today in police court were remanded for further investigation. Nicola Fraticelli, charged with causing grievous bodily harm by stabbing to Joe Calasses at a party recently held on Bleecker Street, elected summary trial and pleaded guilty to the offence. Magistrate Mikel suspended sentence on the young Italian for one year and ordered him to pay the costs of the court amounting to $28.50. The injury caused to Calasses was not serious.

William Brickman, charged with an offence under the criminal code in connection with an automobile accident that caused injury to Sam Burns of Picton, was laid over till the 4th of June as the defense was not ready to proceed. Bail was renewed for Mr. Brickman.

A young man could not get over the holiday without a little beer party and it cost him $22.00 for his amusement. The fine was paid with a smile.

One motorist was fined $3.00 for speeding and another for not obeying a "stop" sign.

It was very quiet in police circles over the week-end, no accidents of consequence were reported. Children were careful in the handling of firecrackers and explosives, accord'ng to the police and not one report came to the mof injuries sustained. The citizens obeyed the law with respect to exploding firecrackers and torpedoes on the main street, the police however keeping a strict watch. Traffic in the city was light according to Traffic Officer Bert Frank, many of the motoring public being out of the city.

Bennett Makes Plea for Delay Before Final Commitment by Govt.

Ottawa, May 27.—On the verge of making the final commitment necessary to confirm Canada's all-but-attained independence of status in the British Commonwealth, the House of Commons last night heard from Hon. R. B. Bennett a moving appeal for delay in order that the Canadian people might fully consider the far-reaching effects of the final step.

"If I had the power this night," declared the Opposition leader, while the benches behind him thundered with applause, "I should not ask that these amendments be made without full consideration by the Canadian people of the whole question. The citizens obeyed the law with respect to ing of the Imperial Conference this Fall be instructed to give effect to the conclusions of the sub-committee of the last conference. These conclusions would make the Dominion laws conform in substance with the status of nationhood conferred at the conference of 1926.

These legal amendments, all highly technical, but nevertheless of great importance, were examined closely in the Opposition leader's speech, but the same time his remarks centered did those of their previous speakers, on the principle that flanned such controversy after the 1926 conference, namely the principle of Canada assuming an independence of status.

"We have cut loose the painter," Mr. Bennett declared. "We have let go the moorings that have tied us heretofore to Great Britain."

"COPYRIGHT AND FOR SALE IN BOOK FORM AT ALL BOOK STORES"

I finally saw hundreds of them coming from the south-east, and alighting all around the premises, most-ly in the pond mentioned, and the air was continual-ly echoing with their honks. They I heard the voice of the gander I was looking for. I knew the tone, for I went straight to it, and found him guarding a nest with one egg in it. This explained to me why he did not answer the night before. Yes, I was over a half a mile away when I heard and knew his voice from the thousands of others. And before you doubt my word, I want to ask you: If you were in a city of millions of people and on going to the telephone a voice you had been acquainted with for thirteen years or the voice of one of your own household came tingling into your ear, would you not know this voice? This question is just as reasonable.

On October 10th, as we were eating breakfast, six geese dropped on the pond. I left my porridge and went to the floor and called "Chuckle! Chuckle! Chuckle!" The old gander raised his head and answered loud-ly. So I went to the barn and got a quite sack of corn, came back and went into the park where they were. When within about fifty, feet I stopped and had a good look at them. Then just to see what they would do, I threw an ear of corn at the old gander. The four young at once jumped to the air, but he only said "A-h-h! A-a-h!" and all dropped down again. So I threw another ear, and they again jumped, and he spoke again in exactly the same tone, "A-a-h!" A-a-h!" (All is well!) and they immediately dropped on the ground as before. This was repeated several times. He may have told them that that flock was strong in the back and weak in the mind and didn't care to eat as wild geese; at any rate when I threw the last few cars they took his word for it and did not attempt to fly. My reason for throwing the corn at him was to prove to my own satisfaction that he had seen me throw it before, as, when taking a bag of corn out, I sometimes stand still and throw it around them. This old fellow's confidence in the safety of this place will be fully explained to you when I say that he actually dodged some of these ears. Yet it took him fully fifteen minutes to convince his family that there was no danger. The good, his mate needed no introduction to an ear of corn; she started eating the very first opportunity, but the four young ones were dreadfully shy of those golden ears of corn, and it did amuse me to see him introducing them to it. With one eye focused on me he would reach down and pick up the ear in his beak, shake it until he got that grain loose, then reach out and drop this kernel at the feet of one of these big babies. But when he did get them started they cleaned up nearly every cobb before it came his turn to start in. Yes, as hungry as he evidently was, he stood guard until the other five ravenous appetites were relieved then willingly took the leavings. The above they had come over the top for a long way, these six geese six every kernel of these twelve small ears, at the one meal. Then after going in the pond for a few minutes they came out on the green and to rest and did not fly around for a day or two.

In about ten days they were as tame as ours and I concluded we would drive them under the net. So one day when all was quiet and no stranger about, I asked my mother-in-law's daughter to help me and she cheerfully consented. We unrolled enough binding-twine to go clear across the pond; then as she held one end and I the other, stretching it about two feet above the water, we drove them quietly towards the net. Finally once, which are educated to that purpose, led the way the six followed them in and the trap-door fell. I, being so confident of getting them, had six tags already stamped, and they were in my pocket, so I opened the door and let our geese walk out. The six others huddled together in the corner of the pet, but as I approached the gander opened his wings and faced me. I at once overpowered him and clamped a tag on his hind leg, then took him to the door and let him go. Did he fly away to the lake? No! He did not fly two rods, but lit about twenty-five feet from the door, and his beautiful breast just heaved as he called aloud for his loved ones, "A-honk! A-honk! A-honk!" The interpretation is, "Come on! Come on! Come on!" As I was catching number two I heard a commotion at the door; I looked around, and this lady who was holding it preferred being on the inside looking out, for this old gander had come back and was fighting the wire to get in at me. To be brief, he never left the door until every one of his family was liberated.

Now remember, I am telling about the same species of bird that I once crowned all the buttons off my wide-bone whiting to get a shot at him with a high-powered rifle, fully three fields away; and, by the thousands at other men who have tried the same plan, I seldom succeeded. But now he was trying to get where he could catch me with his wings. Well, for his faithfulness I resaught him and put a tag on each of his legs, making the number of the six geese. On each of these seven tags we stamped the following verse of Scripture: "No good thing will He withhold from them that walk uprightly, Psalms 84:11." We named this gander Sir John Moore, after a noted self-sacrificing General I have often heard father speak of.

They all migrated in December, and the first week in March I received the following letter:

To whom it may concern: —

Outside of tag, "Write Box 48, Kingsville, Ontario." Inside of tag, "No good thing will he withhold from them that walk uprightly."

These words were found on a band on a wild male goose's leg. The gander was captured March 1st, 1918, and I am doing as their words on the band requested.

He was certainly a nice one, weighed twelve pounds and as fat as butter.

I certainly would be pleased to hear from you telling me how, when, where and why the band was put on his leg, and I wish you could please tell me all you can about the habits of the wild fowl up in your country.

They come down here in December, but the winter was so cold this year that they went further south; but they came back in February and are still here. They feed in the rivers and creeks at night, and at sunrise they fly out in the wheat fields for green wheat until sundown, and then go back to the river. They leave here for the far north about the middle of March.

I remain waiting for your reply,

Linden Archibald.

Kennedyville, Kent Co.,

Maryland, U. S. A.

I at once wrote Mr. Archibald and he kindly returned the tag.

On March 19th as we were sailing dinner one of my boys spoke up quick ly and pointing out the window exclaimed, "Look, father! Look!" And sure enough, here was Sir John Moore and four or five of his family standing in front of the window eating corn, the two bright tags glittering on his legs.

This Moore family stayed together nearly all the time they were here, the five of them going to the lake at night and returning early next morning. Fortunately it was one of the young that got killed, hence the family was not broken up.

Now and then during the month of April the Johnson and Smith youngsters, yes and sometimes the McDonalds and Jones' and other young Canadian tin numerous to mention, would call on these three young Moores and all would go about the premises together, apparently playing "Piney wants a corner," "Drop the handkerchief," "Coward, coward, can't catch me," and so forth. But I never knew these, or any other young Canada geese, to be guns from their parents over an hour at a time during their stay here in March and April, and I am confident these families do not break up until they reach the nesting ground.

Well, about the 25th of April, 1918, Sir John Moore and his family disappeared, and in August I received the following letter:

Port George, Hudson Bay,

June 26th, 1918.

Dear Mr. Miner,—

Enclosed find four tags which I received this morning from an Indian, and as our boat is just leaving for the South, I am sending them to you at once. He tells me an interesting thing about these tags, as he says there was a flock of seven geese came to Quill-decora, and this Indian and another got four of them, each of which had two tags on.

There was a good flight of geese this spring, but not very many were killed.

The waiwa, or snow geese, were very numerous this spring. The Indians say that they have not seen so many for a long time.

Hoping the tags reach you safe, I remain,

Yours Sincerely,

L. C. Mayor.

Port George, Hudson Bay,

The reader can scarcely imagine my feelings when I read the message that each one of these tags contained: "No good thing will h ewithhold from them that walk uprightly." This was proof that Sir John Moore's family was exterminated. It was not that I am opposed to the Indians getting the geese; no, no. It was only the thought of my special pets all being killed. As for the Indians and Esquimaux getting these birds, I believe all honest, conscientious, thinking men will agree with me that there are no people in America who are more justified in shooting them than these natives up at Ickle Junction with their backs to the wall trying to exist. Personally I feel that the best missionary work I have ever done in my life is the thousands of geese I have fattened up and permitted to go back to that isolated country where they were hatched.

Although these tags were mailed from Port George, Hudson Bay, the Indians may have brought them for three or even five hundred miles, Port George being their trading post.

Gravestones of "Acadie" London Work Delves Into History

London, May 24—The Evolution of Gravestones is a subject on which little has been written, but W. B. Dalton, A.R.C.A., of London has contributed to a lavishly-illustrated and finely bound book by William English Moore a study on the "Gravestones of Acadie" which may stimulate others to make architectural or quasi-scientific notes when wandering through old grave-yards hereafter. The book is obtainable through Bernard Quaritch, London, a dealer in rare, artistic and scientific works. It is printed in two states, and the edition de luxe is certainly a collector's item, as it consists of 25 copies only, obtainable at around $8.00.

The writer of the monograph quotes an epitaph he once took time to copy:

"This truth how certain
When this life is ore
We died to live
And lived to die no more."

He seems to infer that the classic inscriptions, "Lord she was little" may be found on an Acadian gravestone.

Early English headstones represented here, have a close affinity to the Elizabethan monuments, the oldest monuments are of slate, the flat stone earlier than the headstone. "All stones previous to the 18th century, have something beautiful and dignified about them," says the writer.

The evolution in design—references to the skull, curved wings the cherub, the meander border the inclsing of the s ornamentation, rounding the edges—is similar to Egyptian wall sculpture, an effect of low relief. "The skull before 1800 is never a realistic treatment. It is a mason's convention, something handed down from the past, age to age, and in the process the horrors of death are vanquished."

The Acadia old gravestones have been cared for Chamberlain—it is said they refused to stay there—and also, broken in halves, as steps.

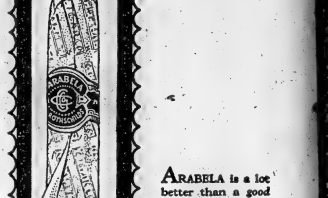
One of the most interesting chapters is that devoted to the colonization of Nova Scotia, and the data concerning the importation of the province's descendants from the passengers on that boat. Properly authenticated descendants in the United States and Canada now number 1692. There were 104 passengers on the ship when she landed in Plymouth in 1630; from only 41 of this number can descent now be proved, for the other 54 left no children. Twelve of these were representatives of the early settlements of Liverpool, Nova Scotia, viz, Bradford, Brewster, Winslow, Tilly, Allerton, Standish, Howland, White, Warren, Hopkins, Tinkham and Doty. Six were dubbed "Mr."; the others "plain." The Barnabys or Burnabys and Mayflower descendants through several lines. As for the Chipmans—a family widely scattered in Canada of today—an interesting note on "first family" names is to be found in these pages: Zechariah, son of the first Stanley Chipman who preached in Ragged Islands, had children whose names were Zerxes, Zechariah, Zenophon Alexander, Vortigen George and Origen Holmes.

WHALERS' SEASON HAS NOW OPENED

Victoria, B. C., May 24 (C P), — Once again the fleet of little steel steamers which some years ago supplanted the slower but more picturesque schooners has started for the open Pacific to search for whales.

The fleet consisting of six vessels, is owned by the Consolidated Whaling Corporation, is now heading for the various up-coast stations where they will remain all summer.

The whaling industry yields approximately $250,000 in revenue annually. Last year 388 whales were captured, which is a substantial increase over the previous year. This year officials of the company hope to exceed the 400 mark.



The valuable spermacetti while from which sperm oil is produced has apparently been increasing in numbers in the North Pacific and last year's catch of this species was much greater than usual.

Weather conditions are an important factor in the quest for whales and storms have often interfered with the

EARLY DIPPING IS SUGGESTED

About a month after shearing, when the sheep have grown sufficient wool to hold the dipping solution, is the proper time for dipping, and all authorities agree that if the operation is to be successful it is essential that every animal in the flock, from the young lambs to the oldest ram, must have this annual spring bath. If any individuals are overlooked, the external parasites on these will soon infest the whole flock again.

This job is a very simple one in most parts of the country today. In many cases, Government officials have cooperated with local groups of farmers and put in efficient concrete tanks through which hundreds of sheep may be passed in a few hours. Then too, it is possible to buy a dip in powder form which only requires the careful following of a few directions to make a dipping solution of a definitely known strength which will not only kill all the developed ticks, but is strong enough to last and kill any which may hatch from eggs within three weeks.

Dipping should be done slowly and carefully, and every part of the animal must be immersed. It is well to let the sheep dry in the shade, as slow-drying prolongs the action of the dip. A dry, warm day is the best time as the fleece then will not be saturated with water which, of course, would weaken the dipping solution. One cannot expect sheep and lambs to make the best use of the excellent pasture now provided if they have to fight ticks at the same time.

LEGISLATION OF IMPORTANCE TO NOVA SCOTIA

Outstanding Enactments Including Govt. Control and Revised Policy

Halifax, N. S., May 24—April 17 will go down in the legislative history of Nova Scotia as a date to reckon time by, for on that day, after four weeks of argument and amendment, the bill to provide for the regulation and sale of alcoholic liquors was read a third time. But the session of the House of Assembly which ended with the close of April was notable for several enactments that may, in the long run, take nearly equal rank with Government Control. Prorogation found the province with a new forest policy, embodied in an amendment to the Land Tax Act, providing for the regulation of pulpwood cutting on large lots by license from the Minister of Lands and Forests. An upward step in social legislation was the enactment of a provision for allowances to certain members of dependent children. An amendment to the Education Act practically created a new class of subsidized High Schools; and Nova Scotia was brought into line with seven of the other provinces in the adoption of legislation to prevent fraud in the sale of securities.

Laws respecting fire insurance policies, bills of sale, and chattel mortgages and conditional sales of goods were made uniform by amendment.

Widest interest, of course, centred around the Government Control debates. Introduced by Premier Rhodes on March 20, the bill finally emerged from the process of amendment in committee and Committee of the Whole House four weeks later, when it was passed without a dissenting vote, although the Opposition had voted solidly against it on second reading. The Act, which will come into force by proclamation, probably early in July, provides for the sale of liquor at such places as the commission, yet to be named, may select, with approval of the Governor-in-Council, providing that no store shall be established in any municipality that voted dry in the plebiscite last October. A provision under which dry municipalities might have reversed their vote at a local plebiscite was withdrawn for at least a year when members of the opposition sought to have a clause inserted allowing wet municipalities the same privilege, the Premier's contention being that such provisions would open the way for continuous local quarrels on the temperance question.

Municipalities in wet counties, how ever, may authorize by local plebiscite the sale of beer and wine, by hotels at meals only, and beer and wine by the class in commission parlors but no municipalities, wet or dry, in a dry county may authorize such sale.

Bill 151, providing for the licensing of pulpwood cutting on woodlots of 1,000 acres, or more, proved practically as contentious as the clauses of the Government Control Bill. Prior to the session, Attorney General the Hon. W. L. Hall, Minister of Lands and Forests, had forecast government action to control unrestricted export of pulpwood sometime in the near future. This action, he told the House, would not be stringent. He doubted the power of the provincial parliament to impose an export tax, and an embargo was impracticable.

The attitude of the opposition was that the bill was a restriction on the rights of free holders. They favored its withdrawal until the government could state the relation of present cutting to natural growth.

The government's position was that circumstances might arise, through restriction of cutting or depletion of other forests, which would lead to the stripping of Nova Scotia's large forest areas, largely held by United States interests, in a year or two. They wished to see an act on statute book, which could be proclaimed and brought into force at a moment's notice in this eventuality.

The bill differs from the Ontario Act in that it does not apply to areas of less than 1,00 acres, and that cutting shall be by license under conditions named by the Minister of Lands and Forests, rather than by the filing of a schedule of prospective cuttings.

The Mother Allowances Act provides for a maximum of $60 monthly to widowed mothers of two or more dependent children. Compensation from other sources is to be taken into account in computing the maximum.

The Education Act Amendment brings High Schools employing University graduates under the same provisions as County Academies with respect to Government grants. These High Schools, previously unsubsidized, may now draw annual amounts ranging from $250 to $1200, depending on the number of teachers employed. Grants are also provided for classes in science, art, music, and for retarded pupils.

The "Blue Sky" legislation adopted to prevent fraud in the sale of securities, was substantially that agreed upon at the conference of attorneys general in Toronto.

FIND THAT BELL HELPS SHEPHERD

Canadian sheepmen are rapidly coming to the opinion that the old European custom of "belling" sheep is backed by something more substantial than a love for music. True the soothing tinkle of many toned bells does seem to blend with a beautiful rural landscape, but the same attachments when shaken violently can convey another and more sinister meaning.

Originally, the bells were used to frighten away marauding wolves and dogs and incidentally, too, as a means of locating a straying flock. The belief is growing in this country that where several of the older ewes and rams are belled the sheep are much less liable to attack, and certainly if disturbed a warning is quickly carried ... Case in charge.

The Basque shepherds in the hills of the Pyrenees Mountains in Southern France were among the first to adopt the custom, and it was to these people that the Canadian Cooperative Wool Growers went direct with a request for a supply of their famous light, clear-toned, far-carrying bells which are made in the little village forges from brass and copper scrap, collected on the battle-field. That Canadian sheepmen are quickly learning what the Basque shepherd learned when first he began to range his flocks along the Northern Borders of Spain is indicated by the fact that the Wool Growers have already distributed almost a thousand of these bells to Canadian Sheep and cattle men this Spring.

Research Branch Has Great Plans

Dr. K. N. Tory Tells of Work Done to Date by Body

Ottawa, Ont., May 24—Characterizing the development of the research facilities in Canada as "the significant expression of a vigorous nation," Dr H. M. Tory, president of the National Research Council of Canada, outlined something of the work of that body to date and the plans for the immediate future, in a recent radio address. Research Council, with the $1,000,000 laboratories now under construction at Ottawa Dr. Tory averred, is being organized with the express intention of serving all Canada from Nova Scotia to British Columbia.

More than 100 specific investigations under the council are being conducted in 11 university and 14 government and industrial laboratories. Dr. Tory stated. Fifty promising students of science are taking post-graduate training in research in Canada or abroad as a result of council scholarships. More than 100 holders of council scholarships have now received their doctor of philosophy degrees and are making their contribution to science. More than 30 committees of the council with a total membership of more than 400 specialists in their particular field, are engaged in the study of research problems; aeronautics, animal diseases, leather, wool, apple slacks, cereal rust, coal classification, field crop diseases, natural gas grain, heating and insulation, laundry honey, forestry, tuberculosis, and weed control to list a few of them.

"For the several positions in the two divisions to which appointments are now being made" Dr. Tory continued, "more than 300 applications were received from Canada, Great Britain and the United States. True research means that extension of man's knowledge. We must secure the best brains we have. Some appointments made have brought Canadians back from the United States, and others are of men who were aided in their rise to their present positions by council scholarships."

Dr. Tory referred to the fact that he had just returned from serving as chairman of the royal commission charged with an investigation of the fruit industry in Nova Scotia. "I found, an awakened consciousness there and an increased appreciation of the possibilities of the scientific man," he said.

NEW WOOL COMING IN

Ontario wool is beginning to roll into the Weston warehouse of the Canadian Co-operative Wool Growers in considerable volume, it is announced. The warm weather is responsible for the heaviness of this early shearing, although in recent years Ontario farmers are beginning to more generally adopt the practice of early shearing. The new wool coming forward is under contract, over 1600 agreements being signed by Ontario farmers alone so far. Wool Growers officials state that three and a quarter million pounds of the total Canadian clip has now been signed up under contract.

A dozen 1 silver gilt steeple cup and cover were sold recently in London for $16,500.

FIFTY YEARS OF CONSTANT ENTERPRISE

HE JUS' KNEW IT WAS READY

A good oil refiner used to be like an old-fashioned cook—he just "knew" when the batch of oil in his still was ready. He used to estimate it by chewing some of the pitchy residue from the bottom of the still.

Fifty years ago, when Imperial Oil was a new company making kerosene for oil lamps, that was all right. But the automobile—the Diesel engine—the airplane—a dozen developments of industry and transportation—have demanded and depend today upon exact perfection of gasoline and lubrication.

It has been the work of Imperial Oil to achieve such perfection by constant enterprise. Today, every still in Imperial's six great refineries is under thermostatic control. The crude oil is refined to the exact second and at the exact degree of heat which endless experiments in Imperial's laboratories have set as correct.

Imperial Oil has become a large company—its stations in every corner of Canada—its ships on the Atlantic and Pacific—its miles of tank cars—its pipelines in South America—its caches in the Arctic. It has grown because it has met each new demand with new effort and achievement.

People have learned that, wherever they go, they can buy Imperial Oil products with confidence.

Marvelube is Imperial's finest motor oil.

Imperial Premier and Imperial Ethyl are its best gasolines.

Which means that nothing finer can be put in your car.

DEPARTMENT OF INTERIOR HAS NEW HANDBOOK

Ottawa, Ont., May 26—The northwest Territories 1930 is the title of an attractively illustrated handbook of 197 pages which the Northwest Territories and Yukon Branch of the Department of the Interior has just issued. This work is a concise compendium of general facts relating to Northern Canada and has been prepared to meet the rapidly increasing demand for authentic information concerning those regions to which so much attention has been directed recently through the exploits of aerial prospecting operators and the lifting of the Coppermine mineral reserve.

Accurate and up-to-date information is given respecting the extent, climate, transportation facilities and governmental organizations of the Territories. A brief historical sketch is included and outlines are given of the expansion of the fur trade, the work of Indians, the activity of prospectors exploratory and scientific expeditions carried out by officers of the Department of the Interior and of other government organizations. It is the policy of Hon. Charles Stewart, minister of the interior, to make known promptly and lucidly the results of these investigations, particularly those respecting the value and extent of the natural resources.

The economic situation of the Indians and Eskimos who inhabit those regions and the wild life, on which they are so dependent for their existence, are dealt with in considerable detail. The wild bison of Mackenzie District, the barren-ground caribou, the musk-ox, the fur-bearing animals, the fish and the aquatic mammals of Arctic waters are described. The government's reindeer venture is outlined and the story of the recent discovery of the nesting grounds of the Blue Goose is briefly narrated. The mineral possibilities are dealt with and the mining and prospecting situation is brought up to date.

HAD KIDNEY TROUBLE AND FOUND RELIEF

That's Why Mrs. I. Barcoyne Recommends Doddʼs Kidney Pills

She Suffered With Urinary Troubles—No After Effects of the "Flu"—Doddʼs Kidney Pills Relieved Her

Hesketh's Cove, N.S., May 26 (Special)—"I have been using Doddʼs Kidney Pills for a long time," writes Mrs. I. Barcoyne, a well known resident of this place. "I find them a splendid remedy for kidney trouble. I had been suffering with Urinary Trouble, the after effect of the 'Flu.' That has all disappeared now and I can thank Doddʼs Kidney Pills for it. I would highly recommend them to anyone suffering with a similar trouble."

The reason Doddʼs Kidney Pills have come to occupy such a prominent place in the family medicine chest is that so many of the ordinary every day ills come from sick kidneys. Rheumatism, Backache, Urinary Troubles, etc., can all be traced directly or indirectly to sick kidneys.

Doddʼs Kidney Pills have built up their reputation as a Kidney remedy by the relief they give. Insist upon having Doddʼs, the kidney pill your neighbours use.

CONCEPTION OF GOD IS POWER

Chapter Masons Attend Divine Service at Christ Church

Under lowering skies Quinte Friendship Chapter No. 227 R.A.M. augmented by companions from the sister chapter of the city and those of the district attended Christ Church on Sunday, Comp. the Rev. C. E. Clarke, rector of the church delivering the sermon. There were 130 companions in the parade, they lining up at the Masonic Temple and marching to and from the church. Ill. Ex. Comp. Frank Chesher was master of ceremonies and the companions in their regalia presented a smart appearance. The choir under the direction of Miss Eva Lavoie gave two delightful anthems.

Rev. Clarke spoke from the text, "I am that I am and he said, thus shall thou say unto the children of Israel I am hath sent me unto you." In opening his address Rev. Clarke welcomed the Companions to divine service as he stated Masons and Christians have much in common for on Christianity is the ritual of Masonic teaching based. He reviewed the life of Moses up until the command was given of God to lead the people out of the wilderness. Through the past eighty years of Moses' life he had seen disappointment and at the time that God appeared to him he was fleeing from Egypt. Here was a bush burning but not consumed and the speaker stated it depicted externally what was going on in the heart of Moses. It was a realization of God that was new to him. Always had the people thought of God as of a tribal God but now he was revealed to Moses as the Creator. With this in mind Moses renewed his faith, led his people to the edge of the Promised Land and gave to the world a preview of the Christian faith.

The power of religion, said Rev. Mr. Clarke, is not judged by accumulated wealth monasteries nor cathedrals but rather by the conception one has of God. Masons are convinced of the fatherhood of God, the brotherhood of man and the supremacy of character and these are effective as a power for good only to the degree to which we hold to those convictions. There is always the danger of losing that which one has obtained," he said. Moses died on the edge of the Promised Land but he liberated Israel. After his passing the Jews built synagogues all over the eastern country but no high did they hold in reverence the name of God that it was never pronounced and eventually the word was lost. To this day in the Hebrew, no scholar can give the correct pronunciation of the word Jehovah which means God. The speaker exhorted the Companions present to hold fast to the convictions and beliefs of their forefathers.

CAR IS DITCHED AFTER COLLISION

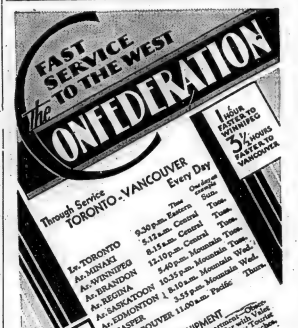
Occupants of Two Cars Had Narrow Escape From Injury

Car ditched

Occupants of two cars narrowly escaped death Saturday night on the hairpin curve on the Canniffon Road, just north of College street. Roy Hay, mechanic for a local garage, at the time of the accident testing a car, was admitted to the hospital suffering from a severe cut and shock, when he was thrown out of the door upon his head on the shoulder of the road. The car with which Hay's car came in contact driven by Mr. E. H. Martin of Latta, was considerably damaged and had to be towed to a local garage for repairs. Fortunately no one was seriously injured, Mr. Martin's baby receiving a slight bump on the forehead when it was thrown against the windshield. The windshield was shatterproof and probably saved the baby's life. Provincial Constable Bert Hammer investigated also Sergt. Booth of the city police.

Hay accompanied by a young man, named Fraser, was proceeding south on the Canniffon Road, while Mr. Martin with his wife and child were travelling in a northerly direction. Mr. Martin stated to the police that he saw the car travelling towards him at a fast rate of speed and pulled well over on the shoulder of the road. He could not get over far enough and when the car came around the bend, the front wheels went by but the rear of the Hay car struck the front end of his car throwing it into the ditch. At the time the car was struck, it was nearly at a stop as Mr. Martin saw that an accident could not be avoided.

At the hospital Hay, it is said, was thrown through the left front door alighting on the hard ground on his head. He sustained a severe cut. A passing motorist rushed him to the hospital.



CHURCH MOURNS FORMER PRIMATE

Lord Davidson, Late Archbishop of Canterbury, Passes to Rest

LONDON, May 27.—Lord Davidson better known as the Most Rev. Randall Thomas Davidson, the man whose able hand steered the Church of England through a quarter of a century and one of the most difficult periods of her career is dead. The former Archbishop of Canterbury, who was revered throughout the realm, passed away quietly in his sleep at one o'clock Sunday morning.

The announcement of the former Primate's death was contained in a message written by his wife and planned to the door of his Chelsea residence where he died. It announced the fact of his passing and added: "He has entered into the larger life. Thanks be to God for his life here and there."

Archbishop Davidson, who was 82 years of age, has been failing for some weeks. "He sleeping his life away," said friends who visited him in his last days.

FIVE ARE KILLED NEAR COBOURG

18 Year Old Youth Jumps Just Before Crash By Train

COBOURG, Ont., May 27.—CP—Five people were killed when their motor car was struck by a Canadian National Railways engine at the level crossing two miles east of here early Monday morning. Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Johnston and Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Johnston, Jr., and the latter's three year old child, James, all met instant death when the car in front of the elder couple escaped by leaping from the car before the impact. The family were returning from Montreal to their home in Hamilton.

Gringo Privateer

By

Peter B. Kyne

After a while he strolled up to the bank and requested the paying teller to give him five dollars in brand new twenty-five-cent pieces in exchange for a five-dollar bill. From the bank he repaired to a drug store, where he purchased a quart of bichloride solution, a 4 1-2 by 3 1-4 inch folding camera and a quantity of film. He then returned to the livery stable, saddled Rowdy, packed his worldly effects on his pack pony and rode south and east, hoping that his ruse of departure earlier in the day had worked on Martin Bruce. In all probability the old sinner would suspect him of having made tracks for El Ranchito.

He rode fast and at sunset was well down in El Ojon Bonita below the international boundary. After selecting a camp in the bed of an arroyo thru which a thin trickle of water still flowed he watered his horses, hobbled them and turned them loose to graze. From his pack he took a skillet, a coffee pot and food and prepared supper after which he put out his little fire, rolled up in his blankets and slept the sleep of the carefree and innocent.

He was up before dawn and had disposed of breakfast before sunrise. After catching up his horses, he tethered the pack pony in the arroyo saddled Rowdy and with his camera swinging from the pommel and the bottle of bichloride solution in his inner coat pocket, rode out across the valley. Presently he was riding among cattle that wore the brand of the Bardin Land and Cattle Company. In general they were good-grade Herefords with the usual Hereford markings, but from time to time he came across cows that showed a strong cross of Shorthorn or Durham.

Until he found a lusty calf running by the side of such cows and the calf exhibited variegated coloration and was unbranded, he carefully photographed mother and calf from in front and from both sides, then roped the calf, hog-tied it, made a slit about an inch long in the hide inside the left foreleg just above the knee, rinsed his fingers in a dash of bichloride solution, deluged a new, bright silver quarter into the slit and worked it well down in the sheath between the hide and the muscle, after which he cast the calf loose.

By the middle of the afternoon he had secretly tagged with germ-proof silver quarter-dollars twenty head of calves and photographed them and their mothers, so he decided to call it a day and returned to his camp in the arroyo, where he again hobbled his horses and turned them loose to graze, cooked himself an early supper and spent the night in the arroyo.

The following morning he was up and on the road by daylight; late that night he rode into headquarters at El Ranchito. When he reported to the mess hall to honey the cook into giving him a late snack, he could not help noticing the alacrity with which that harassed individual hastened to assure him of prompt service. Nor did the cook-shall him familiarly as Amos-oy. On the contrary he called him Mr. Burney, with much unction, and fried him a steak, which he served on the private table with the red tablecloth.

Burney immediately carried his meal over to one of the long tables where the help ate. "Yours very kind and considerate, cookie, old son," he declared "but while Mr. Graydon remains on the ranch I think we'll keep that table sacred to him. If he should invite me to eat there, that would be different. But he hasn't."

His supper eaten, Burney telephoned to the king. "Ken Burney speaking, sir. Mr. Graydon instructed me to report to you the moment I returned to the ranch. I have returned."

"You've taken your sweet time about it. Come over immediately. I'm on the western veranda. Don't bother to announce yourself."

Three minutes later His Majesty was interested to hear a man running at top speed along his verandah. He look ed up just as Ken Burney turned the corner, running, and with a broad jump landed squarely in front of him. He greeted the somewhat astonished king with a breezy, military salute.

"The late Mr. Burney reporta to His Majesty," he announced.

"What's your mad hurry, you young idiot?"

"Mr. Graydon informed me that speed was Your Majesty's middle name and that whenever you instructed a man to report to you that man had better take it on the run, or get fired."

"You're too dogoned literal," the king laughed. "Sit down and tell me you went to town for a hair-cut, eh? Where have you been since?"

"Well, after the barber finished with me I had to collect two months' pay due me from Martin Bruce—"

"You lunatic! What happened?"

"He paid me. Tried to kill me first, but as the ancient philosopher once remarked, 'to be forewarned is to be forearmed.' In other words I got the drop on Martin and he came through like a sport."

"Tell me about it," the king urged. "Nobody ever tells me anything except hard-luck stories. Make me laugh son."

So Ken Burney told him in meticulous detail of his encounter with Martin Bruce and the king did not laugh

"He tried to draw on you and got tangled in the barber's apron. Was his gun in the holster or in his hand when he saw you had the drop on him?"

"It was in his hand."

"For the love of life why didn't you beat him? A clear case of self-defense. You had three barbers as witnesses that you spoke pleasantly to the man and he attempted to shoot you. Why, the coroner's jury would have exonerated you. Boy, boy you'll never get another chance at him as lovely as that once. You had a good hand and you went to town for a hair-cut, eh? Where have you been since?"

"You needn't be—yet. I told you I wasn't hiring out as a killer. Of course I'll kill if I have to—in self-defense, but it's always been my policy to walk around a fight."

Frogs Croak When They Are in Love

Female Signals Lovers In Old Way, Scientists Show

Brekkekkekek. Koax. Koax. Why do female frogs croak so? No one need longer be in doubt because the researches made by Dr. John Tait and W. J. McNally, and read at the meeting of the Royal Society of Canada, have revealed the fact that frogesses croak because they are in love, just as nightingales sing. It takes all sorts to make a world, and though the world would be more enlodoing if frogesses were to sing like nightingales, the frogs would "not like it at all, at all."

For the frogs are an honest race, and the ladies make no bones about telling the world that they want to get married. But they do it in a funny way. It is not the sound of the croak that brings the young men up to the mark. It is the vibration set up under the water that tells the young man when he is wanted—not the music in the air.

The vibration is caused when the air in the lady's lungs is being shifted to the mouth. It is a complicated way of courting.

And how in a pond full of croak-ladies can any fellow make up his mind as to which of the girls is the best croaker? When he does hear his beloved croak does he think that she is a better croaker than any of the other frogs in the pond have landed—if that is the appropriate expression?

Frogs have lots of habits that differ from human habits. The man is always much smaller than his wife. When he hears her courting and croaking he jumps on to and sits on her shoulders and puts his arms round her neck. The instals on being taken around everywhere. It is a funny way to pet.

Some questions still remain to be solved about these interesting animals. Perhaps next year at the Royal Society meeting Dr Tait and Mr. McNally will present more solutions of the problems confronting the froggist.

Ends Piles Quick

No Salves or Cutting

Piles are caused by congestion of blood in the lower bowel. Only an internal medicine can remove the cause. That's why salves and cutting fail. HEM-ROID, the prescription of Dr. J. S. Leonhardt, removes this congestion and strengthens the affected parts.

HEM-ROID is now sold by druggists everywhere, and has such a wonderful record of success even in chronic and stubborn cases that J. S. McKeown invites every Pile sufferer to try HEM-ROID and guarantees money-back if it does not end all Pile misery.

Good Manners

The etiquette of Shower Parties (By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman)

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Is it proper for a mother to give her daughter a farewell shower as she is leaving town to be married.

MRS. L. P. Z.

Since there aren't any rules of etiquette about showers, we have to examine every one and determine if it is in good taste and good form as considered from the general point of view of etiquette. That is what we must do in this case. And examining it in this way, I should say that such a party might easily be misinterpreted as a "begging party." And probably you thought of it in this way too, and hence your worried and wondering question about this. Is this true?

If the mother wishes to get together the friends of her daughter, for the good wishes to speed her on her significant and important journey, this can be done by giving a tea or reception or luncheon, a party that will be purely social and not have the "business-like" quality of shower.

(Mrs. Beeckman will be glad to answer questions on etiquette submitted by readers.)

RAWDON SCHOOL TEACHER LEAVES

Miss Ruth Gibson is Appointed Instructress of Music

Rawdon, May 24 (By Mail)—A large number attended the funeral of Mrs. Reid Sine (who formerly resided in Rawdon) on Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Don Sharp spent a day recently with the latter's sister Irene.

We heartily congratulate Miss Gibson, teacher at Williams, on her appointment as musical instructor for the township of Rawdon, Madoc and Huntingdon. Miss Gibson is a talented singer and is well-fitted for the position and friends are very confident that she will make a success of the job. Her many friends here will be very sorry to lose her as she has been a valuable asset to the community since coming here last September.

Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Sine and children were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Bailey.

Mr. Dick Stephens visited his brother George Stephens in Murray recently.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Thrasher and Edna were tea guests Sunday evening of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar McKeown.

League was opened at Mount Pleasant Friday evening by the president. After devotional exercises the missionary vice president Miss Olive McConnell put on the following programme: Hymn "Take my life and let it be." Th Scripture lesson found in Matthew 5-14-20 was read by Miss Lorena Dunbey. Mrs. Thomas McKeown gave a missionary topic. Miss Isabel Turner rendered a piano solo. Mrs. James Sharp read a missionary selection. After the Benediction a "green" contest proved amusing.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

Temperament's Reward

By

H. Louis Raybold

Copyright, 1930, International Features Service, Inc

When Josephine Jordan was six years old she indulged in a violent tantrum in the presence of a neighbor calling on her mother. When the atmosphere had cleared and conversation again became possible the caller made the remark that was to deflect Mrs. Jordan's life—as well as her daughter's—into an entirely new direction.

"With those looks and that temperament you sure oughter make a movie actress out of Josie."

After the woman had gone, Josie's mother rocked on and on, nibbling the rest of the chocolates and picturing a roseate future in which she featured as the devoted parent of the charming and talented young screen star, Miss Josie Jordan.

From that very afternoon she consecrated her efforts to bringing about this future. She drew heavily on the sum left by her husband and put Josie into the hands of dancing masters, teachers of voice culture, instructors in calisthenics. She drilled into her daughter the desirability of giving an ardent attention to her looks, her speech, her carriage. And, most of all, she fostered Josie's flair for getting her own way.

"A real star's got to have a streak of temperament to get ahead of her rivals," she kept reminding herself, whenever Josie's will clashed with hers.

For there were frequent moments of rebellion. Josie's little-girl prettiness had not matured into the beauty it promised and Josie, taught to make an intimate of her mirror, seemed to read in this more than her mother. At the age of fourteen, she flatly refused to wear her hair in curls and two years later insisted on buying her own clothes.

The day came at last, however, when Josie and Mrs. Jordan boarded the train for Hollywood, that Mecca of would-be film queens, that Sargasso Sea of lost hopes.

To Mrs. Jordan the five days spent in transcontinental travel were very tiresome. To Josie they proved an unending joy. She made friends with everybody from the colored porters to the old woman who was taking her two cats to Los Angeles for the winter. And she became more than friends with a young travelling salesman whose specialty was selling projecting room equipment.

On the very last day the young man whose name was William Warren Botsford, told Josie earnestly that life without her would be henceforth impossible and, after a proper amount of shy hesitation, Josie agreed with him.

"I will have to tell Mother," she said presently, "and Mother won't like it at all. She thinks I am going to be a second Mary Pickford."

"You could be, too," the young man assured her, "but I'd rather you'd be my own little wife. Now suppose we work it this way. You talk it over with your Mother and try to get her to see it our way. If she doesn't—well, I'm scheduled to be in Hollywood in ten days. We'll just get married anyway and fly to him her blessing afterwards."

What followed when Josie told her mother was worse even than she had anticipated. Pleadings, recriminations, hysterics.

"After all I've done for you, Josie! All the money I've spent. Remember that $500 to Madame Zenia for your gowns and—"

"They'll do for my trousseau," suggested Josie, patiently.

"And the money for our fares!" wailed Mrs. Jordan.

"I hadn't been for that I wouldn't have met William!" exclaimed Josie. "Cheer up, Mother. You'll like him when you know him. He's going to give up the road and buy a little farm in the San Bernardino Valley. You're to live with us and—"

Mrs. Jordan removed her handkerchief from her eyes. For all her distrustful appearance brought on by her emotion, there was a certain dignity about her as she drew herself to her full height.

"I forbid this marriage!" she declared.

For the first time in her life Josie yielded to her mother's wish.

She wrote a long letter to William. "When Mother sees that I cannot become the star she thinks I can, she will be reconciled to my marrying you," she said. She has spent her life preparing me for this opportunity, I can not bear to disappoint her." But she loved William all the better when he replied that he understood and would wait for her forever.

A month later Josie sat in the outer office of the assistant secretary to the secretary of the famous film company with many others she had been sitting there day after day. She had learned a lot since she came to Hollywood. She had come to realize that there were thousands of girls prettier than she, and as many more who could sing and dance and walk across the room far better.

Suddenly Josie rose and walked out. Straight to the telegraph office she went and sent a message to William at the address he had given her.

"Will marry you whenever you say. Josie."

She told him afterward what had brought her to her sudden decision. "I realized," she said, "that I had no chance at the movie game and that a knowledge of that fact would be a greater shock to Mother than my marriage. Now, all her life, she has clung to herself the delusion that I might have been the screen success she tried to make me."

Mrs. Jordan wrote sadly to her friends back home. "Poor Josie's temperament simply ran away with her. She has renounced everything for love. You know I never crossed her in a thing and now, like a boomerang, it has come back to me."

THE END

AMAZING RESULT FOLLOWS HOAX

Cape Town, S. A., May 23 (CP).—Twelve thousand mail articles, letters, post cards, illustrated papers and parcels have arrived during one fortnight from England in response to a short letter inserted by a South African girl in the "Daily Mail." The letter read:

Sir,—For the last 10 years my sister and I have been living on a lonely, God-forsaken farm in a forgotten corner of South Africa, and we would be grateful to anyone who would be kind enough to write us a letter, or a post card once in a while.—(Miss) Kathleen Punt, Mud River, .O., Masure, Mainmother, S. A.

When the first batch of letters arrived at the one man post office at Masure the work of the postmaster was disorganized. Three men had to be called in to work for three and a half hours sorting the mail matter. The following week the mail was still heavier, and it was quite beyond the capacity of the Masure men to handle so many bags.

The lovely "South African girl" turns out to be Kathleen Punt whose parents are well known in Johannesburg, where they do much entertaining. Kathleen, so far from being a lonely girl, has hundreds of companions, for she is sent to school at Ellerslie, Sea Point. She is a popular and vivacious girl of 17.

She wrote the letter as a prank and was delighted with the huge number of correspondents she "took in" by her hoax. But when the second week's mail arrived she was overwhelmed and rather frightened. It appalled her to think that so many earnest people had spent time and money writing to a girl who was not deserving of their sympathy. She has received many proposals of marriage. She has not been able to open all her parcels as expensive drapery and sweets from her would-be benefactors in England. The post office has discontinued sending her gigantic mail out to the little Masure post office. It is now handled in the circulation branch of the General Post Office.

WOMEN TO VOTE IN SOUTH AFRICA

Speculate to What Effect When Union Has Female Franchise

Cape Town, S. Africa, May 23 (CP).—An article in the Cape Town Argus on women's new importance in politics makes interesting reading. It may seem premature as yet to speculate what the women's vote will ultimately mean. There are some who predict chaos; others can see the hastening of the millenium. The more moderate view is that no revolutionary reforms will be effected. The consensus of opinion seems that women will not vote as women, but as individual citizens. On the other hand, there is no doubt there are certain feminine traits that have already been felt in the countries where women have a voice, and these will also find expression in South African politics.

Women ask for equal opportunities and equality before the law; but they have never put forward the theory that men and women are absolutely equal. In fact they argue, that if men and women were identically the same, then the job of ruling could safely be left to men alone. It is the need of the woman's point of view in all questions that they stress. What, exactly is this woman's point of view and how does it differ from the man's? This is the question that is arresting the attention of the statesmen of the country.

Essentially woman is an idealist She would make humanity more human. The emancipated woman is to day exercising her powers towards the realization of world peace. She begins in her own country. The South African woman will never become a slave to party politics. She will join in definite groups, but her interests will spread beyond its limitations. While respecting the racial differences found among South African people, she will also try to trace and strengthen their similarities and her aim will be towards a community in which shared interests will take the place of divided purposes and pre judices.

ASIATIC EXPLORERS START EXPEDITION

Peiping, May 24 (CP).—More than a year late owing to disagreement with the Chinese authorities, the fourth Central Asiatic expedition into Mongolia under the direction of Dr. Roy Chapman Andrews is preparing to start into the Gobi desert from Kalgan this month.

Dr. Andrews has sent his men into the desert to buy some camels which will be used in transporting supplies for the expedition, and a fleet of motor trucks has arrived in Kalgan.

Like its predecessors, the present expedition plans to come upon traces of early man, similar to the Peking man found in the Choukoutien cave, forty miles from Peiping, by a Canadian archaeologist.

The discovery of the Peking man has given considerable stimulus to Dr. Andrews's expedition, as it is believed to have established that Asia was the "cradle of mankind" and that the Cradle of Men may have existed in the Gobi Desert.

While previous expeditions into Mongolia have covered wide territory and have resulted in important discoveries being made, Dr. Andrews and Dr. Henry F. Osborn of the American Museum have felt that the explorations were incomplete, and have been most anxious to make at least one more trip. The agreement recently signed, which makes this trip possible is therefore very welcome.

GREAT AIRSHIP WILL REACH THE DOMINION SOON

Grant British Vessel is Expected Early Next Month

London, May 24—In the early days of June, the good citizens of Montreal may expect to behold the giant bulk of R. 100 floating high above them as she rests with her nose securely harnessed to the mooring mast which the Canadian Government has hospitably provided at the St. Hubert airport. The great airship, last minute repairs completed, is due to essay the flight from her home at Cardington, near Bedford, about the end of May. This will be the first crossing of the Atlantic by a British airship since R. 34 flew from England to New York and back 11 years ago.

For months past the Air Ministry has been flooded with applications for reservations on this maiden journey. Every applicant outside an extremely narrow circle of officials and technical experts will be disappointed. There will not be a single "ordinary" passenger. Those folk too, hoping that at least they can send a mail missive to some friend on the other side by R. 100 on her first trip, will also be disappointed, for neither freight nor mails are to be taken. Every ounce of carrying capacity is to be devoted to absolutely necessary personnel or fuel. True, R. 100 has staterooms to hold 100 passengers, but the designers and navigators have commandeered all this accommodation for their own special purposes on the outward trip. Things may be otherwise when R. 100 is prepared to make the return to England, but on this point all is uncertain at the moment.

On her first trip to Montreal R. 100 will be in command of Major G. H. Scott, who was captain of the R. 34 when she made her return flight to America in 1919. The outward flight on that occasion occupied 108 hours and 12 minutes, and the return journey was made in three days, three hours and three minutes. It is expected that R. 100 which has an assumable maximum speed of 80 miles per hour, will make an outward voyage in two days and a half. This would easily eclipse the performance of the Graf Zeppelin its flight from Germany to America. Already R. 100 has created a new airship speed record by travelling at 81 1-2 miles per hour, whereas the highest speed of the Graf Zeppelin was 80 miles.

R. 100 represents years or more of hard thinking and highly technical and experimental craftmanship. It is interesting to note that the two airships to be built in recent years under the auspices of the British Government have both been completed when a Labor Ministry was in power.

Two years after the War closed, the reduction of expenditure which was forced upon all Governmental Departments caused the closing down of the airship branch of the Royal Air Force. It was resolved to endeavor to maintain airship construction and operation only on a commercial basis. From 1919, onwards, various proposals were put forward for the commercial operation of the Government fleet and the construction of further airships. The main features of some of these proposals were considered by the Imperial Conference of 1921, but none were finally adopted. In March 1922, fresh proposals were received from Commander (now Sir Dennis) Burney. Negotiations with Comm. Burney proceeded during 1922 and 1923. The proposals provided for the carrying out by a commercial company, mainly financed by the Government, of a programme of experiment and research, the construction of one experimental airship and on the performance of one successful flight to India the construction of further airships and the establishment of a service to India—all as part of the scheme.

When, however, the scheme came to be translated into a series of formal contracts, certain technical and financial difficulties impressed the members of Ramsay Macdonald's first Government. A cabinet committee was appointed to reconsider the position. The enquiry went to show that if airship development was to proceed upon a sound technical basis, it was inevitable that the Government should undertake the research and experiment which the disaster to R. 38 had shown to be necessary, and His Majesty's Government, therefore, decided to adopt the programme of airship develop ment which is now being carried out.

Roughly speaking, the cost of building the R. 100 has been $2,500,000. The main technical requirements of the contract were:

(1) The gas capacity not to be less than 5,000,000 cubic feet.

(2) A speed of not less than 70 miles and hour at 5,000 feet altitude to be attained on flight trials.

(3) the total fixed weights not to exceed 90 tons.

(4) Passenger car accommodation to be provided for at least 100 passengers, including living and sleeping arrangements, etc.

(5) Navigability to be possible within certain specified angles of pitch.

(6) The ship to comply with general requirements for air-worthiness specified by the Aeronautical Research Committee.

Accommodation for 100 passengers, indeed for the navigators and ship's company generally, is all comprised in a "coach," built in three decks, slung inside the giant hull of the airship. Between the coach and the gasbags is a double wall of fabric, and in this fabric are large windows. The lowest deck it allocated to the crew, and two upper ones to the passengers. The galley is fitted out with electrical cooking apparatus. On the lower passage decks there is a dining saloon with 50 seats with an area of 854 square feet, and a lounge deck in the form of a galley round the dining saloon, the area of which is 540 square feet. There are 21 cabins containing 100 bunks—mainly in 4 berth cabins. There are cabins on both decks between the dining saloon and the promenade decks on the lower floor, and between the baloony decks and the lounge deck on the upper floor.

The control car, projecting outside the "skin" is attached to the main structure, below the crew quarters the sleeping accommodation for the Captain and officers being adjacent. It would be a long story if an attempt were made to enter into the innumerable technical details of the travelling gear of R. 100, but it may be mentioned that there are 15 gasbags in the ship, the largest having a capacity of over half a million cubic feet. The outer cover is made from linen fabric.

PACKETS BOW TO MOTOR TRUCKS

Maine Coastal Communities Served By Bus. Schooners Being Disused

Portland, Me., May 24—The last 10 years have changed so many things that it is not surprising to find that the knell of the old prosperous Maine packet fleet has been sounded by the prosaic motor truck.

Ten years ago at this season of the year half a hundred of this state's coastwise fleet might have been found emerging from winter quarters. There was caulking to be done, paint to be renewed and rigs to be overhauled. Soon the fleet would be about its business of carrying small freight to the hundreds of little communities along Maine's rugged shores. Not until the blasts of winter made navigation perilous to all save the larger and more hardy ships would they cease to ply from inlet to inlet.

The packet fleet was the backbone of most of the enterprises of the small Maine coastal communities. The coming of one of the boats was an event —those have been factors which together have combined to retire many an old salt to less romantic occupations.

Take the good old schooner for example. Once her graceful lines were familiar and welcome sight at many a lonely hamlet to which she carried her precious cargo. Today her "bones" lie exposed to the vulgar stare of the idly curious summer visitors who throng the beach at Boothbay Harbor, a sad reminder of better days.

Not all of the erstwhile packets have fallen on such evil days. Four of them, the Mary E. Smith, which plied between Pemaquid Beach, New Harbor, Round Pond and Matinicus, the Abdon Keene, the Willie Smith and the Fannie Hayden have served their time as plain boats out of this port and engaged to be celebrated in the villages. It carried freight, food, mail, and practically all the things that helped to form their contacts with the outside world.

But today all is changed. The number of packets which are still in service probably could be counted on the fingers of one hand so relentless have been the inroads of truck transportation. Modern roads, bigger trucks and the need for cheaper and faster service in other traffic as well.

Old timers recall with affectionate anecdote many an other name of that once proud fleet. There was the Emma F. Chase which sailed between this port and Jonesport and Beals for many a year. There was also the Rushlight and the Lydia Webster and the John L. Norris and the Ralph K. Grant and the Myra Sears. One of the best known was the Storm King which operated to New Harbor, Round Pond, Monhegan Island and Long Cove.

GRIZZLY CAUSE OF LIME ROMANCE

Vancouver, B.C., May 24 (CP) — A vast tempered grizzly bear, which gave a prospector the thrill of a life-time, has been the indirect means of bringing millions of dollars for investment in British Columbia, according to E. D. Kingsley, wealthy New York shipping man and manufacturer, who spent a few days here recently.

Fifteen years ago, Mr. Kingsley recalls, the bear in a fit of treachability and temper, gave his life and pelt to the prospector. The prospector went east and told the story of the bad bear and the fight which preceded its death. The prospector also took with him some samples of lime from Texada Island and interviewed Mr. Kingsley with a view to obtaining capital for development of the lime quarry.

Mr. Kingsley wasn't particularly interested in the lime, but he was interested in the bear story. The story led to a close friendship between the prospector and Mr. Kingsley and subsequent lime samples had the desired effect. Since that time the Kingsley company has established itself on an important scale in British Columbia with lime quarries at several points, lumber mills and coast-wise steamship service.

TO TOUR COUNTRY

Cape Town, S. Africa., May 23 (CP) —Miss Pattie Price, of London, is seeking out on an adventure touring the Union and both the Rhodesias alone. In her music satchel she will carry "Christopher Robin" the little A. A. Milne character of whom she has made a study. To the settlers in Rhodesia and farmers in the out-of-the-way parts of the Free State and Natal he will become an alive little fellow, for Miss Price has conceived the original idea of presenting, with her songs at the piano, lantern slides of the famous drawings of Christopher and his pets by E. H. Shepherd.

MUST NOT PARK NOR UNLOAD CAR

Street Enforcement of No-Parking Regulation on Coleman Street

Magistrate Mint in traffic court today dealt with a number of traffic cases there being no criminal cases on the docket. One motorist was fined $2.50 for parking on Coleman street. Recently the council passed a by-law prohibiting parking on this street for any length of time. This measure was adopted in order that traffic would move unimpeded during the heavy traffic season. Coleman street must be used to divert the traffic as the new lower bridge is under construction. If cars are allowed to park on this street the stream of traffic will be interrupted and this cannot be as the traffic will be very heavy. Motorists are not allowed to park their cars on this street for any length of time and even to unload passengers and the traffic officer, who in the past has warned motorists of the by-law will from now on take action and the offending parties will be hailed into court. Two cases of speeding came before the court and both offenders were assessed $5.00 without costs.

The police are still having trouble with motorists parking their cars on the pavements all night and interfering with the work of the city sweeper in the early hours of the morning. The fine has been set for this of from $1.00 and every morning at least five pay this amount. It has been suggested that the Public Works Department place signs on the sidewalks in front of the principal hotels that no all night parking will be allowed. Many being fined for this offence are travelers and are quite ignorant of the traffic by-law.

TEMPERATURE BELOW NORMAL

Belleville Records For Chilly Weather Broken This Week

In reviewing the weather of today with records of the past eight years it was found that the temperature this week has been much colder than the corresponding date in previous years, although the country has been fortunate in escaping a spring frost. The reading at the pumphouse today was 55 degrees above zero for the high, and 46 above for the low. Following is the table of records for the past eight years:

May 28th.		High	Low
	1922	75	58
	1923	62	47
	1924	66	46
	1925	69	41
	1926	72	43
	1927	64	37
	1928	63	39
	1929	61	51

Last year the week of May 28th was especially hot, the temperature each day passing the eighty mark, which is very warm for the month of May.

ALBERT ARMSTRONG HEADS TENNIS LOOP

Albert Armstrong, President of the Bay of Quinte Tennis Club, was named president of the Central Ontario Tennis League at a meeting held in Port Hope this week. The Central Ontario Association officials are looking for one of the most promising years in the history of the organization and it is already apparent that more interest will be taken in this form of sport than ever before. Other officers chosen were Hon. Pres., H. A. Morrow, Oshawa, and Secretary-Treasurer, Dan M. Hannah, Belleville. Representatives were present from the following clubs: Oshawa, Bowmanville Port Hope, Cobourg, Peterboro, Campbellford, Tweed, Kingston, Belleville and Oananoque. Kingston won the championship of the Eastern group last year and Campbellford the western section. The League plans to encourage open tournaments and one meeting will be held in Kingston July 1st, while another will be held at Belleville August 4th. The winners will be unofficial champions of Eastern Ontario.

BISHOP SEAGER GIVES VIEWS ON DIVORCE COURT

Conduct of Court in All in All. He Tells The Synod

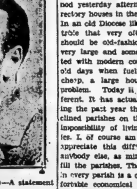
SECULARIZATION

Increase of Divorce Will Sap Foundations of Civilization

KINGSTON, May 28.—CP—The sixty-third Synod of the Diocese of Ontario opened Tuesday with service conducted by the Bishop of Ontario in St. George's Cathedral. During the service the Bishop delivered his charge to the Synod delegates.

The Right Rev. Dr. C. A. Seager, Bishop of Ontario, stressed the divorce question. Dr. Seager declared himself in favor of the Provincial Divorce Court which has just been granted to Ontario, as to his mind this seemed to be the best way of arriving at some solution for the problem facing the people. He said: "It will depend on how the Ontario Divorce Court is conducted as to its success. If it will slander to diminish the good influence which might arise from such a court will be nullified. A point which has not yet come up in the discussion is, how is this court to be conducted. Will it be used to arrest the alarming progress which the evil of divorce is making in this province, by sane measures of jurisdiction or will it become a detriment to Christian marriage. If the latter, it will be regrettable, but the former way of conducting such a court seems to me to be a partial solution of the problem.

"As you know a canon of the Church, issued by the General Synod, forbids the clergy of the Anglican Church to marry any divorced person while the other party to the original marriage is yet living."



This year I feel impelled to draw your attention to the challenge of human society today to the church, at least in one or two of its aspects: in other words the issue that faces Christianity in our time.

"It is the challenge of secularism, of the changing world and of new nations definitely planning to organize definitely planning to organize society on a purely secular basis, to a spirit in individuals which recognizes nothing but the world in which we live. "The result and logic of secularism is inevitable. Since there is nothing but this world to cohabit, it follows that the only thing worth while is to make the best of it while we are here. Its outcome is an aggressive and blatant egoism which makes the individual the one thing to be considered.

The symptoms of it nationally have been crystalized in the attempt at social reconstruction in Bolshevick Russia. The new order in Turkey is frank by secular, seeking no sanction nor support from on high. A relatively few years will see a new civilization in

KING GEORGE IMPROVES

London, May 27 (CP)—A statement issued from Buckingham Palace today following a visit by the doctors stated the King was making progress and it was considered likely he would make speedy recovery from the inflammatory rheumatism affection of his hip which has forced cancellation of his engagements.

Orange G. Master Greets Knights

BROCKVILLE, May 28— At the State Convention of the Knights of Columbus of Ontario here on Tuesday, R. A. Jeffrey of Arnprior, the presiding officer expressed appreciation of the action of Lieutenant Colonel A. W. Gray, Grand Master of Ontario East of the Loyal Orange Lodge, who sent fraternal greetings, attached to a bouquet which graced the Chairman's table. The announcement was received with prolonged cheering. The delegates, attended a Pontifical Mass, celebrated by Mgr. Andrea Casullo, Papal Delegate to Canada. Archbishop M. J. O'Brien of Kingston assisted.

MISS M. WHITE TO BE LOCAL LIBRARIAN

Miss Margaret White, of the staff of the Hamilton Public Library, has been chosen as librarian of the Belleville Public Library. She will be one of the youngest librarians in Canada when she assumes her post on June 15th.

Mrs. Norman Lyle, Hamilton librarian, paid a sincere tribute to this clever young member of her staff this morning. She was a splendid worker, experienced in all branches of the library and a graduate of the Ontario Library School. "We are extremely sorry to lose her," said Mrs. Lyle, "but this is a splendid opportunity for her." Miss White has been connected with the circulating, reference and cataloguing department of the Hamilton public library, and is well fitted to take over her new duties. She has a charming personality and should be very popular in her new sphere.

Miss White succeeds Miss Angus Mowat who recently went to Windsor.

Belleville has two popular members of the library staff, Miss Jackson and Miss Gallagher, who have been favored for the post jointly. These young ladies have not, however, taken the qualifying course required for a library receiving a government grant.

B.C.I.V.S. CORPS HIGHLY PRAISED

"" Company In Command of Capt. Hitchon Is Awarded Cup

Presenting an array fifty stronger than last year and the largest turnout of cadets ever to be seen in Belleville, the Belleville Collegiate Institute and Vocational School cadets this morning brought honour and pride to the city when they received their annual review at the hands of Colonel Hill, of Ottawa, director of all cadet corps in the Dominion. The local collegiate was signally honoured in having this official as inspecting officer, for his many duties as a rule do not permit him to leave h's desk in the Capital city.

Spectators (and there was a huge crowd of them at the Queen Victoria school grounds) were thrilled as the three companies of boys, headed by the signal corps, the brass band, the bugle band and the colour party marched past "Colonel Hill and Capt'n Ibbett in review. They were thrilled again when the cadets went through their intricate drills, learned only

ANGLICANS OPEN NEW MISSION NORTH OF CITY

Kingston, May 28—"One matter connected with the parishes I am de'rous of specially mentioning this year," said Bishop Seager at the Synod yesterday afternoon. I mean the rectory houses in the various parishes. In an old Diocese like this, the rectorate that very often the rectories should be out-fashioned. Some are very large and quite improperly fitted with modern conveniences. In old days when fuel and labor were cheap, a large house presented no problem. Today it is altogether different. It has actually occurred during the past year that men have declined parishes on the ground of the impossibility of living in the rectories. I, of course am in a position to appreciate this difficulty more than anybody else, as mine is the duty to fill the parishes. The prime essential in every parish is a comfortable comfortable economical home for the clergyman.

"My own conviction based on experience is that the sooner we can dispose of the old rectories and secure reasonably priced, modern houses it will be better. Modern conveniences in houses today are no longer luxuries but taken as a matter of course. People will no longer live, except in places where conditions make it inevitable, in houses of modernity supposed to a reasonable extent. Parish authorities would be wise to bear in mind that in a Diocese like this which is not rich in this world's goods it is not easy at in come others to secure the clergy we need. Everything therefore, that can be done to make the lot of the clergyman and his family personally happy and comfortable is an urgent necessity.

"In this connection it is a great pleasure to be able to report the completion and occupancy of a new rectory in Loughborough parish in the village of Sydenham.

"As an evidence of activity along Anglican lines in the Diocese, a new mission is about to be opened north of Belleville and including the new mission already begun in East Belleville under the direction of the Rev. John Lyons, vicar of St. Thomas. One sidirable territory north of Belleville is entirely unoccupied by our church. Hence the above new arrangement. Such movements of expansion are imperatively necessary and will be begun as soon as circumstances permit.

DOG BYLAW CAUSE OF DISCUSSION IN COUNCIL

Several Aldermen Ask to Have Names Taken Off Committee

HAS NO AUTHORITY

Collector Appointed to Take up Collection of Hospital Debts

Motions and counter-motions flew across the council chamber last night when the City Council discussed the vexed question of appointing a dog catcher and a pound keeper. Finally an appeal was made to the city clerk for a ruling on the matter and when the original by-law was produced on the table, it was found that the council had nothing to do with the appointing of either official as the by-law distinctly expressed that the mayor chief constable or the police magistrate had the power to make the appointment. All the motions and amendments to the motion were declared out and the matter went on to the police commission for their action.

Want Names Withdrawn

At times the debate waxed warm when a recommendation was laid before Ald. F. A. Pinkston that a committee of Aldermen Kinnear, Wotten, French and Webber be appointed to appoint a dog catcher the amount to be paid being $3.00 per day and his duties to commence at once. Immediately Aldermen Wotten and French were on their feet protesting against their names being on the committee and asking for the immediate withdrawal. Both declared themselves against the by-law and Ald. Wotten in particular stated he had received criticism as being the father of the measure and this was untrue. Ald. French told the committee of the whole he was against the by-law since its inception and did not wish to act. Ald. Tice came on the scene with a strong plea to have the matter shelved. "I was against the by-law being passed and am against any measure in that direction at the present time. This is a matter that should be left in the hands of the police who are in a better position to handle it. If a dog catcher is appointed what appliance is he going to use? It will certainly be a difficult matter to see if dogs can be handled in a more delicate manner with the same results if a net is used."

Ald. Kinnear and Mayor Reid expressed the opinion that the council passed the by-law, no matter how many were opposed to it and the council should stand behind the measure. Mayor Reid was of the same opinion. After a lengthy discussion a movement was made that the committee be struck out and that a dog catcher be appointed by the council at the meeting and this carried. Then a number

Did the Last Rain Storm Go Through Your Roof Like Buck Shot?

Probably your roof isn't in as poor condition as that but just how rain proof is it? And when searing summer suns blaze on it will the old shingles curl up their toes and die? If so, you're headed for trouble—maybe expensive trouble.

The wise and economical precaution is to lay a colourful Brantford Roof right over your old shingles. See the elaborate display conducted by Brantford Roofing Specialists now in town.

An estimate will be given — a color scheme suggested without committing you in any way.

Don't hesitate about giving your household the weather and fire protection it deserves because of the impression that re-roofing necessitated litter about your home. There is a minimum of muss the Brantford Roofing way.

BRANTFORD BIG BUTTS
These beautiful shingles give a shadow line which adds greatly to a home's distinction and charm.

BRANTFORD FOUR-IN-ONE SLATES
—They save time and money in laying and give lasting satisfaction.

BRANTFORD AERO-LOCKS

Here is an Eye Subject That Deserves a Volume

THE OVERCOMING OF VISUAL ERRORS

It is possible for us to overcome our errors of vision. That is, the eye muscles—by excessive effort—manage to cause the eyes to function as if the errors did not exist. Thus the average patient, because he sees well, doesn't suspect that his eyes need attention.

It is the younger folks who are the principal victims of visual errors that are overcome—hence unknown. "Why submit to an eye-examination?" Why? Because, though they see well, they do so at the cost of eye-strain, of energy-drain.

That is why an eye examination is urged regardless of how well YOU see.

You too will find mine a real examination.

Consolidated School Empire Day Was a Success

Tweed, May 28 (By Mail)—The monthly meeting of the W. A. was held in the Guild Rooms at 3.30 p.m. May 15th with a very good attendance.

Hymn No 361, was sung. This was followed by Bible reading from Isiah Chapter LXI, and the opening services.

At the conclusion of the general business, Mrs. Hayes, delegate presented an interesting report of the annual meeting held at Napanee.

The work of W. A. has been most satisfactory during the past and shows steady progress in all its branches.

Mrs. Leal sang an appropriate solo "Teach Us To Pray."

The meeting was closed with the regular service.

The Tweed Village Council met at 7 o'clock, May 17th. All members present. Petitions were presented asking for sewers and watermains on Osborne St. from Jamieson St. to Spring St. and on S. Victoria St. from lot No. 14 to lot No. 55.

The clerk certified both petitions sufficient. The Council went into committe on by-laws, the Reeve in the chair.

By-laws were introduced authorizing the construction of sewers and water-mains on Colborne St. and S. Victoria St. under the local improvement act, passed through their several readings, signed, sealed and numbered 340 and 341. Council resumed. Several matters pertaining to waterworks were discussed. Council adjourned at 8 o'clock.

W. B. Huyck, Clerk.

On Wednesday evening shortly before six o'clock an accident occurred at Chapman's corner when an egg truck owned by J. H. Hall of Belleville going south struck a chevrolet sedan driven by Mr. Leo. Courneyes who was on his way home to Stirling. Mr. Courneyes was making the dangerous turn when the truck struck him broadside. The sedan was badly smashed, the fenders, running board and front wheel on one side being almost torn off. One of the doors was damaged beyond repair. The frame of the truck was bent but the damages were not serious. County Constable Moon investigated and made his report to the authorities.

New Branch Manager

Mr. W. J. Spackman has been appointed manager of the local branch of the Bank of Montreal to succeed Mr. Alexander Yule, who has been promoted to the management of the Ingersoll branch. Mr. Spackman, who is a native of Exeter, Ont., comes to Tweed after a long and varied banking career, all of which, but a few years as manager of the Bury, Que., Branch, he has spent in this Province. His bank work began when he joined the Molson's Bank in his native town in 1906. In later years he transferred to the Merchants Bank of Canada, serving at Guelph and Owen Sound. He attained his first managerial position when he was given charge of the Thornbury branch in 1910. Two years later he was made manager of the Bank's branch at Bury. Here he remained for six years during which he served terms as President of the local Board of Trade, and Treasurer of the local hockey and Curling clubs. It was during this time that the Merchant's Bank was amalgamated with the Bank of Montreal. In 1926 Mr. Spackman was promoted to the management of the Bank of Montreal's branch at Westport, Ont., which position he held at the time of his present appointment.

Mr. A. Moran of Big Island spent a few days with his sister Miss Grace Moran.

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrison Ketcheson spent Thursday in Peterboro.

Messrs. T. E. Moffat, L. Minorgan, Jack Ryan, and Sidney Acker attended a tennis meeting in Port Hope on Friday evening.

Mr. Reg. Lynch of Toronto is visiting his uncle Mr. Jas Ryan.

Mr. Norman Narry of Marmora is visiting friends in town...

Mr. Chas. H. Elliott celebrated his 80th birthday on Tuesday.

The Ladies Aid of Presbyterian Church presented the Tweed Hospital with a mattress which was greatly appreciated.

Mrs. T. R. Moffat and Miss Millicent Moffat spent Wednesday afternoon in Belleville.

Mr. Crake, Mrs. Wilder and son James and Mrs. T. Carlin spent the week end in Toronto.

Miss Helena McGee of Toronto spent the week end at her home here.

Consolidated School Empire Day was a great success. A large number of citizens attended and the parents were certainly proud of their children's work.

Splendid exhibits of art, manual training, writing and several other studies were shown and they were indeed a credit to both pupils and teachers.

An uninteresting programme was given by the pupils and Miss Helen Hagerman gave a splendid talk on "The Origin of Empire Day". Mrs. T. E. Moffat gave a very interesting talk on India which was greatly enjoyed by everyone.

After the programme a dainty lunch was served.

Mr. Fred Geraldi, Mr. and Mrs. Max Geraldi and baby Helena and Miss Dorothy Hotts are spending a few days the guests of. Mrs. Opal Geraldi of Renfrew.

Mr. and Mrs. T. Beatty and son Jack are spending a few days in Kingston.

EMBARRASSING MOMENTS

Masonry Goes Though Wonders Come and Founders Pass Away

Moira Chapter Celebrates 75th Birthday with Kingston as Guests

Wonders of invention featured the 75th anniversary of Moira Chapter No. 7 R.A.M. last night, at the Masonic temple when the chapter members were hosts to members of Ancient Prentenae and Cataraqui Chapter of Kingston. There were none present last night, who were present, when Moira Chapter came into being on May 27th., 1856. Ancient Prentenae and Cataraqui being the mother chapter, the companions of that chapter have always taken an abiding interest in the welfare of Moira Chapter from that time onward. A large birthday cake in the shape of a triangle, on which were written 75 in candles, denoting the age, graced the head table where were seated the guests of the evening some twenty-five companions of the Kingston chapter.

On May 28th., 1856, by instructions contained in a dispensation, a convocation was held in the old masonic hall on John street, Belleville. There were present Ex Comps. Samuel D. Fowler, James A. Henderson and T. A. Angel. The three Excellent Companions from Kingston chapter opened Moira Royal Chapter and installed the following principals Comp. James Charles Franck, Z; Samuel S. Finden H; and Comp. Alfred A. Campbell, J. The chapter later on in that evening was presented with all the regalia necessary to carry on the work and Ex. Comp. Henderson of Kingston, congratulated the chapter on its inception. The chapter has continued since that time. Of the number who sat around the festive board on that interesting evening seventy-five years ago, all have "Gone in the long procession,

That passed away in the night:
Gone yes, forever and ever
Gone from life's region of light.
As Hiram slept, the widow's son
So do our brothers take their rest:
Life's battle fought, life's duties done,
Their faults forget, their worth expressed."

Companions seventy-five years ago came to Belleville to instal the officers of Moira Chapter in horse-drawn vehicles and the journey was long and tedious, but last night they arrived in comfortable sedans and the journey from Kingston was made in a little over an hour and a quarter. In the olden days candles lighted the Masonic hall and last night electric bulbs flooded the room with light. The biggest feature, however, was the broadcast of a program from the auditorium of John Street church to the Masonic hall by telephone. Companion Cecil Read and Companion Randolphe of the Bell Telephone Company were responsible for the hookup and Ex Comp Victor Graves was the sponsor. As the companions were ready to sit down the program opened and with Leo Riggs playing the organ, all sang the doxology. Then followed a recital by that well known organist and later Rigs, Al Stillman, Miss Leona Riggs, Harold Howard and Comp James Rankier, sang delightful solos in the "suits". Later the artists all came down to the hall and partook of food with the other companions. It made a real hit with the visitors especially when they imagined for some time that the programme was coming through from Montreal.

The toasts and responses were short as the companions from Kingston were an hour ahead in time and wished to get home early. The toast to "the Grand Chapter" was proposed by Ex Comp H. C. McKrath and responded to by Rt Ex Comp J. G. R. McCurdy. Very Ex Comp C. B. Scantlebury was given the honor to propose the toast to Ancient Prentenae and Cataraqui and Ex Comp Ken McCullough first principal, Past Prin E. Gilmmett, and Third Prin E. Varley responded. Ex Comp Victor Graves proposed the toast to the visitors and Rt. Ex Comp W. Y. Mills responded. This closed the programme as the fourth degree and all retired to the lodge room when ten candidates were given the Holy Royal Arch degree by the Kingston Companions. The work was excellently done. At the conclusion Comp John Weaddy was installed as treasurer of the chapter, instead of Don. G. Bleecker, deceased. And Lang Byrne closed a memorable night in capitular masonry respecting Moira Chapter.

In commemoration of the 75th anniversary of Moira Chapter, No. 7, R.A.M. last night the Companions of Ancient Prontenae and Cataraqui of Chapter, Kingston, who were guests of the local chapter, made a presentation before the evening was brought to a close. The presentation was made by Rt. Ex-Comp. W. Y. Mills and Ex-Comp. Ken McCullough to Ex-Comp. H. Dimmit of a gold triangle and compasses in a solid mahogany case.

RADIO FANS CORNER

We'll pass lightly over the subject of the reception last night but just in passing we'll say it was poor.

It seems that in saying that Wednesday night is an off night I have erred somewhat. My error, but awfully glad that a reader of this corner wrote me like a peach about it. Wish more of my readers would do that but it's like pulling teeth to get opinions from them.

The writer of this letter kindly puts down a list of programs for Wednesday night and he personally guarantees that they're good. Amos 'n' Andy of course rank first then he quotes the CGE Vagabonds, CKOW at 7 E.S.T. Halsey Stuart programs at 8 E.S.T. The last named can be heard from CKOW also, in fact originates there.

At 8.30 E.S.T. from WEAF the Writer suggests the Palmolive program. Your choice is excellent, it is a great program. Weenie Minstrels next from WBNS and back again to Chicrio at 9:30 E.S.T. for the Coca Cola program and here of course there is splendid dance music to be heard. Quite a line-up for tonight, isn't it?

During the Palmolive hour tonight the Revelers offer "Sing You Singers" from "Honey" and during the Sylvania Foresters' program at 7.30 from WJZ the quartet harmonize on two old songs "Come Along My Mandy" and "When the Flowers Bloom in the Springtime."

Fred Culley's Royal York Orchestra at 10 E.S.T. from Cheerio Station, so now you're all set.

SUMMER SPORT SEASON OPENS

Summer season officially opened in Belleville as far-as sport was concerned on Monday of this week with baseball, tennis, golf and other sports indulged in to heart's content by large numbers of followers. Weather has hardly warmed up to the enthusiasm of the players and fans but the near-arrival of the month of June is looked forward to as a harbinger of real seasonable weather. Sports however have been given their launching for the season and indications point to a year of marked activity.

MUSIC

William Lyon Phelps in the Delineator says:—

"Music is the only universal language. In a world that has so many misfortunes and bad luck, it seems an almost incredibly happy chance that musical notation should be in nearly all nations the same. If one wishes to read Goethe or Tolstoy or Ibsen in the original, one must learn German or Russian or Norwegian. But Beethoven and Tchaikowsky and Grieg wrote in the same language!

"Furthermore, while poetry and painting and architecture are general arts, music is greater. Music expresses passions and thoughts that are below and above the longest reaches of words and pictures.

In William de Morgan's fine novel, 'Joseph Vance,' there is a scene I shall never forget. Joseph is walking on the street one day, when he hears an open window in a house by a woman playing the piano. She is playing the Waldstein Sonata by Beethoven. Joseph listens entranced, and he says there is a scene in that sonata that 'proves the immortality of the soul.'

"He meant that such divine music is evidence of life beyond the grave; it sings of immortality. Such music could not have come from a transitory animal; it came from divine inspiration- and is a proof of the sublime destiny of man.

"Browning says the philosophers may guess and theorize; the musicians know.

"Sorrow is hard to bear, and doubt is slow to clear,
Each sufferer says his say, his scheme of the weal and woes:
But God has a few of us whom he whispers in the ear:
The rest may reason and welcome; 'tis we musicians know."

ART OF THE MARIONETTE

The history of acting and playmaking has run hand in hand with that of the marionette, says Dominic Lamonica in Atlantica.

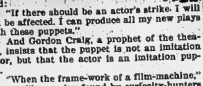
The merry, uncomplaining little puppets of today hark back in their stories to the very root of the modern theatre—the comedia dell'arte of medieval Italy. Those were the days when the Church, in its stern ascendancy, banned players as sinful, and then congratulated itself on having silenced such a source of satire and fun. But the innocent little marionettes had been allowed to prance and cavort, and it was a long time later that the Church discovered these little imps were as effective as human players in their parody and satire.

Since then marionettes have been in the background while the living actor-folk of every land has occupied the front of the stage, forgetting its simple progenitor. And now an offspring of the theatre is welcomed with open arms to its bosom. The movies are repopularizing the marionette. Remo Bufano is the first man to have introduced English-speaking puppets to this country Tony Sarg the only other marionette artist of note here, followed him by a few years.

The manipulation of marionettes is an art. It is not enough that the "puppazzi" be made to move and perform life-like gestures. From the purely dramatic point of view cleverness in handling the figures does not qualify one as a manipulator. More important than this, Bufano, is one's sense of dramatic values, and knowledge of the theatre. Dramatic ability is necessary because the marionette is primarily an interpreter.

"In every art," he said, "the personality of the artist is evident, and that of the marionette is no exception. An experienced spectator by watching th puppets in action, can often tell just who is manipulating each puppet."

Somehow, Italy's marionettes are more accomplished, more resourceful, and better actors in general than those of other countries. The marionettes themselves are more flexible in their display of emotion but that is merely another way of saying that they portray their emotions through gestures rather than by the use of feeble words.



Let us here correct an altogether too common misapprehension. It has been said that marionettes are delightful entertainment—for children only. This is quite untrue. There is something inherently wrong with the person whose eyes are not filmed with tears of laughter at the ludicrous bravado and mock solemnities of the little performers. A marionette can express nonsense more perfectly than any human actor, for human beings are limited in their scope of action by the laws of anatomy, but puppets can go to impossible lengths in their travesty. An impossible long nose here, an oversized head there, unnatural colorings, and exaggerated gestures in these help accentuate the puppet's character and his burlesque.

Marionettes display no temperament, have no stage fright, and do not threaten to go on strike. When Charles B. Dillingham, the theatrical producer, returned from abroad a few years ago with a troupe of Hallah-marionettes that had enormous success in England, he said:

"If there should be an actor's strike I will not be affected. I can produce all my new plays with these puppets."

And Gordon Craig, a prophet of the theatre, insists that the puppet is not an imitation actor, but that the actor is an imitation puppet.

"When the frame-work of a film-machine," he says, "is one day found by curiosity-hunters in the ruins of a cellar, and marveled over, the marionettes will still be alive and kicking."

WHAT A GOLFER CAN'T BUY

My woods are a wonderful registered set,
But no better I find are the drives that I get.
My irons, in fact, are the best that are made,
Every one looks like it is hand-fashioned blade.
I have bought everything books and pros can suggest,
But still in the bunkers my ball comes to rest.

With all that is needful my bag is equipped.
With the finest of leather my shafts are all gripped,
And whenever some new fangled putter I see
I buy in the hope it will sink putts for me.
But with every contrivance of steel and of wood
The fact still remains that my golf isn't good.

There are caddies who shoot in the seventies they say
With the clubs I've abandoned and given away.
There is nothing that's made for the game that I lack,
I have all that a golfer requires but the knack,
And I sigh as I tackle each new fangled thing,
What I need is a pro who can sell me a swing.

SEEMS TO ME folks with motor cars should study traffic regulations, and anyone with average common sense would know the right way to do the obvious things without studying the traffic regulations. For instance I saw a car parked plumb across a crossing duly marked out with wide and plain chalk marks. Shortly after I saw a car rush from a stop street onto a through street dodging between two parked cars and narrowly escaping being hit by a car on the through street. The driver of the latter hooted his disapproval on the horn and the erring car quickly slipped off on a side street. Then there is the reckless driver who takes chances at the busiest corners in the city. Bridge and Front streets, making left or right turns at high speed and generally endangering life both in the car and on the street. Driving a car is no child's play but a serious business which needs close study of mechanics and traffic regulations. Why are many young drivers become affected with motor madness and try to burn up the road and ignore not only regulations but the dictates of common sense and mercy for thus far no one has suggested that the fumes of gasolene are intoxicating. Observations taken at Bridge and Front streets and up the Bloomfield road any time any day and particularly at rush times will bear out the above.

"SAGONASKA" ENDORSED AS SUITABLE NAME FOR BRIDGE

Belleville, May 27, 1930.

Editor Ontario Intelligencer!

I am not much given to writing letters to the papers but I have been much interested in the communications that have been appearing lately in your paper from the son of Dr. Ackerill in regard to the name, "Sagonaska," the beautiful and sonorous appellation by which the Mohrs river was known of the Indians. I am therefore writing to express hearty endorsement of the suggestion made both by Dr. Ackerill and Mrs. Henry A. Brant to preserve this historically significant name as a cognomen for the new bridge now in process of construction over the Mohrs Perhaps we might also extend the use of the name by applying it to various other topographical features as well as to organizations as a variant from the overused "Quinte," "Mohrs," "Victoria," and "Belleville."

It would now appear to be too late in the day to change the name of our river from "Mohrs" to "Sagonaska." Such a process of substitution would be long and extremely difficult of accomplishment. Besides, the name "Mohrs" is an exceedingly pleasant combination of full-toned vowels and liquid consonants particularly suggestive of beauty and romance.

"Mohrs" has no local significance whatever but is honored name in the annals of Imperial statesmanship and colonial military records. The Mohrs family emigrated from Alsace to the town in County Down, Ireland. Near the town of Mohrs, Sir John Mohrs had his castle. He was a man of wealth and honorable family and the fourth baronet in his line. Before his death he was elevated to the Irish peerage with the double titles of Baron Rawdon and Earl of Mohrs.

The first Baron Rawdon, son of Sir John Rawdon, however, who became by far the most notable member of his family and left his name and titles so plentifully sprinkled over the physical features and municipal divisions of the County of Hastings.

Francis Rawdon was born in 1754 and died in 1826. He was the son of Sir John Rawdon, Earl of Mohrs, as mentioned above, and of Sir John Rawdon's third wife, Elizabeth Hastings, eldest daughter of Theophilus Hastings, ninth Earl of Huntingdon. The Earldom of Huntingford was also bound up in the Hastings family line, having been conferred in 1458.

Francis Rawdon went to the United States with the British troops during the 1773 and fought brilliantly on the British side in opposition to the rebellious colonists. He attained the rank of "Major" at the Battle of Bunker's Hill in June, 1775. Afterwards he took part in many of the most important campaigns of the Revolutionary war but won his chief distinction at the Battle of Hob Kirk's Hill where he commanded the British forces and defeated a greatly superior body of Americans under General Greene. He also served in Flanders corps in Philadelphia that became renowned as the "Irish Volunteers" and led those troops in the Irish rebellion of the war. Upon his return to England he was raised to the British peerage as Baron Rawdon, Earl of Mohrs, in recognition of his distinguished services in the American campaigns.

He also was a soldier and there rendered service equally brilliant in behalf of his sovereign and of the Hastings family. Indeed it was due to the sagacious leadership of Francis Rawdon as general of the British forces in America and afterwards as a constructive statesman that the name of the family of Hastings was completed and the vast and potential Indian Empire was added to the many possessions of the British crown. He remained in India until 1822 and received the title of Marquis of Hastings as a reward for his tremendous contribution to the Imperial domain and cause.

Of the Indian scenes of the reason why this Hibernian warrior and states man was so frequently remembered in the nomenclature of the Belleville district and given so great local prominence, for the Earl of Moira never honored Canada with more than a visit. A mile is that the noble marquis had a good friend in the surveyor-general who took the name of Hastings in giving his administration. Be that as it may we have the River Moira, the County of Hastings and the townships of Rawdon, Huntingdon and Hungerford, as well as a village and postoffice in Hungerford, the township of Hastings in Belleville and lodges and numerous other organizations, all deriving their inspiration from the noble family and the titles of one individual, Francis Rawdon, Marquis of Hastings and Earl of Moira.

At the risk of making this communication of undue length I give to your readers the origin of some of the more important place names in the County of Hastings. "Belleville" is so named in honor of Lady Bella, wife of Sir Francis Gore, lieutenant-governor of Upper Canada; "Sidney" township named after Thomas Townshend, Viscount Sydney, British statesman, 1732-1800; "Thurlow" after Edward Thurlow, British Statesman, 1732-1806; "Tyendinaga" called after Thayendanegea, Indian name of the famous Mohawk chief, Joseph Brant, (Ty-en-de-na-ga means "tied together like a bundle of sticks"); "Marmora" from the Latin word for marble; "Madoc" a Welsh prince, said to have discovered America in 1170; "Elzevir" so called from a Dutch family famous for several generations as producers of beautifully printed books; "Tudor" after Viscount Gerard Lake, commander-in-chief in Ireland in 1798, born 1744, died 1808 "Tudor" is the name of a dynasty of British sovereigns founded by Henry VII.; "Grimsthorpe" is taken from Grimsthorpe Castle, Lincolnshire, England, a seat of the Duke of Ancaster "Wollaston," named after Dr. William Hyde Wollaston, the celebrated English chemist, 1766-1828; "Limerick", after the city and the county of that name in Ireland; "Cashel" from the City of Cashel in Ireland; "Faraday," named after Prof. Michael Faraday, great English chemist, 1791-1867; "Dungannon", from a town in Ireland; "Mayo", a county name in Ireland; "Herschel" after Sir John Frederic William Herschel, distinguished astronomer, born in England of Hanoverian parentage, 1790-1871; "Montague" named in honor of Thomas Spring-Rice, Lord Monteagle, an Irish statesman, 1790-1866; "Carlow" from a county of the same name in Ireland; "McClure" after Sir R. J. McClure, born in Ireland and famous as the discoverer of the Northwest Passage in 1850, born 1807, died 1873; "Wicklow", a county and town in Ireland; "Rawdon" a city in Wales; "Stirling" from a city in Scotland.

At this distance in time it would appear most regrettable that so many of the euphonious names used by the aboriginal inhabitants, the Indians, were not retained. Imagine the howls that would not the United Empire Loyalists and the truly heroic pioneers more generously honored from a nomenclature. What names were being applied to places? Such names would have been redolent of the past to which they were applied and would have borne a significance and an originality altogether unattainable by the slavish repetition of names of Old World places and persons.

Such a protest was in the mind of the author of that monumental work, "Picturesque Canada," when he wrote well over half-a-century ago, "The Indian names along our Canadian shores were nearly all trampled under foot in the shameless tuft-hunting of the time when nothing but English would suffice. At Belleville, the ancient river "Sagonaska" was renamed to flatter the Earl of Moira. And even his baronies were detailed in the County of Hastings and the townships of Rawdon', 'Huntingdon' and 'Hungerford'."

How much more beautiful and distinctive the euphonious name as used "Canada" as compared with the awkward and commonplace "United States." "Indian names in Ontario," "Quebec," "Manitoba" and "Saskatchewan" are infinitely prefer able to such stereotyped names as "Newbrick" and "British Columbia." The people of Ontario's capital city did a good day's work when they decided to call their city by so pleasant a name as "Toronto" instead of the hackneyed "York." The same remark applies to "Deseronto" which superseded the Plebian "Mill Point." But why, may we ask, was so trite an appellative as "Kingston" selected when they might have chosen so suitable and significant a name as "Frontenac" after the great-hearted warrior and explorer who held the fortunes of the future city in 1673? Or, the name of the original Indian village that occupied the site, "Cataraqui," would have been infinitely more satisfactory than the fustian successor. "Belleville," too is another much-worn cognomen when we might have had the distinctive "Sagonaska," or "Singleton" from the gallant Loyalist soldier, Captain John Singleton, who was the first to establish a home where the city now stands. Why did not the namesters call the beautiful county to the south of us "Massassaga" in honor of the tribe of Aboriginal inhabitants who once occupied its shores and who forests rang with the war-whoops of the Mississaugas?

ADDITIONAL ESTIMATES

OTTAWA, May 27—A total of $11,032,201.43 is required to cover the supplementary estimates tabled in the House at adjournment tonight by Hon. Charles Dunning Minister of Finance. The largest items include $900,000 for a grain elevator at Lethbridge. $450,000 for increased grain storage facilities at Moose Jaw, and $400,000 for increased storage facilities at Saskatoon. Another interesting item is $677,000 for the Department of National Revenue for salaries and contingencies in the various ports of the Dominion as a further amount for salaries of additional officers due to the institution of the eight-hour day. A revote of $551,985.41 is asked to provide for payment of claims and interest in connection with movements of coal.

Dog Bylaw Causes Discussion

of applications for the position were laid on the table and Frank Baldrey and Charles Saunders were selected as the two upon which to vote. Ald. Charles L. Hyde moved that Charles Saunders be appointed and he furnish his own equipment, and this carried with Aids. French and Tice opposing. The by-law was then asked for and in section four, or the by-law it distinctly stated that the mayor, police constable or police magistrate had the right to make the appointment and an amendment soon followed that "the city clerk be authorized to notify the police commission to take immediate action on the appointment of a dog catcher and a pound keeper."

Fire Equipment Costs

When the recommendations that were passed Thursday night as the committee meeting respecting the purchase of certain equipment for the fire department, members of the council opposed the matter of the purchase of a life net as a cost of $220.00 as being unnecessary at this time. Ald. The stated that the council was spending too much money and Belleville for years had done without one and after its purchase it would likely be laid away in pot. There is only one building for which it would be required, that being the hospital and some arrangements could be made with that institution. The matter was referred back to the committee for further action. Some equipment that had to be purchased out of town was rescinded and the St. Charles Motors given the contract at the same figure.

Cars Indigents Costs

Costs of indigent patients in hospital were discussed at the meeting last night. The amount for these patients has increased by leaps and bounds and the council is trying in some manner to curb the expenditure. It is believed by members of the council that some patients enter the institution as indigent patients that are quite able to pay and the council has to foot the bills. Three recommendations were passed respecting this matter.

Collector Named

The accounts for indigent patients at the hospital of $4,196.00 for the year 1929 be paid at once, this amount covering in full. The city clerk was instructed to write the secretary of the Hospital Board of Governors asking them to kindly render all city indigent patient's accounts weekly to this council and that our collector be given permission to look into all indigent accounts through their Secretary, Miss Jean Adams. The council appointed H. Mulby, to collect indigent patient's accounts at a salary of $20 a week and the services of the collector to terminate at the discretion of the council. It was thought that probably something could be reclaimed from these indigent patients.

Investigate Complaint

Mrs. Lillian Mikel and Ald. W. A. Woodley were responded as representatives of the city on the Mother's Allowance Commission. The Victorian Order of Nurses was given a cheque for $300.00 on account of their 1930 grant. The grant will be arranged when the expenses are brought down. Mr. Cull complained of the stand of William Lane being placed near his place of business on Bridge Street east and the council appointed Ald. McMillan and Ald Fisher as a committee to look after the complaint and report their finding to council. McColl-Frontenac Oil Company were given permission to erect two more storage tanks on their property on South Front street, subject to the plans and specifications given to the City Engineer. Miss Frances Winn was given two weeks' salary in lieu of her two weeks' holidays as she is leaving the service of the Osa Department to take a position at the Belleville General Hospital and will not be entitled to holidays at that institution this year. Miss Winn has been a valued employee of the city for some years.

Lighting of New Bridge

A letter of thanks will be drafted to the mayor and members of the municipal council of Smiths Falls, for their kindness in entertaining a committee that went from this council to inspect the lighting system of that town. A committee of Mayor Reid, Ald. Macmillan and Ald. Aylsworth was appointed to go to Toronto to interview Mr. Archie B. Crealock, consulting engineer of the new lower bridge regarding a lighting system for that structure. The Standard Paving will receive a letter from the City Clerk, thanking them for work done gratis on the curb and gutters of the pavements laid by them. Although their contract had expired with the city they did the work without remuneration.

Petitions were received from residents of South John Street for a sewer from the railway tracks to the Bay of Quinte. This was referred to the city engineer for a report. The grade is very bad at this point and it will be with difficulty if a sewer can be laid on this street. A protest from residents on North Front street was received by the council asking that a pavement be not constructed on the northeastern side. A number of protests were received about oiling certain streets in the city. These were referred to the chairman of Public Works and the city engineer with power to act.

Oiling Streets

A letter was received from the city engineer asking the council to proceed with the laying of concrete sidewalks under the Local Improvement Act as the petitions for these works were not sufficiently signed to proceed without advertising the work. The streets affected are Pinnacle street west side from the Market Square to Dundas street, Bleecker street north side from Coleman to Cedar street, Ridley street from North Front street to Dundas street, East Dundas street south side from Bleecker avenue to the General Hospital, and Bay street north side from Foster avenue to east end of Bay street. Tenders were referred to the City Engineer and the chairman of Public Works with power to act. Four by-laws were passed, two being money by-laws to borrow money on debentures for certain local improvements. The other was the raising of $300,000.00 for the construction of a mechanical filtration plant and the last a by-law prohibiting and regulating the erection of signs within the city limits. The council adjourned at eleven o'clock.

Turkey, India and Africa, which will probably be frankly secular. Nor is our own Anglo-Saxon civilization without symptoms of the same thing.

At the Conference of Missionaries in Jerusalem in 1928, missionaries from every part of the world bore witness to the fact that every form of theistic faith is challenged today whether it be Buddhism, Mohammedanism, Hinduism, Confusianism or Christianity. The real issue is between a universe and a world ever interpreted in terms of moral responsibility and of anything like a real purpose; and a pagan fatalism bound in the end to be disillusioned, disappointed and desperate.

Divorce

"One terrible symptom of the egotism which is the inevitable fruit of the secular interpretation of life is the ominous increase of divorce in our own allegedly sane and conservative Ontario. This evil is spreading like a cancer. Hundreds of divorces are secured each year by citizens of this province in States of the American Union as well as in our land. Many of these divorces are granted under our laws. The resultant conditions can be imagined.

"It has finally been settled that Ontario is to have a divorce court of its own. Certainly some radical change in the administration of divorce laws was necessary in Canada. Probably in theory, and we shall earnestly hope in practice, Provincial Divorce Courts are the best way out. The vital question still remains, however, and it is the real issue in the matter in which, so far as I know, no great consideration has been given on the part of the public, the conception of that Court's duty and the lines along which it ought to function. It will be but a pandour to increasing divorce and all evils that come in its train unless its constitution, procedure and spirit be lofty and enlightened. If it will conserve its main duty to be to prevent divorce and to help to prevent hasty and foolish people from hasty action. If it will give room and time for consideration and take the trouble to give enlightened guidance, it will make a real positive contribution to the solution of the problem for this province. To my mind, the real question at issue is not as to whether we shall have a Divorce Court in Ontario or not, but the question as to how that court is to be constituted and what methods, ideals and purposes it conceives to be its duty to follow. Any increase in the evil of divorce will snap the very foundation of any civilization. It has been a main element in the past and it will do the same again.

Church's Duty

"The duty of the Christian Church however, is not so much to pass opinion on Divorce Courts, as to do its part, duty to the full of attacking the people that egotism and selfishness which are the products of secularism and take logic and that human happiness consists in the exercise of that unselfishness and consideration for the welfare of others which is the essence of the spirit of Jesus, and the soul of Christianity. I charge all the clergy of this diocese to teach boldly and faithfully the great ideals of Christian marriage as, under the circumstances of our time, one of their most pressing duties, not only in view of the divorce evil but with the end of uplifting and strengthening the undamental relationships of human beings. It is probably not necessary to remind the members of Synod that many years ago our own Church through its General Synod expressed its voice in no uncertain terms in its canon which forbids the clergy of the Church of England in Canada to marry divorced persons under any circumstances whatever while both parties to the original marriage are living.

To Attend Lambeth

"I pause here for a moment to express my appreciation as Bishop of this Diocese to those members of our Church who by personal subscription have made it possible for me as Bishop of this Diocese to attend the forthcoming Lambeth Conference of the Bishops of the Anglican Communion.

INTERNATIONAL COUNCIL ENDS

Gospel and Missionary Alliance Delegates Met At Ottawa

Rev. W. M. Willoughby, pastor of arrived back from the International conference that from the International Council meeting in Ottawa which was attended by four hundred delegates from Canada and the United States, and fifty returned missionaries from various parts of the world. Sunday evening the Ottawa Gospel Tabernacle itself pledged ten thousand one hundred dollars to foreign missions.

A. E. Carmichael, M.P., of Hinderslev, Sask., welcomed the delegates to the annual missionary convention and the International Council of the Alliance at the Gospel Tabernacle. Rev. W. Christie replied to the welcome. Speaking of Canada he said: "Your young giant is dear to the citizens of the United States and also to the citizens of the Old Country, of which I happen to be a subject. It is a matter of pride that Canada has given birth to the founder of the Christian and Missionary Alliance."

One of the addresses at the conference was delivered by Rev. Wm. Weston on "The Faultless Christ." Rev. H. M. Shuman, president of the Alliance, said Russia having failed to overthrow religion was returning to the faith. Miss Julia Derr said the people of India were very eager to embrace Christianity.

Rev. W. A. Prantz, of Indo-China, told of native life in Indo-China, many of the churches being self-supporting and having been built by the natives themselves.

The Alliance represents a worldwide field of activity with missionaries in each foreign field with a total of three hundred missionaries and 1200 about 60 millions of people. There are native workers.

During the conference the delegates visited Parliament Hill. They were met at the House by Mr. Carmichael, M.P., who introduced them to the Speaker of the House, Hon. Mr. Lemieux, who welcomed them to Ottawa. They visited the Peace Tower and the Memorial Chamber.

Rev. Mr. Willoughby told The Ontario Intelligencer he was much impressed with the outlook of the Alliance throughout the world as the International assembly indicated great possibilities.

LATE MRS. G. W. McMULLEN

Mary Jane Regan, widow of the late George W. McMullen, died on Monday May 26th, at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. H. E. McCormick, Murray township, after a short illness. She was born in Murray where she spent the most of her life. She was in her eighteenth year and was a member of St. Alphonsus' Catholic Church, Wooler. She is survived by two daughters, Mrs. H. E. McCormick and Mrs. Albert Miller, of West Branch, Michigan, and one brother, John Regan, of West Branch. Her husband predeceased her ten year.

DR. I. G. BOGART IS MUCH BETTER

Kingston, May 28.—The condition of Dr. I. G. Bogart, one of Kingston's well-known surgeons, who was sudden ly stricken with obstruction of the heart early Monday morning and was removed to the General Hospital for treatment, is much improved. Dr. Bogart at once diagnosed the trouble recalling that just twenty years ago he had been operated on in the General Hospital by the late Dr. Isaac Wood and Dr. R. W. Garrett, then Kingston's leading surgeons, for a gangrenous appendix. His present condition is supposed to have resulted from some old adhesions.

Reo Engineers Offer Proven Developments In Speed Wagons!

This is the second summer for the Reo Gold Crown Engine, used exclusively in Speed Wagons.

No product of Reo engineering or Reo facilities ever gave greater satisfaction to users.

Many have gone more than 50,000 miles without a valve-grind . . . thousands with nothing more than that.

The Gold Crown Engine has everything known to engineering now!

We mix enough costly pure chromium into the nickel-iron cast to give you cylinder walls and valve seats seven times longer lived than ordinary gray iron castings.

To match it, we use Lo-Ex pistons, so tough that they outwear two to three ordinary pistons.

Seven bearings (you can't use more!) cradle the scientifically balanced crankshaft.

For most efficient cooling we put 6 gallons of water through the cylinders every 7 seconds, at top speed.

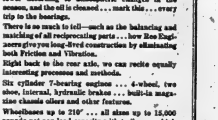
A simple device so diverts the water flow that all cylinders are kept within 4° temperature of each other.

Thus all "hot water pockets"—that account in the end for frequent recurring troubles in other engines and that no repair shop can correct—are eliminated.

We cool the oil, too, with a special oil-cooling engine pan into which the oil drips from the bearings and side walls.

We maintain an oil temperature from 25° to 40° lower according to atmospheric changes in the season, and the oil is cleaned . . . mark this . . . every trip to the bearings.

There is so much to tell—such as the balancing and matching of all reciprocating parts . . . how Reo Engineering uses long, flexible connections by eliminating both Friction and Vibration.



Right back to the rear axle, we can recite equally interesting processes and methods.

Six cylinder 7-bearing engines . . . 4-wheel, two shoe, internal, hydraulic brakes . . . built-in magnesse chassis oilers and other features.

Wheelbases up to 210" . . . all sizes up to 15,000 pounds net pay-load capacity with trailers . . . high pressure or balloon tires.

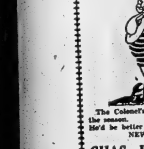
PUBLIC SCHOOL STAFF TALKS ON BIG FIELD DAY

At a meeting held at the Y.M.C.A. yesterday evening practically all the public schools of the city were represented by their principals or assistant principals. The meeting which was called by Mr. Harry Pearson, chairman of the Sports Committee, was for the purpose of effecting some organization amongst the schools to assist in coaching the boys in the various events which are open to them in the Belleville Fair Field Day to be held on August 26th. Between now and school closing in the latter part of June the different schools will be visited and the pupils who are interested will be given instruction in all the events open to juniors, boys under 16 years of age. A number of volunteers have written to the physical director of the Y.M.C.A. will assist in this work which will be carried on at the respective schools following school hours. The representatives were also requested to announce that any of the older boys in the public schools are welcome to attend the practice groups at the exhibition grounds on Tuesday and Friday at 6.45 p.m. and receive coaching on the various events along with the members of the Y.M.C.A.

PICTORIAL GOLF INSTRUCTION

(BY H. B. MARTIN)



Change of Stance Will Correct Tendency to Slice

Those who slice can find almost immediate relief by taking stance that will make it extremely awkward for the golfer to pull the arms in. That is what causes the clubhead to come across the ball, the prime reason for a slice.

Advance the left foot, or if you like, pull the right foot back about eight inches thereby making it possible for the clubhead to come onto the ball from the inside of the line. Naturally the club will continue on over the line and most likely will bring about a hook which is just the opposite from a cut.

The hands of course can control to some extent the slice, but it is not so easily done as in the case of the stance. This takes a path for the clubhead while the position of the hands only relates to the turning over of the club.

THE GIRL Plays the Game

By— Clarinda A. Cragg

Hello fans. Here we are again with bigger and better prospects for the most successful season in softball that Belleville has ever had. First of all a brief review of the situation will do no harm and give you a little information. Well here goes. First of all we now have a real honest to goodness city league and five teams have been entered, the Frontenacs, Wings and Comets of coors, all well known to city league fans last year, and the newcomers the National Maids, formerly the Beavers and the Trenton girls. A single schedule will be run off and four games a week played, Tuesdays and two on Fridays. Trenton and Corbyville will play their home games on their own diamonds and each time one of them goes to be being played there will also be one on the armouries lawn. Mr. Harold WoodCay has been elected president of the league with Miss K. Dadswell of Trenton as secretary. Well, I think we are all set for a fine season, so let's go.

The first gun in softball circles was shot last night when two scheduled city league games were played off. The Chaps first opened the ball on the armouries lawn against the Whoopees, while the National's motored to Trenton and played the Trenton Maids in their place. The score for the first game was close, the final count being 13-11 for the Chaps. The score in the Trenton game was just a little bit one sided if we may be permitted to say so, anyhow judge for yourselves here are the numbers 25-9 in favor of the Nationals.

Of course it's a little early yet to say just how the league is going to form up, but judging from first performances, the National Maids look to be hard nuts to crack. This team is made up of practically all senior players who have been coached and played together a number of years. The Frontenacs have yet to exhibit their stuff so we may yet see an honest-to-goodness rival come on the scene. We hope so anyway. The Frontenacs have a number of the city's best players, lined up in Audrey and Aileen Wilkins, Mury and Olive Adams, Peg Hobson an old veteran player, former first baseman for the old Ontario team, has once more entered the ranks after an absence of several years and will try holding down the first sack for the Frontenacs. Peg was one of the finest players in the city and we wish her a real come-back.

The Frontenacs will make the't first appearance on Friday night and fans will then have a chance to see what they can do. Judging by the large crowd that turned out to see the game at the armouries last night, the league is enthusiastic as ever and everything looks bright for another splendid year.

We know you'll be interested to know the line-up for the two teams so we will print one each day. Our guests are first, so here are the Trenton lassies:

M. Coulter—pitcher.
A. Calna—catcher.
L. Dadswell—1st base.
N. Dadswell—2nd base.
F. Bonter—3rd base.
H. Miller—right field.
M. Leavy—centre field.
C. Gowens—left field.
B. Bonter—shortstop.

PIRATES STOP CARDS' STREAK

Pittsburg May 28.—The Pittsburg Pirates broke the eight-game winning streak of the St. Louis Cardinals, winning a loosely played game 8 to 5.

The Cardinals and the Pirates 13 to 8, but wildness of Grabowski and Bell helped the Pirates. The Cardinals had 11 men left on the bases.

Larry French pitched good ball in the pinches and but for some bad support, would have had the Cards' score down. His triple in the second inning drove in his team's first three runs.

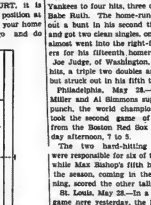
Brooklyn, May 28.—Bill Walker who pitched Jim Elliott here yesterday and the New York Giants broke their five-game losing spell with a 5 to 1 victory over the Brooklyn Robins in the third game of the series.

Elliott lasted seven innings and the Giants made all their runs off him. Walker allowed eight hits and in the ninth inning with two Robins on the bases he fanned Babe Herman to end the contest.

GOOD PRIZES IN 3RD JUNE RACES

Valuable Awards Draw Many Entries for Holiday Contests

Three team prizes will be given for the Trenton to Belleville relay which the local Association sponsors for the 3rd of June. The Walker Hardened Trophy of course becomes the property of the winning team for one year but in addition to that, each member of the team of five runners will also receive a sterling silver medal. These latter are being awarded by the Physical Committee of the Y. The Canadian Departmental Store of this city, are contributing five pairs of high grade running shoes which will be the reward for the team finishing in second place. To the members of the team placing third in the relay Mr. Charles Symons is donating ties which will be selected from the best sellers. The Physical Committee is greatly indebted to these two firms for their splendid contributions toward making this event a possibility and it only remains for the local citizens as well as those from the surrounding district to show their appreciation by taking part in the event.



The prize list for the bicycle race is not as yet complete but a further announcement as to it will be made before the end of the week. Prospective entrants however, may rest assured that worthwhile prizes will be awarded for this as well as the relay race. At least two local teams will participate in the relay and possibly a third may be persuaded to take part. Trenton will likely be represented by two or more teams while last year's winners from Peterboro along with a team from Kingston, are expected to be on hand on the morning of the 3rd.

VL COURT POSITION

Court position is one of the most important elements in tennis and the fundamentals are simple. Court position means "the point in the court at the right time." To be caught out of position" is tragic. To catch or place your opponent out of position is the object of every stroke and move in the game. There are on'y two positions on the court where it is safe or successful to be. First in the backcourt 2 or 3 feet behind the baseline centre, and second approximately five or six feet from the net.

NEVER BE CAUGHT IN THE CENTRE OF YOUR COURT, is Tenn's Suicide. The first position at the baseline should become your home office, from where you go and do your job and return. There should be no variance from this procedure. Keep your home office in your mind at all times. When the opportunity arrives for you to go to the net—DO IT ONCE and carry out your objective which is to put the ball away. If you are forced back go directly to the "home office" and prepare for the next move. It is one or the other at all times. To maintain and use these positions to full advantage the ball must be kept in play at all cost.

Make this law and keep it— KEEP YOUR EYE ON THE BALL—AND GET THE BALL OVER THE NET.

On The Sport Trail

Manager Walter Grow expressed himself as being pleased with the showing of the National last Monday in the game with the Kingston 21st Battalion Club. Ed is not, however content to allow his squad to idle the week away, and will have them out for two stiff work-outs. The Nationals were impressive in their Spring debut and the fans were well satisfied.

They had been practising but one week, and some of them appeared to be in mid-season form. Alex and Vernon Weir had their eye on the old apple and Alex's long drive which resulted in two runs being scored, was a timely blow. He also twirled a magnificent game and had the visitors eating out of his hand.

George Scott turned in a superlative game at short-stop and while Harry Blakely will certainly be missed, he has an able successor in Scott. Blakely was as pretty an infielder as one would wish to see in action anywhere. Quick as a flash with a masterful throwing arm he was poison to base-runners.

One of the surprises of opening day was the splendid showing of the three outfielders which Manager Grow introduced. Flagler and Cretney have both had experience in the local industrial League while Flagler was a member of the big at the Nationals' club for several seasons past but heretofore just failed to make the grade. He has clinched a berth for himself this year if he continues to perform as he did on Monday.

Cretney is a real slugger while there are few better fly-chasers than Harold Rock. The locals will play the next game in Kingston, possibly on the K'ng's Birthday.

Rumors of baseball wars in the local ranks have been reported from time to time on the street this week but they are not as bad as they are painted. Some of those trying to stir up trouble have reported that the relations between the Nationals and the Canada Cement Athletic are considerably strained. However the air has been somewhat clearing with the situation from K. S. Elliott tendering on the eligibility of three local players. Canada Cement had these boys signed when they first played with the Nationals last year and were considered part of the local club.

However it is believed that the managers from K. S. Elliott have come to a satisfactory agreement.

The Canada Cement team have overthrown all opposition in the Bay of Quinte League and have aspirations of an intermediate title. They are well fortified in every position and should go a long way in quest of the silverware.

RUTH'S BIG BAT SPOKE LUSTILY

Cleveland Indians Nose Out White Sox—Double Header

Cleveland, May 28.—The Cleveland Indians nosed out the Chicgs White Sox in both ends of a double-header yesterday, winning both games by a one-run margin. The scores were 3 to 2 and 9 to 8.

The first game was a pitchers' duel between Harder and Harder, with the former having the edge for the first seven innings. Both pitchers allowed five hits.

In the second game the White Sox overcame the Indians' early lead with a ninth-inning rally and went into the last half of the ninth inning with a one-run lead. The Indians, however, got a pair of runs and were sure to finish the game.

New York, May 28.—Sam Jones kept his string of victories intact by winning his sixth straight game of the season as Washington scored 7 to 2 triumph over the New York Yankees.

It was the seventh straight victory for Washington, and the third defeat in a row for the Yankees.

A crowd of 11,000 saw Jones hold the Yankees to four hits, three of them by Babe Ruth. The latter's home run was out a hunt in his second time at bat and got two clean singles out of his almost even turn into the right-field bleachers for his fifteenth homer.

Joe Judge, of Washington, made four hits, a triple and doubles and a single but struck out in his fifth time at bat.

Philadelphia, May 28.—With Bing Miller and Al Simmons supplying the punch, the world champion Athletics took the second game of the series from the Boston Red Sox three, yester day afternoon, 7 to 5.

The two hard-hitting outfielders were responsible for six of the A's runs while Max Bishop's fifth home run of the season, coming in the fourth inning, scored the other tally.

St. Louis, May 28.—In a free hitting game sore yesterday, the Detroit Tigers won their third straight game from the Browns. The score was 16 to 11.

Less than 1,200 spectators were on hand to see five Brownie hurlers and four Tiger roundsmen led to the slaughter.

The Tigers collected 21 hits. Hargrave got four in five times at bat and Goslin, Alexander and Rice each getting three. Hargrave, Rice and Funk hit home runs.

GIANTS CLOSED ANOTHER TRADE

Pitchers Donohue and Allen Report to Manager McGraw

New York, May 28.—The New York Giants made their fourth trade of the 1930 baseball season yesterday, when they obtained Pitcher Pete Donohue and Outfielder Ethan Allen from Cincinnati in exchange for Infielder Pat Crawford.

The Giants had previously obtained Outfielder Wally Berger and Pitcher Clarence Mitchell from the St. Louis Cardinals, an Second Baseman Hugh Critz from Cincinnati, in three earlier deals.

Although the Giants announced today that the deal was made, those close to the situation say that at least $50,000 was given the Reds in addition to the players. He has been playing second for the Giants, but will be used at first base by Cincinnati.

The acquisition of Donohue and Allen bolsters the Giants in spots which have contributed much to their recent collapse, in which they lost five straight and 11 out of their last 13 games up until today.

Donohue, a right-hander, is 30, and came to the Reds straight from Texas Christian University in 1921. He was one of the leading pitchers in the National League for several seasons but seems to have outlived his usefulness at Cincinnati. He won 10 and lost 13 last season, and has won 1 and lost 3 this year.

Allen is a right-handed hitter and thrower. He is 26 and joined the Reds in 1926, coming directly from the University of Cincinnati. He batted .292 last season.

Crawford is 28, and has a reputation for his ability to hit right-handers as he bats left-handed. He batted .298 last season in 5 games, once hitting a home run with the bases filled in the role of pinch hitter.

Donohue and Allen will report to the Giants in Boston Thursday, and Allen is expected to take his place in centre field immediately, as Andy Reese is nursing a sore arm and Roet tger is still weak from his recent illness.

BISONS AGAIN DEFEATED COLTS

Baltimore Turn Back Skeeters in Fourth Straight

Rochester, May 28.—Buffalo took the third game of the series with the Rochester club yesterday, putting extra base hits into the pastime with men on bases for a 4 to 3 verdict.

Hawks' homer accounted for half of the Bison runs, and Mueller drove in a third with a triple and then tallied on a wild pitch.

Collins and Florence—the latter with a homer—drove in the three Red Wing counters.

Manager Southworth was nipped at the plate in the ninth for the final out of the game as he tried to score from second on Toporcer's single. Tucker making a perfect throw to the home station.

Baltimore, May 28.—The Jersey City Black Cats left here yesterday with a record of four straight losses, when the Birds defeated them by a score of 9 to 6.

Henry Wertz toiled for the Flock, and although he was nicked for eleven hits he kept them scattered. Errors allowed two of the Cats to score.

Brenn and Henderson worked for the Jerseyites, and among the eleven Oriole hits were home runs by Wertz and Sand.

Selkirk and Wera hit home runs for the Cats.

Toronto, May 28.—Reading took to the slants of Lefty Fischer, Newark port-sider flinger, for only six hits in a victory over the Bruins here 3 to 2.

Werneke had the upper hand throughout the pitchers' duel and his mates hit in the timely fashion.

Werneke was the victim of a pair of Bruin home runs for their only scoring, Jordan and Shinners hitting circuit clouts with none on base.

WILL USE THREE TANK CARS OIL

Street Oiling Operations This Week Will Consume 25,000 Gallons

Street oiling in the city was started yesterday afternoon at Clare corner by the Municipal Roads Spraying and Equipment Company. Three tank cars of oil with a capacity of 25,000 gallons were received by the company this week. Workmen have been kept busy during the past few days in roll, patching the roads and preparing them for the oil. The wet weather has retarded the work and consequently a setback of more than one weeks time has been suffered. The roads which have been oiled are the bay bridge road and the route leading to it as follows; Brock street, Mary street and West Dundas. Everett, Cedar, Veterans and West Moira street from Howard to Sidney have also been done. Tomorow oiling will begin on the east hill. Mr. Mott, city engineer, stated this morning that they expected to use up the three tank cars of oil this week, and, that another shipment would probably be received next week. All oiling will be completed within two weeks time, weather permitting.

MRS. W. N. PONTON WAS RE-ELECTED TO PRESIDENCY

Annual Meeting of Women's Canadian Club Was Held

The annual meeting of the Women's Canadian Club of this city, took place yesterday afternoon at St. Thomas' Parish hall. Mrs. W. N. Ponton, the president of the past term opened the meeting. Votes of thanks were extended to the officers, pianist and to all those who in any way had helped to make the past year such a successful one for the club. Mrs. Ponton also gave a brief review of the lectures which had been enjoyed by the club during its past season. The report showed that ten lectures had been given by such outstanding speakers as Mrs. Madge MacBeth, R. K. Finlayson, Mr. McGarvell, Canon Gower-Rees and Professor Kotz of Queen's University. The lectures embraced the following subjects—travel art, science, psychology and ethics.

The secretary's report was read by Mrs. W. B. Ricks and gave in detail the activities of the committees during the past year. The treasurer's report was read by Mrs. MacColl, and showed the fine financial condition of the club at the end of the year's work.

The election of officers resulted as follows:

President—Mrs. W. N. Ponton.
1st Vice Pres.—Mrs. Stewart Lasby
2nd Vice Pres.—Mrs. R. B. Lecie.
Corresponding Secretary—Mrs. Leo Biggs.
Assistant—Mrs. Archie Cameron.
Councillors—Mrs. J. F. Wills, Mrs. C. A. Marshall, Mrs. E. N. Baker, Miss A. Hurley, Miss Stewart Masson, Miss Templeton, Mrs. Lister, Mrs. J. A. Kerr, Mrs. J. B. Reeve, Mrs. Bishop, Mrs. W. A. Parker.

Tentative plans were discussed for the annual Armistice luncheon which is held early in the fall. Several names were suggested as the guest speaker for this important event. Among them were such outstanding names as Dr. Margaret Paterson Senator Hon. Cairine Wilson and Mrs. Charles Thorburn.

BELOVED QUEEN HAS BIRTHDAY

Her Majesty Celebrated 63rd Birthday on Monday, In Fine Health

Contrasting with the events which preceded her fixed birthday last year, Queen Mary on the 63rd anniversary of her birth today had little but happy events to look back on.

The year was almost peaceful in comparison with the time of the previous one, in which King George nearly died of bronchial pneumonia. She did not share herself during that critical period and when the King became convalescent, she was bordering on a breakdown.

But these crises were gone today, but not forgotten. Queen Mary spent the absolutely happy year. Each day assured her that the King, taking into consideration his years, had become increasingly fit. Their sojourn at Sandringham, where his majesty went out shooting nearly every day; at Windsor, where the King again followed his favorite hobby, horseriding, and his attendance at such functions as Ascot, the football cup final and the Buhlo races at Newmarket, have been indications, not only to the Queen, but to the public as well, that all was again in good health.

Prince's Returns

The second visit during her majesty's 63rd year was the trip of her son, the Prince of Wales, to Africa. Like any mother, she longed for the safe return of her son, and when it was learned that he was ill with malaria was evident. His safe return to England was another bright spot for the Queen.

Another event is the approaching birth of another grandchild. The King and Queen have three—Princess Mary's two sons, and the Duke and Duchess of York's baby, Princess Elizabeth. Now the duchess has cancelled all her engagements for this summer, which is taken as an indication that another heir is expected.

Tweed

Mr. S. B. Rollins is erecting a cottage on the shore of Stoco Lake.

Mr. Snider's health is not improving as rapidly as was looked for.

Mr. Chas. Mannit of Actinolite has the misfortune to have a small bone in his leg broken and otherwise badly bruised, when his team became frightened and dragged him for a considerable distance. He was brought in to Tweed where Dr. Mather attend to his injuries.

Mrs. W. E. Tummon spent a couple of days in Ottawa last week.

"I Rented my extra room"

We've had that spare room right along of course, but it just occurred to me that I might be able to rent it, and use the "rent money" to pay part of the grocery bill—so I put a small Want Ad in the Ontario Intelligencer and presto, the room was rented.

Perhaps this is a suggestion to YOU.

Rheumatism Crippled English Girl

But Gin Pills soon brought relief

A stranger in a strange land, only nine months out from England and six of them a cripple with Rheumatism. No wonder Miss Florence Hallett was despondent. Writing from Ottawa she sums up in a few sentences those weary, painful months—three doctors, a foot specialist, a month in hospital, then we'll again when she "almost have been in bed."

Gin Pills save Miss Hallett's warmest praise. "I found an improvement after the first box," she declares gratefully. "I shall always keep your pills by me. I think they are wonderful."

The great value of Gin Pills lies in their soothing and tonic effect upon the kidneys. The relief they give sufferers from Rheumatism, Sciatica, Lumbago, etc., is wonderful. But these acute conditions should never be allowed to develop. Take Gin Pills the first time symptoms of trouble show themselves—backache, dizziness, spots before the eyes, swollen joints, headaches, brick dust in urine, a burning sensation attendant on scanty or too frequent urination. 50c. a box at all druggists. National Drug & Chemical Co. of Canada Limited, Toronto, Canada. 177

DON'T SUFFER WITH DANGEROUS INDIGESTION

Do you suffer after meals with a belching, from sour and acid stomach? Many believe they have heart trouble and tremble with fear, expecting any minute to drop dead. This condition can be prevented, likewise relieved.

Take Carter's Little Liver Pills after meals and neutralize the gases, sweeten the sour and acid stomach, relieve the gas and encourage digestion. The stomach, liver and bowels will be cleansed of poison, painful and dangerous indigestion disappears and the system enjoys a tonic effect. Don't delay. Ask your druggist for a 25c pkg. of Carter's Little Liver Pills.

Advice to Lovelorn

By Beatrice Fairfax

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am 18, and in love with a fine young man, four years my senior. He has a good business and is very steady, but he is a Greek and his parents speak almost no English. What do you think of such a marriage? My family disapprove.

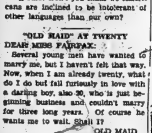
DOROTHY

Once upon a time, Dorothy, the Greeks were the most admired people in the world, and for good reasons. I do not see any reason why an American girl should not marry a modern Greek, if he is as eligible as this young man appears to be, and I hope your family will reconsider their objection. Since the young man grew up in this country, there is of course no language barrier between you, and as for his parents' speech, it is surely not surprising that they speak the language of the'r own country, rather than ours. Don't you think we Americans are inclined to be intolerant of other languages than our own?

"OLD MAID" AT TWENTY

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

Several young men have wanted to marry me, but I haven't felt that way. Now, when I am already twenty, what do I do but fall furiously in love with a darling boy, also 20, who is just beginning business and couldn't marry for those long years. Of course he wants me to wait. Shall I?



OLD MAID

It all depends on whether you are sufficiently in love with him, which I am inclined to doubt. If you were, my dear, I imagine you would prepare to face the three years' engagement without even asking my advice. From my point of view, twenty is just a wee bit young to marry while twenty-three is an admirable age for a bride, and you could spend the intervening time in whatever you turned further and in learning how to keep house. It is of course quite deliciously absurd of you to regard twenty as elderly. Ten years from now you will have a very different notion.

A FAITHLESS HUSBAND

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I have been married for five years

Milady Gets Her Furs

A New York furrier telephoned to his representative in Montreal: "Rush one hundred and fifty marten skins; we have a buyer who wants quick action."

The fur man in Montreal phoned Edmonton, telling his needs. Without delay the Edmonton man called the radio station and word went out advising trappers at several points in the far north to be ready to turn the skins over to the airman who would call for them in a few hours.

The next day the airman is back and the furs are speedily cast by aerial transport. In three days from the time of his request the furrier in Manhattan turns the skins over to his purchaser.

The lonely trapper is no more, for the telephone, radio and aeroplane in combination have penetrated even the far northern solitudes.

Fashionably Speaking

DEAR READERS:

This matter of floor covering has I suppose at some time or another caused you a little trouble or worry. The question often arises when re-decorating our homes, which shall it be, rugs or carpets? The most important thing, dear reader, is to have your floor dark. The floor should give a sense of being the foundation of a room, and the best way to treat it is to stain it nearly black. From the floor up the walls and ceilings should then grow lighter. If carpeted from wall to wall, the same rule holds. Some people have the idea that wall to wall carpets gather too much dust but the vacuum cleaner has removed that old time prejudice.

If we were to make an inspection of a number of present-day houses we would find a wide variety of floor-

IMPORTANCE OF VACCINATION

By Louis E. Bisch, M.D., Ph. D.
Famous Authority on Health and Psychology

Although opposition to vaccination is still voiced now and then in different sections of the country, there can be no question but what the general public is becoming more and more enlightened on this highly important subject.

It is a mistake to believe that when the physician vaccinates he is giving a disease to another which is dangerous.

On the contrary not only is vaccination not dangerous, nowadays, it is done so expertly that only the smallest sort of a scar remains in the succand am tired of it, but am infatuated with a perfect queen when I see every day in the office and often outside. Is there any way of making sure that if I get a divorce this girl will marry me. She is inclined to flirt.

PETE

I cannot be sure, Pete, that selfish and cruel as you are, your wife would wish to keep you. But after all, women are tender and forgiving and perhaps she loves you. In any case, your duty to this neglected wife 's the only thing to consider, and this if course includes breaking off relations with the flirtatious young woman who probably likes the dinners you buy her, but laughs at you behind your back. I am very glad you wrote to me, and since you did, will you not heed my very eager appeal that you cease being a dissipated boy and become a responsible man?

Correct Manners

Mrs. Cornelius Beekman

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Kindly advise what the duty of a maid of honor would be at a very elaborate wedding, that is, what her work would be act:ng as maid of honor. Thanking you for the above information.

MRS. H. I.

The duty of a maid of honor does not differ from that of a bridesmaid at a simple wedding. When she has taken her place at the left of the bride at the chancel steps she must be ready to tak the bride's bouquet at the proper moment, holding it in her right arm. She should also assist the bride in removing her glove, or rolling it back over her wrist when the bride receives the wedding ring. She accompanies the bridal couple and the groomsman to the vestry to sign the register, and leaves the church on the arm of the groomsman I have asumed that the affair will be a church wedding but in any case the duties of the maid of honor are as outlined.

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Kindly tell me on which hand and on which finger it is proper for a college man to wear his class r ng?

L. J.

I can never be enthusiastic about any man's wearing any ring, but it he feels that his happiness depends on wearing a ring, he should wear it on his little finger

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

1. I have been thinking of adding soup spoons to my sterling silver. My dishes have cream soup bowls. The manufacturers of my silver do not make a cream soup spoon. What is the correct spoon for me to buy to use with the cream soup bowls?

2. Should one remove one's coat when having lunch in a restaurant?

M. A.

1. Have you written directly to the manufacturer of your silver to inquire from them if they do now make the cream soup spoons? I recommend that you do this, and ask them too, if they do not make these special and convenient spoons now, if they are not planning to manufacture them. I know of several manufacturers of silver, both of sterling and plate, who are planning to manufacture these spoons soon, and perhaps yours is one of them.

Until you are able to buy these special spoons, you will be commencing to use with your cream soup bowls, you might use your teaspoons or the spoons which are known as the "dessert spoons." Either of these is more convenient to use with the cream soup cups than is the round bowl spoon.

2. Just as you wish .With an enclosed veranda restaurant you would consider it better not to remove the coat unless this is more comfortable.

Mrs. Beekman will be glad to answer questions on etiquette submitted by readers.)

CHAPTER XII

"That's from Art Grayson's policy," the king returned saberly; "and when has it gotten us? I had an idea when I made you general manager that I was hiring a fighter, not a pacifist."

"Oh!" Ken Burney was plainly amazed. "Am I your general manager?"

"You are. I'm going to take a chance on you—for a while, anyhow."

"In that event," the other replied, "the dignity of my new job indicates that I should sit down even though I haven't been asked."

And forthwith he dragged up a chair and sat down.

"You remarked that you have concluded to take a chance on me," Ken Burney went on. "That decision does Infinite credit to your well-known reputation for sagacity. Of course I know you are not taking a chance on me at all, but that remains to be seen, as the monkey remarked when he dropped the kitten down the well."

"Three days—or the hell end of three days—have passed since you collected your wages from Martin Bruce. How have you spent those three days?" the king persisted.

Since I am not, as yet officially, on your payroll, you will pardon me, I'm sure if I ask you not to press that question."

"You were on my payroll," His Majesty assured him wearily, "from the moment I watched you jump your horse over my gates and fences and cut corners, to have an interview with me."

"Well if I've been drawing salary since that night, you are, of course' entitled to my confidence. You have a right to know what I do on your time. Well, I've been down in El Cazo Bonita making bad medicine for the hombre that has a habit of branding your calves down there. There seems to be some doubt as neag as I can gather from the local gents, whether Martin Bruce and Miguel Gallegos are partners in crime or operating independently, and as this is a point that must be cleared up before I proceed further I went down there and set my trap. In a short time we should discover that which, we shall inevitably discover."

"Tell me about your trap, son."

So Ken Burney told him. "Ha!" roared the king. "But in all probability, you'll never get back that five dollars' worth of new quarters you planted on those calves, so put it on your monthly expense account."

"Thank you, sir. I'll credit you with whatever salvage I recover. When my films are developed they should show the Double B brand on the cows and no brand on the calves. And I have been careful to photograph all my test calves in the act of nursing their mothers, the idea being to establish maternity to the exclusion of any reasonable doubt in the minds of twelve good men and true."

"You forget the trial of the thieves, if any, will occur in Mexico."

"It will," Ken Burney replied emphatically "it certainly will. However, I'm also going to put a number of your El Rancho calves north of the line on a three-year basis, and if Martin Bruce's brand should appear on them a little later, why, we'll just have Mr. Bruce arrested the first time thereafter he steps across the state line. We'll have a secret indictment all ready for the old gentleman, and he'll be tried in New Mexico where the crime has been committed. In his own county of Cochise, Arizona, where he is elected, he would have an advantage over us in that he could have his chief deputy select the right kind of a grand jury thereafter; but ever his men decided to run the Triangle B iron on a Double B calf, they would examine hide from the cow's tenantry if they found any they would leave your calf alone."

"No, they wouldn't, the king contradicted. "Those petit larceny skunks would just help themselves to the evidence and brand the calf anyhow. By the way Burney, your salary as general manager is five hundred dollars a month."

"That isn't enough money for a bright young fellow like me," Burney replied, "but it will do very nicely for the present and I thank Your Majesty from the bottom of a heart that, of late, has been somewhat heavy. However, I warn you that unless I have corrected the situation which annoys you do not be surprised if I quit your employ on short notice. I am a Knight of the Wandering Hoof. I'm one of those fellows who just naturally has to go and find out."

"Yes—and you'll let out a few shrill yips of satisfaction if I succeed in doing it. You're tied to your job, and unless you can get somebody to handle it as well as you handle it yourself you'll live out the remainder of your life just scared to death at what is going to happen to your kingdom when you leave this vale of tears. You haven't a son to take your place, have you?"

The king sighed. He was touched on a tender spot. "It is the tragedy of my life that I have not, Burney."

"I can understand your trageay and sympathize with it. But that's only tragedy. No. One. If that lovely daughter of yours, should marry some fellow without sufficient cow sense to tail a calf, your kingdom might event ually find itself threatened from within. I have observed frequently how supermen have built up great enterprises; then when age or death snatched the reins from their capable hands that enterprise slowly withered and decayed under the management of mediocre men—Yes, you've got your troubles."

"You bet I have," the king admitted, strategically contidential under the influence of his young man's understanding and sympathy. "They do not call me the cattle king without reason. From Coney Isle the head that wears a crown. You fortunate fellow Ken Burney. Not a liability in the world save your impulsiveness and a dash of strain of Spanish blood, and not an asset in the world except a pack horse and a top one horse and clothes you stand in. Only one life to worry about, your own, while I have thousands of lives—dependent upon my continuous energy and ability to beat the bandits who are busy trying to take a dollar away from me as fast as I can make it. What a hell of a world."

"Did you ever sir," Ken Burney pursued, "test your ability to assimilate electricity? You remember those contraptions they used to have at country fairs? You took a steel handle in each hand and pulled them toward you—and the farther you pulled them the more voltage you gave yourself until finally you reached a point where your brain took a hurry-up message through your nerves to the muscles of your arms, saying: 'Let go!' Then you discovered you couldn't let go and had to yell for somebody to tear you loose, and of course the instant that somebody took hold of you he had to split the charge of electricity with you, but between the two of you the job was done."

The king chuckled. "A very apt description of my predicament, son. Yes, I'm looking for a good man to tear me loose—to split the voltage on my high-powered existence with me. "Well take a free look at me, sir," Burney suggested.

"I have. That's the reason you're general manager.

"Oh sir, it isn't, Your Majesty. I'm just a plush-hitter. You've hired me and made me general manager for one reason only and that is to rid you of Martin Bruce and Miguel Gallegos."

"Well," said the king unashamed, "what objection have you got to that program."

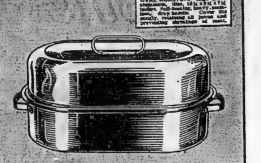
"I object to your effort to hand me what is practically a fatal problem, under the guise of being nice to me—under the pretense of having seen in me a future executive of your company —a smart, young fellow who ought to be given his chance. Unfortunately for your reasoning I don't want your job of general manager for more than sixty days, and I think I would be less than fair not to tell you this."

"It's a mighty good job son."

"It isn't. It's a terrible job. I've got to kill two men to make good on it."

"Oh, I see. Squeamish, eh?"

"Not at all. I can and will rid you of Bruce and Gallegos, but it will cost you more than a general manager's job at five hundred a month. Don't you realize that after doing that little thing for you I'd never again dare to cross between the window of a lighted room; that I'd have to resign my general managership immediately and lose myself to save funeral expenses?"



"Yes, I had thought of that phase of the enterprise," the king admitted. "It was in my mind to move you to another ranch immediately—say one in Oregon."

"There's only one ranch I want to move to and that's my father's. Cattle are cheap now and while they are cheap I want to stock my father's ranch again and be my own man. I have a feeling within two years we'll be getting twelve cents for beef, and I want to get in on the gravy!"

"What's your proposition, son?"

"You make me one sir."

That's Why Mrs. D'Eurgoyne Recommends Dodd's Kidney Pills

She Suffered With Urinary Troubles—the After Effects of the "Flu"—Dodd's Kidney Pills Relieved Her

Hackett's Cove, N.B., May 26 (Special)—"I have been using Dodd's Kidney Pills for a long time," writes Mrs. I. Burgoyne, a well known resident of this place. "I find them a splendid remedy for kidney trouble. I had been suffering with Urinary Trouble, the after effect of the 'Flu'. That has all disappeared now and I can thank Dodd's Kidney Pills for it. I highly recommend them to anyone suffering with a similar trouble."

The reason Dodd's Kidney Pills have come to occupy such a prominent place in the family medicine chest is that so many of the ordinary every day ills come from kidney troubles. Rheumatism, Backache, Urinary Troubles, etc., can all be traced directly or indirectly to sick kidneys.

Dodd's Kidney Pills have built up their reputation as a Kidney remedy by the relief they give. Insist upon having Dodd's, the kidney pill your neighbours use.

Recommends Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Coburg, Ontario—"Years ago when I had a sick father and a nursing baby to care for, I got all run down and I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to get strength to do my work. Another time a Change of Life, I had severe headaches and felt tired all the time. I took the bottled Vegetable Compound and felt like a new woman. I recommend it to any woman who is at the age when she needs help." Mrs. Ormond T. H. Bateman, R.R. 4, Coburg, Ontario.

SALADS FOR HUSBANDS

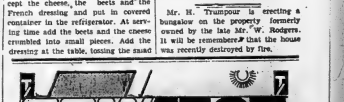
By Hannah Wing

If your husband just naturally does not like salads perhaps he is one of those unfortunate brings that have been served tomatoes with the skin on and these still perhaps he has met up with flabby celery or wilted lettuce. If such is the case you just can't blame him but you can bring him back to grace by serving him a crisp green salad, and I personally think a real Chiffonade is best. It is curious thought—I will admit, the strange and quite unappetizing concoctions one gets in different places it you ask for Chiffonade. Better to make it yourself this way.

Chiffonade Salad

One-half pound of endive cut into 1 inch pieces; 1 small head of lettuce shredded; 1-4 cup chopped boiled beets; 1 minced onion; 1-2 green pepper; 12 stuffed olives; 1 hard-cooked egg, chopped; 1-4 package of snappy cheese; French dressing.

Mix together all the ingredients, except the cheese, the beets and the French dressing and put in covered container in the refrigerator. At serving time add the beets and the cheese crumbled into small pieces. Add the dressing at the table, tossing the mass lightly to coat the greens well, and serve generously.



Or try this Spring and Summer salad. It's a good way to take your raw vegetables.

Spring Salad

Peeled chilled tomatoes, celery, chopped pimento onion, sliced radishes, sliced cucumbers, French dressing, lettuce mayonnaise.

Mix together the celery, onion, radishes and cucumbers and chill thoroughly in a covered container in the electric refrigerator. Peel the tomatoes, and chill thoroughly. At serving time scoop out the centers of the tomatoes (use the centers for making tomato soup or in scalloped tomatoes). Season the celery mixture with French dressing and fill the cavities in the tomatoes with the mixture. Place on a lettuce leaf and top with mayonnaise.

An Oil that is Prized Everywhere.—Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil was put upon the market without any flourish or over fifty years ago. It was put up to meet the wants of a small section, but as soon as its merits became known it had a whole continent for a field, and it is now known and prized throughout this continent. There is nothing equal to it.

BRITISH MOTOR MANUFACTURERS WILL INVADE DOMINION

Will Establish Assembling and Manufacturing Plants

DETHRONE DOMINANCE OF U. S. IN CAR MART

Canada Delegates to Chambers Congress Favor Establishment of British Plants in the Dominion.

LONDON, May 29.—CP—British motor manufacturers are preparing to invade Canadian markets. They propose the establishment in Canada of assembling and manufacturing plants backed by the aggressive salesmanship. This was brought out during the discussion at the Congress of Empire Chambers of Commerce on what was described as the United States dominance of the Canadian motor market. Canadian delegates advocated the establishment of manufacturing plants in their country with a concentrated attack upon Canada through the more highly organized method of advertisement and publicity.

Ask Cooperation as Swing is Installed

Building a bridge without interfering with traffic is one of the modern miracles of industrial efficiency. An example of this is the replacing of steel spans in the bay bridge, where practically a new bridge is being built. In all the work carried on during the past few years by the Ontario Government, there has been very little interference with traffic, and now the new steel spans are being erected alongside the old spans, ready to be swung into place and the engineer in charge has been very successful in his efforts to have the work done with as little interference to traffic as possible.

The big job of this undertaking, will of course, be placing the swing span in position, and according to the contract the bridge can be closed for three weeks while this is being placed in position, while two weeks closing is permitted on the other spans. The engineer in charge is carrying on the work with the view of keeping the bridge partially open to traffic but expects that the traffic will have to be restricted to single file right away and will do all in his power to keep the bridge from being closed for any length of time. In view of this he hopes that the public will co-operate and not use the bridge for pleasure while the work is progressing, for the fewer cars the faster the work can be pushed and there is bound to be more or less congestion of traffic from now on and traffic delays. Motorists should bear this in mind when visiting Prince Edward County.

Fred Smythe v E. M. Campbell, executrix of the estate of C. D. Campbell.—Appeal by defendant from judgment of Logie, J., after trial with a jury, March 4, 1930, awarding plaintiff $1,350 damages and costs. Plaintiff was a passenger in Campbell's car, having been employed by him to do certain work. The car went off the highway, overturned and Campbell was killed. The jury found that the accident was due to fast driving by Campbell, and that there was contributory negligence on the part of the plaintiff in not checking him. Damages were assessed on the basis of 75 per cent. against the defendant, and 25 per cent. against the plaintiff. On appeal it was urged that plaintiff had assumed the risk of fast driving. Plaintiff counsels as to the amount of damages awarded and against the finding of contributory negligence. T. J. Agar, K.C., for appellant; R. L. Kellock for respondent. Appeal argued and dismissed with costs. Judgment reserved on cross appeal.

AUGUST 11 LIKELY ELECTION DATE!

TO CLOSE HALF DAY JUNE 3RD

Merchants Will Not Close Wednesday Afternoon as Usual

Next Tuesday, will be June 3rd., the King's birthday, and many queries have been received by the Advocate as to whether or not the stores in the city will close the whole day or not. It will be remembered that on Monday, May 5th at the merchants' meeting held in the city hall, it was decided to close the stores on the afternoon of June 3rd and remain open on Wednesday, June 4th, which would ordinarily be the first half holiday of the summer months. It was further decided that on all legal holidays, such as July 1st, Civic holiday, etc., throughout the summer the stores would close as usual on the Wednesday afternoon of that week and that a whole holiday would be observed on legal holiday. Therefore next Tuesday will only be a half holiday, in this city and Wednesday afternoon the stores will remain open.

CANADA'S NEWEST SEAPORT PREPARES FOR SUMMER TRAFFIC

Churchill, Canada's newest seaport on Hudson's Bay, will be opened this summer. For more than thirteen years a vast army of workers has been engaged in constructing the port and the 424 odd miles of railroad from The Pas to Churchill. This work has now been completed and Churchill is open for business, and—popolation. It is now the chief depot of the new trans-Atlantic route from Europe, via Hudson's Bay, and will become a center of transportation, mining, fishery and grain handling interests. Above are three interesting photographs of the port.—(Top) An aerial view showing the new railway winding its Way across the Nelson River and into the North. INSPECTION OF 4 CADET CORPS BY COLONEL HILL

Young Students Praised For Skill in Their Manoeuvres

AWAIT DRILL AWARD

By press time today the results of the primary school inspection which yesterday afternoon had not been announced by Captain Isbester. The boys of all four schools, however, made an excellent showing. Speaking to the press yesterday afternoon, Captain Isbester said that he would have to decide between Queen Victoria School and Queen Mary School for the winners. Both these schools had smart cadet corps.

Queen Mary School, under the expert tutelage of Colonel David Barrett, held the coveted trophy emblematic of the best corps in the primary schools in the city for fourteen years. Queen Mary has yet another proud distinction. The officers of her corps are allowed to carry swords, which were won in a competition a few years ago.

Queen Victoria had the largest turn out of any school. Eighty-seven cadets were on parade yesterday afternoon. Under commanding Officer T. Crann they made a splendid showing. There were four platoons, two more than any other school in the city boasts. H. Yeomans was commander of No. 1, N. Rigby of No. 2, Carl Morgan of No. 3 and Tom Lunn of No. 4. The last named is a signal corps.

Unfortunately, rain marred the activities yesterday afternoon and Colonel Hill, the inspecting officer, accompanied by Captain Isbester of Kingston, did not review each cadet corps at its respective school, separately. It was planned to have all the corps parade on the Queen Victoria School grounds, where it would be more easy to judge which made the best showing. Queen Alexandra cadets were fortunate. They were inspected last of all and as it was long after

Druggist Fined in Police Court

Brant, an Indian, rubbing alcohol on May 3rd last. He was found guilty of the offence and fined $50.00 and costs, the fine being paid. The chief evidence for the Crown was the man Brant, who swore that he purchased rubbing alcohol on that date to be used for drinking purposes. Alexander Rychman, aged 78, was next charged with purchasing rubbing alcohol and then transferring the same to an Indian, Matthew Corby. He pleaded guilty and was given a suspended sentence of six months. A jail term awaits this man but the Magistrate took the age of the accused into consideration. Mr. Rychman made the purchase from the Drug Store in Picton.

James C. Duncan, a Scotch immigrant, of Bloomfield, was fined $50.00 and costs or in default 30 days in jail for purchasing rubbing alcohol from the Imrie Drug Store and transferring the same to Osborne Brant. This man was sentenced to seven days in jail for being intoxicated in charge of a car on May 17th last. At first Brant would not admit to the police who the man was that purchased the rubbing alcohol for him, but when Duncan was produced, he admitted that he was the man.

The police are determined to stamp out this evil and more prosecutions will follow if the law is not obeyed.

Celebrated at the 7 Day of Quinte Country Club—Many Present

Once a year the wives and sweethearts of the members of Kiwanis Club are given an insight into the working of that service organization by being their guests at a ladies' night and last night at the Bay of Quinte Country Club that event was fittingly celebrated. Since the club was formed there has been many such occasions but the Kiwanis Club last night made an extra effort and by the compliments they received the effort was more than appreciated. Instead of the usual speeches, a social evening was staged and events followed one another in quick succession. The committee in charge of the night including Joe Imlah, president; Ross Hunter, Ernie Pahey, James Bankier, Ernie Dickens and Russel Wotten worked hard to make the evening a success and the congratulations of the club are due these members.

An event on the programme not carried, was the initiation of new members. Seven were called to the centre of the floor, they being George Ferguson, Joe St. Louis, Ab. Weymacott, Claude D. Tice, Edgar Bateman, Harley Wray and C. E. Browne These new members were addressed by George H. Griffin, secretary of the club, who explained the work of the club and hoped that the new members would live up to the challenge, that had been thrown out. The newly initiated were the victims of a stunt which they took in fine fart and which gave the large attendance a real laugh.

The evening was devoted to a banquet and program, the steward of the County Club catering to the wants of those present. Over 160 sat down to perfectly arranged tables in the spacious dance hall of the club and the wants of the diner man were more than satisfied. Joe Imlah, president at the function, with James Bankier as song leader and Ross Hunter in charge of an eight-piece orchestra. Capt. Browne was in charge of the table but in some mysterious way lost the box and the fines did not pour in as usual. At the close of the banquet each Kiwanian queen was given a package from the club steward's delicate shoppe and also a bright red rose the roses worn by the ladies presenting a fine appearance.

A number of prizes were distributed to the ladies with the donor requesting certain obligations of those fortunate to win and this caused plenty of merriment. Mrs. Lewis Hyde won the beautiful purse, donated by Joe Imlah, the president of the club; Miss O. M. Fitzgerald won the pair of silver candlesticks donated by Russel Wotten, and Mrs. George O. Tice the birthday prize, a fine silver plate, donated by Jack McNinch. The chair prize was won by Miss Bessie Vandewater, silk goods donated by Eddie Shapiro, and Mrs. Carlson a fine box of chocolates donated by Ernie Dickens. A compact donated by Terry Dolan, was won by Mrs. Joe St. Louis, who had the winning performed their stunts in a creditable manner.

The program was not lengthy but delightful. Percy Cole gave a solo by brilliant voice and James Bankier and Ross Hunter favored with a duett The orchestra, under the direction of Ross Hunter, supplied many popular hits of the day, while the banquet was in progress and also for the dancing, that closed the program. The hit of the evening, however, was the visit of May Ben Hay, an Indian magician, with P. C. MacLaurin acting as the medium. This was a real stunt and cleverly "pulled." It would be telling secrets if the name of the magician was disclosed. The evening was closed at the midnight hour with the thought freely expressed that another invitation to be guests would soon be given again.

DIES UNDER ANAESTHETIC

KINGSTON, May 30.—R. K. Kingsbury, of this city, died under anaesthetic at Rochester, N.Y. He went into the hospital to have his tonsils removed and died on the operating table. Deceased was born at Napanee forty-four years ago and had resided in Rochester twenty years. He is survived by his wife, formerly Annie Bowman of Deseronto, three daughters and one son.

Ready-made Medicine—You need no physician for ordinary ills when you have at hand a bottle of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil. For coughs, colds, sore throat, bronchial troubles it is invaluable; for scalds, burns, bruises, sprains it is unsurpassed; while for cuts, sores and the like it is the unquestionable healer. It needs no testimonial other than the use, and that will satisfy anyone as to its effectiveness.

OBITUARY

LATE LESTER REID

Mr. Lester Reid died suddenly yesterday afternoon at the home of his brother, Mr. Isaac Reid, 3rd concession of Thurlow. He was a native of West Huntingdon and was seventy-seven years of age. He had been in failing health for the past two years. He is survived by one brother, Isaac Reid with whom he lived.

FRED CLAYTON BENEDICT

Residents of Thurlow township were greatly shocked this morning to learn of the sudden death of Mr. Fred Clayton Benedict,a well-known and highly respected farmer in Thurlow. Mr. Benedict died at his home early this morning after an illness of some time. He was born in 1853 53 years ago and was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Charles Benedict. His death will be a loss to Thurlow township of one of its most outstanding farmers, who not only took an active interest in the church life of the community, but who was also a keen lover of horses, entering his stock in the district fairs each year.

Mr. Benedict was a member of Campbellton United Church and also a member of the I.O.F. He is survived by his widow, two sons, Miles at home and Clayton of Calgary, and one brother Frank of Thurlow Township.

MRS. PHILIP OSTERHOUT

Mrs. Delia Pake, wife of Phillip Osterhout, died suddenly at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Jonathan Powell on Stockdale. Born at Brighton, she had lived in this district all her life. Her death was a shock to many friends A sister, Mrs. Bernice Bryant, also resides at Stockdale.

POLICE COURT

It was Provincial Police day at the Police court today when Magistrate Mikel presided on the bench. Arnold Brown, employee of the company, who appeared a week ago on a charge of stealing liquor from the Canadian Industrial Alcohol Company, came for trial today and pleaded guilty to the offence. Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan asked for a sentence of one month in the County Jail and Magistrate Mikel granted the request and accordingly sentenced the man. Provincial Constable Bert Hammer conducted the investigation which led to the arrest of this young man. During his week of remand he has been confined in the jail.

Earl Seeley was arrested by Provincial Constable Wetherall of Lindsay on a warrant issued by this headquarters and after being transferred to this port appeared today in police court. He was charged with obtaining from Duncan Morrison a merchant of Tweed, goods and $17.00 in cash by means of a worthless cheque, in December of last year. The Crown was not ready to proceed with the case and the man was remanded for one week.

Traffic Court was held at the conclusion of the police court and a number were fined for parking their cars an unreasonable length of time on streets upon which the street sweeper operates. The fine was the minimum of $2.00.

TAR AND FEATHER CASE

Edmonton, Alta., May 29 (CP)—Old Boode and P. Rowe were arrested by the Provincial Police at Lacombe last night in connection with the tarring and feathering of Fred Doberstein, town blacksmith. Two others are already in custody and will be tried May 31st.

BLAZE LIQUOR FARTY

Oklahoma City, May 29 (CP)—State fire investigators were today investigating reports that a liquor party was responsible for a fire which yesterday destroyed the coliseum with a loss of three hundred thousand dollars and took a toll of at least five lives.

Inspection of 4 Cadet Corps

four o'clock when their turn came, and it had stopped raining they were able to perform their drill outside, which the other corps were not.

Colonel Hill reviewed the troops at Queen Victoria school first; from there he went to King George, then to Queen Mary and last of all to Queen Alexandra. It was quite a strain for the children at the last two schools to be kept waiting for the inspecting officer from 2.30 o'clock, when they first paraded, but as they were promised a half holiday in the near future they bore up under their punishment happily.

To the cadets in each school, Colonel Hill had a few words to say." "We have", he said, "in Canada about one hundred and thirty thousand cadets in theihigh schools, collegiates and primary schools.

"The object of these cadet corps is to make you physically fit and to teach you the principles of loyalty to your country."

"You boys," he went on, "will have to pick up the torch. You boys will have to keep the old flag flying. I am delighted to see that you are so interested in miniature rifle shooting. I hope that you will help to get out and bring back the King's shots to Canada this year. Already a small community in your district, Millbrook, has won the Earl of Jellicoe's cup and I hope our that I would like to see you capture. Once again might I say that I would like to see the King's Shield brought back to this country!"

It was due in no small part to the excellent officers that directed the cadets' boys in their khaki uniforms that each school did so well in its exercises. At Queen Mary, Dave Bradford, was the commanding officer with the commander of No. 1 platoon was Mac Wilson, while Jim Moore guided the destinies of No. 2 platoon.

Don McKinney made an efficient O.C. for Queen Alexandra, while Bill Lindsay was commander of No. 1 platoon in that corps and J. E. Mathews was commander of No. 2 platoon.

At King George School, Charles Brown was commanding officer and Ivan Green was officer in charge of platoon No. 1 and Bill Colden was head of No. 2 platoon.

S. McElrath of Queen Mary school cadets, was a proud boy yesterday, when Colonel Hill presented him with a handsome medal he won in the Laura Secord shooting competition.

The trophy that is given to the smartest cadet corps is there in the spirit only. Two years ago, unfortunately, it was stolen from Queen Mary School and to date has not been replaced.

Baptists to Convene Here

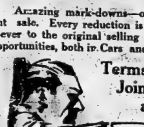
will speak on home missions, Rev. A. L. Therrien on grande Ligne, Rev. C. H. Duncan on the superannuation report, Miss M. A. Nichols on Mission Circles' Directory report, Rev. T. J. Duncan on Christian Education and Rev. W. Daniels on Western Missions. All these addresses have been especially prepared and will be instructive as well as interesting. Mayor George A. Reid will welcome the delegates to the convention on Tuesday evening.



Baptist church work in Upper Canada began in the County of Lenox and Edward under the labor of Reuben Crandall in 1788 and The first church was organized in Canada on June 23rd, 1796. Reuben Crandal was the first Baptist minister legally authorized to perform the marriage ceremony in Upper Canada and the first license was obtained from the "Court of Quarter Session" held in the village of Cobourg. The first Association of Baptist churches in Upper Canada was organized in 1802 and was known as the Thurlow Association. What are believed to be the cornerstones of the old Thurlow Church may still be seen just south of the fifth concession near the Moira. Rivfr. The association formed in 1807 and known as the Thurlow association, continued until 1816 and from that date till 1871 was known as Haldimand Association. This name continued from 1871 till 1888 when it was changed to Eastern Ontario Association and from 1888 till the present the association has been known as the Peterboro Association. It is expected a large number of delegates will be present.

RADIO FANS CORNER

We couldn't with any truth say anything else but that the reception last night was excellent. It was a big surprise all right, but who wouldn't like more such pleasant ones.

Too bad everyone couldn't hear Amos 'n' Andy last night, they were mighty good. I know everyone couldn't hear them because six o'clock is such an awkward hour to have anything really good on the air. Our business people are rather out of luck for this program. Andy is trying to float stock for Madam Queen and Amos suggested he sell the Kingfish some. They tried it and it looks as if he swallowed hook, line and sinker but the only catch to it is that he's pulling the Battleaxe in too and the boys are all up in the air about it.

The Tasty Jesters broadcast tonight offers original comedy dialogue and song from memory entitled "Svengali, the Pest of Budapest.". The program is heard over WJZ at 6.15 o'clock E.S.T.

Lucky Strike Orchestra tonight under the direction of B. A. Rolfe and of course it features all the latest dance tunes. WJZ at 7 E.S.T.

Rudy and his Connecticut Yankees heard during the broadcast of the Fleischman, hour tonight with Graham McNamee announcing. A surprise guest star too. At least it will be a surprise to me because I don't know at present who it is. WEAF at 7 E.S.T.

Vincent Lopez and his orchestra from Chesco's at 10 E.S.T. tonight. B. A. Rolfe again at 11 from WJZ E.S.T. of course, and from WABC at 10.30 hear the Dance Carnival with Duke Ellington's Cotton Club Band, Will Osborne's, Ben Pollack and at least three others.

M.F. ARMSTRONG HAS ACQUIRED NEW BUSINESS

Son Will Be Associated As Partner Leaving This Week

Negotiations were completed this week by Mr. Matthew F. Armstrong of his city, for the acquisition of the Ontawa Burial Company which has been operated by Messrs. Cott and Moffatt. Mr. Armstrong will have as his partner, his son Albert, who for the past two years has been a member of the local Canadian Department store. Mr. Armstrong Sr., will leave this week to take charge of the business while Mrs. Armstrong and his son will join him within a few weeks.

Mr. M. F. Armstrong has been in partnership here with Mr. Joseph Imlah in the Belleville Burial Company for the past fifteen years and the latter, a few weeks ago acquired the business.

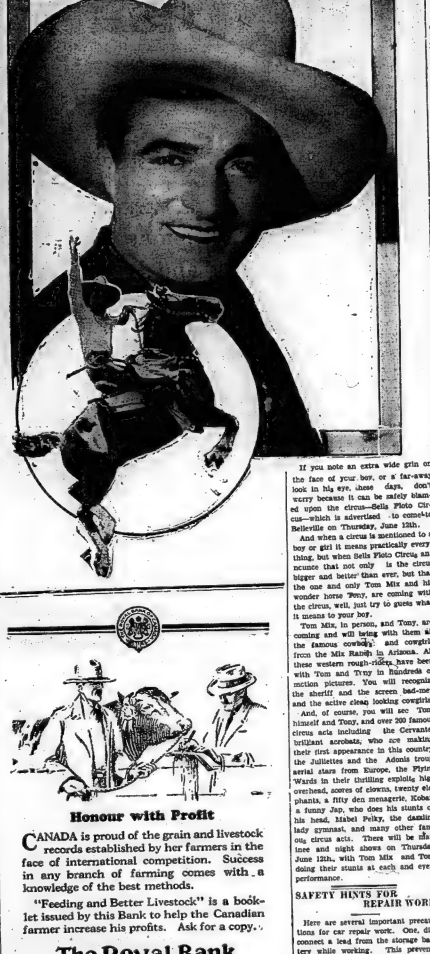
He has taken an active interest in the city's business, Church and social life. He is a member of he Chamber of Commerce and is an elder in John Street United Church. Twenty-two years of his life have been devoted to funeral directing, having started his career in Fergus, Ontario.

Mrs. Armstrong will be missed here by a wide circle of friends and a number of organizations. She was a member of John Street United Church and was a leading office in the local branch of the Women's Christian Temperance Union. Social service work occupied a great deal of her time and she was particularly interested in the welfare of the Dundas Street Mission.

Mrs. Armstrong was also a member of the Board of Management of the Children's Aid Society and held a prominent post with the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Young Men's Christian Association.

Leader in Boys' Work

Albert Armstrong is regarded as one of the most popular young men of Belleville. His sphere of activities has been varied and the news of his departure will be received with regret. A graduate of the Belleville High School he has been identified with local athletic, service and social organizations. He is a Past President of the Belleville Y's Men's Club and has served on the Board of Directors since the club was organized here five years ago. An ardent tennis enthusiast, he has served as President of the Bay of Quinte Club while only this year his name was named president of the Central Ontario League which embraces practically all the clubs east of Toronto. His athletic activities include those of hockey and baseball, and he was a member of Belleville's Junior and Intermediate O. H. A. teams, besides having played one season with the Central Ontario baseball team representing the city. Basketball has been one of his major sports and he has been one of the stalwarts of the local team which successfully reached the Ontario finals in the past season.



John Street United Church Young People's Society found in "Army," a willing worker and he has been a member of the Executive for some years. Since coming to Belleville he has been closely associated with the local branch of the Young Men's Christian Association and as a leader of boys' work he has been instrumental in performing many good works. He was a member of the Board of Directorate of the "Y" and was in charge of the Boys' Camp program. Captain of the Badminton Club, he holds the championship in the men's singles section.

He is a member of the Belleville Lodge, 123, A. F. and A. M.

After his graduation from High School he joined the local staff of the Canadian National Express, being located at the Superintendent's office. After serving seven years he accepted a responsible position with the Canadian Department Stores. His business qualities were recognized and only recently he was informed that he had been named Assistant Manager of the Brockville branch store. Officials of the firm have voiced their regret that he is about to sever his connections with the company. We will leave the city with the best wishes of a legion of friends for his success in his new field.

DIGGING HOLES WITH A HOSE

When laying pipe under ground and it becomes necessary to go under a sidewalk do not tear up your sidewalk but use the following method: Take your garden hose and fasten a piece of pipe on it about ten feet long. Turn on the water and start digging with it. The water washes the dirt away so fast that it will surprise you how fast you can get under a sidewalk. This is much better than digging with a shovel and it does a better job.—Science and Invention.

Honour with Profit

CANADA is proud of the grain and livestock records established by her farmers in the face of international competition. Success in any branch of farming comes with a knowledge of the best methods.

If you note an extra wide grin on the face of your boy, or a far-away look in his eye, these days, don't worry because it can be safely blamed upon the circus—Bells Floto Circus—which is advertised to come to Belleville on Thursday, June 12th.

And when a circus is mentioned to a boy or girl it means practically everything, but when Bells Floto Circus announces that not only is the circus bigger and better than ever, but that the one and only Tom Mix and his wonder horse Tony, are coming with the circus, well, just try to guess what it means to your boy.

Tom Mix, in person, and Tony, are coming and will bring with them all the famous cowboys and cowgirls from the Mix Ranch in Arizona. All these western rough-riders have been with Tom and Tony in hundreds of motion pictures. You will recognize the sheriff and the screen bad-men and the active clean looking cowgirls.

And, of course, you will see Tom, himself and Tony, and over 200 famous circus acts including the Cervantes brilliant acrobats, who are making their first appearance in this country, the Juliettes and the Adonis troupe, aerial acts from Europe, the Flying Wards in their thrilling exploits, high ownership, scores of clowns, twenty elephants, a fifty den menagerie, Kobuk a funny Jap, who does his stunts on his head, Mabel Pelky, the dashing lady gymnast, and many other fascinating circus acts. There will be matinee and night shows on Thursday, June 12th, with Tom Mix and Tony doing their stunts at each and every performance.

SAFETY HINTS FOR REPAIR WORK

Here are several important precautions for car repair work. One, disconnect a lead from the storage battery while working. This prevents anyone from starting the engine. Two use blocks under a wheel, to avoid the axle toppling off a jack. Three, watch out for gasoline. A broken extension light may produce a spark which will ignite the gasoline. Four, do not hold the head directly under the work in hand. Dirt in the eye or a slipping wrench striking the face may result. Five, use gloves as far as posible when handling piston rings. Ugly cuts can result from sharp edges. Six, take no chances with light chain or rope garage hoists. Seven, put good blocking under the raised axle.—Science and Invention.

MAKE YOUR OWN REPAIR PIT

A frame garage may be altered to give all the advantages of a pit, and without the disadvantages. An opening is made through the floor, about two feet by three feet, and is framed around with hinged covers of heavy oak. A platform under this affords a working space for the owner, and a place to set tools and parts. This pit substitute is clean, well ventilated and can easily be made in an hour or so of spare time.—Science and Invention.

LITTLE BENNY'S NOTE BOOK

Ma was sewing on her sewing machine, and I sed, stay ma, do you realize im getting to have a pritty steddy hand?

Well I must admit threes nothing you need more, ma sed. Up to the present your short life has been one long succession of dropping things that were least intended to be dropped she sed.

Meening things that brake, and I sed, Well then O, ma, your glad to hear it arent you?

Id be gladder still to bleeve it, ma sed. Meening she had her doubts, and I sed, Well gosh, I got proof. I was just down in the kitchin practicing poring milk out of the milk bottle into a little bit of a medecine bottle without spilling any and I practiced and practiced and practiced till at last I did it without spilling a single drop. Hows that for steddiness, ma? I sed.

Very wonderful, I sippose, but I think it would of been far more sensible to of practiced with ordnerry water instead of expensive milk, don't you? ma sed, and I sed, Gosh, no, ma it would be a cinch to be steddy with water, because it dont matter if any spills or not.

Well theres something in that, no doubt, but don't do it again, ma sed, and I sed, All rite ma, I wont.

With just then our cook Nora ran up stairs and came in ma's room, excuse me, Its a sin and a shame I cant leave me nice clean Kitchin for 5 minnits without finding it like a lake and a river with spilt milk from one end to the other and not a blessed drop of milk left except whats in the splasher of a bottle. Am I sippose to make me rice pudding out of this, tell me that? she sed.

Meening the little medecine bottle full of milk, and ma sed, Now listen! that awful, I mile of known there was something in back of all that wild goose story.

The result being I had to wipe up the kitchin floor and then go after more milk and then stay in.

Not being werth it.

SIMPLE METHOD OF CLEANING HATS

To clean light-colored felt hats, mix salt and cornmeal in the proportion of 1 teasp. of salt to 2 tablesp. of cornmeal. Place hat on a paper, and rub briskly with the mixture, using a soft cloth. When the mixture looks dirty, brush the hat thoroughly with a stiff, clean brush and you will find a marvelous change in your hat.—Science and Invention.

Lack of Employment Throughout Province Is The Cause

(Special by Staff Reporter)

TRENTON, Ont., May 29.—Due no doubt to the cold weather of the past few days there seems to have been a marked decrease of traffic on the highways in this district in that time. Few pleasure cars have been out, due to the disagreeable weather, and there has been a corresponding decrease in even minor accidents.

Everything has been quiet in police circles here for the past week or ten days, an occasional traffic violation making court necessary. This condition is felt all along the Canada, however, and many feel that it may be attributed to unemployment conditions.

There is very little unemployment in Trenton at present, as large numbers of local men are working at the airport, at the C.P.R. water tank, at the Overhead bridge, and on construction jobs in and around Trenton. More will be employed when the paving work is started here next week.

Cement Work at Mayhew's Hill Was Completed

(Special by Staff Reporter)

TRENTON, Ont., May 20.—The Cement work which is being constructed at Mayhew's Mill on the Wooler Road prior to the pavement construction was completed today, and the paving company will in all likelihood start their work at once. The work just completed at Mayhew's Mill was in the nature of a spillway under the road to take care of the water from the Mill race as it flowed under the road and into the Trent River.

TRENT CANAL IS READY FOR USE

Marie Lydia of Quebec Is Loaded With Canned Goods

(Special by Staff Reporter)

TRENTON, Ont., May 29—Only one small craft has passed up the Trent Canal so far this year, this boat making the journey up early in the week. All locks on this system have been opened and re-opened to see that they worked all right, this having been done some weeks ago. The Trent Valley system is one of the most beautiful of the inland waterways, and a large number of ships are expected to make the trip through to the head water, this summer.

The Marie Lydia of Quebec, feeder for the Canada Steamship Lines freighters, was in Trenton yesterday, loading canned goods from the factories in this district.

Trenton Cadets Were Inspected

Corps Made Splendid Showing Before General Hill

(Special by Staff Reporter)

Trenton, May 19.—The Cadets of the High School as well as those of Dufferin and College Street Schools were inspected this morning at the High School Grounds by Col. Hill, head of all Cadet Corps of the Dominion, and Captain Ibbester, of Kingston. All three corps made a fine showing. The three companies have been practising faithfully for some time on their various manoeuvres and everything went off smoothly, the whole battalion receiving unstinted praise from the inspecting officer.

Cadet Instructors R. F. Slickwood of the High School, F. W. Sherbert of Dufferin School and W. J. D. Whyte of College St. School turned out in the neighbourhood of 275 cadets for the inspection, and this unit are likely showing this morning, compare favourably with any unit in the district.

The large number of spectators present were both surprised and pleased at the smoothness of the drill, and many compliments were heard on all sides. A half holiday was granted the students following the inspection and tomorrow night the annual Cadet Dance will be held at the Collegiate. The officers of the various school corps are as follows:

High School—Company Commanders, John Proctor; second in command, Bert Langton; platoon commanders, F. Langdon, Mac Aylesworth, Girdwood Weaver, Ray Johnson; Band Sgt. Joe Reynolds, and Sgt.-Major Harold Corbett.

College Street—Company Commander, Jack Miller; second in command Bert Purse; platoon commanders, Art Johnson, Gerald Faro, Ray Fox.

Dufferin School—Company Commander George Brinklow; second in command, C. Drake; platoon commanders, Don Vandervoort, Jas. Leveridge, Howard Asis.

Youths to Join New Glider Club

(Special by Staff Reporter)

TRENTON, Ont., May 28.—Several Trenton youths have signified their intentions of joining the Glider Club which is being organized by Mr. Michael Sinclair in Belleville. Mr. Sinclair is well known in Trenton, and those who know him state that no one they know could be a better man to supervise a club such as his. It is proposed to build a glider at Mr. Sinclair's ground school in Belleville, and no doubt several from this town will join.

Downpour Halts Ball Opening

(Special by Staff Reporter)

Trenton, Ont., May 26.—Once again the Bay of Quinte League opening here had to be postponed because of wet weather, when the game between Point Anne and Trenton C.F.R. team was rained out yesterday afternoon. So far the Trenton lads have been unable to play a home game and have only managed to get in one game away from home. The heavy downpour which started at noon yesterday made the playing field a pool of water. This game may be played as a twilight fixture within the next few days.

RACK YOUR TOOLS ON AN OLD BRAKE ROD

The garage work bench will be more useful for spring-time work if an orderly arrangement of the tools is provided. About eighteen inches above and directly to the rear is a tool holder made of sheet iron hangers on an old iron rod. Some hangers are fitted with circular openings for such small tools as files and screwdrivers. Open side hangers provide for larger tools such as drills, wrenches and hammers. This arrangement makes every tool available instantly without lost time in searching around boxes or drawers.—Science and Invention.

MARVELS OF SCIENCE

The world owes more to the telescope than to any other instrument of science for its knowledge of the universe, writes Joseph H. Kraus, in the April issue of Science and Invention. The recent success of Dr. Samuel A. Mitchell, Director of the Leander McCormick Observatory in completing the measuring of the distance from the earth to 1,000 stars, is a great contribution to the science of astronomy, continues Mr. Kraus. The McCormick Observatory thus leads the world in measuring distances to the stars by the parallax method and is 100 ahead of its nearest competitor, the University of Pittsburgh.

In measuring the distances to stars, there is only one direct way of performing the work. This is known as the trigonometric method and consists in taking photographs of the same star from opposite ends of the orbit of the earth as it moves around the sun. This gives the astronomer a known base line from which he can compute the stellar distances. It takes about half an hour to expose the photographic plate. After this has been done with about 20 plates for the same star the parallax is measured.

By calculation the astronomers are then able to get the distance to the stars they are measuring not in feet or miles, but in light years. Light travels at the rate of 186,000 miles a second.

Checking faulty alinement of automobile wheels is made easy with an indicator being installed in service stations.

BASEBALL WORLD MOURNS DEATH OF CUB PITCHER

Hal Carlson Was One of Best Prospects in Game

Chicago, May 29.—Hal Carlson, who fought more tough luck than any other baseball player of modern times, died only a few hours before he was to take the pitcher's mound for the Chicago Cubs. His body lay in state last night while the city's baseball fans and his team-mates grieved over his death.

Carlson died suddenly of stomach ulcers after he awoke in pain and sent for a doctor. He succumbed in the arms of Cliff Heathcote, Kiki Cuyler and Riggs Stephenson, Cub companions, before an ambulance arrived to take him to hospital.

Only Tuesday Carlson said he never felt better, that he was anxious to pitch yesterday's game.

He "beat" a similar attack three years ago in California. His pitching arm then went dead. After being use less for a year, the arm suddenly rounded into shape and he was playing excellent baseball when stomach trouble and lung complications developed.

He fought back and thought he had regained his health. The experts pre dicted a great season for him this year.

He came into the big leagues first in 1917 with Pittsburg but left baseball to fight in the world war.

In 1926 he went to Philadelphia where he pitched three of the best years of his life with what then was one of the poorest baseball teams of the past decade.

The Chicago Cubs gave $30,000 and two players, Kaufmann and Cooney to the Phillies for Carlson in 1927. Hard luck dogged him from then on.

To date this year he had won four and lost three games. Carlson is survived by a widow and small daughter near Rockford, Ill.

BRUNETTE CIGARETTES

BRUNETTE 5¢ LESS — and just as good

On The Sport Trail

Kingston Whig-Standard sports writers have uncorked the annual bottle of alibis and have rushed to the aid of their ball team which drank their first cup of defeat here on Monday. Hearken unto this penetrating crack from the pen of the Tomb-Limestone wise crackers pen:

"Kingston's C.O.B.L. team are by no means discouraged by their defeat in Belleville. It was only a bad first inning that beat them and once they got used to the poor diamond they were better than the Nationals."

How can you beat that? Of course it was the poor diamond that beat the Kingston team! Why of course it was the poor diamond from a Kingston standpoint! But from our viewpoint in the press box it looked very much as though the drives were whistling down past the fielders on for the visiting infielders to handle.

"Sunny the Nationals didn't suffer to any great extent from errors" ility playing on the "Poor Diamond". As a matter of fact the infielder has never been in better condition since the Central League started.

The Kingston writer also has some pungent remarks to make on Belleville's new outfield. Here's another crack.

"With the exception of Harold Buck, the Nationals have not a finished outfielder on their roster, and while the youngsters performed well against Kingston, Manager Gerow will have to dig out the old timers to bolster the team."

Oh! Oh! and pooh! pooh! now ain't that just too bad that the Nationals are so hard up for outfielders. Granted that Buck is the most finished of the trio, we failed to notice the other pair committing mid-darting feats. At least they didn't look half as bad as Mr. Lawlor, when he captured a high fly only to drop it and allow the runner another base.

You know Kingston always had a lot to say about our old rink, but now that we have one just as good as theirs, they must find another target for their verbal epithets, so this time it's the poor diamond as the ball park.

What a fine bumpy, uneven, grassy plot they have to offer visiting teams as the right ground. Why say that field isn't even fit to grow alfalfa and yet they have the nerve to come along and say nasty things about our fine modern field. Now Freddy, be reasonable! You had to take one licking and we're going to give you plenty more before the summer's out, so you may as well resign yourself to that fate. And what's more we're going to use the same set of outfielders in doing it.

Both the Belleville Golf and the Bay of Quinte Country Clubs have officially opened the golf season. Sam French at the Quinte Club and Jock Mitchel at the Belleville Club have a large class of new pupils coming along and golf has more than installed itself as one of the popular sports of the day. The Belleville Club has been lengthened several hundred yards and there is plenty of opportunity for long driving now. The greens are in splendid shape and Joe Cather who has been in charge is to be congratulated. Similarly at the Country Club the golfers have been introduced to the new grebns and improved fairways. Golf is in a class by itself as a summer pastime and the fascination of the game is drawing more enthusiasts to the great inner circle each season.

Hubie Critz, one of the best second basemen, who ever donned a baseball uniform, has been secured by the New York Giants after repeated efforts on the part of John J.Graw, astute manager of U.-Cubs mates. Critz has been improving steadily for the past four years. The writer chanced to witness him in action shortly after he was acquired by the Reds, a few years ago, and at that time, he was stamped as one of the coming stars of the game. He will, it is predicted, be destined to fill Hornsby's shoes as the super second-sacker of the game. "The Rajah", while he is on the other side of the hill, is credited with the Cubs' remarkable showing last season. He is still a great infielder, but his peculiar temperament has been the bane of more than one manager's existence.

The local branch of the Canadian Legion will foster another bowling tournament here, on the night of June 3rd. These bouts have been lasting forward to the milling. They were inaugurated just one year ago, and since that time the Legion have profited financially, while the public has been tickled pink with the programs offered.

LONE CLOUT WON FOR THE ROYALS

Boston Braves Defeat Phillies in Final Game of Series

Montreal, May 29.—The only hit Johnny Prudhomme allowed over seven innings, a sharp single by Lee Stad to left centrefield, gave the Montreal Royals a 1 to 0 victory over the Toronto Leafs in the nightcap of yesterday afternoon's doubleheader.

It also gave the Royals their second victory of the day, their second successive sweep of a series and a tie with Buffalo for first place in the International League standings.

The Royals battered Guy Cantrell and Hal Fisher for 13 hits to take the first game 10 to 2, behind the steady hurling of Herby Thormahlen, star Royal pitcher, who chalked up his seventh successive victory. He has yet to meet defeat this season.

National League

St. Louis, May 29.—After losing three games in a row to Detroit the St. Louis Browns took the final contest of the series from the Tigers here, 4 to 2, and Walter Stewart, ace of the Browns' pitching staff, chalked up his seventh victory of the season.

With the game tied at two-all in the eighth, Bob Whitehill weakened and the Browns scored two runs to win. Blue opened with a double, was sacrificed to third, and scored on Manush's single. McNeely, batting for Manush, scored on Kress' and Schulte's hits.

Stewart held the Tigers scoreless after the first inning when doubles by Funk and McNeely and Alexander's single gave Detroit two runs.

National League

Boston, May 29.—The Boston Braves defeated Philadelphia here yesterday afternoon in the final game of the series, 5 to 1, after the first game, which had been postponed because of rain.

Socks Seibold, pitching for the home team, held the Phillies scoreless, but the visitors garnered their run in the seventh on Thompson's double and Mcnerney's single.

The Braves made eight hits, one of which was Berger's eleventh home run of the season, and it came in the sixth inning.

Phil Collins started for the Phillies and was yanked in the sixth to let Big man bat for him. Alexander finished the game and yielded two runs, both of which came as the result of errors.

Chicago, May 29.—The Chicago Cubs gained half a game on the third place Pirates by defeating the Cincinnati Reds here yesterday, 5 to 3.

The Cubs got off to a four-run lead in the first inning on a walk, a single a triple by Wilson and Cuyler's home run.

Bush was batted from the box in the sixth when the Reds scored three times. Malone finished the game.

Hemsley Hamilton, Chicago Cub pitcher, who died suddenly Wednesday morning, were held here this morning after which he was taken to his home in Rockford for burial Saturday.

The Cubs wore black mourning bands out of respect for their late team-mate.

THE GIRL Plays the Game

By— Clarinda A. Cecil

The stage is all set for the third scheduled game in the city league and take it from me it will be some fight. The National Maids erstwhile Reserves, will battle the Proletarians for the first time this season, and these old rivals will both be in there fighting to carry off the honours and show which team is the best. To predict, who is going to win is some jo'b and I am not going to tackle it for fear I get into the same trouble as Lou Marsh did a few days ago, when he tried to call the winner in the Toronto home races. You can bet your money on this though, and be sure you will not lose it, the game will be close all the way, and you will see softball and not something that looks like a combination of soccer and poor eyesight.

And another thing that will interest you, The National Maids will make their first appearance this year in their snappy new uniforms. These uniforms were supplied by the Identical Bakeries and in return the Beavers adopted their new name, and pale-chrisanthemum yellow new borne babes. The colors in the new uniforms are very attractive combining a bright navy blue with red. The uniforms will be in two pieces and the whole outfit will be the last kink in softball fashions. The Prontenacs will not be so well dressed as their uniforms also, will be only last year's, but they will feel right at home, and look out for them.

They claim they have a new pitcher, but all efforts on our part to find out who he is, where she comes from, and when she has played before, have resulted in a lot of talk but little information. My conclusion, therefore is that she is a newcomer in softball circles and decidedly a dark-horse. Well, girls, here's hopeing. Go your stuff. And we hope she has the goods. A little stiff competition is the finest thing in the world for a league, and we hope there will be plenty of it in this one.

Listen to this, and if you think girls softball is peaceful get your mind changed. The fireworks have started already and rumour has it, that the game played between the Whoopees and Clacks may be protested by the latter team. The claim that the score was tied in the last innings and ended 12 all. It may be only rumour, however, and we take no responsibilities in stating it. We will say, however, that the game in question, was certainly an exciting affair during the last few innings, but if the official scorer had been there to take care of the score card no mix-up whatever would have occurred.

And that brings us to the old, old trouble. Ever since last year the terrible mix-ups, the teams had in the play-off games. And all on account of faulty score keeping. The officials are making a great mistake in not appointing two interested fans, who know the scores accurately, as official score keepers. In fact only one need be looked for as Mr. Wilfrid Vandervoort always lends his services free at the games on the armouries lawn and he turns out a perfect score-card, which anyone with a knowledge of softball can readily follow. The official scorers are appointed, all this trouble about scoring will be finished and the league will certainly be a better and cleaner one. And you can hardly blame a team for being a little upset if their score keeper card dog, not agree with their opponents.

Following is the lineup of the National Maids tomorrow we will print the Prontenacs.

Molly Gray—pitcher.
K. Cenaiwcka—catcher.

A Long Sweeping Swing Means Long Drive

Phillips Fisher, now temporary residing in Calfornia, is one of the longest drivers in the game. If California can keep him, she will be lucky indeed as he is sure to make his mark in amateur golf in America.

Young Finley has a long sweeping swing, but he keeps the club in the proper path all the way. It will be noticed that he finished with his hands high above the level of his head. This indicates that he also holds them the same height at the top of the swing. It is Bobby Jones who has a long sweep to his swing.

Both Finley and Jones are upright swingers, of course, and usually hit a straight ball as well as a long one.

PICTORIAL GOLF INSTRUCTION

Body Must Coordinate For Good Swing

The overhodox golfer not only looks awkward in making his swing, but he is most likely to be found off his game seventy-five percent of the time. When one finishes with the body leaning backward with the weight on the right foot, the chances are more even that a poor shot has been made—certainly not in any case a long one.

The body has not been of any particular help and the follow through has been short—not sufficiently long to make sure of a straight ball. The body must do its share of the work, otherwise there can be no coordination.

AID TO LAW OFFICERS

What is a policeman? asks Mary Jacobs, in the April issue of Science and Invention. The answer was easy once. Not so now. Our forces of the law have called science in to help them make crime difficult and apprehension sure. Many modern police methods are creating motor mechanics, thumbprint specialists, and ballistic experts only policemen grew before! Further, aside from these specialists, a new kind of patrolman has emerged—the man in charge of explosives and their action; from the study of ballistics in connection with the identification of bullets is ground work and flying instruction or the aviation force. The school accommodates 2000 men who have come from all of our forty-eight states to train for the latest profession, the profession of policemen.

TEST THE DISTRIBUTER WITH A PORTABLE LIGHT

A sure and certain means of testing the ignition is by means of an electric light in circuit with the distributer. The spring clips of the portable car light are attached to the term nals of itli coil, which connect to the distributer and the switch. When the car is run slowly or the motor is turned over to the starter, the light flashes for each contact of the breaker points. A miss due to faulty parts, lost motion in the break ar or other units, is immediately evident. Where this test shows no defects, the one remaining item in the ignition circuit which must be at fault is the coil, which should be subjected to an independent test.—Science and Invention.

LAWN TENNIS By WILLARD CROCKER

VII. POSITION AND FOOTWORK

There are bct two positions on the tennis court to be in during play; first 2 or 3 feet behind the either or the baseline, and secondly, 5 or 6 feet behind the net. The centre of the court is quicksand. It is most important to know how to get there and what to do on arrival. The key to the question is footwork.

Take your position at the backcourt. Distribute your weight and balance evenly on the ball of both feet, ready to move in any direction. With our eye on the ball. You detect where you must go approximately by the way it's met about. Judge carefully and then go directly to the spot. Study carefully the easiest, smoothest footwork that will carry you around and cultivate it. Make your footwork light and springy. Never go any where in a sloppy flatfooted manner. Play your shots and return to centre using the best footwork you can. Specialize and study foot movement. Save steps. Watch the relation of speed to footwork. When you go to the net. Make your footwork as perfect as possible. Have your feet under control at all times.

Footwork is an equated art and one where in concentration, study and practice Arrange your footwork so that in playing a shot you are always going forward—never backward. On playing backhand and fore hand ground strokes make your footwork place you in a position facing parallel to the net. Never hit a ground stroke facing the net. Make your footwork movement continuous from start to finish of a point.

TREES NEED VITAMINS

The average householder gets an attack of tree-trimming fever in his most virulent form early in the spring. If the sun and the pruning shears are simultaneously bright and shining, only definite self-control is going to prevent him from getting right out to trim something. Unless he suffers this fever by the application of definite tree knowledge, he may do inestimable damage to his helpless trees.

It is almost a pity that the average man believes himself to be at heart a naturalist, merely because of this yearning to get out into the sunshine. For every time he cuts off a branch of a tree under the delusion that he is benefiting it, he is likely to rob the tree of a certain amount of digestive food greatly needed by the roots.

Keep in mind the fact that every tree is a complete unit in itself, with each leaf a manufacturing plant. Without a goodly crop of leaves, the roots must perish, for they take in crude water from the soil, send it up into the tree through the sap wood, out into the branches into the leaves, where with the aid of the sun and the chlorophyl, it brings about the production of digested sap or carbohydrates (sugar and starch). From here it flows to the cambium layer and it distributed over all parts of the tree. Disturb the balance of this process by ruthlessly depriving it of the branches and you disturb the balance of the entire tree.—Science and Invention.

With a dial 30 feet in diameter, the clock in the Royal Liver Building, Liverpool, is believed to have the largest "face" in England.

Jack Miner and the Birds

and Some Things I Know About Nature

by

Jack Miner Himself

"COPYRIGHT AND FOR SALE IN BOOK FORM AT ALL BOOK STORES"

Finally the eight of them all started for the north pond. But Jack looked and saw the hen following; so he just stepped back and gave her one blow with his stub wing which sent her tumbling and screaming with terror towards the chicken house. But in about fifteen minutes when I returned from the factory the goslings came back after their step-mother. Jack following them. I succeeded in coaxing her out and he saw her family safely and across her, as they utter ed volumes of baby talk, apparently expressing their sympathy. This old gander never touched her afterwards, and the hen lived out at the pond with the eight geese until the snow drove her home. No other hen on the premises dared venture near her, for the gander guarded her as one of his family from them on.

The old monkey goose got a little better towards fall, but when winter set in she took a change for the worse and one day in January I went back and picked her up. When I got to the cow stable I turned the cow out, leaving the goose there while I went to the house for dope. When the cow passed out the door, old Jack Johnson who was right on my heels ever since I picked up his mate, flew into the cow like a bull-dog and gave her a real trimming. On returning from the house I found he had driven her around the corner, but was still fighting and hooking at this innocent old beast.

When I opened the cow-stable door I found the old goose's struggle was over. She was dead. And while her faithful old mate was around out of sight, still busily engaged with the cow, I took the goose out and buried her; therefore he never saw her afterwards.

To be brief, he fought the cow, on and off for two or three weeks. Then he seemed to content himself with being her. At her two calves, and finally he kept constant guard over her, and never was seen to be over three rods away from her head. On several occasions she broke out, but he followed and was seen over a mile from home.

In fact she needed no bell to be located, as his honking answered the purpose. During the summer months he slept at her head in the pasture field, but when winter came and the cow was stabled, he always slept on the doorstep. One morning in March I snapped him there.

He apparently blamed her for his trouble, and paid no attention whatever to any other geese, not even his own family. His sad honking, however, became so dreadfully mournful to one and all that I finally got rid of him.

On another occasion I kept a widowed goose four years and she still honked for her old love. Now, if anything happens to one of a pair around here, I will give you the other, as I cannot stand to hear their deep, mournful cries that to me make the whole place gloomy.

I have heard good honest men say that their wild ganders when turned with a flock of tame geese will mate with more than one goose. But here at my home everything is as near the natural state as I can possibly make it, and I haven't seen these geese show any inclination toward acting that way.

Here is a fact hard for you to believe, for it is beyond the human power's control. These wild geese come here from the south-east, Atlantic coast, arriving about March the first; if fed and protected they will not leave here for Hudson Bay, where they nest, before April the twentieth to May the first, living here under exactly the same conditions as our wing-clipped or pinioned ones do. And ours usually lay the last week in March.

This year six young were hatched on April the 27th, and it takes twenty eight or twenty-nine days for incubation alone.

Or I give you a better explanation if I will say, take a pair of these wild geese, clip their wings and keep them here. In about three years they will nest but will do so fully a month earlier than if they had their wings and could go to the natural breeding ground. Possibly their reason for nesting earlier when they are compelled to stay here is to get their young well developed before the extremely hot weather sets in, as I have had them die in dry, hot weather. On the other hand, when they are three days old they will toddle around among the white frost on the clover leaves and enjoy their meal as if it were sugar-coated.

Now I am aware that I have been altogether too lengthy; but I have so many of these interesting facts that I can't, apparently, ring off.

I know you educated people call it nature, or instinct; and really I have heard such a variety of names for this goose-knowledge that I don't try to look up the meaning of these artificial words; for I am sure if all their meanings were boiled down, and all the man-made, artificial names were skimmed off, the real interpretation would be—

"GOD."

Last summer, about the first of July, as I went from the factory to the house, Mrs. Miner said to me, "What is the matter with your geese? This old pair and their young ones have come to the house and honked two or three times. We have driven them back to the north pond time and again." I said at once, "Were there only four young that came up?" She assured me that was all. But the looks and actions of the geese were enough; I knew there was something wrong, for when the old pair saw me they honking aloud.

I hunted through the shrubbery and these geese followed me. On my arrival at the water's edge the meaning of their mysterious actions was revealed, for I saw the goslings lying dead upon the shore. I hurried along and picked it up. On examination I found a small head of rye in its wind-pipe. The noise of the machinery where I was working had prevented my hearing the alarmed cries of the parent birds, or I would have gotten there in time to save its life. However, it was then too late; the gosling had been dead at least an hour.

So I took it by one foot and carried it in my hand; and the parents and the four remaining young followed at my heels right back to the house. I buried the gosling beside the rose-path, with the broken family of geese standing within fifteen feet of me. We had to drive them back several times before they would stay and it was fully a week before they would content themselves back at their home where they had lived all summer.

CHAPTER XXVIII

The Migration of Our Canada Goose

As to the regularity of the migration of our Canada goose, I must say I am greatly indebted to the kind assistance of the Hudson's Bay Company's agents and those of the Revillon Fur Company, and I have a great ambition to lay aside all home cares and enjoyments and in the near future treat myself to a three months' trip to the nesting grounds of our Canada geese, where I will have the great pleasure or grasping the hands of all classes of these men whom the goose lures as we know are on earth.

As proof that these men are genuine I am reproducing some of their letters. The following is the first one I received:

Hudson's Bay Company,
Moose Factory, Ont.,
August 16th, 1913.
via Cochrane.

Box 48,
Kingsville, Ontario.

Dear Sir,—

I have an aluminum ring with the above address stamped on the outside and number 15 on the inside. This was taken off the leg of a Canada Grey Goose shot by an Indian last spring about the 15th April a few miles south of the H.B. post of East main on James Bay. The Indian who shot it said that it was in a band of about fifteen and this particular goose appeared larger than the others and of a lighter colored plumage. It was probably bound for the breeding grounds north, from the fact of its being in a flock. A good many geese hatch all around the bay but these are usually seen flying around in pairs before nesting. These birds are very easily tamed and I have seen some here taken very young which, after they have grown up, would continue staying around the place after being turned loose. I would be interested to hear from you the particulars of this goose and hope I have given you all information you require about it. I am,

Yours faithfully,

W. E. Cansell.

Later, in January, 1918, I received another letter, as follows:

Hudson's Bay Company,
Fort, George James Bay,
via. Cochrane.
27th January, 1916.

Box 48,
Kingsville, Ont.

Dear Sir,—

This is to inform you that an Indian last week brought me a band, bearing the above address, which was taken from the leg of a goose, killed about the middle of October last at Conch Hills, a point on the coast of James Bay about forty miles south of this Post.

As the Indian seemed to expect something for giving me the band, I paid him a dollar and shall be glad if you will kindly refund same to me.

Yours truly,

Owen Griffith.

RAWDON SCHOOL HOUSE ROBBED

Sneak Thieves Make Away With Pupils' Supplies

Rawdon, May 29 (By Mail)—The pupils and teacher of Allan School found a large number of their fountain pens, overshapes, pencils, gum rubbers, and other school equipment missing when they arrived at the school on Monday the 26th to resume their studies. This year they did not receive a holiday otherwise they would have been a day later before finding out that a sneak-thief had visited their school. Miss Trevits, real the teacher also lost two magnifying glasses. The desks had been thoroughly ransacked and only the best pens and pencils were taken. The loss will be considerable as several of the pupils had been given Waterman's fountain pens as Xmas gifts and all of these are now missing. It is understood that the caretaker, Mr. James Linn had locked the outside doors on Friday evening, so the robbery must have gotten in by way of a broken basement windows and thence up the stairs to the school room, as the doors leading from the hall to the schoolroom weren't locked. Very few of the pupils had taken their pens home and these were the only ones available for use on Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Sharp, Leslie, Winnie, Audrey, Marie and Mr. Albert Dorland spent Saturday with Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Post Rosemont, and the men enjoyed a fishing trip.

Mr. Elias MacMullen of Oshawa is spending this week visiting his many relatives in this vicinity.

Miss Edna Reid spent the week end with Misses Agnes and Anna Sharp and spent Monday visiting at the Allan School.

Mr. Jack Douglas of Fuller spent Monday with Mr. and Mrs. Donald Sharp.

Miss Helen Spencer visited the Allan School on Monday as the Fourth Line School was closed for the day.

Mr. Albert Greene of Whitby spent a few days visiting relatives at Mount Pleasant and Carmel.

The rural mail carrier enjoyed a holiday on Monday. The nearby stores also closed up Monday while the banks observed Saturday and most of the farmers did not observe the holiday as they are busy finishing up the spring work. The farmerettes are busy with their gardens and poultry to say nothing of cleaning, painting and canning.

Rev. F. O. Joslin, Messrs Allan Bailey and A. W. Garrison are representing Rawdon Circuit at the Bay of Quinte Conference being held this week at Cobourg. They will present their report in the form of "Echoes from the Conference," on Monday, June 9th.

Miss Edna Sharp is gaining very slowly from her very serious illness.

Mrs. Conger McConnell is on the sick list.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

THE MIDNIGHTCALL

Charles Slogan Reid

Copyright, 1930, International Features Service, Inc.

Things had gone from bad to worse for Mary Jane Crawford since Joe died. After his injury Joe had lingered for more than a year. What, with the doctoring and nursing, all the land money had gone, with three payments still due on the place. Then, too, Mary Jane had been unable to get the property worked that last year, with only a boy to help.

It was time to start another crop, and the boy had quit. Along with her other worries and anxieties, the baby had been sick. Apparently things had come to the pass where Mary Jane, still under twenty years, would have given up the farm and gone to the cotton mill. The baby would have to be placed in a home. It was hard, so hard. Faint, little strand-like tendrils had appeared in Mary Jane's face, the face which was proverbial in the community for its beauty.

The mule was gone. It had to go in order to leave food enough for the cow. Baby needed the cow. Now there was no animal with which to do the plowing. Mary Jane was sick at heart, and she sat sitting later over the embers in the fireplace. She had turned out the lamp light to save the oil. Baby had been very restless, appeared to have great difficulty in breathing at times. The mother was uneasy, and listened intently for any undue movement in the bed. She had had no experience with babies, until her own had come, and she felt so helpless when any new form of apparent illness came.

The little farm house was a hundred yards off the main road and the faint light from Mary Jane's hearthfire could be seen through the window from the highway. On this night it had attracted the attention of a traveller, a robust young fellow riding a large black horse.

On seeing the light from the house the stranger reined in his mount, and gazed for a moment toward the window gleam. Just then a vicious gust of wind swept his face. Turning into the lane he rode down to the house. Mary Jane had caught the sound of hoof beats, but she was a little startled when a stout "Hello" came from beyond the door. She hesitated a moment before answering. Finally she decided that no one who could mean harm to her would come so boldly.

"What do you wish?" she queried through the closed door.

"Beg pardon, ma'am," said the voice "it is coming on to be blustery. I'd like to get my horse into good shelter, and my head under a roof for the night."

"I'm sorry; but I am a lone woman with a baby; and I could not take in anyone—that is—a man into the house."

"I see, ma'am," came the voice again. "Then, might I put my horse in the barn, and find shelter for myself in the loft?"

"Yes." Then, after a pause, "but there is a cabin in the back yard. You might spend the night there. There is a little fire wood in the yard."

"I thank you, ma'am."

Mary Jane listened to the hoof beats, as the man rode around the house. Strangely she did not feel quite as much alone and afraid.

The baby had begun to move restlessly again, and in a few moments was struggling for breath. Mary Jane took it up. She realized it was choking. "Croup" was the first thought that entered her head and immediately her utter helplessness almost overwhelmed her. The doctor had not been paid in eight months. Would he come to her if she sent for him? How should she send? These questions swept through her brain.

The man in the yard. She wondered if he had not been sent in some mysterious way to help her. He could go for a doctor. But it was seven miles to the doctor's house. The doctor might be away when the man reached his home. Again his might refuse to come. In the meantime the child would choke to death. With the baby in her arms she ran here and there about the room, trying to think of something to do. She wondered why she never had asked somebody about a remedy for croup.

The infant's struggles became more desperate; and presently Mary Jane no longer hesitated. Placing the little one on it's bed, she ran into the yard, and rapped frantically upon the cabin door.

"Oh, man! man!" she cried, "you must help me! For God's sake come quick and help me! My baby—"

"Be there in a minute, lady," came the response from beyond the door.

"Come into the house, then. I—I can't wait."

"Run along; I'll be there."

When the stranger had found his way into Mary Jane's room, she was nobody over the baby whose struggles were growing still more desperate.

"Croup, lady. I've seen it many a time when I was a boy, ma'am."

The man had come to the bedside. He was big and strong, and his face beamed sympathy in the dim light of the room.

"Oh, please bring a doctor, won't you?" Mary Jane was tugging at his shirt sleeve.

"No time to get a doctor, lady; unless he lives just across lots here somewhere. And I'm guessing he don't live so near as that. I've seen my mother treat 'em when they get bad like this.

The stranger caught up the baby, and held it, stomach down, upon the palm of his big hand. Then he glanced at the extended forefinger of his right hand. It looked smooth as large as a mallet handle. The baby's mouth was small, so small it seemed impossible it could admit it, but the next moment that rough fore finger was thrust into the infant's throat. Mary Jane held her breath and prayed. When the man's finger came forth again it was dragging a rope of cruel phlegm. The operation was repeated until once more something like natural breathing was restored to the tiny thorax.

"Pretty rough, lady," the stranger apologized; "but it was about the last chance, though my hands ain't none too gentle. Been punchin' cows in the west for the past fifteen years. Pulled stakes from old Georgia—ran away from home, you know? Tired o' cows—just gettin' back to the old empire state again. Better melt a little lard, ma'am, and put a tiny bit o' powdered alum in it, in case it thickens up again. That'll help.

Mary Jane lighted the lamp on the table. As its flame brought the objects in the room into clear relief, the stranger suddenly strode forward to an enlarged portrait on the wall.

"Whew! puh get that!" he demanded with sudden emotion.

"That is a picture of my mother who died, when I was three."

The stranger's face became a study for a moment. Two tears came to his eyes, and his voice trembled as he spoke.

"Your mother?—and mine. Then you are little Mary Jane?"

"And you—oh, you are Jerry! Oh, Jerry!" Mary Jane was sobbing in his arms. "What brought you back to me at this time, of all times, when I most needed you?"

"Dunno, little woman. Fate has a way o' doing thing, like that, sometimes."

WRECKED ON LAKE YOUTHS RESCUED

Rochester, N.Y., May 29.—Adrift for more than six hours on the storm-swept waters of Lake Ontario, two youths were rescuing by Coast Guardsmen of the Summerville station yesterday, ending a search of two days for their makeshift cabin cruiser.

George Kelbo, aged 20, and William Carter, aged 26, left Summerville on Saturday afternoon and were thought to have perished in the storm which arose shortly after their departure.

They were sighted at Coast Guard lookout station yesterday morning, drifting before the wind, and a cutter was sent to bring them in. Both boats were blown ten miles down the lake to Manitou Beach when the cutter's engine broke down. Another boat was despatched and brought them to Summerville.

The youths told guardsmen that they had reached Wellington, Ontario safely and were almost home on their return trip, when their rudder broke.

TORIES INCREASE MAJORITY GREATLY

Nottingham, Eng., May 29 (CP)—The Conservative Party by a greatly increased plurality yesterday retained their hold on the central division of Nottingham at the by-election necessitated by retirement of A. J. Bennett. T. J. O'Connor was elected by nearly fifteen thousand votes, while the Labor candidate received only half that amount and the Liberal received only half as many again.

MAYPOLE FALLS KILLING SCHOLARS

Toronto, May 29—Clad at the moment when school was out, a laughing little pink-cheeked girl of ten, Catherine Nicholson of 142 Booth Avenue, romped with her half-dozen playmates yesterday afternoon. A few moments later she was dead.

A maypole rusted at the base was responsible for the tragedy which occurred at Queen Alexandra school at 4.45, shortly after the bell had rung the end of the school day. Many of the children were on their way home. Yet Catherine had toilt her family that she would stay a few minutes to play and then would go home directly.

Seven or eight small friends merrily grasped the bands of the maypole. Little feet lifted from the ground and the children made their first circle, crowding higher into the air. Suddenly there was a crash. The pole had snapped at the base and the children scattered. Catherine lay on the ground, the pole fallen on the back of her head. A few seconds later she was dead.

Correct Manners

Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman
Has First Formal Dinner

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:—

My society is giving a formal dinner dance soon, and as it is my first dance of this sort, I am rather worried about my conduct during the dinner. I have been reading your column for a number of years and so I decided to write to you.

1. What kind of dinner is generally served? How many courses, are there?

2. As each course is changed, are the utensils changed, or are the places set (before the dinner is served) with the knives, forks and spoons?

3. If the latter is true, will you please tell me how I can distinguish which utensils to use?

READER.

1—You do not need to be at all worried about this dinner, for at every step it will be simply done that you won't even be aware that you were worried. You will find the silverpieces already at your plate, and each course will be served so easily that you cannot help following.

There will be at the minimum four courses, but probably one or two more. There may be first a fruit cocktail or some fish-food cocktail such as crab meat, or lobster or shrimp. Then probably a soup course. Then perhaps an entree or fish (probably not both courses). Then the main course. Next to the salad course, unless the salad is served with the main course. And last, the dessert and coffee.

2—It is customary to set the silver pieces at the places for the dinner. At the places you will find the service plates, with the forks on the left (except the oyster fork, if one is used, which is usually placed on the right), and the knives and spoons on the right. The silver pieces are placed for every course up to the dessert course, and the silver for this course is brought in before the dessert is served or with the dessert plate.

3—It is the rule to place the silver pieces in the order in which the guest is to use them. We begin with the piece farthest from the plate, and work toward the plate.

That is, if there is not, say, a fruit cock tail first you will find farthest from the plate on the right a teaspoon to eat it with. Next the soup—and you will find the dinner soup spoon next to the teaspoon on the right and nearer the plate. Next if there is an entree or fish you will find the fork for this on the left of the plate, farthest from the plate (perhaps, too, there will be a fish knife on the right). Next the main course, and you will find the dinner fork on the left farthest from the plate, and the dinner knife on the right. The fork for the salad course, next, you will find on the left, nearest the plate. And I hope that you will also find one of the new salad knives on the right, nearest the plate. The silver pieces for the desert will be brought in before or with the dessert.

Fashionably Speaking

DEAR READERS:

Now that you are trying to economize and save for that holiday trip don't let all the increases that will occur in the family expenses aggravate you? There is the gas bill. Hardly a month rolls by, and particularly at this time of year, that someone in the household asks, "Isn't that gas bill rather high?" Such high bills where the rate is low, are due to waste of gas. There is hardly a woman who could not cut down considerably on the amount she employs for cooking merely by studying the matter and adapting to her own purposes devices practised by other house keepers.

And here are a few hints we read not long ago that we hope will prove useful.

Anyone who stops to think a minute realizes that once water boils it is as hot as it can get; that it will stay at the boiling point simmering over a low flame as well as it will galloping over a burner turned as high as it will go. The heat as it is delivered is measured in units, and if a small number of units will supply the correct cooking temperature, why pay for ten times that amount? Why not practice fuel saving for a month and apply the difference between the resulting bill and the former one to some appliance that will enable one to do even better during succeeding periods—such as a waterless cooker, a steam pressure cooker or even a fireless cooker?

A Word on Excess Heat

We need no cooking authority to explain that too hot a fire is a frequent cause of poor food. Take an apple pie, for example. Properly baked, it is delicious, but violent heat makes the crust taste greasy even if the best of materials were used in the making.

Moreover excessive heat in cooking causes disagreeable odors throughout the house, and grease and steam that cling to curtains and draperies as well as furniture, and make dust stick to them. It is safe to say that this practice of using too much heat in the gas range causes most of the cleaning in our homes today, as is proved by the fact that with electric ventilation for the kitchen, which sends out of the house the air laden with grease and steam, the necessary cleaning within is reduced to an almost unbelievably small amount.

"Real economy," says a domestic science teacher, "lies as much in watching the small outlays as the big. Clas should never be lighted until the dish to be cooked has been set on the burner. The size of the flame regulates the amount of gas fuel used so that a small flame should be used under a small cooking vessel, and a larger flame or larger burner under the larger vessel. There are hundreds of families that very seldom need to use the largest burner—perhaps not more than twice a year; but they are using it every day. The flame that plays around the side of the cooking utensil is so much wasted heat and should not be permitted.

"The flame left burning when one takes off a dish is another source of waste; it should be turned out even if it is to be relighted a minute later. A yellow flame means a dirty flame, another waste of heat. A clean burner will give a blue flame, and the blue flame is hotter.

"The oven need not be heated long ahead of the time it is to be used. The gas oven heats so quickly that there are few cases when it should be lighted before the dish is put inside. And the burners retain their heat so long that they seldom need to stay lighted until the very end of the baking period. As it takes from four to six times as much gas to heat the oven every possible unit of oven heat should be utilized by filling the oven space to its full capacity on baking day."

Fashionably yours,

LUCILLE

Today's Poem

THE WATERFALL

I was listening to the lapping of the gently flowing stream,
And I heard its simple music as the music of a dream,
Where the silver birch leant over with a slender stately grace,
To I felt it for it seemed to me it was a fairy place.

I followed on and ever on the pathway of the brook,
And the little woodland creatures stopped their play to have a look.
I heard its tinkling clatter as it leapt a large stone,
And still I followed onwards, just the brook and I alone.

And then I heard a murmur that grew greater all the way,
Till it seemed the little stream commenced to dance a dance more gay.
And then all framed in pine-trees like the pillars of a hall,
I saw a shower of silver; I had reached the waterfall.

Advice to Lovelorn

By Beatrice Fairfax

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX—

About a year and a half ago, I met a man who was an entirely different nationality and religion than myself. I liked him very much. I met him quite a few times, as he went with the same crowd I did. Out of our meetings grew a very beautiful friendship.

My parents thought he was a very nice fellow, but as he was of a different nationality from us, did not want me to go with him. He was the kind that did not want to get a girl and, he thought it very unreasonable to see a girl smoke. I gave up smoking when I went with him. I never took him seriously although I really cared for him.

Finally he became real serious, I just laughed and said that it would be best that we did not see one another. I don't know whether he really thought I was making a fool of him. If he could have read my heart whenever I said those things.

After that he ignored me entirely. I did not see him at all for about two months. When we met again, I acted as though I was as happy as the day I laughed and fooled around with the other fellows as though I really did care for them. I could just feel disgust on his face. We met several times since and now we talk of things in general, never bringing ourselves into the conversation.

M. M. C.

If you really like the young man, why don't you stop "play-acting" with other young men? For his benefit, let him see that you are glad to see him again. As to the question of a difference in nationality, I see something that you and the young man must decide between yourselves. From what you told me he seems courteous, worthy and free from the less attractive qualities of the average.

Union Vale

The regular monthly meeting of the W.I. was held at the home of Mrs. Carman Frost, May 20th.

The meeting was opened with the President, Miss Edna Ketchenon in the chair. After singing the Institute ode, the Lord's Prayer was repeated in unison.

The roll call was "A kind thought in poetry or prose", which was well responded too. A message of thanks was received from Mrs. Acker for the Easter Sunshine box of flowers sent her invalid husband. A letter of appreciation was also read by the Secretary from Mrs. O. Nicholson for flowers received.

The Secretary gave an account of receipts and expenditures for the past year, showing a balance in the bank of $35.00.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

President—Miss Edna Ketchenon.
1st Vice President—Mrs. Kelchenow
2nd Vice President—Mrs. C. Fox.
Secretary—Miss Leda Badgley.
Treasurer—Mrs. C. Fox.
Directors—Mrs. M. Seward, Mrs. E. Burkitt, Mrs. E. Hough and Mrs. P. Mallory.
District Director—Mrs. P. Mallory.

Layette Committee 4th line—Mrs. T. Burkitt Mrs. W. Coon.
Pianist—Mrs. E. Burkitt.
Press Reporter—Mrs. P. Mallory.

The delegates to the district annual to be held at Wallbridge June 5th are as follows—Miss Edna Ketchenow and Mrs. O. Morrow, Mrs. C. Fox, Mrs. P. Mallory.

There was a good attendance including visitors from Frankford, Scots and surrounding community. All enjoyed a very dainty lunch served by the hostess who made a birthday cake decorated with two candles to celebrate our second anniversary as an Institute.

The next meeting will be held at Mrs. P. Mallory on May 17th., Mrs. O. Morrow acting as convenor, her subject being "Educators". All are cordially invited to attend. The meeting then closed by singing the National Anthem.

COMMERCIAL EDUCATION

Belleville Chamber of Commerce came into empirewide limelight Tuesday when a resolution sponsored by the local organization, relating to the spread of commercial education, was adopted at the London Congress of Chambers of Commerce and Boards of Trade of the Empire. What thought goes into the preparation of the agenda for these meets may be realised by the importance attached to this resolution.

In such a way Belleville Chamber has done an imperial thing. Other chambers can do the same, all such resolutions tending to clear the air and to pave the way for action. In this way the local chamber can contribute directly to empire welfare as well as indirectly through local benefits.

Delegate Ernest Hunter of Australia speaking on the resolution made a comment which rang across the empire, when he stressed the importance of work in the home by women and the work and life of commerce for men. Both are honorable occupations and this thought should be impressed upon all. He made no mistake. Business is it may be said the chief interest of man outside of the home and it is well that there should be commercial education to prepare men for the life of business where they have to spend so much of their time and energy. Business ought to be able to give the men and women engaged therein a spiritual reaction, that is, business should not be mere materialism for it is not. It can have other values.

The reference to the worthwhileness of housework was stressed by Mr. Hunter. Many men need to be told that and many a woman needs the advice likewise. Though outer forms change, though inventions have relieved much of the tedium of housework and though growing wealth has relieved many women of a great deal of the responsibility of the work of a house through the employment of house help, the fact remains that the work of the home must be made a spiritual work, otherwise the nation will show the bad results of a life in which is not marked by the highest ideals. Today many folk are discarding their ideals as they would old clothes thinking that ideals are outworn as of one age only but the real ideal exists beyond one generation beyond one or two changes of fashion. Styles of clothes and cars may change but the style of womanliness and manliness does not change. That ideal is as fixed as the northern star.

Belleville resolution in opening the question of commercial education stressed one thing worth while and gave an opportunity for the discussion of the value of home life.

No Bellevillian, even Mr. John Elliott, the sole local delegate at the conference could not have hoped for such a tribute to the Belleville chamber.

SELLING TO TOURISTS

The Brockville Recorder Times has a timely editorial reference to the address of Dr. Donald M. Marvin, economist of the Royal Bank of Canada before the Political Science Association wherein he pointed out that Canada has remarkable opportunity in extending trade through selling quality articles at relatively low prices to the large numbers of tourists who enter Canada yearly. The Recorder Times goes on to say:-

"Dr. Marvin points to the fact that in all probability 16,000,000 tourists entered Canada by motor car last year as an illustration of the potentialities of the tourist business. He believes the first step retail merchants should take in attempting to profit from such an opportunity is to ascertain the types of merchandise in which the visitor may be expected to be interested. He points out that most of the visitors come from a country of high tariffs. The tariff rate which they must pay on jewelry, for example, including card, cigarette, and vanity cases is 80 per cent. The typical Canadian tariff on such items ranges from 20 and 25 1-2 per cent. for Great Britain, to 30 and 35 percent. for countries under the general tariff. Approximately the same tariff differential holds with regard to manicure sets, toilet articles, and non-alcoholic perfumery. Cutlery from Great Britain comes to Canada at a duty of 20 per cent. but pays more than 45 per cent. duty in the United States. Chinaware pays a duty of 70 per cent. in the United States, but comes into Canada free of duty from Great Britain. "These tariff differentials," Dr. Marvin contends 'are sufficient to warrant the belief that a substantial volume of trade can be built up in such articles. There is already a heavy demand for linen and in this item the tariff differential is much smaller than in the articles mentioned. Canadians pay a duty of 10 per cent. on linen from Great Britain and France as compared with a rate of duty of 40 per cent. in the United States. If this differential is sufficient to form the basis for a good volume of trade, let us consider Canadian duties on laces which range from 25 per cent to 35 per cent. as against a rate of 90 per cent. in the United States.

"It is not my claim,' the Royal Bank economist continues, 'that the rates of duty which have been mentioned are typical of the relative tariff structures of the two countries. The articles have been selected because of the differential in favour of the Canadian merchant. They are luxury articles of a type which people on a vacation are willing to purchase. They are of small bulk and may be readily carried back. In general they are the product of hand labour and of a type of workmanship which is too expensive to be performed in either Canada or the United States, countries where there is a high level of wages. There are many other articles which can be purchased abroad on which the tariff differential in favour of the Canadian merchant is just as large as on those which have been mentioned.

"It seems evident that articles such as these will be of interest to the visitor. They are not made in Canada and until this country is overpopulated they will not be produced in Canada on any considerable scale. It might be that the display of such articles in Canadian stores would result in an increased diversion of Canadian funds into the purchase of Canadian made products. It has been quite seriously contended that such an outcome would injure Canadian manufacturing. After close study of this problem, it seems to me that any such diversion of Canadian purchasing power would be much more than offset by the new money in the country from tourist purchases.'

"Under the heading of sales methods, Dr. Marvin does not neglect newspaper advertising. He thinks that merchants are neglecting a fine opportunity to capture a larger share of the tourist business through failure to make mention of articles of this type in their newspaper space. Only a minority of the tourists from the United States, he thinks, are aware of the fact that they may return with goods of $100 in value duty-free, nor do they know which articles are cheaper in Canada than in the United States because of the favorable tariffs. There should be, however, no attempt to deal with the tourist in an unfair manner or to charge him excessive prices and there should be a national effort, through concerted action, to bring even a larger number of tourists to Canada and to increase their per capita purchases.

"Whatever one may think of the arguments advanced by Dr. Marvin, it is apparent that retail merchants could do a much larger business with tourists if they chose to offer them goods that they require and that are cheaper here than in the United States."

HER GARDEN

By Aline Michaelis

In her garden where she passes
Joyous hours each day,
Cluster fragrant flowers and grasses,
Lovely lilies swap.

Here are hyacinths and roses
Here are hollyhocks.
Gold chrysanthemum uncloses,
Lilacs shades the walks.

Leaves of stately poplars flutter
High against the sky,
Through the willows soft winds utter
Plaintive song and sigh.

Here are tulips, pinks and daisies;
Violet and rue
Border gorgeous garden mazes
She will wander through.

Yet, in spite of all these graces,
Blooming hour to hour,
She who through her garden paces
Is its fairest flower!

GETTING AIRMINDED is a new expression which refers to aviation. Many people are getting airminded and studying aviation, for pleasure or for vocation. A visit to the new government airport on the Trent highway a few miches north will make that "the war to end war" has not been a marked success in convincing governments that war shall be no more, for the magnificent plant of this aviation training camp and the possibilities suggested remind the casual onlooker that the saying that the-next war will be largely fought in the air, is true. Huge mechanical graders are scooping up the earth and many teams are engaged taking it away while on the water front steam shovels are levelling a great bluff which in case in hich a small boy with a spoon would demolish a plate of ice cream. Many miles of tiling is being put in the trenches being dug by an ingenious machine and the field will be as dry as a parlor floor so that no amount of rain can interfere with the flying. Contracts are being let for the construction of the various buildings required and the camp will be a busy place from now on. Quite an interesting item is the work of the Universal Grader which eats dirt as if it liked it. This wonderful machine requires twelve teams and carts going all the time without being extended, a procession of horses and carts keeping pace with the machine and carting the dirt from the great cuts as it works with marvellous precision and little apparent effort. Many acres of land are being levelled, drained and tiled ready to receive the young men of the nation who become airminded and desire to ride the clouds in peace or war in order that Canada's proud place among the nations may be preserved and that the empire may be kept intact.

"He's a cheater," remarked one golfer to another, as the man with whom the first had played a match that afternoon left the locker room. "He lost his ball in the rough and played another without losing a stroke."

"How do you know he didn't find his ball?" inquired the second golfer.

"Because I have it in my pocket," responded the first golfer, triumphantly.

Getting back on the Highway

The side roads may be picturesque but the big mileage is made on the highways.

Last Autumn thousands returned from the side road "Speculation."

Lately other side roads such as "Wait and See," "Don't Buy it Now" and "Over-Caution" have been attracting large numbers.

The national task however is to get Canada back on the highway of prosperity and good times as soon as possible: It is a time to take forward steps. Fundamentally, Canada is wealthy, healthy and virile and has every reason to regard the present with confidence and the future with high hopes.

Let us repeat: "What we do is more important than what we say. Let us buy and sell—build—go ahead—plan and work—keep the wheels turning to the utmost of our ability as individuals."

Gringo Privateer

CHAPTER XIII

"Well, angels couldn't do more. You're right, it will be worth a great deal to me if you can put this deal over, so I'll tell you what I'll do. Your father's ranch will run a cow to every section—water, grass, outlaws and hesaka—without overgraining. I'll stock the ranch for you with two thousand head of heifers that will be two years old next spring. They'll be good, smooth, grade Herefords. In addition I'll put in a hundred and fifty-pure-bred Hereford bulls and twenty head of well-broken saddle stock. I'll bill this live-stock to you at a fair market value, based on present prices, and take your promissory note for five years, at five per cent. secured by the livestock.

"You should have eighty per cent. calf crops and I agree with you that the cattle business, due to the extraordinary shortage of cattle not only in this country but all over the world, is due to come back with a bang. We shall have very high prices and they should continue for many years. Within five years you should be able to repay me and-own three thousand head without a dollar's indebtedness on them. For operating expenses I suppose your father would be willing to place a first mortgage on the ranch for you. It's worth half a million dollars—if you could sell it, which isn't an easy job nowadays."

"I expect to lease the ranch from my father, of course, as soon as the lease of the present tenant has expired, Your Majesty; but, unfortunate ly the ranch is already mortgaged! I'm afraid I'll have to ask you to loan me fifty thousand dollars for operating capital. If you'll do that the deal is made."

"By the bons of Moses, I thought you were going to ask me to give it to you. Ha! Har-har! Har! Very well, son. I'll furnish the operating capital at five per cent, but I'll not furnish it all at once. No sir. Only as you need it, and I'm to have access to your books at all reasonable times and my representative it to have the privilege of looking over your-operations with a view to seeing whether you're operating like a fool or a wise man. If I think your methods will lead to ruin you must agree to pursue my methods."

"I quite realize your right to protect the loan in every reasonable way, sir, provided you promise not to be capricious."

"When I make a promise I keep it—like letter as well as the spirit, young man."

All right, sir, we've traded."

"You've got a good six-up," the king warned him, "and if you fail to make good, sweet Christian thoughts will be wasted on you. By the way, while you were absent I had you and your book ed up. The man who leased your father's ranch couldn't make good, so the Bardin Land and Cattle Company has taken over his lease. But don't let that worry you. The day you make good on this deal we'll cancel our lease dust of my coming. How long has he been the riding boss?"

"Twenty long, hot and cold, labor-ridden years, Kenneth."

"What a disappointment for the poor devil."

"Yes, indeed. However, in industry, as in war, sometimes becomes necessary to replace a good, steady conservative old general with a forceful, aggressive, radical colonel. I'm sorry for Tom but my interests come before his. However, I'll give him a raise in wages."

"You'll do nothing of the sort, Your Majesty," Kyn hotly replied indignantly. s"I'm the general manager and the day you butt in on my right to hire, fire, raise salaries or lower them that day our excuse for my existence as general manager of El Ranchito vanishes and I'll be headed down the road, leaving you to the tender mercies of Martin Bruce and Miguel Gallego."

"Right you are," the king admitted. "I admire you for sticking up for your rights, although at the some time I'd like to put a boot to the seat of the ear. You are too infernally touchy for a Johnny come-lately. Let me put it this way: It would please me very much, Mr. Burney if you would, in your wisdom, condescend to give poor old Tom Bledsoe a raise of twenty-five dollars a month."

"I shall be most happy to oblige my kind, generous and indulgent boss, but I must remind you that until I discover whether Tom Bledsoe is worth the raise or not he'll not get it. He may be dead timber, for all you know, and if I'm going to hire a new riding boss and you can transfer Mr. Bledsoe to your dead timber department."

"Well, I could promote him to general manager of a little ranch that any fairly efficient cattleman could run," the king admitted. "But he kind to old Tom. He's sound timber; he's been faithful and true and I wouldn't hurt his feelings for anything except the vital necessity of getting this important job done. It's a task old Tom isn't quite up to. He has a strong religious streak in him. On the round-up he sits around the fire every night and plays hymns on the harmonica. He's a Quaker and it's a strain on his gentle nature to spur a horse."

"I will remember your solicitude for his welfare, sir. By the way, where do I sleep tonight?"

"I thought Art Grayson had a spare room in his house, but it seems his sister-in-law is visiting him. So I've had a cot put in the ranch office for you. By the way, just before you turn in tack this notice on the bulletin board that hangs on the wall outside of the office entrance," and the king handed his new general manager a sheet with some typewriting on it.

PLAN REVISION TRADE TREATY

Australia Faces Problem of Devising Means to Increase Surplus

Sydney, N.S.W., May 29 (CP). — In revising the Canadian-Australian trade agreement Australia faces the problem of devising means for increasing its exportable surplus.

While Australia does not expect to make up its present tremendous deficiency in exports by means of the treaty with Canada, the Commonwealth will be forced to increase its outward shipments to a point at least $200,000,000 per annum in value in excess of imports or the cost of living will be greatly increased. The government will take into consideration this fact when it considers the Canadian pact as well as its trade relations with all other countries. To what extent trade with Canada will assist in this endeavor remains to be seen.

The equivalent of one complete wool city will have to be found before a balance of Australian trade inward and outward can be struck and maintained, according to R. W. Dalton, British trade commissioner in Australia.

"Trading from abroad to Australia at present is beset with almost insuperable difficulties, and it is impossible to forecast the future with any certainty," said Mr. Dalton.

"Owing to the depletion of Australian funds in London and the necessity for conserving them to meet Government commitments there, it has become exceedingly difficult, expensive, and sometimes impossible to transfer funds either for goods which it is desired to import or even in payment for goods already imported and probably sold. Orders given previously have been cancelled to large amounts, and, in addition, buying programmes for the immediate future have been stringently curtailed either of the buyers' volition or because of the impossibility of securing facilities for payment. There probably never was a time when export business for Great Britain was more urgently needed than it is today. Unemployment is serious and world markets generally are chary of buying. But the curtailment of Australian demand has an added importance, because, next to India the Australian market has been for years the most important market for British export trade."

HAD KIDNEY TROUBLE AND FOUND RELIEF

That's Why Mrs. L. Burgoyne Recommends Dodd's Kidney Pills

She Suffered With Urinary Troubles—the After Effects of the "Flu"—Dodd's Kidney Pills Relieved Her

Hackett's Cove, N.S., May 26 (Special).—"I have been using Dodd's Kidney Pills for a long time," writes Mrs. L. Burgoyne, a well known resident of this place. "I find them a splendid remedy for kidney trouble. I had been suffering with Urinary Trouble, the after effect of the 'Flu'. That has all disappeared now and I can thank Dodd's Kidney Pills for it. I would highly recommend them to anyone suffering with a similar trouble."

The reason Dodd's Kidney Pills have come to occupy such a prominent place in the family medicine chest is that so many of the ordinary every day ills come from sick kidneys. Rheumatism, Backache, Urinary Troubles, etc., can all be traced directly or indirectly to sick kidneys.

Dodd's Kidney Pills have built up their reputation as a Kidney remedy by the relief they give. Insist upon having Dodd's, the kidney pill your neighbours use.

Stirling

Stirling, May 26 (By Mail)—There were six Hon. Liberal-Conservative funerals at Stirling cemetery on Saturday, May 24th. Early in the day the body of Mr. Lyman Moon, formerly of Stirling, was laid to rest under the auspices of the Masonic and I.O.O.F. orders. The deceased was a brother-in-law of Mr. George B. and Miss Annie Crean, at the west end of the village; his first wife was Miss Dolly Green.

The funeral of the late Miss Mary McCrea was held at 1.30 p.m. at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. Demorest, conducted by her pastor, Rev. A. N. Reid. The service was very impressive. Mr. Reid spoke of the patience, cheerfulness and christian fortitude of the deceased who had lain for six years almost completely paralyzed, and the faithful sister who had nursed her all these years. The pall bearers were Messrs Burnlee and Bruce Demorest, Archie McGee and three other nephews, the names of whom we were not able to ascertain.

Among the floral tributes was a sheath from St. Andrew's Church, of which deceased was a devoted member.

The third funeral was that of Mrs. (Rev.) Stevens, of Evanston, Wyo., at 3.30 p.m. There were three ministers present, Revs. R. W. Rowland, F. G. Jobbin and W. H. Clarke of Shannonville, the latter a life-long friend of the deceased's family. The Revs. Clarke and Rowland spoke of the sterling qualities of heart and mind, the consecrated life of the deceased, while Rev. Jobbin read comforting passages of Scripture. Rev. Rowland led in prayer. Miss Bessie Conley sang "There is no night there" very effectively. Many were the floral tributes although it had been the wish of the family that there be no flowers other than the family wreath. Several came from California and Wyoming. The pall bearers were Messrs. W. L. Fox, G. Lucy, H. Hulin, C. F. Linn, G. W. Jones and W. Hagerman. The sympathy of the vicinity is extended to the bereaved of these deceased ones.

We congratulate Mrs Wescott on winning a lucky number book prize being sold for the Shriners' Convention to be held in Toronto next month. The prize was a lovely pair of blankets, rose and mauve.

Mr. A. G. Connor has sold his bakery to Mr. Earl Fox and disposed of his grocery business to Mr. J. H. Gehan who will carry the Red and White system.

Mr. H. C. Martin and Mr. Bastedo have opened up office temporarily in the basement of the Public Library.

Mr. Chas. Ginery has not yet located where he can resume his shoe repairing.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Ackers are domiciled in Bob Parker's house.

We understand that Mr. Fred McKee has sold his block, or rather site, where the fire occurred in December to an oil company.

The May meeting of St. Andrew's W.M.S. was held at the home of Mrs. W. L. Anderson. Owing to the illness of the president, Mrs. Fargy, Mrs. Joe Reid, 1st vice-president, presided. After the opening hymn, Mrs. H. Rollins read the prayer from the Glad Tidings and Mrs. Margie Ward read the Scripture lesson, Cena Spry gave a review of Glad Tidings. The roll call was answered by the name of a missionary. The topic "Sketches of Missionaries and Their Work" was taken by Mesdames M. W. Sills and C. Bailey. Hymn 500 closed the meeting.

Mrs. A. T. Donald and Mrs. John Odell of Burnbree called upon Miss Rume on Friday afternoon.

Miss Bernadette McGee, nurse-in-training in St. Michael's Hospital, Toronto, is home on vacation.

Mr. Don Magee, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Magee, has been transferred to the staff of the Bank of Montreal, Belleville, from Kingston.

Miss Agnes Stout, of Peterboro, spent the week-end with her father, Mr. James Stout.

Mr. Arthur Duncan of Toronto spent the holiday with Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Hulin and sang very effectively "The Old Rugged Cross", Mr. R. H. Williams joining in the chorus, at St. Andrew's Church on Sunday evening.

Miss Freda Matthews of the Presbyterian Offices in Toronto is home for the holiday.

Miss Ruth Gibson is spending the holiday with her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Mathews.

Mrs. W. L. Anderson and son Lorne motored to Toronto on Sunday with Mr. C. Munroe.

Miss Marion Walker of Wellman's Corners is spending a few days with Miss Hume.

Mr. and Mrs. Alex Stewart, Mr. Walker Stewart, Miss Mabel Stewart, all of Guelph, and Miss Alice Milne of Monk, called upon Miss Hume on Sunday evening.

Misses Ruth and Florence Ingleton have returned from Toronto University where both have made good, the former winning the Fowlie scholarship.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Macfish spent the holiday at their parental homes in Cobourg.

Miss Chrissie Simpson who is a teacher at Bancroft, spent Saturday with her sister, Miss Catherine Simpson and then motored with Mr. and Mrs. Harper Rollins to Woodville to visit the former's parents, Rev. and Mrs. Robt. Simpson.

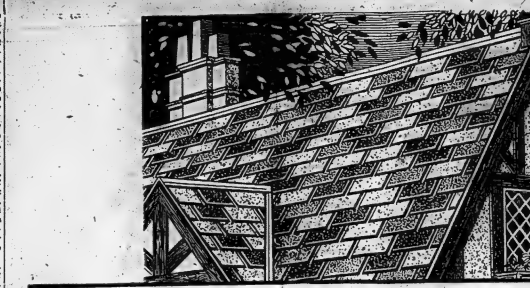
Mrs. W. J. Morton motored to Herkimer, N.Y., in company with her nephew and nieces from Frankford, Mr. and Mrs. A. Southworth, Mrs. Jas. Ford, Miss Thelma Lowery and a cousin, Miss Lowery, of Ann Arbor, Mich., to visit the former's daughter Mrs. Marion Harter (Emma).

Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Clancy, Misses Betty and Marjery Clancy and a girl friend spent the holiday with the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. U. Clancy, at Hoard's.

Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Hume, Donald Phyllis and Giles of Cobourg, spent the week-end with the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alex Hume of Burnbree and Mrs. Hume accompanied them back to Cobourg.

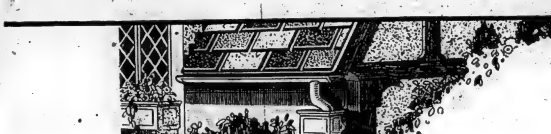
Mr. W. S. Martin expects to rebuild his block which was burned a week ago and which was occupied by Messrs. H. C. Martin and C. Bastedo.

Mr. W. S. Martin is attending the general conference held in Cobourg as a delegate from Belleville Presbytery.



The Women's Institute had a showing for Mr. and Mrs. H. Ackers and two children on Saturday afternoon when many articles of a miscellaneous nature were given the fire sufferers for which the Ackers were very grateful having lost everything. We understand the Anglican Church also donated a shower of useful articles.

Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Matthews of Cameron spent the holiday with their parents in town.



Mr. Merle Todd of Toronto was home for the holiday.

Miss Sarah Wootton is spending a couple of weeks with her brother, Mr. Ernest Wootton, of Aurora.

BRANTFORD BIG BUTTS

Made in numerous mellowed tints, these beautiful slates give a shadow line which adds greatly to a home's distinction and charm. Being lapped, extra thickness and weight are distributed in the part exposed to sun, wind and rain, with double thickness over all the roof and triple thickness over part of the roof. The size is 16 inches by 19 inches, laid 5 inches to the weather.

BRANTFORD FOUR-IN-ONE SLATES

Four slates in one strip, size 24 by 18 inches. Laid 4 inches to the weather, one square of 100 slabs covers 100 square feet of roof. Brantford Four-in-One Slates give a heavy and massive appearance, save time and money in laying and give lasting satisfaction.

BRANTFORD ARRO-LOCKS

—are locked on. For buildings exposed to wind, weather and fire they are ideal, costing less to buy, less to lay and nothing for repairs or stain. In red and green fadeless colors—for farm homes, barns, garages and all other buildings where rugged strength and good appearance are desired. One square of 100 slates covers 100 square feet of roof.

BRANTFORD SUPER-TITES

—are the only slates that give double thickness over the entire roof and triple thickness over 42 per cent. of the roof. The special Lock Butts prevent curling, bulging and warping. When laid Super-Tites give a beautiful "key-stone" effect. One square of 128 slates covers 100 square feet of roof. In three fadeless colors.

TORONTO TAKES CARE OF THE SURPLUS POPULATION

Toronto has many sins to answer for. In addition to being the "City" centre of Canada it has kept Belleville's population stationary for the past fifty years. When the young men of Belleville decide to branch out there are two places to go Toronto and Rochester. Those of the U. E. Loyalist blood decide on Toronto and those who are foolish and think it is easy to take the dollars from the so-called liberal American choose the city across the lake. Both ways Belleville loses and that is why no matter where you are if anyone asks you what is the population of Belleville you'll say 12,000 just as truthfully as you answered in school days. There is nothing to be done about it. Toronto will continue to be the home of the surplus population of Belleville as long as it pufs on its big exhibition. Belleville is too quiet. If the city council would get out of the ago old community spirit and furnish band concerts every night in the summer that might keep a lot of the boys home. Of course there are other reasons for Belleville being just able to be called a city. The Ontario Intelligencer has furnished more printers for Toronto than any other place on earth. When a printer in the old days of those two wonderful papers could set up 1,000 ems an hour he asked for a raise in pay. Because he was getting the magnificent sum of $15.00 a week. That was the dead line. One proprietor would tell the efficient printer who had designs on his bank roll that the paper was losing money every day. Printers are intelligent as they print all the news first and have to spell it correctly. They knew that one of the proprietors, kept up a private yacht and the other made a hobby of raising Great Dane dogs just as Harold Lloyd does today at his mansion in Beverly Hills. There was money in the newspaper business but not for the printers. There was no room for argument. The printers went to Toronto.

Toronto took the best that Belleville produced in all trades with the exception of one printer. He is now conducting a job printing establishment in his native city. Those in the know give him their sympathy for his road has been anything but smooth. He is a graduate of the old Ontario composing room and was a top notcher. He was also the pitcher of the famous Printers' base ball team and only lost to the terrible nine at Harris. He was on his way to the Big League when those big rough-necked moulders wrecked him and took all the love of baseball from the Printers' team.

Some who have no idea of the ways of big business, would imagine that the old newspapers who also conducted job offices as an extra means of making money would welcome the new third member in the old set. They did but such a welcome. They told him they would be glad to see him leave to death. When a hand bill appeared with his name on the bottom there was a council of war in the news paper offices. There was no escape for the man who gave out the job was either a GUY or a TORY. He was booked to kick for he had two men who had no small command of the English language and were not afraid to talk. Despite all his opposition however, he continued in business for his overlord was light and his early training in The Ontario office was a great help to him in his first lean years.

Across the yard from the composing room of The Ontario of the old days was the Woodbine saloon. The old oaken bucket served as a water pail by day but when the presses began to hum at four in the afternoon, it was some thing else again. While the proprietor was raking in the pennies of the noisy newsboys the pail was changed into a beer bucket. Printers have a great reputation as drinkers. There is some truth in it and that is the reason that only one of the 55 graduated into a job office of his own. He paid attention to the David Harum proprietor of the old Ontario, who said, "take care of the pennies and the dollars will take care of themselves."

Toronto as far as memory runs has been called "the good". It was earned is the olden days when the taverns had bars. You could not get a drink in the city on Sunday. It was sent to your room. Los Angeles has just found out another reason for its reputation. A negro hod carrier in Toronto got tired carrying bricks so he headed for California, the land of sunshine and balcony. Arriving at the city of the angels he went to a costuming company and rented an outfit for a Hindu seer. He called himself Santappa Rao and named his California bungalow the "love temple of Swami". He was of a yellow hue which aided his impersonation of a Hindu. Pretty soon he had them coming and his crystal gazing was so good he had seen his self in 54 of which was given him by Mrs. Adele Allerin'ad, a comely widow, aged thirty. He said he had the following of all the movie stars such as Charlie Chaplin and Gloria Swanson. At his first hearing in court Gloria and Charlie swore they had never heard of him or seen him. He was then sent up for trial at the Superior Court and afterwards he will be sent back to Toronto. That will serve him and Toronto right. Yours for smaller and better cities.

W. S. MacDiarmid.

Why

We Sell Only GOODYEARS

IT is true that all tires are not alike. And it's obvious that all tires are not the same value. That's why we sell Goodyears only.

We've watched Goodyear Tires in use for a good many years. We're satisfied that they give the longest mileage. We're sold on Supertwist and the All-Weather Tread. And Goodyear gives us a complete line of tires to meet all needs.

It's true we don't make quite as much money per tire. But we sell a lot more tires.

We have your size and type.

MISS MACKENZIE IS FIRST LADY

Miss M. Mackenzie Arrives in Canada From Scotland

A "nut-brown maid" with glowing dark eyes was the chief centre of attraction to the group awaiting the arrival of the Empress of Australia in Quebec last Saturday.

She was Margaret Bruce Mackenzie who has just arrived from Edinburgh with her uncle, the Hon. Randolph Bruce, Lt.-Governor of British Columbia, to take up her duties as hostess at Government House with her uncle. Miss Mackenzie was a guest at Government House this week and attended the races yesterday. They left last night for British Columbia.

Miss Mackenzie, who looks barely out of her teens, confessed to being the eldest of four sisters among whom their uncle has so successfully chosen his chatelaines.

She was full of quiet enthusiasm for Quebec City. "The view from Battlefields' Park, and the wee street, Rouelle-Cap were my favorite places," she said. "I never expected to find anything so continental—as we say in Europe—in Canada."

During the journey from Quebec to Montreal she exclaimed with delight at the small pullies, reminding her of Highland "dens"—those miniature glens.

"I hear we are going to the Highland gathering at Banff, so I won't miss Scotland so much—it will be like home," she smiled.

Canada's latest immigrant—as she styles herself, arrives charged with that spirit of optimism which has helped to make the west.

"I will be happy whatever turns up," she said. "I have not made up my mind what the life will really be —whatever it is, I shall enjoy it."

Miss Mackenzie is a true Celtic type. Even her very modern brown travelling suit could not alter the strong racial traits and her close-fitting brown hat, with its small leather green and red flowers, took on the appearance of a woodland chaplet.

She loves to be out-of-doors as much as possible, and when indoors, her hobby is reading and Galsworthy is her favorite author, and pins trees her favorite species of flowers.

She confessed that she did not care for housekeeping much, "though," she added, with a touch of youthful pride, "I am pretty useful all the same and don't care what I am asked to do."

Quick Pile Relief

Dr. Leonhardt's Hem-Roid is guaranteed to banish any form of Piles misery, or money back. It gives quick action, even in old, stubborn cases. Hem-Roid is a harmless tablet that removes blood congestion in the lower rectum—the cause of piles. It brings joyful relief quickly and safely or costs nothing. At McKeown and druggists everywhere sell it with this guarantee.

AMELIASBURG

Ameliasburg, May 29 (By Mail)—Harry Rosevear, Toronto, Miss Frances Irwin, Campbellford, Florence Kelly, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. McDonald, Mr. and Mrs. Pierce and Mrs. George Kelly, Belleville were callers at Mrs. George Gray's last Wednesday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. George Smith and family spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Irwin Campbellford.

Mr. Earle Storms, Victoria, spent Tuesday with Mr. A. Templeton.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Badgley Sr., and Mr. and Mrs. Peter Badgley Jr., visited at Mr. A. Templeton.

Victoria, were Sunday evening callers at Mr. A. Templeton.

Mr. Allen Dempsey has returned home from Guelph.

An Old Cure is Proved Everywhere.—Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil was put upon the market without any flourish over fifty years ago. It was put up to meet the wants of a small section, but as soon as its merits became known it had a whole continent for a field, and it is now known and prized throughout this continent. There is nothing equal to it.

The introduction of the eight-hour day in France has resulted, according to official report, in a higher output in many cases than was attained

BE SUBTLE WITH COLOR to be Original

Very generally when we choose a color scheme we can think of only the primary colors and the other color combination of them. If you like people however, to gasp a little when they step into your house you must greet them with something besides sun and blue.

Atick is to be very subtle in your backgrounds with touches as daring a as pain patch and red heels. Though more beautiful, of course.

A living room I know of in which I always feel I am an adventure to go to tea is papered in a soft violet-gray. The curtains are cretonne with a design of mauve, blue and olive green on a delicate peach background. The lamp shades are in pale peach and violet. And the thick velvet rug is of a deeper violet-gray than the wallpaper. The furniture is walnut combined with maple. Tea is poured in this room from a pewter pot into olive green cups. And happily for my own peace of mind, there is no tea tray. Instead with jasmine flowers.

JAPAN PLANS LARGE AEROPLANE FLEETS

Tokyo, May 27 (AP)—In order to offset armaments of Japan's maritime fighting units resulting from the agreement reached at London, the naval ministry here is planning to extend the nation's air services on a vast scale.

Under the new project, which the sponsors believe will counterbalance Japan's losses of from 35.0.0 to 39,000 tons in submarines, the nation's air force would be increased from by twelve and a half corps by the end of 1933, which would give Japan 1,000 airplanes, a figure regarded as necessary to maintain equal strength with the United States.

To meet the cost of this programme the naval ministry's budget will contain appropriations totaling $30,000,000 for this one project. The naval authorities are said to have been promised preferred rights to funds to be saved as a result of the naval agreement economies.

The present Japanese naval force is too weak to meet an emergency, naval men claim, and an appropriation of $45,000,000 was sought this year for making various improvements. Owing to financial stringency this figure was later reduced to $15,000,000.

FIND NEW USES FOR AUSTRALIAN WOOL

Sydney, N.S.W., May 28 (CP).—New uses for wool must be found if the great Australian industry is to survive in the future, according to H. F. Trout, president of the Graziers' Association of New South Wales.

New channels for development lie in the creation of finer, lighter and brighter fabrics, Mr. Trout believes. These could compete successfully with substitutes, which in recent years have found favor with the ever-increasing scarcity of wool. Wool has rested too long on its laurels, according to Mr. Trout, and it is now being out-distanced by its newer and more progressive rivals.

One of the causes for the slackness in the industry is its high price, according to some growers. If prices were reduced there would be a vast increase in the number of consumers and volume of sales would be so great as to reduce the cost of production.

SCOTT'S W. M. S.

On Wednesday afternoon, Scott's W. M. S. and Ladies Aid held their regular Monthly meeting at the home of Mrs. Manley Lidster with 25 present. Proceeds from dinner were $9.25.

The meeting opened with hymn 447 followed with prayer by Mrs. Lott. Scripture lesson 23, Roll Call, "The different officers were then called on to give reports. A reading "The Fisherman" was given by Mrs. Lidster.

Mrs. M. Sine gave a talk on Africa which was enjoyed by all. The meeting closed with a selection on the phonograph "I walk with the King."

In its original form the penny was not a coin, but a token or pledge.

COMPLAINS DOG ATTACKED HIM

Dundas Street East Resident Informs Police of Dog's Action

The police have received a number of complaints of dogs biting residents as they passed by the property where the dog is owned. Yesterday Alfred Simmons, residing on Dundas street east, had occasion to pass a residence on Dundas street east and it is alleged by him that the dog ran out of a yard biting him on the calf of the leg and leaving a deep mark. The man came to the police station to make the complaint and show the evidence of the bite. The Chief of Police notified the owner today he would either have to destroy the animal or chain it up.

Complaints have also been received of dogs owning rabbits allowing them freedom and they wandering onto other people's property destroying the gardens by eating the greens and other vegetables. The police are investigating the complaints. There is a by-law prohibiting the running at large of rabbits and the by-law will be enforced.

DOGS KILL 100 GIANT RABBITS

William Hay, Howard Street, Loses Three Hundred Dollars Through Dog Raid

Gray dogs making their way into the rabbit runs owned by William Hay, Howard Street, on Wednesday night ran amuck and destroyed over one hundred Flemish Giant rabbits. Mr. Hay has some of the best stock of this breed in Eastern Ontario and his loss is estimated at three hundred dollars. A number of his breeding pairs for which he paid considerable sums were destroyed and not a score of the dogs doing the damage has been found. The rabbits were looking up for the night on Wednesday night and when Mr. Hay opened the pens yesterday he was confronted with dead rabbits lying everywhere and the pens a complete shambles. Some of the rabbits jumped to high places and saved themselves from the depredations of the dogs. Mr. Hay has been breeding these Flemish Giants for some years and has won prizes with his stock at the C.N.E. and Royal Winter Fair at Toronto. He sells many of his stock to others who are starting in the game and also sells off his surplus to butchers and produce men from which he derives considerable revenue. Mr. Hay is not discouraged however and will immediately start to rebuild his stock.

MAKES ATTEMPT AT FALLS IN BARREL

Niagara Falls, Ont., May 30 (CP)—William "Red" Hill, veteran river man of Niagara district, who has recovered numerous bodies from the turbulent river, will undertake a voyage through the rapids below the falls today in a specially constructed steel barrel. Hill expects to float through the hazardous whirlpool rapids finishing his perilous journey down the river at Queenston.

4 PUBLIC SCHOOLS KEEP MONDAY HOLIDAY

Mr. Arthur Jones, chairman of the Board of Education, announced today that carrying out the request of Col. Hill, inspecting officer of the cadets, a holiday for the four public schools on Monday, June 2nd had been declared. This Mr. Jones stated as necessary because the rain had interfered with the arrangements on inspection afternoon. This means that the four public schools will be closed on Monday, June 2nd and Tuesday, June 3rd, King's Birthday.

Collegiate and Vocational School will have classes as usual on Monday as students of that institution had a holiday on inspection day. The Collegiate will of course observe June 3rd as a holiday.

"RED" HILL CUT LOOSE IN RIVER ENTERS RAPIDS

Veteran River Man in Huge Barrel Seeks New Honors

ENGLISH ACTRESS SUGGESTS FELONS FOR VIVISECTION

WATCHING RECORD OF CHANGES OF BLOOD PRESSURE OF THE BRAIN.

CONSTANCE COLLIER MANIPULATION OF DOGS NERVES.

The startling suggestion that imprisoned criminals and not animals be used for vivisection purposes, has just been made by Constable Collier, prominent English actress and dog lover. Miss Collier's views on the subject were aired at the International conference for the investigation of Vivisection, held at New York. Plans for starting a world movement to outlaw animal vivisection were discussed at the conference. The above pictures show two members of the medical profession experimenting on a dog, while inset is a picture of Miss Collier.

PIERS AND ABUTMENTS POURED FORMS PLACED IN POSITION

New Lower Bridge Rapidly Taking Shape Under Workmen

A scene of much activity at the present time is centred at the lower bridge, where the Holdcroft Construction Company, of Kingston, is erecting a bridge of up-to-date lines and architecture. Many of the difficulties that confronted this company in de-watering the coffer-dams to sink the piers have been overcome and the work now is proceeding rapidly. The largest gang of workmen since the bridge was started is now on the job and it is expected these will be augmented with more in the near future.

Today as The Ontario Intelligencer reporter passed over the bridge on a tour of inspection, two gangs pouring cement were busily engaged. The pier at the west end of the bridge will be run today and it contains 230 cubic yards of cement. The cribs were of flat class construction and the bracing with structural iron was of the best workmanship. The cement used was all weighed to the exact pound, which will more than conform to the plans and specifications. The forms for the centre pieces of the bridge are now being constructed and will be soon poured with cement. Cement is being poured at the centre pier, this being the largest cement job of the whole bridge. Some 600 yards of cement will be run into this pier all reinforced with structural steel. The pier at the east end is progressing rapidly and the company are even with their time allowance, which expires on August 1st.

The Safe Company which purchased the iron and steel work of the old bridge has demolished over half of it and are keeping out of the way of the contractor. Mr. Safe will have his work done in plenty of time. All the crib work has been placed under the bridge and when the old bridge is torn down the forms for the arches will be started. The work is very interesting and many of the citizens go to the bridge each day to watch the progress that is being made in the structure. Not the slightest accident has been reported since the bridge was started.

Poisoner Busy on West Hill

Some malignant murderer on the West Hill has apparently been putting out poison for cats or dogs with the result that some much loved household pets have died in horrible agony. Putting out poison is a crime which carries severe punishment on detection, and the feeling on the West Hill is running so high now that vigorous prosecution will follow any arrests made. The latest victim of the despicable criminal is "Fanny," fox terrier, beloved pet of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Phillips, Highland Avenue. Fanny found the poison the first of the week and died in convulsions to the great sorrow of Mr. and Mrs. Phillips. Fanny never did anybody any harm and had many friends outside of the immediate family circle, riding about town as did every day in Mr. Phillips motor car. Folks on the West Hill with household pets had better keep a sharp lookout, and in the meantime every effort is being made to discover the prepetrator of the poisoning outrages.

Superintendent of Police Injured at Arrest of Hindus

NO FATALITIES

Volunteers Arrive to Prevent Further Raids on Salt Works

Bombay, India., May 30 (CP)— Alarming reports were received here today of renewed rioting yesterday between Moslems and Hindus at Dharasana, Calcutta. A large number of Hindus were arrested and police superintendent was injured. From neighboring villages came word of rioting and clashes with the police though no fatalities were reported. Volunteers attempted another raid on the salt depots at Dharasana but the police beat them off with their lathis injuring several raiders seriously. Large numbers of volunteers continued to arrive there in anticipation of further raids tomorrow.

TELEPHONES OUT THRU ACCIDENT

Moving of Equipment Causes Accident in Prince Edward

A number of telephones on the Sprague line at Mountain View are out of commission due to damage done to their poles on Wednesday last. Kearns and Briggs, contractors, who have road construction contracts in Prince Edward County were moving two sand bins from Bloomfield to a new job at Redmondville. Instead of dismantling these bins, it is said that the contractors attempted to move them in whole. These bins are quite high and in taking them out on the road and along the road some of poles were torn down and the wires also pulled down. Traffic Officer Frink investigated and the damages will be amicably settled between the parties interested. The work of repairing the damage is proceeding rapidly and the telephone users will soon have a first class service.

COMMUNISTS READY TO ATTACK CITY

Amoy, China, May 30 (CP).—Communists surrounding Chang Chow 90 miles west of here today were believed preparing to attack the city. The Reds cut all communications and destroyed trenches across the highways isolating the city from which thousands of terrorized persons were fleeing to the coast. The Communists were reported to be terrorizing the populace also at Kanchow.

No. 3, Belleville; Martha Phyllis Ireland, Trenton; Edith Marion McFaar, Wellington; Gladys Mae Gault, Deseronto; Hope Ilene Sampson, Napanee; Elma Jean Whyte, Napanee.

BRISK BUYING OF CARS

If everybody within a hundred miles of Belleville are not supplied with motor cars now it will not be the fault of Belleville Motors, Pinnacle Street, where a big sale of used cars has been on all week and will end tomorrow. R. C. Willis, of Toronto, specializes in sales that sell. He has been in charge and many cars have been sold. A feature of the sale was the remarkable high quality of the motor cars offered, just used enough to call them "used", but not used enough to warrant calling them "abused." Mr. Willis states that the sale will wind up with a bang on Saturday, when such wonderful bargains will be given that all cars left will just naturally sell themselves. Mr. Willis is very much pleased with the response to his advertisements of the sale which have been appearing in this newspaper, demonstrating the wide field it covers and the interest taken in its contents.

THROWN FROM WAGON

Mr. Phillip Vance, a farmer on the 6th Concession of Thurlow was the victim of a painful accident during the first part of this week, when the team of horses he was driving while at work became frightened and threw him off the wagon. He suffered a dislocated shoulder and Dr. McCreary of this city, was called in attendance. He is progressing favourably under the circumstances.

CHANGING FRONTS ON FRONT ST.

Improvement to Belleville's business section go steadily forward. During the past year some handsome store fronts have been put in while store interiors have been remodelled, extended and modernized. The new store and bakery of National Bakers has just been finished, and the store vacated by this firm is being fitted up for the A. & P. chain store, which will be established here as soon as the premises are ready. Extensive alterations and modern fronts have been made to the building at 315 Front street which will be occupied on June 1st by the Heintzman Piano Company and J. Diamond. Alterations will also be made to the store being vacated by the Heintzman Company, No. 245 Front street, which will be fitted up as a restaurant. On Bridge street Dan Doyle expects to begin shortly on improvements to the block occupied by Chas. Clapp, confectioner and baker, recently purchased by Mr. Doyle. The stone building on Front street adjacent to the Capitol theatre, to the north has been made over into store premises and is now occupied by a restaurant and barber shop. Several other interesting changes in the local business world are listed for announcement in the near future.

MILITARY BALL WAS A SUCCESS

Picton Armouries Was Scene of Season's Social Feature

(Special to Ontario Intelligencer)

Picton, May 30.—The Military Ball given by the officers of C. Company, Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment in Picton armouries Friday night was one of the outstanding social events of the season in this district. Several hundred military personages, their wives and friends, from Belleville, Kingston, Tweed, Stirling, Trenton, etc., were present. Music was furnished by Harold Rich and his Versatile Canadians, of Toronto. The ladies' gowns were never lovelier. Many of the gentlemen officers were their blue uniforms. The scene was a colorful one.

The armouries was beautifully decorated with hundreds of flags. On the walls hung pictures of important personages and war scenes. Overlooking the dancing square was a captured German gun.

The platform on which the orchestra was seated, was arranged with flags, flowers and palms and shaded lights. A background was formed of crepe tissue drawn in an arc and combining all the colors of the rainbow.

At midnight lunch was served by the Girl Guides.

The affair was a success in every way.

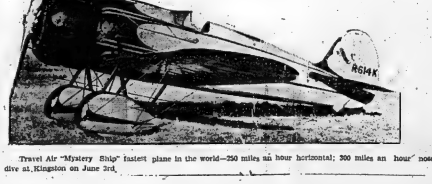
HOLSTEIN MEN SPONSOR PICNIC

Sandbanks to be Scene of District Gathering on June 19th



At a meeting held in the court house at Kingston attended by representatives from the Counties of Hastings, Prince Edward, Northumberland, Lennox and Addington, it was decided to hold a big field day at the Band Banks Prince Edward County, on Thursday, June 19th, the event to be sponsored by the breeders of Holstein cattle throughout this district who are uniting their forces in one big effort to make the picnic one of the biggest projects of its kind that has ever been "pulled off" by the live stock breeders locally. Filling into a series of several other field days to be held in Eastern Ontario during the same week the one scheduled for Belleville promises to attract a huge attendance from all four of the counties taking part. Of special interest will be addresses by prominent live stock men representing the government and the Holstein Friesian Association of Canada, a judging demonstration conducted by an expert from the O.A.C., Guelph, sports and other attractions.

Commencing at ten o'clock in the morning a tour will be made of several farms in the Bloomfield-Picton area with a view to enabling the visiting guests to inspect the many fine herds of Holstein cattle maintained in the district. The party will then go to the Band Banks for lunch and immediately following this important part of the program, the speech-making and other events will get under way.

A feature likely to add considerably to the interest attached to the field day will be the presence of junior farmers from all the counties and the members of the recently formed Holstein Heifer clubs in Hastings and Northumberland. These young men will play an active part in the day's proceedings.

The field day will be open not only to Holstein breeders, their wives and friends, but it is fully expected that many others, both urban and rural will join in assisting to help carry it through to success.

Among those attending the meeting on Tuesday were Messrs. Walter Smith, agricultural representative, Brighton; A. D. Runions, Agricultural representative, Napanee; Joseph Wilson, agricultural representative, Stirling; F. J. Webster, agricultural representative, Picton; Fred Hubbs, Bloomfield; Fred Mallory, Frankford; Blyth Wilson, Campbellford, and R. R. Faith, Brant Co., Director of Extension for the Holstein-Friesian Association of Canada.

DENIES POST DESERTED

Port Hope, May 30.—David Swan, crossing watchman of the C.N.R., who was on duty at the time when the people were killed in the level crossing accident early Monday morning near Cobourg denied that he had not protected the crossing at the time of the accident.

"I was on the crossing and was waving both a red and white lantern at the time and did everything I possibly could.

"In spite of this the car continued on to the crossing and was carried away by the train. My evidence will be corroborated at the inquest," Swan stated.

GENERAL AMNESTY

Jerusalem, May 30 (CP), — Hebrew Daily "Haaretz" said yesterday that all persons condemned to death in Palestine including a number of Arabs as a result of last August's rioting and one Jew sentenced to be hanged would be amnestied on the birthday of King George, June 3rd.

ANNOUNCE DATES FOR THE ANNUAL SCHOOL FAIRS

Stirling Village Will Be Scene of Champion Exhibition

Special By Staff Reporter)

Stirling, May 30.—Dates for the annual School Fairs of the various rural schools of Hastings County have been announced, and as in the past, both pupils and students are looking forward to these dates. Ten School Fairs will be held this year, the dates being as follows:

Cox Hill District, Coe Hill, Sept. 10.
Madoc Township, Remington, Sept. 11.
Thurlow Township, Cannilton, Sept. 12.
Hungerford Township, Tweed, Sept. 15.
Huntingdon Township, Ivanhoe, Sep. 16.
Rawdon Township, Springbrook, Sep. 17.
Marmora Township, Marmora, Sept 18.
Sidney Township, Wallbridge, Sept. 19.
Tyendinaga Township, Melrose, Sep. 22.
Rancroft District, Rancroft, Sept. 26
Championship Fair, Stirling, Sept. 24.

The committee in charge of the Fairs is made up of Miss Helen Chute Bonar, Mrs. Miss Hazel Williams, Marmora; Miss Emma Totten, Bonarlaw; Miss Marie McVicker, Lonsdale; Miss Hazel Horton, Corbyville; Miss Irene Orrin, R.R. No. 2, Belleville.

Stirling will be the scene of the Champion School Fair on September the 24th. Six prizes will be given for each class, the first five being valued at from fifty cents to ten cents, while the sixth prize is a ribbon. Several special prizes have been offered for competition and keen contests are anticipated. A certificate of honour will be awarded by the Ontario Department of Agriculture to the pupil in each school winning the highest number of points. One copy will be given to the pupil and one to the school he or she represents.

Parents are urged to allow the child ren to do all the work in preparing their exhibits without assistance. Encourage them in every way but remember that the work you do for them helps to defeat the object of the School Fair, which is to teach the boys and girls to do things themselves. It is the children's fair. Help them to make it a success.

Each teacher may receive a statement of the prizes won by the school from the secretary of the School Fairs before leaving the Fair. Each school section pays the prize money in the form of a cheque from the secretary to the teacher for the amount of money won by the pupils. Grants from the township and county will be divided according to the prize money won by the school and sent to the secretary of the school section.

WORK PROCEEDS IN FULL BLAST

Special By Staff Reporter

Trenton, May 30.—Many interested spectators stop each day to watch the heavy machinery at the new Overhead Bridge at work, especially the pile-driver, which pounds thirty foot poles down into the earth for a firm foundation for the piers and abutments. Trucks and teams are unloading gravel and crushed stone from freight cars and building a new road over a marsh to join the pavement at the west end of the old bridge, and the ground is a scene of intense activity.

VILLAGE LOSES POPULAR LADY

Lillian May Smith, of Frankford, Sucumbs to Illness

Special By Staff Reporter

Frankford, May 30.—The death occurred yesterday of Lillian May Smith, beloved wife of Mr. Arthur Smith, of this village, after a short illness. Deceased, who was in her 45th year, was a prominent worker in the United Church here, and will be sadly missed. She is survived by her husband, two daughters, Mrs. G. Frank Grant, and Miss Grace, both of Frankford, as well as a son, Harold, also of Frankford. Two grandchildren, Betty and Francis Grant, also survive.

Mrs. Smith's parents, who are still living are Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Phillips of Belleville, while Mrs. George Archer, also of Belleville, is a sister. There are eight brothers living, George and Arthur Phillips being residents of Campbellford, while Clarence, Cecil, Ross, Ernest and Gerald live in Kingston, and the other brother, Norris, lives in the United States. The funeral was held this afternoon from the home here, Rev. A. S. Doggett conducting the services. Interment was made in Frankford Cemetery.

TRAFFIC OFFICER GIVEN NEW BEAT

Special By Staff Reporter

Trenton, May 30.—Highway Traffic Officer N. Gardiner, who, up until a few weeks ago, was stationed on the run between Trenton and Deseronto, planed through this town yesterday on his way to his new run between Toronto and Hamilton. He stopped in to visit some of his former associates both here and in Belleville. Since leaving this district, he has been working in the vicinity of Carleton Place.

OBITUARY

LATE FRANCIS J. MEAGHER

Francis Joseph Meagher, who died at Edmonton, suddenly on May 21st, was forty six years of age. His passing was very sudden as he collapsed on the street. He had been conductor of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway for about twenty years. He left Ontario about twenty years ago for the west.

He is survived by his widow, formerly Bessie O'Sullivan of Lonsdale, two children, Margaret and William at home, one sister, Mrs. Loretta Scanlon of Buffalo, N.Y., and one brother, John S. Meagher, reeve of the township of Tyendinaga, who lives in the homestead which his grandfather, James Meagher first settled eighty-seven years ago.

Francis J. Meagher was a son of the late John C. Meagher of Marysville, and was born at that place. Before going west, he graduated from the Belleville Business College.

He was a member of the Roman Catholic Church and of the Knights of Columbus.

Burial took place at Edmonton under the auspices of the railway brotherhood.

IMPROVE CHEESE QUALITY

Brockville, May 30.—With the idea of improving the quality of cheese manufactured in Leeds County, which last year reached a low level in comparison with other counties and of consequently receiving an enhanced price for it, dairymen in the Northern section of the county contemplate holding a number of meetings at which representatives of the different factories will be addressed by departmental officials and a general effort made to improve quality.

HON. E. B. BENNETT'S PLANS

Oiler Bay, N.B., May 30.—Hon. R. B. Bennett, Conservative leader, will open his election campaign in the east on July 7, speaking at Oiler Bay and Sydney on that date, it was stated here.

Brownie Picnic to Close Season

Mrs. (Dr.) Branscombe's Brownies will close their year's activities tomorrow with a picnic to Sidney Cottage, the home of Mrs. (Colonel) W. N. Ponton, Divisional Commissioner.

Mrs. Branscombe, captain of the Belleville Company of Girl Guides, Miss Hilda Collier, First Aid division, Miss McKay, of the local council and Mrs. Leo Riggs, Deputy Commissioner as well as Mrs. W. N. Ponton, Divisional Commissioner, paid a visit to the newly-formed troop of Girl Guides in Stirling on Tuesday and reported that the work done by that organization was progressing favourably.

The many organizations who assisted the Womens' Canadian Club of Belleville, during the past year were thanked by Mrs. (Colonel) Ponton, in her report at the annual meeting, Tuesday. These included thanks to other organizations, to the Argyll for the use of the hall, to St. Thomas' church for the use of the parish house, to the Y.M.C.A. for the use of the lanterns and to the press for the co-operation which it has shown.

CELEBRATES 18TH YEAR AS CLERGYMAN

Rev. Cecil Winter, fifth and present rector of Picton, today celebrated the 18th anniversary of his ordination. It was on Trinity Sunday, 1915, that he was made a Deacon by the Right Rev. E.J. Bidwell, D.D.,D.C.L., Lord Bishop of Kingston and coadjutor of Ontario, in the Cathedral Church of St. George, Kingston, Ontario, and appointed Junior Curate of the Cathedral under the late Very Rev. Dean Starr, D.D. In the same year he became incumbent of Shannonville. On Trinity Sunday, 1916, he was ordained to the Priesthood by Bishop Bidwell. In 1917 he was made Rector of Lansdowne remaining there until March, 1927, when he became Rector of Picton and was instituted and inducted by Bishop Seager in July, 1927.

COURTESY PAYS BIG DIVIDENDS

By Louis E. Bisch, M.D., Ph.D.
Famous Authority on Health and Psychology

Many people realize the value of courtesy but not enough people practice it.

When we are courteously received we always appreciate it.

But we fail to realize what an asset courtesy is to our own personality and success.

Yet courtesy is a habit of demeanor that is very easily acquired.

And when once it becomes a part of you, you display it as if by second nature.

Courtesy is worth developing because it unfailingly wins.

But courtesy must not be forced.

When you deliberately try to be courteous and only to suit the occasion, it becomes evident that your charm of manner is only makeshift, spurious and trumped up.

That kind of counterfeit politeness deceives no one.

More likely than not, instead of winning confidence and respect, it merely creates suspicion.

The genuinely courteous persons are courteous under all sorts of conditions with all sorts of persons. Such persons simply cannot help being courteous.

The advantages of courtesy are unlimited.

An adversary is immediately disarmed when you are polite and agreeable.

Courtesy also engenders courtesy. Be kind and civil and others will not often think of treating you otherwise.

Courtesy wins in business.

Public officials who are courteous become popular.

Courtesy also engenders courtesy.

It startles you with worth and favorably reflects your other attainments.

Besides, courtesy is a readily available asset.

Anyone can practice it. It involves no extra labor of any kind. In fact, it shortens labor because it makes your relationship with others as much smoother and easier.

Emerson said: "Life is not so short but that there is always time enough for courtesy."

Have you ever noticed how a courtesy extended to you will put you in a happy frame of mind for the whole day?

And have you noticed also how a gruff answer or an uncivil manner will affect you in an opposite way?

This world of ours is pretty stern and harsh at best. Why not, therefore, help to smooth the relationships between human beings as much as possible?

Courtesy can do that as well as many other things for your benefit.

Develop, practise and extend courtesy, every day of your life!

Be courteous to everyone—to those who work for you, to the members of your own family, to strangers on the street.

Observe the responses you get.

You will find that courtesy pays tremendous dividends no matter which way you look at it.

Nothing as Good for Asthma. Asthma remedies come and go but every year the sales of the original Dr. J. H. Kellogg's Asthma Remedy grow greater and greater. Point Anne Point Anne, May 30 (By Mail).—Mrs. Joseph Taylor, Miss Bernice and Harold of Toronto spent Sunday with Mrs. Taylor's parents Mr. and Mrs. J. H. MacDonald.

Mrs. Groom and baby of Toronto are spending a few days with Mr. and Mrs. George Sweazer.

Mr. and Mrs. Swan of Toronto and Mr. and Mrs. Gorton of Belleville spent the holiday with Mr. and Mrs. J. R. MacDonald.

Mrs. D. MacDonald spent Sunday evening with Miss Shaw, Albert Street Belleville.

Owing to the illness of the Rev. Mr. Rowe there was no service in the United Church Sunday evening.

Mrs. Clelland of Deseronto is spending a few days with her daughters Mrs. H. Cole and Mrs. Wm. Gilhooley.

Mr. and Mrs. Monohan of Rochester, N. Y., who have been visiting Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Burk returned home on Monday.

To bear pain decently is a good sign of inward strength, and an undoubted proof of a great mind.

RADIO FANS CORNER

Well I've checked and double checked on the reception last night and I think it's pretty well agreed that in the middle of the evening it was terrible, but at the start and finish it was passable, quite good in fact.

Rudy and his Connecticut Yankees put on a good program last night and next week Graham McNamee announced the guest artist would be Miss Frances Williams star of the International Revue and a dozen other musical comedies. Well, we'll stand by.

If you see a gentleman on the street with a suit that looks like seventeen dollars fairly screaming the fact, you can rest assured it is Andy Brown, president of the Freak Air Taxi Cab Co., of America Incorpulated. Yes sir, Andy's bank account is all shot, now he'll have to start over again. How is he going to look in Madam Queen's eyes now he's spent all his money?

This is Friday night and that means good programs, so let's start early and stay late. Raybestos Twins first at 8.15 over WEAF with Lennie Hoss, tenor, and half a dozen others to contribute to the program so it should be good.

Still at WEAF at 7 E.S.T. is hear Jessica Dragonette and the Cavaliers during the broadcast of the Cities Service program and then at 8 E.S.T. the Chicago Club Echoes with their sparkling music that everyone loves, WEAF, for this program too.

Interwoven Pair from WJZ at 8 E.S.T. with Billy Jones and Ernie Hare performing before that Mike. Later, much later, from WJZ, at 11 to be exact, we'll hear Phil Spitalny and his mosic from the Pennsylvania Café.

Forgot to mention Raleigh Revue at 9 E.S.T. from WEAF with Phil Ohman and Victor Arden, piano duo, and a good many more.

LITTLE BENNY'S NOTE BOOK

Pop was smoking and thinking and ma said, Well Willyum, I think we're on the track at last.

What track, for instants? pop said, and ma said, I mean about what name to give the baby.

Meening my sister Gladdies baby, and pop said, O, so Gladdis has finally decided to call him Willyum, has she? and ma said, Certeny not, what are finally decided to do was to go and consult Madam Seero.

Yes gods a fortune teller, pop said, and ma said, On the contrary thats just what she's not. She's an axual mystick, Im sure she has direct connections with an unseen invisible world or she agrees with us that every child has its own preordained name to fit its little subconscious personality, and she's certeny in a much better position than we are, to find out what it is. Gladdis and I are sure its one of the names we've thawt of, but with, thats just it, with? So Madam Seero got us to write them all down and put the paper in a locked box, and she darkened the room and concentrated on the box, because she knew she would name the precordial name just as soon as she got the proper psi from the other world.

Well for Peet sake what was the name, dont keep me in sispense, pop said, and ma said, 't dident appear to her, she admits she's not the master of these invisible spirits, she says she's more like their servant. So that shows she's no fake or she would of pertended to succeed the very first time, but as it is we may have to go back for several more seances. Dureent that prove she's honest? ma said.

Dess she charge by the job or by the seance? pop said, and ma said, Its 5 dollers for each sitting.

Yee gods, I'll say she's wise to stretch it out, pop said. If any invisible spirits ask for me tell them Im around at the bowling alley and invite them to drop around and help my score, he said.

And he got his hat and went out.

Stirling

Stirling, May 30 (By Mail). — The death occurred of Miss Mary Magee, who suffered paralysis a little over six years ago and has been bedfast ever since.

Miss Magee was a worker in Mr. F. T. Ward's Men's Furnishing shop, until laid aside by her last illness when she bore with great Christian fortitude and patience and strove to look on the bright side and remain cheerful through all her suffering. A devout member of St. Andrew's Church and a kindly genial disposition she made many friends, who tried to see her often.

She leaves her sister Mrs. Demorest of town, Mrs. Wheeler, of Saskatchewan, and Mrs. Haggitt, of Blythe, Ont. A brother died three or four years ago (Mrs. (Rev.) Stevens (nee Ida Currie) of Evanston, Wyoming, passed away Sunday afternoon, May 18th. The deceased was ill for about three months having suffered a stroke. For a time she seemed to be gaining, but little hopes were held out for her recovery. She leaves besides her husband, her mother, Mrs. Currie; Mrs. Prangley, Mrs. W. Lindenfield and Miss Currie, all of Stirling.

The sympathy of the community is extended to the bereaved ones.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Hay, of Campbellford, accompanied by their daughter, Mrs. Jos. Whitehead, have gone West to Regina and other points to see relatives and friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Reynolds, Mrs. N. Mar ion, Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Martin were in Belleville on Sunday to see the former's nephew who is ill in the hospital.

Ready-made medicine.—You need no physician for ordinary ills when you have at hand a bottle of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil. For coughs, colds, sore throat, bronchial troubles it is invaluable; for scalds, burns, bruises, chilblains it is unsurpassed; while for cuts, sores and the like it is an unfailingable healer. It needs no testimonial other than the use, and that will satisfy anyone as to its effectiveness.

SAYS BROKERS GOT ALL MONEY

Toronto, May 30.—The stock brokers got it all!" is the grim statement of three young men—Francis P. Lowrey 27 years old; Wilfred Tomlinson 26 years old and 23-year-old Lester Penner—as they stood in the dock yesterday pleading guilty to charges of theft of $23,840 from the Church and King Streets branch of the Royal Bank of Canada during the years 1927-30.

Magistrate J. Edmund Jones accepted the plea on the charge of theft and the additional charge of conspiracy was subsequently withdrawn. Although counsel for the accused pleaded for immediate sentence, Magistrate Jones refused to acquiesce, saying: "No I won't sentence the young men today. I want to think it over. I will remand it until June 10." Both counsel asked that the remand be for a week only, but the Magistrate was unchanging: "I will remand it until June 10."

HOLSTEINS SHIPPED

Cobourg, May 30.—One of the largest shipments of cattle from the Seymour district left Campbellford recently for the United States, consigned to M. O. Plankenhorn of Sidney, N.Y. There were 18 head altogether and 15 of these were registered Holsteins. They will be known in their new home as the "Barnitee Herd," it is stated.

ROOKIE HURLER IS SENSATIONAL

New York Yankees Won Over Senators in Final Game of Series

Philadelphia, May 30—Regan's two-base error on Ruel easy grounder broke up a pitching duel between Leroy Mahaffey and Milton Gaston here yesterday afternoon, and the world's champion Philadelphia Athletics won the final game of the Boston Red Sox series 2 to 1.

Connie Mack's sensational rookie hurler held the Red Sox to five scattered hits and walked only two men. Gaston also was stingy with his hits, only five being garnered off his slants. He didn't issue a pass.

Regan's error which came in the seventh inning, was followed by Cochrane's double and spelled defeat for the Red Sox.

New York, May 30—The New York Yankees won a doubleheader victory over the Washington Senators yesterday 4 to 3 in the last game of the current series.

Wildness on the part of the Washington pitchers in the early innings accounted for the victors' runs.

"Firpo" Marberry started, but was taken out when Earl Combs opened the third inning with a triple. Combs eventually scored what turned out to be the deciding run.

George Pipgras, after a shaky start in which the first three batters to face him singled, proved effective with men on base.

Brooklyn, May 30—Hill Clark held the New York Giants to six hits here and the Brooklyn Robins won by a score of 4 to 1 in the last game of the series.

The victory put the Robins in a tie for first place with the St. Louis Cardinals, who were idle.

Babe Herman was the big gun in the Robin's attack. He hit two home runs, the first in the sixth inning of Hubbell with Frederick on base, and his second in the eighth off Herring.

In the fifth Reese hit the home run that saved the Giants from a shutout.

THE GIRL Plays the Game

By— Clarinda A. Cox

Of course the most important event on the horizon just now is the game tonight between the National Maids and the Proctenic girls. It will be played on the Recreation lawn and will start promptly at 6.45. Of course this is a little early for those fans who have their dinner at 6.30 but if it's necessary, leave out a couple of courses, the game will be worth it. This will be the Frontenac' first appearance this season and everybody is anxious to see what they have. Their pitcher is a newcomer, Miss Norma Cooke, and this will be her debut in the city league circles. Miss Edna Smith, steady little fielder of last year will be the alternative pitcher. Miss Aileen Wilkins will be catcher and if she even recovers a little of her old form she will let few of them by. Other outstanding play ers on the Frontenac lineup are Mary Adams, fiery little third-baseman, whose equal is not to be found in Belleville; steady Wilkins, old outfielder; Lena O'Neil, former third-baseman for the Beavers; Kitty Howie hefty clouter of three base hits; little Helen Smith who was one of last year's outstanding players in spite of her newness to the game, and Peg Blakey, who is re-entering the softball field after an absence of several years.

The National Maids' line-up will include the majority of last years Reservoir players. They appearance tonight will be marked by snappy new uniforms, including caps, sweaters, bloomers and stockings. Molly Cray who has pitched for the team for four years will once more occupy the pitchers box and it will be up to the Frontenacs to get their eye on the ball.

Lining the two teams up side by side and forgetting the pitchers, it would be a hard proposition to pick the best aggregation. Both have fine hitters and a fine infield, and we safely predict that the game tonight will be for the most part a pitcher's battle.

And here's an important thing to remember fans, when you've got the Germans on the job on the ball or lean heavily. Many young men who attend the games regularly make it a habit to sit on the high rail and wind their legs elegantly around the bottom rail. This can't be allowed as the rails are becoming weakened and one of these days they will break and then what? We can tell you the answer right now. Soldier Bruce has been the city league officials responsible for any damage done to the railing and if anything happens that we have to make good the damage. Now as the city league is not exactly wealthy, you can easily see that they cannot afford any such expense for the pleasure of persons who like to wind their legs around the railings. And anyhow boys, it's a terrible posture and if you could see yourselves as the young women around can see you, we don't think you would do it.

The Whoopers have decided to do nothing further about Tuesday night's game, although they still claim that the score was tied in the last inning. The trouble has been averted for the time being. A little more care next time in scorekeeping and no mix-up will occur.

YANKEE PITCHER INJURED

New York, May 30— Lou McEvoy, young Yankee pitcher who played last year with Oakland, was injured during batting practice before the Yankee-Washington game, when he was struck on the left ankle by a batted ball. It was feared that he might have suffered a fracture of an ankle bone.

McEvoy was pitching to the batters and Jimmy Reese drove a ball back at him so hard that it knocked him off his feet.

SUDBURY PLAYER DIED SUDDENLY

Sudbury, May 30—George (Geordie) Hendry, aged 27, dropped dead of heart failure in a football game at Garson Mine, near here, on Thursday evening. Hendry was a well known soccer player in this district, having played on the Garson football team in the Sudbury District Football Association since he came from Scotland in 1926.

The game was an exhibition fixture between Creighton Mine and Garson Mine on the latter's field. The time had gone to the last ten minutes when Hendry walked over to one of his team-mates and said "I am going to fall," as the words were spoken he dropped to the ground and never recovered. He was carried to the dressing room where the other players tried resuscitation but he was extinct.

Hendry was playing inside right but had not extended himself to any great extent during the game and at the time he was stricken had not been moved for several minutes. He was a subject to heart attacks and had dropped on the field before. Previous to the fatal attack he had not been in the play for several minutes. He was a great lover of the game and had played on Scottish teams before coming to Canada. He was employed as a blacksmith at the Garson workings of the International Nickel Company. His wife and two children survive.

VIII. THE FOREHAND

Proper position and footwork are the fundamental background for the forehand stroke. There are other factors which contribute to its successful execution. Comfortable grip of the handle is essential. The simplest manner of grip is to "shake hands with the racket". Thus the racket will settle easily into the mechanism of your stroke Swing freely and easily with arm slightly extended; keep the elbow from cramping in close to the side Hit the ball on the up swing in front of the body Make your footwork carry you to a position facing in a direction parallel to the line of the net The left foot is forward and the weight at the beginning of the stroke rests on the right foot. During the swing the racket should swing parallel to the ground until contact with the ball, when the "follow through" occurs The face of the racket is then perpendicular to the ground up to the contact with the ball. As the swing progresses, the weight of the body have forward on to the left foot and in so doing, gives strength and pace to the stroke This follow "up" on the ball to the stroke is given, if the wrist is allowed to turn and this distracts from the efficiency and pace of the shot. Let the racket follow through to its end, after contact with the ball, but always observe this rule—Never let your opponent see the back of your racket. Swing carefully and confidently each time and above all—KEEP YOUR EYES ON THE BALL.

INTERNATIONAL LEAGUE

ROCHESTER, May 30.—Nig Nicbergall's triple and Urbanski's homer in the fifth inning broke up a hurling duel between Art Smith and John Berly here yesterday, Montreal defeating Rochester 5 to 4.

Rochester scored twice in the eighth on four hits, including two doubles, but a fast double play saved Smith.

The victory put Montreal in point possession of first place in the International League.

READING, May 30.—Baltimore won the first game of the series from Reading here yesterday 5 to 2.

The Keystones outhit the Birds, 13 to 11, but could not produce in the pinches, and 11 Reading runners were left stranded on the bases.

Scott hit a home run for Reading with none on bases in the fifth.

NEWARK, May 30.—Long home runs by Billy Zitmann and Ralph Shinners helped the Bears to a 5 to 3 victory over the Jersey City Black Cats yesterday.

It was the ninth straight defeat for Jersey City.

The pitcher, Jim Faulkner, on the mound for Newark, allowed nine hits and scored his third straight win.

FRENCH NATIVE OPEN TOURNEY

Ormesson, France, May 30—Marcel Dallemagne of the St. Germain Club won the French open golf championship today for players of French birth with a 72-hole score of 299. A. Boyer of Nice was second with 300 and Eugene Lafitte of Biarritz third with 301. All three are professionals.

SOCCER NOTES

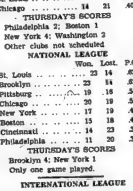
By Rover

Interest is booming in soccer locally and the team is practicing faithfully for the games with district teams. Tonight a workout will be held at Pine Street School grounds in preparation for the game between Kingston United and Belleville here on the King's Birthday, June 3rd.

Kingston United is represented by one of the best clubs in Eastern Ontario but the local sorcerites believe they can get revenge for the defeat suffered in Kingston th's week.

The following players are asked to turn out for the practice: Blaker, Haselton, Ballinger, Pickin, Colclough Keegan, Howard, Johnston, Taylor, Kennedy, Parin, Brooks, Norrige, Rand, Monk.

The Kingston United handed Belleville a 3-1 trimming in the Limestone City under most unfavorable weather conditions. Colclough was a standout for the locals.



The Whig-Standard in reporting the game says:

Belleville set up a fast pace from the start but as it was their first game since last season, they lacked the necessary condition. The only goal was scored by Colclough from a corner kick taken by Johnson. From this point the United's forwards settled down and a nice pass by Fox was snapped up by Ryce who sent in a hard shot which beat Daly and only by a clever kick by Hodgson was a sure goal saved. Golightly beat two men and passed to Ryce who again beat Belleville goalie for the second goal just before half-time.

On resuming play Belleville tried to equalize but the forwards could not break through United's defence. The last goal for the United came when Blaker, unable to clear a hot drive from Fox, dropped the ball where Holmes was waiting to put it through, this making the final score 3 to 1 for Kingston United.

PICTORIAL GOLF INSTRUCTION

(BY H. B. MARTIN)

Follow Through Most Important Part in Putting

The scientific putter who is always the successful putter is never guilty of lifting the putter head and swinging it on the ball. Never does he draw the club back farther than is absolutely necessary.

The stroke is firm and well in hand all the time. One thing that is absolutely necessary is to follow through. One professional expressed it just right when he said per mit the club, in putting ,to expel the ball. This means, of course, to let the club continue on in the line to the hole which should make sure of certain direction.

The hands alone will be sufficient to make the stroke on all short put. It is only when we must trav' across the green that the arms ight be needed.

NEVER TOOK GOLF LESSONS

George Voigt, high ranking amateur golfer and member of the United States Walker Cup team that won from England, never took a golf lesson. Voigt has what critics call an unorthodox stroke.

KEYS NEW PITCHER

Chicago, May 30.—Lonnie Warneke, rookie right-handed pitcher, who was obtained by the Chicago National League Club from Alexandria, La., was sent to the Reading club of the International League on option.

One hundred and forty guests, all relatives, recently attended a wedding near Paola, Kas.

On The Sport Trail

Toronto Star gave Belleville's 3rd June race meet a nice notice last night. The publication chides Belleville among the leading racing towns of Ontario. Secretary "Dick" Ketcheson reported today that the entries have exceeded the expectations of the Committee and keen competition will doubtless result. Some of the fastest horsey in the Province will be here. "Chappy" Chapman, trainer for the J. T. Payette string has a couple of new colts ready for action at the Penetang stable. Chappman is an old campaigner and if he brings his string here, local turf followers will see some action. Earl Rowe, M.P., of Simcoe, will likely send along some of his horses. Mr. Rowe bestides being a popular member for his riding is one of the well known harness horse owners of Ontario.

The Committee have offered a splendid purse and providing the weather man is in a happy mood, the event should be a real success, both from a sporting and financial standpoint.

National play in Kingston next week and they hope, to hand the 21st Battalion club another licking. Alex Weir is slated to do most of the pitching for the locals and if he has anything like his starting pace, the opposition will be in for a tough session. The Kingston Club will play St. Mary's of Toronto, a double header on the King's Birthday.

In the list of transfers granted by the Ontario Baseball Association last night appeared the names of a number of players from this district although Belleville was not directly affected. Bill Ralph, formerly of Deseronto goes to Picton;Gerald Minnes from Copper Cliff; Vincent Utronki from Belleville to Peterboro; Thornton Brey from Deseronto to Napanee; Bill Quinn from Queen's to Galt and Jamieson from Kingston to Creighton Mines. Apparently the Creighton Mines ball team will be a handpicked outfit although most of the new players are students who are taking a course in mining engineering at Queen's.

The fourth annual Dominion Day races promoted by the Deloro Amateur Athletic Association will be run off on July 1st. These races for which a section of the Marmora-Deloro highway supplies the course are open to runners who have been residents of Hastings County since January 1st, 1930.

For senior relay, the Kent Challenge Trophy is the award for the year's holding, with a replica cup for permanent possession. In 1927 and 1928, Charles Fairweather of Stirling was the winner, while Manley Emmorey of Deloro, secured the trophy last year. For this race, contestants must be under 21 years of age and for the junior race, under 17 years of age on January 1st, 1930.

The distances are approximately 6 and 3 miles respectively.

Further particulars will be gladly given to prospective contestants by the Deloro Amateur Athletic Association.

As expected, the Senate killed the betting information bill yesterday. The bill was contrary to all British tradition, and Dr. Peter McGibbon, the well-known lacrosse enthusiast of Brockeshire, hit the nail on the head during the discussion in the House on Wednesday evening, when he asserted that this amendment was a delayed outbreak of "war hysteria". The same sort of a bill was trust upon the Ontario people during the reign of the U.F.O. via the Hanley channel, when the newspapers were not allowed to publish odds. We distinctly remember one story which broke during that time which lost a lot of its kick through the banning of the odds and there was no hand-booking on it either. It happened at the Devonshire grand circuit meeting when James F. O'Hara, posting that there had not been a ticket sold on a horse bought one, and then gave it to Johnny Pangle's little daughter. As luck would have it, the horse won and paid off in four figures, but the Ontario public were unable to learn how much the girl had won, although every paper in the other provinces and throughout the United States could tell its readers, what really happened in our own province. As politicians have remarked more than once: "Thank God, we have a Senate."— Ed. Allen in Toronto Mail and Empire.

TERESA OSTERHOUT DIED AT FRANKFORD

Special By Staff Reporter

Frankford, May 30.—The funeral of the late Teresa Idella Osterhout took place on Tuesday last from the residence of her daughter, Mrs. Burness Bryant, Murray Township, to Rockdale Cemetery. Deceased passed away early Sunday in her 71st year. She had been a resident of Frankford for a number of years, but had been living her daughter at the time of her death. Another daughter, Mrs. Alexina Powell, also of Murray, survives. Rev. Doggett, of the Frankford United Church, conducted the funeral service.

Fine Ball Player for Dumb Plays

St. Louis, May 30—Rick Ferrell, catcher for the St. Louis Browns, was fined $50 yesterday by Manager Bill Killefer for what the manager termed a "dumb play" in Tuesday's game with the Detroit Tigers.

In the seventh inning the Tigers were at bat and runners were on first and second, when Sorrell, Tiger pitcher, batted. The ball rolled outside the foul line and then back into fair territory. Ferrell picked it up in time, Killefer said, to force a runner at third, but stood idly holding the ball until all three runners were safe.

Killefer said he expected to fine all players for "dumb plays" in the future.

Owing to the absence of Magistrate Mikel from the city today, Justice of the Peace Geraghty O. Tick presided at the bench. Only one city case was before the court, that of Jake Lusk, charged with having liquor in his car in an illegal place, to wit, his motor car. He was remanded until Monday on his own recognizance. The police patrolling the best early this morning noticed a car going west on Campbell street in a suspicious manner. The car was hailed and the driver, Mr. Lusk, asked to produce his driver's license. He did not have one and on their search of the car it is said a part bottle of liquor was found on the floor of the car near the front seat.

Shortly after the city court closed Magistrate Chesnutt-of-Madoc appeared on the bench to deal with a number of county cases. Norman Chase and Allan Mitchell charged with "breaking and entering" and "receiving" respectively came up for trial but the witnesses for the crown not ready to proceed and a remand for another week was granted. A number of cases of theft of bicycles have been broken into recently and a quantity of goods taken. The police receiving information, arrested a man and Mitchell. Taking the two men with the police a quantity of the goods were found in the car. The case was adjourned for a week.

The four, Mrs. Ethel Woods, Mrs. M. Parks, Jacob White and William Hearns, all of Tyendinaga Township, charged with fabricating evidence in the case of Mrs. Clara Knight, Gus Knight's mother, was also charged with attempting to obtain $1,000.00 from an insurance company for furniture alleged to have been destroyed in a fire at Tweed in April, appeared today but the Crown was not ready to proceed and a remand for a further remand was granted for one week.

Accessories Taken Away

Arthur Sweet, employed at the Regent Theatre, informed the police today that his car had been left unparked at the rear of the theatre a new Gutta Percha tire, tube and rim was taken from the tire carrier at the rear of the car. There is no clue for an Overland car and any information will be gladly received either by the owner or the police.

"THE GREEN GODDESS"

"Well, she probably would have been a darn nuisance anyway," said the Maharajah philosophically, and that describes "The Green Goddess" in which George Arliss, the noted actor, finds ample scope for his outstanding talents. The story is laid in India and the setting in the hills of Afghan'stan with an oriental court and oriental atmosphere is admirably suited enfolding the characters in all the glamour and mystery of the East. George Arliss as the Indian potentate smooth, suave, cruel and revenge ful presents a conception of the char acter with it a prominence of the actor's art. The support is excellent and the entire presentation is very entertaining. This evening will be the last presentation here of "The Green Goddess."

An Indian rule for planting corn was to wait until the leaves on the oak trees were the size of a squirrel's ear.

OBITUARY

MISS ELIZABETH BOOTH

Miss Elizabeth Booth died at the Belleville General Hospital this morning after an illness of some duration. The deceased was in her 70th year and was the daughter of the late Alexander Booth. She had lived practically all her life in this city and resided at 188 Dundas street. She was a faithful member of Bridge Street United Church and took an active interest in all its organizations. Surviving are five sisters, Mrs. Alex Graham of Toronto, Mrs. William Clegg of Pasadena, Cal., Mrs. J. B. McGinnis, Middleton, Michigan, Mrs. N. J. Stranger of Deseronto and Mrs. N. F. Gradden at home.

TAKES LONG FLIGHT

Hartford, Conn., May 30.—Captain Plane K of New Haven, prepared for a non-stop refueling flight to Buenos Aires, went into the air at 7:47 eastern standard time today. Backers of the flight stipulated the plane must leave before this evening or the flight would be called off.

FIRST WOMAN GUEST

New York, May 30 (CP).—The first woman ever to attend a meeting as a member of the association was present at last night's meeting of the Authors' Club, founded by Mark Twain as a retreat for male members of the profession.

MADOC FAIR GROUND

Madoc Fair Board is erecting a new building and fence is being placed in the show building.

The bump, or humps on a camel's back are huge masses of fat, serving as a reserve store of food. In poor condition, the humps wither away.

MRS. R. BRUCE TAYLOR TO FLY

Kingston, May 30.—Mrs. R. Bruce Taylor will fly with Frances Harrell at the air meet on Tuesday next. Miss Harrell will do stunts with Mrs. Taylor as passenger, just as other aviators are to do for several men who are to take their first lessons in stunt flying Mrs. Taylor has always evinced great interest in aviation.

BROWNLEE'S DENIAL

Edmonton, May 30 (CP).—Premier Brownlee, of Alberta, today denied the current rumor that he was likely to enter the Dominion field as a minister in MacKenzie King cabinet.

HITCH-HIKED

Two young Belleville boys, Arthur Locker and Edward Silvester hitchhiked to Colborne this week. They walked as far as Brighton, refusing several rides enroute. Returning home the next afternoon they refused all offers of lifts until they had passed Trenton when they were overcome by weariness and finally accepted a ride.

DR. HUGH T. KERR PRESENTED WITH HEAD FOR UNITED STATES

Rev. Hugh Thompson Kerr, D.D., native of Elora, Ontario, and graduate of the University of Toronto, was elected moderator of the United States Assembly in Cincinnati. He is the first Canadian to be honored with this office.

Dr. Kerr now pastor of the Shady Creek Presbyterian Church, Pittsburg, has two brothers in Toronto, Dr. William Kerr, 687 Lansdowne Avenue and Dr. Thomas Kerr, Dovercourt Road, and a sister, Mrs. H. J. Pritchard, wife of the superintendent of the Toronto Conference of the United Church. Another brother-in-law, Alexander Kerr, is at Seaforth, Ont., was formerly pastor of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Belleville. Dr. Kerr has on several occasions visited Belleville and preached here.

FIRED ON CONVICTS ONE WAS KILLED

London, Ohio, May 30 (CP). — Sam Cassella, Fairfield County convict, was shot to death today when prison guards at the London prison farm fired on 4 convicts who attempted to batter their way from a cell block. The prisoners were among a lot brought over to the prison farm following the fire at Ohio penitentiary when 320 convicts perished. They had been causing a disturbance for 48 hours.

CARMAN LANSING

Carman Willet Lansing who was born in Tyendinaga Township and was a resident of that neighborhood practically all his life, died yesterday following an illness of several months in Rockwood Hospital, Kingston. The late Mr. Lansing was but twenty-nine years of age and was one of the popular residents of the township. He was a faithful member of the United Church at Melrose.

He is survived by his mother Mrs. Lucia Lansing, a sister Mrs. Harry Little and a brother Earl of Tyendinaga Township. His father died some years ago. The funeral will be held on Saturday with interment at Melrose.

Mayor Wemp of Toronto at Glider Christening

A unique event took place at the Toronto Airport, Leaside, last week when the first glider presented to a flying club in Canada was officially christened the "Buckingham Booster" by Mrs. Wemp, wife of Toronto's Mayor. The glider was the gift of The Tuckett Tobacco Company Limited to the Toronto Flying Club. Photo shows the glider in flight piloted by Capt. Earl Hand, D.F.C., following the presentation ceremonies.

"COPYRIGHT AND FOR SALE IN BOOK FORM AT ALL BOOK STORES"

The following letters of interest were written me:

Hudson's Bay Company,
Moose Factory,
via Cochrane, Ont.
14th Nov., 1916.

My dear Jack,—

I was very glad to get your letter of August 30th and must thank you for your remittance of $5.00. I am sure you will think I have been a long while in answering your letter but I have been over in England this summer and only returned in this part of the country about two weeks ago; it was only on my arrival here that I received your letter, and as there will be a packet out as soon as the ice is strong, I am taking the first opportunity to answer your letter.

I am now stationed here at Moose for the Winter and shall be going to Albany in the spring. This is a port on the opposite side of James Bay to Fort George, but a very good place for game, especially for those birds we call "wavies." The correct name for these birds, I believe is "snow geese." It is a strange thing that on the west coast of James Bay we get almost nothing but white "wavies," with an occasional blue one in the flock while on the east coast it is just the opposite with almost nothing but blue (grey) with a few white ones in the flock, while a short distance further north on the east coast at Whale River the white reappear again in large number, so that they evidently cross the bay on their annual migrations.

There are lots of geese on the east and west sides of the bay, but I believe that more pass on the east (Port George side) than the other, as the coast is rocky with lots of islands where they can breed. We have some islands out in the bay called the "Topsa," which are great breeding places.

The Indians who killed those tagged geese said that they seemed to be tamer than the others and came out of large flocks and down to the decoys when the rest of the band would not turn.

About three miles north of Fort George runs there is a big bay (salt water) with lots of mud and grass at low tide, and in the spring almost every flock of wavies and some geese feed in this bay on their way north. The Indians never hunt them on their arrival in this bay, but gather on a long flat on the other side and then shoot at the birds as they are going off. They generally get up in small flocks; as they have to rise considerably to clear the hill, they can be seen getting up some time before they get to the hill, and then every one runs along a path and tries to get under where the flock is going to pass. Of course if there or four flocks get up at the same time there is shooting on different parts of the hill and the hunters are apt to spoil one another's sport. The Indians say that once these birds leave this bay that they go not feed again till they get far north (Hudson Srt tieor:"'er far north (Hudson Straits or Baffin Land). In fact a wavie's nest is a great rarity. Strange to say they do not feed in this bay in the fall.

We have no wild rice in the bay and the birds seem to feed mostly on grass in the salt water, and in the fall they go out to the islands to feed on berries; they fly out to the islands in the mornings and back into the small bays for the nights.

I am staying with Mr. Camsell just now and he tells me to be sure and remember him to you. He is going to walk out to the line in March and will perhaps try to look you up.

I am enclosing you some photos which may interest you. I have written on the backs what they represent. The Indians get lots of fish in their nets but not much in winter except with hooks.

Mr. Camsell showed me the photo of yourself. Please send me one.

Well, I will write again, and in the meantime remain,

Your sincere friend,
Owen Griffith.

The following four letters all explain themselves.

The Hudson's Bay Company,
James' Bay District Office,
Moose Factory,
June 15th, 1918.

Dear Mr. Miner,—

The enclosed metal band, No. 18 S, was brought here today by an Indian, by name Andrew Butterfly who killed the goose carrying the band, while hunting in Hannah Bay, south-east of James' Bay.

Andrew informs me that the goose was killed on April 28th, 1918.

We are all very much interested in your experiments down here, and make a point of returning the bands we receive. If you require any further particulars about the geese killed, please let me know and I will try to give you as much information as possible.

Yours faithfully,
Geo. Watson,

Mr. Jack Miner,
Box 48,
Kingsville, Ont.

The Hudson's Boy Company,
Great Whale River Post,
via Cochrane, Ontario.

Dear Mr. Miner,—

I have delayed answering your letter of Sept. 4 until I saw some of my hunters from the north, so as to get as much information as I could about the nesting place of the geese etc.

The Esquimaux tell me that a good many birds nest at some large islands about north-west of this Post. The islands are called the north and south Belchers, and some of them are fairly large. One of these has a large lake extending nearly the whole length of the island and this is the place where a good many of the geese nest. I have received two tags from the natives who stay on these islands, and I enclose them herewith.

The hunters from the far north told me that quite a number of geese nest about 300 miles north of this place; and I have let them know that if they kill any geese with tags on to bring them in to the Post, so very likely I will be able to send you some next spring when the natives again visit the Post.

I don't know what has happened to the birds and animals this season; I have never seen it so poor for all kinds of game since I have been up in this direction, and I am hoping that we have an early spring so that perhaps we may be able to get some of your geese or other game.

I have been showing your pictures of the geese in the pond to some of my hunters and they tell me that they wish they were only eating some of them: and of course I have to tell them that spring will soon be here and that they may still some of the geese they have been looking at in the pictures.

Well, I see the war is now over, and every one up at this place was very glad of it. The natives have some very funny ideas about what the war was really about, and as each man held that his idea was the correct one, there have been some lively discussions about the matter and this controversy has helped to pass the time at this isolated place.

Well, trusting things are going right with you and that your geese are well and fat. I remain,

Yours sincerely,
L. G. Maver.

Subject: Two goose bands returned.

Jack Miner, Esq.,
Kingville, Ont.

Dear Sir,—

While making a trip last winter up the east coast of James' Bay as far as Great Whale River on Hudson Bay, two of your goose-bands came into my possession and I beg to return them herewith.

The band marked 17 was on a goose that was killed in October, 1918, about thirty miles nort hof Eastmain by Charles Shashawaskum, a Cree Indian.

The goose that was carrying the band marked 18 was killed last fall near Cape Jones by Richard Fleming, an Esquimaux.

One dollar has been forwarded to each of these men out of your fund, held by Mr. Nicholson of Rupert's House.

Yours faithfully,
Wm. G. Stockham,
District Manager.

Mr. J. Miner,
Box 48, Kingsville, Ontario.

Dear Sir,—

The enclosed tag No. 18 S was handed to me the other day by an Indian who killed the goose to which it was attached about thirty miles north of this Post. I believe two or three other tags were procured by some Indians who do not deal with me but no goubt they will be forwarded by the trader to whom they were delivered. As far as I can ascertain your interests seem to be pretty well looked after around the bay generally.

Yours sincerely
A. Nicolson.

Now it is a fact that thirty-six of my returned goose tags have come from Hudson Bay. Yes it would be well to remember that over eighty per cent of these birds were tagged in the spring, and they went direct from this tame spot to James Bay, thus giving the Indians and Esquimaux the fairest opportunity. We are quite certain that two or three were killed by them within three days after they left here. One goose tagged and liberated here on April 24th, was killed at the Belcher Islands on the 28th; another, liberated on April the 22nd, was killed at James Bay on the 25th.

NATIVES FORCED TO WORK UNDER LASH PENALTY

Cruel Young Taskmasters Lightly Fined For Acts of Torture

SLAVERY CHARGE

WINDSOR, Southwest Africa, May 29.—CP — Three young Europeans charged with maltreating natives and forcing them to work on their plantations under the pain of the lash were today found guilty of assault and fined five pounds, each. Sentences were light in view of the youth of the three prisoners, who were charged with having descended, armed and mounted on a small kral and driving off the natives and their families. Some of natives it was charged were forced to run all night, while the three riders and companions jerked them along.

Farm Mortgages Disappoint Synod

Investment in Bonds Favored Instead in Ontario Diocese

Kingston, May 20.—The Synod of Ontario Diocese finds that its investment in farm mortgages has been anything but a paying venture, and put itself on record of favoring investment in bonds instead.

Group insurance was discussed this morning. The meeting adopted a resolution by Judge A. H. MacLean of Picton to the effect that the Synod's share of the $1,000 premium for group insurance be raised hereafter in the same manner as money for the General Purpose Fund. The motion was adopted, 46 to 31.

Views on Church Union

The union of the Church of England with other branches of the Holy Catholic Church was referred to by Rev. Dr. F. H. Cosgrave, Provost of Trinity College, Toronto, in his sermon at the annual Synod service in St. George's Cathedral.

Dr. Cosgrave explained that the Church of England had some features which related it to the Roman Catholic Church, while it had other features which related it to the Nonconformist Protestant Churches and it could not unite with one or the other without sacrificing something essential to its entity. Dr. Cosgrave stated that the Church in its present form had strayed from Christ's ideal of a world embracing Church but he saw the tremendous difficulties in the way of a union of all the branches of the Holy Catholic Church. He emphasized the desirability of a United Holy Catholic Church, but expressed the opinion that it could only be brought about by all Christian churches deciding simultaneously and unanimously on a basis of union.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

APRIL LOVE

BY

Jasper B. Sinclair

Copyright, 1930, International Feature Service, Inc.

It was an April day twenty years ago. A boy and a girl sat on a grassy bank near the roadside. It was a quiet, winding road that curved up through the Sonoma Valley and faded into a horizon of purple and green.

"Some day, Mary, I am going to be a great artist," he said simply. "Then you will be proud of me."

"Of course you will, John," smiled Mary Brown, looking up into his eager face.

He was only sixteen, but in his blue eyes there was the soul of a dreamer and an idealist.

At present John Manning worked in Woodville's general store for the prosaic and satisfying reason that he might add enough to what his father had left him to fulfill his dreams.

"Of course you'll be a great artist, John. But I'm just as proud of you now as I ever shall be."

Then they laughed happily together with the sureness of youth that nothing could shake their schoolday romance.

John talked earnestly of the future. Of foreign teachers, the beauties of other lands and the joy of painting their wonders. Of how Mary would some day be the wife of a great artist picturing the future as only youth can.

The girl at his side, attuned to his mood, listened eagerly while he painted the years ahead with deft touches and a quiet simplicity that laced say indication of youthful age.

As time is measured she was a year younger, therefore, infinitely older and wiser in her own estimation. But Mary had long sensed his sincerity and confidence and shared them both with the lad who had the soul of a dreamer.

The years slipped by, bringing their full floom of maturity and knowledge. In their passing they transformed the school girl into a radiant young lady unconscious of her beauty, but equally aware of her charm.

To John they brought the virility and strength of manhood, though his blue eyes were still the soft, dreamy eyes of the idealist ever looking into the future.

It was an April day ten years ago. A man and a girl stood beside the gate that led into the garden of her home. Below them the same quiet, winding road that curved up through the Sonoma Valley and faded into a horizon of purple and green.

"Tomorrow, Mary, I'm going away," he stated quietly. His tone was still eager and alert, softened perhaps by the pang of parting.

"Not — not leaving — Woodville?" Mary's eyes were wide with the abrupt news of his declaration.

"Yes, Mary," he responded soberly. "Now that I've saved enough there is nothing to be gained by further delay—I'm going—far away. I'm going to Paris and to Rome; to Naples and Florence, and so many other places to learn all that I can and to paint their beauties."

The girl drew her breath in sharply, but remained mute.

"There are so many beautiful places over there, Mary," he went on eagerly. "So many beautiful places for an artist to paint. The pastoral beauty of Normandy, the blue of the Riviera, the quaintness of old Venice, and—oh, so many others!"

"But, John," demurred the girl. "Don't you think there is as much beauty to be found in our own country? Right here, even, in our own Sonoma Valley? Think of the charm of—"

"No, Mary," he interrupted with a laugh. "We think it's pretty here, because we've feasted our eyes on these hills for so many years, but others would only laugh and shake their heads."

"What others, John?" queried Mary, still unconvinced.

He shrugged. "Everyone, Mary. All great artists must go to Europe if they are to become really great."

Mary gazed doubtfully at him. Then she looked down at the sweep of green and purple hills, splashed with the blue and red of wild flowers. Her eyes lingered on the distant summit of Mount St. Helena, sharp and austere against the azure background.

"It's no use, Mary," he murmured quietly. My mind's made up. I'm leaving tomorrow. But—you'll wait for me, won't you?"

Mary smiled softly then, and when she answered the pleading in his eyes he gathered her into his arms.

"Of course I will, John—always!"

On the afternoon when John left Woodville, some of the charm of the Sonoma Valley seemed to go with him To Mary the valley became quiet and lonely, brightened only by the thought that some day he would be back.

In the meantime, though, the places he had pictured seemed so far away, so far apart from their own peaceful valley, that she lay awake nights wondering and hoping and praying.

It was an April day five years ago. A young man and a young woman stood beside the garden gate, looking down on a quiet, winding road that curved up through the Sonoma Valley and faded into a horizon of purple and green.

"It's good to see you again, John," declared the young woman.

"And it's good to see you again, Mary," he replied quickly.

His blue eyes were more serious now, and if there was a trace of disappointment in them it vanished before the joy of their meeting. He was no longer the idealist, no longer the dreamy boy she had known so many years before.

Mary was quick to mark the change in him, but wisely held her tongue.

"Tell me, John, something about the beauties of those far away places," she prompted, sometime later. His letters had told her nothing of his work. They had been filled with thoughts of her and of the future.

He smiled. A sad, forlorn sort of smile that told more eloquently than words of shattered illusions and disappointments.

"There is nothing to tell, Mary," he replied simply. "I've seen them all—Normandy, Venice and the Riviera—and I've been lonesome for a glimpse of our own little valley, with its green and purple clad hills, and Mount St. Helena and the blue skies above. Bluer than any place in the wide world."

Mary smiled knowingly. If she sighed, it was because it had taken five lonely years to teach the lesson.

"Yes, Mary, you were quite right," he admitted softly. "There is all the beauty that anyone wants right here at home—with you."

And then Mary knew that John would still be a great artist.

Fashionably Speaking

By Lucille

DEAR READERS:

Let's take a peek into Esme Fashions but her lift up the lid and see the delightful surprises she has for us for the summer months. Because they are delightful and there can be no question as to the charm of this year's models and the prices dear reader! They have gone down so much that lovely chapeaux are within the reach of all. The bangkoks and panamas of early spring have been replaced by lacy straws and transparent mohair is steadily becoming more popular.

And from reliable sources comes the announcement that for the summer of 1930, crinoline will reign supreme. This lovely fabric is taking on many new guises and appears in many new colors, in combination with other fabrics. It will be used chiefly as trimming, and the vogue for spots and dots is expressed in a chenille-spotted all crinoline model, so fine that it appears to be made of veiling.

The question of brims has been decided for the summer vogue. The sun hat frock must have the hat with a single crown and gracefully sweeping brim. The frocks are so feminine that they demand this type of hat. The small hat will disappear for the warm months, although grotesquely large brims will be as decidedly unpopular as no brim at all. One hat, dear reader, will serve for as many as four summer dresses, provided you exercise care in matching up your colours, so that they may all harmonize.

The new colours are lovely, pastel shades of course reigning supreme. Lime is one of the popular shades, so too are Mariposa (pale tomato) and chartreuse. Soft greens and beige will also be in favour and of course black always remains at the head of the list. Ornaments for the most part are taboo, and the hat will be simply trimmed, in fact the untrimmed lace-straw motif or open lace brim is the smartest.

Fashionably yours,

LUCILLE.

AUTUMN STYLES NOW IN AFRICA

Latest Fashions Somewhat Bizarre According to Description

Cape Town, South Africa.—Autumn "fashions" are set for South Africa, while women in the northern hemisphere revel in spring. Among the new evening gowns are several frankly "jeune fille" frocks with bouffant skirts, but the vast are slender, even when their skirts conceal many yards of material. White is a most successful "color"; there is a great deal of pink, some red, and a lot of green. A striking gown seen recently was in yellow satin a robe de style, with a canary at the waist. Another was a most exciting crinoline gown in white satin hand-painted with colored butterflies all over it.

A black gown with a long trail of white peacocks up the side and a white chiffon poppy posied on one shoulder was greatly admired. These chiffon poppies, by the way, are being much worn with chiffon evening dresses, and they are as delicately creased as the field originals.

What ingenious use can be made of ribbons was demonstrated recently when a mannequin-ette was dressed entirely in narrow corded ribbon attracted an enormous amount of attention. Two shades of green had been chosen, and her frock was covered with circles and ovals, and moons. This costume was topped by a hat made up of ribbons composed in sunshade and bag made entirely of the same material. So skilfully was the ribbon used that her frock, which was semi-fitting, and with a slightly flared skirt, did not look in the least exaggerated.

EMBARRASSING MOMENTS

OLD RESIDENT VISITOR HERE

Without doubt one of the oldest holiday visitors around this locality was in the person of Mr. Jesse Lee of Yarker, Ontario, who motored from Yarker to Carmel, Ont., to celebrate "Good Old Queen Victoria's Birthday" with his daughter Mrs. Herb Prindle of Carmel.

Mr. Jesse Lee was born on the 22nd day of September, 1843 in Camden at Yarker Lake, being one of the eleven children of Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Lee of that place. With the exception of four, all of these children lived to be over seventy-five years of age. Three still surviving, namely Mr. Calvin Lee of Yarker, aged ninety-four, January last, Mr. Jesse Lee in his eighty-sev enth year and Mr. Charles Lee in his eighty-fourth year.

In the year 1865 he married Rosanna Ricks of that place, who was exactly the same age even their birthdays falling on the same date To this happy union six children were born, four of whom now are living, namely Fred of Tornolo, Damon of Yarker, Mrs. Herb Prindle of Carmel and Stanley of Tweed, and nine great-grand children.

Mr. Lee well remembers the time when he laboured for twenty-five cents a day and supported his family on fifty cents a day at teaming fourteen hours to the day. He still carries out his own correspondence without the aid of spectacles and still able to answer his long distance telephone calls and thinks nothing of a three mile stroll. He is a member of the United Church of Canada previously the Methodist Church, and expects to cast his Conservative vote in the coming election.

National advertisers spent $26,000,000 in newspaper advertising in 1929, the automobile industry leading all others in the amount expended.

FOREIGN FILMS AND LITERATURE

The invasion of foreign films and foreign magazine literature is insidious. It reaches the people at the fireside not at the battlefront and absorbs the minds of the people of the invaded territory. As the Toronto Globe points out Canada is in thrall to the U.S. picture-making industry. This with the inroads of foreign ideas in literature tends to transform, and mould ideals from what they are to the United States view of life. The Globe sees one possibility of liberation from the burden of U.S. filmdom, that is, in increasing the percentage of British films and calling on the Imperial Conference to further this purpose.

Canadian ideals are such as ought to be preserved. Canadians without imposing the ideals of other nations including the United States can still prefer her own outlook.

THE LAST OF THE COAL

Much of the coal which was saved in the early days of May when spring was welcomed, has gone to dust in the past ten days of chilly weather. Such a reversal of conditions makes one dubious of a fine day for it almost seems as if a reaction is at hand.

The present weather conditions are however conductive to luxuriant growth of grasses and such crops.

CONFUSING LEFT-TURN

Belleville in the course of time will probably see its way out of the confusion which arises at the Front and Bridge street intersection by the use of the left hand turn. There are obstacles to be overcome in the elimination of this outworn method of expediting traffic. Since detouring has been necessary owing to bridge construction, Bellevillians have seen that traffic regulations are not always the best and that improvements are always possible. In time it is expected that Belleville will see the need of elimination of the left hand turn.

NIGHT SIGNS

Parking of cars on Front Street at night is a street infraction and numerous travellers have paid fines in court.

City Public Works has decided to place larger signs so that motorists may read this wisely and to their benefit.

The city does not want to offend nor to collect fines in this way, but it must keep the way clear for traffic and for the average. Indignant travellers may not think too highly of a city where such infractions cost three dollars and so it is the duty of the city to see that only a motorist who wills to disobey the laws is fined by making it so clear to him that he cannot fail to know the regulations and will not make the mistake of leaving his car on the street during the night.

The municipality does not want to, nor can it afford to, have anyone feel that collection of a fine for this infraction is for the purpose of swelling the local exchequer. Should a traveller motorist get this view it will be ill for the city. So the need of larger and more prominent signs.

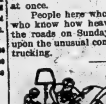
ART IS EDUCATION

A ragged musician playing a $40,000 violin on the streets of Chicago earned five dollars in a day playing airs which to an associate of the Chicago Symphony Orchestra had played to charm music lovers, who had paid large admissions to hear him.

It was a test. There is such a thing as a name and such a thing as a place. "A rose by any other name would smell as sweet" says one but it is true that some people do not even know a rose very intimately. Many heard Jacques Gordon the concertmeister, in the streets and passed him by unhonored except for the dropping of a bit of change for sweet charity's sake into the tin cup which the master held out.

Music is an education. The ear and mind to appreciate great art and great music must be educated. Beethoven may not appeal to the man in the street for the street is not the setting for such art. It has its own art.

The experience of Gordon does not prove that music is not a great art, some say the greatest of all. It simply means that music can keep drawing its lovers higher and higher into the pure realm of harmony through steps of education. Street music is of its own calibre and gives its own peculiar reaction to its hearers, just as that of the concert hall has its own peculiar charm and appeal. Music appreciation is something that is learned slowly and gradually accumulates.



Music like all the arts develops. The art of the street corner is not so slow in winning perception as neither might it be. A man could know the soul of music from his earliest years, would he not lose something by missing the sense of conquest in achieving appreciation of music?

TRUCKING ON SUNDAY ON HIGHWAYS

The Toronto Globe yesterday discussed the question of unnecessary trucking over the highways on Sunday. Belleville people have often commented upon the huge motor conveyances which pass up and down these roads on Sunday morning and night.

The Globe calls upon the authorities to act and stop this business of trucking on Sundays, the day when traffic is heaviest with the public enjoying the fresh air. The paper claims that the traffic is illegal and should be put a stop to at once.

People here who live on the highway and who know how heavy is passenger traffic on the roads on Sundays have often commented upon the unusual condition of such a volume of trucking.

SIDELIGHTS

BEAUTY'S FOLLY

The Beautiful dreaded the throb and roar
Where the millions moved in a loud commotion.
The Beautiful went to a desolate shore
That looked on a long and lonely ocean.

She loosened the strands of her golden hair;
She tossed her jewels to the reaching sea;
She flung her garments far in the air;
"And now," said the Beautiful One, "I'm free."

No longer she gazed in the crystal mirror,
Nor toyed with her delicate toilet set,
Nor decked her beauties to make them dearer
To an unknown lover she might have met.

One evening she wandered near to a pond
Where the crimson sun shed its dying rays.
She leaned to the edge and peered beyond—
But an ugly face returned her gaze.

Who seeks for Beauty on desert isles
Never a mite shall he discover.
For the Beautiful lives among myriad smiles—
Lives for the eyes of an unknown lover.

WILL SOME KIND READER of this column oblige me with a copy of our issue of April 17 of this year. It seems that so great has become the demand for this g.f.i. that very rarely is a copy left, and I do need one of that date very much. Thank you.

KINGSTON is going to have an air Circus next week, Tuesday, King's Birthday, to be exact, and what a hum dinger it is going to be with all the latest stunts in aviation dancing on the clouds, waltzing through the Milky Way, and all that kind of thing with men and women aviators. Stuwen Kingston is going airminded. Reminds me, too, that Sells Floto Circus is passing up Kingston, playing Montreal, Ottawa, Belleville, Toronto, and London, with perhaps one or two other stands in Western Ontario. Kingston some years ago raised the license fee for circuses and they sure raised the circuses right out of Kingston for which the small boy of the Limestone City will never forgive the City Fathers.

THE FLYING LION has reached New York. His name is Gilmore, and he travels in mascot with Lieut. Col. WILL ROGERS has done another picture, "So This Is London," companion to "They Had to See Paris," which Will made so popular. This Cherokee cowboy comedian philosopher actor is certainly all to the mustard in handing out laughs. The Lord when he made Will Rogers created a natural fountain of mirth, wit and wisdom, forever bubbling over with sunshine and generating the thought that the world was built for happiness with little place for sorrow or sighing.

He's a cheater," remarked one golfer to another, as the man with whom the first had played a match that afternoon left the locker room. "He lost his ball in the rough and played another without looking at it once."

"How do you know he didn't find his ball?" inquired the second golfer.

"Because I have it in my pocket," responded the first golfer, triumphantly.

Famous Bands of British Empire

Bandmaster Zealley Author of Publication on Music

Now that the Belleville Argyle Light Infantry band is about to take on a new life, a literary work on the subject of bands'should prove more or less interesting more especially as Belleville's bandmaster happens to be the author. The title of this volume is "Famous Bands of the British Empire" and it is published in London, England. It is printed on art paper and is profusely illustrated and gives us the histories of all the leading bands throughout the British Empire, and it is the only work of its kind ever published.

Here one has a history of British music extending over a period of 300 years.

One interesting feature in the book is the history of The Belleville Kilties Band with a portrait of the late Tom Power.

Prof. Zealley, the author has 25 years' military service to his credit. He graduated as a bugle boy at The Royal Military School of Music "Knellar Hall" the cathedral of British military music, a school of music from which all British military bandmasters must graduate before receiving an appointment.

15,000 copies of this book have been circulated throughout the Empire so it can be readily seen the professor has what one might term an international reputation.

Manager Hanna is certainly to be congratulated in bringing such a distinguished musician to this city, and the Argyle band is fortunate indeed to be under such capable leadership.

Many mothers have reason to bless Mother Graves' Worm Exterminator, because it has relieved the little ones of suffering and made them healthy.

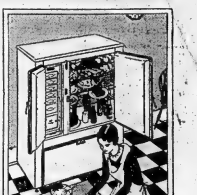
THE Fast-Freezing KELVINATOR

the new, better help in food preparation

KELVINATOR freezes desserts faster and more successfully than any other domestic refrigerator. That is just one of the results of its wonderful 4-Way Cold. Now, for the first time, automatic refrigeration—as developed exclusively by Kelvinator—becomes of major importance in the preparation of foods.



With the new and greater Kelvinator you can always have ready those dainty and delicious dishes which—lacking Kelvinator's help—are so difficult to prepare.

More than this—Kelvinator's "below-freezing" Cold Storage Compartment—in de luxe models—enables you to keep these desserts or salads for days at a time. The same compartment is an ideal storage place for extra ice; for gaune, fish, meats—and for the frozen fruits, vegetables, meats and fish which are now coming into general use.

One of our representatives is as near as your telephone or visit our showroom for a demonstration of these new features.

Everyone can now own a Kelvinator—on Easy Terms

The model Kelvinator you require may be purchased on easy terms through Kelvinator's attractive ReDiaCo monthly budget plan. Details upon request.

Only KELVINATOR Gives

4-way cold

1 More Ice—because Kelvinator's ice capacity—size for size—is greater.

2 Super-Fast Freezing—because of Iso-Thermic Tubes—an exclusive Kelvinator feature.

3 Cold Storage—in de luxe models, a large compartment kept always at below-freezing cold.

4 Scientific Refrigeration—40° to 50°—in main food compartment—safe and correct cold for all foods.

All these four degrees of cold are maintained constantly, separately, automatically.

Kelvinators are now sold in Belleville by:

OUT-OF-TOWN CALLS — QUICKER AND CHEAPER THAN EVER

She almost trembled at the thought

Mrs. Kane was a timid soul—no doubt about it! Modern efficiency rather terrified her.

She wanted so much to talk to her sister in a town 80 miles away because a friend had told her how she enjoyed weekly long distance chats with her home. But she didn't know how to go about it.

"There's nothing to it," her friend told her. "Just ask the operator for 'Long Distance' and when she answers tell her the number you want. If you don't know your sister's number, ask 'Information'—it's so very simple."

Mrs. Kane felt encouraged. She tried it out one evening; found the operator helpful; and in two minutes was talking to her sister and enjoying herself thoroughly.

And the call cost her only 40 cents—the evening station-to-station rate (after 7 p.m.).

The Friday night 3-minute talk to her sister is now an institution. It has made such a difference to know she is so near! And Mrs. Kane calls after 8.30 p.m. now, at a cost of only 25 cents—the night rate.

Evening rates on "Long Distance" (station-to-station) calls now begin at 7 p.m. Night rates begin at 8.30 p.m. Just give "Long Distance" the number you want —it speeds up the service. If you don't know the distant number, "Information" will look it up for you.

THE BELL TELEPHONE COMPANY OF CANADA

JAS. A. COKERS, Manager.

In seasons past it has been a happy task to laugh at the grotesque and hilarious antics of fifty Sells Floto Circus clowns, but this year, when the great show is seen in Belleville, Thursday, June 12th, we will be called upon to roar, chuckle, grin, smile and snort with joy at the capers of no less than seventy Sells Floto Joeys.

The cream of the clown world, princes of cap and bell, kings of burlesquade, have been gathered to furnish the long Sells Floto program this season. Among them are many whose names are famous in the circus world and popular with show lovers. They include Jimmie Davison, Paul Jerome, Chester Barnet, Walter Goodenough, Grover Hitchman, Mal Hales, Jack King, Bill Ash, Tom Howard and dozens of others whose antics have delighted thousands of circus fans throughout the country for many seasons past.

Each Merry Andrew devises his own individual laugh-raisers, and each tried to vie with the others in originality and humorous novelty. The result is a long program of delightfully facts and funny surprises, no two alike, with the result that when a Sells Floto patron is about recovering from one fit of gasping laughter he has but time to regain his breath when he is assailed with a fresh and even funnier comedy onslaught. The children love the clowns so less than their more reserved elders. The Joeys in rousing laughter disregard ages.

And of course, Sells Floto have the greatest of all attractions, Tom Mix and Tony, who appear at each and every performance this season.

Over 200 circus acts, many new to Canadian audiences, fill the three rings and two stages with thrills and sensational stunts.

HAD KIDNEY TROUBLE AND FOUND RELIEF

That's Why Mrs. L. Burgoyne Recommends Dodd's Kidney Pills

She Suffered With Urinary Troubles—the After Effects of the "Flu"—Dodd's Kidney Pills Relieved Her

Hackett's Cove, N.S., May 26 (Special).—"I have been taking Dodd's Kidney Pills for a long time," writes Mrs. L. Burgoyne, a well known resident of this place. "I find them a splendid remedy for kidney trouble. I had been suffering with Urinary Trouble, the after effects of the 'Flu'. That has all disappeared now and I can thank Dodd's Kidney Pills for it. I would highly recommend them to anyone suffering with a similar trouble."

The reason Dodd's Kidney Pills have come to occupy such a prominent place in the family medicine chest is that so many of the ordinary every day ills come from sick kidneys. Rheumatism, Backache, Urinary Troubles, etc., can all be traced directly or indirectly to sick kidneys.

Dodd's Kidney Pills have built up their reputation as a Kidney remedy by the relief they give. Insist upon having Dodd's, the kidney pill your neighbours use.

By

Peter B. Kyne

July 4th, 19—

To all employees of H. Hanchino:

On and after this date Mr. Kenneth Burney will be the general manager of this ranch. I bespeak for Mr. Burney the same loyal cooperation you have hitherto accorded his predecessor, Mr. Graydon, whose service in the employ of this company have earned him promotion.

Bardin Land & Cattle Co.,
H. Bradley Bardin,
President.

"Any further orders, sir?" he queried.

"None. I've several managers to whom I have to issue orders. Good night, Kerg."

"Good night, sir." He moved off the porch and the gloom swallowed him.

"Well, Kipp," a sweet voice spoke from a distant corner of the veranda, "up late for me as if you have a bear-cavey the tail."

It looks that way, Muriel. I'll be tired if I know what to make of that show. One minute he's so cocksure I want to throw a rock at him and the next minute I'm certain he's one of the breed of men made for bosses. He's a pretty easy talker, but—he knows when to quit talking. And while he's talking he makes you lie to. I couldn't stand a blatherskite."

"Neither could I," his daughter replied.

"The devil you couldn't!" The words popped out, leaving His Majesty in the position of one who has already talked too much and may not say more. A soft little laugh answered him tantalizingly.

CHAPTER XIV.

"You been here listening to our conversation?" her father demanded.

"Of course I have. It's dull around here, I tell you, and I like to listen to that man talk. He certainly had something to say to you. I loved the dig he gave you about a son-in-law!"

"Why, you don't suppose he meant anything, do you, Muriel?"

"You never can tell what brave thoughts a man like that has in his funny mind." And again the girl laughed teasingly.

"Well, I don't know much about him," the king admitted, "but as a son-in-law I'd take him on suspicion in contrast with that bunch of ukulele playing, wise-cracking lot of gilded nincompoops in your social set. There isn't one of them with sense enough to—to—tail a calf."

"It has not been at all unusual for Mr. Graydon to be invited here for dinned pop." Muriel reminded him. "Are you going to make a social outcast of your new general manager?"

"Art Graydon is a married man and an old, valued and trusted employee for whom I have a certain affection. I wouldn't high-hat him for a train-load of fat steers. But I cannot say that for Burney. Perhaps when he has been in my service as long as Graydon has and has—"

"Gotten married," Kipp prompted, "you will invite him to dinner."

"That's the milk in the coconut, my dear."

"Oh, it is, is it? Now, look here, old settler. Who is the general manager of the social department of the Bardin family?"

"Why—why, you are, I guess. Since your mother passed away—"

"Mother always accompanied you to El Ranchito and she always invited Mr. and Mrs. Graydon to dinner. You never invited him up to your life.

"But the invitation always came with better grace from your mother."

"It will come with equal grace from me now. You'll have to have the Graydons up for dinner before they leave El Ranchito, will you not?"

"Of course. Only courtesy to do so."

"It would be an equal courtesy to invite the new general manager also. You can't leave him sitting there in the office or eating alone at the Graydon table. That would be grave discourtesy."

"You're developing too much interest in this young man, Muriel."

"Well, I'll not have you bulling in on the rights of the general manager of your social department, Brad Bardin because the day you do, any excuse for my further existence as the Bardin hostess will vanish and I'll be headed down the aisle with one of those ukulele-playing, wise-cracking, gilded young nincompoops in my social set."

"This," said the king, "is treason."

"If this be treason, make the most of it," she challenged. "You've introduced me to the realest man I've ever met and now you plan to keep me away from him. Haven't I any rights?"

"This is all wrong," the king blustered. "If you please, Muriel, we'll not discuss the subject further. You may invite him if you please. I shall offer no objection and shall make him welcome. But I warn you he will not accept the invitation."

"Why?"

"Because he's as wise as a treeful I'd fire him if he accepted. It would be presuming on her acquaintance."

"I've met him—and when I invite him he'll come. Of course, as a mere rider he'd mount that first horse of his and get out of the country before presuming to on brief acquaintance, but as your general manager he'll feel he's stepped up a bit in the social world."

"I'm afraid you're right," said the king. "Stupid, your interested in this boy?"

"Are you?"

"Certainly."

"Why?"

"If you're no seriously interested of course—"

"I am seriously interested—sufficiently so, at any rate, to do my best to prevent him from spilling his rather nice hands in human blood."

I'm all worn out," the king growled and immediately rose and went to bed. In the realization that his daughter had canvassed him he was profoundly irritated and disturbed. In a word, he felt like a dog caught eating eggs.

El Ranchito had its own lighting system and a 110-candle power light burned over the entrance to the ranch office. Ken Burney searched through desks until he found a package of thumb tacks, whereupon he went outside and posted on the bulletin board the formal notice of his appointment as general manager. After which, he retired to Art Graydon's private office, sat down on the cot prepared there and drew off his boots. For a long time he sat there, considering the various aspects of the abrupt about-face which life had executed for him within the past four days, when there came a peremptory knock at the outer entrance. Ken padded across in his bare feet and found Tom Bledsoe standing in the entrance.

"Come in, Mr. Bledsoe," he invited the riding boss cheerfully. "I've been anticipating a visit from you, b'G., not quite so soon. I figured we'd have a conference in the morning, but since it's the mere chunk of the evening now we'll fly at it."

Bledsoe came in and sat down on Graydon's desk. "I was setting in front o' the bunkhouse, Mr. Burney, when I saw Brice came into the office; then I saw Brice come out an' tack somethin' on the bullet'n board, so I drifted over to read what Brice had tacked there. Then I made up my mind to call."

"And present to me your resignation as riding boss, eh?"

"They gets me mighty quick," Tom re answered.

"And I dispose of your resignation just as quickly, Bledsoe. It's rejected. You're too good a man to leave the king's service and too old a man to go prowling around the sovereign state of New Mexico looking for another job. I doubt if you would find one as good as theone you wish to resign, and certainly you'll not find one with any decent future to it. So my orders to you are to withhold your resignation for about sixty days. By that time I will have completed my tour of service as general manager and you can come over and take a notice of your own on that bulletin board. However, I believe in liberty, and if you insist on resigning, I suppose I'll have to get a new riding boss, but I warn you that, once you're out, you'll stay out."

Tom Bledsoe's dour face commenced to slip. Slowly a glad smile lighted it. "Thee means that, Mr. Burney?"

"Certainly. Haven't you known the king long enough to know that he never explains. He acts. And haven't you known him long enough to know he's just? He knows you're capable and that, by reason of long and faithful service, you have earned promotion. You are going to get it. He told me so tonight. I'm just here to plant Martin Bruce and Mikkel Gallegos beneath the cactus and grama grass and as soon as that job is done I'll be on my way, although I must inform you, Brother Bledsoe, that I desire to do so I can remain indefinitely, and you'll be moved off to manage some small ranch or a line camp."

"I want no small job an' I want no charity, Mr. Burney."

"I understand. You want your rights and you figure El Ranchito part of them. At present, however, cleaning up El Ranchito so it will be on the paying basis it should be is a job that would be repugnant to you, and the king knows it. So I'm to clean it up for you and after that it will run along under your management like a new red buggy."

Tom Bledsoe held out his hand. "I'm obliged to thee, young man."

"Not at all."

Perhaps thee might need help on this cleaning job, Mr. Burney?"

"Yes, I'll require some help. I'll want about thirty good men who can shoot and aren't afraid to. They may have to do battle down in El Cajon Bonita, although I shall try to avoid that. However, I shall have to make a demonstration."

The Quaker's face had set again. "I will find thee such men, Mr. Burney, an' I will go with thee—for war or demonstration. It is not sinful to protect that which is thine."

Burney stared at the man. "Whose herd I r'ar his sony f'ling, eh?"

Tom Bledsoe nodded. He was of the old school of cowmen. His employer's joys, sorrows and perplexities were his too.

"Ever inch to ride down into El Cajon Bonita and clean out this Bruce-Gallegos fac'on, Mr. Bledsoe?"

"I tell thee that. It would have been my first ac's general manager."

"How for, mate you and I have so quickly gotten to an understanding, Mr. Bledsoe."

"The general manager calls me Tom, Mr. Burney."

"Tom goes with me. Where can you find me thirty good men and true?"

"They will be thine own men, Mr. Burney. Old hands."

"I understand Gallegos has not, as yet, done anything openly overt; that he merely looks dangerous. Do you know that he and his men brand our calves?"

"Yes."

"How do you know?"

BLAME THE GUM

IN GASOLENE

WHEN YOUR VALVES GET STUCK

KOOLMOTOR GASOLENE

is free from harmful gum

When you're going up a hill or trying to get away quickly in traffic and you step on the gas with poor response—don't blame your engine for the way it struggles—

Blame the gum in gasolene—that's what has stuck your valves and robbed your motor of its power.

Then—change to Koolmotor Gasolene—the gas from which harmful gum has been removed. A special process—the mini-gum process—enables Cities Service experts to reduce the gum content in Koolmotor Gasolene to a harmless minimum.

When you use Koolmotor Gasolene your valves are kept clean and free-moving. They are not held back by sticky, gummy deposits. You get full compression and full power.

Your nearest Cities Service station or dealer will serve you courteously with this powerful, clean-burning motor fuel—Koolmotor, the original high test, anti-knock green gas.

PICTON DOCTOR TO SEEK HONORS

Dr. Currie May Replace Benson as Liberal Candidate

(Special to Ontario Intelligencer)

Picton, May 30.—A great deal of interest was taken in the Conservative Convention held Thursday afternoon to select a candidate as the contest for the nomination was especially keen. Mr. Hepburn, who was chosen, is well known for his war services and is an ex-M.P. The Liberals have selected Mr. W. H. Benson as their candidate and the fight in Prince Edward promises to be a keen one as both candidates are very popular and both parties are well organized.

There is some talk in town that Mr. Benson will resign and that Dr. Morley Currie, ex-M.P., who was defeated in 1917 by Mr. Hepburn, after he had been elected four times, will run. From Ivan Liberals when interviewed by the correspondent would neither confirm nor deny the remark.

Dr. G. W. Mordon Napanee, was in town on Thursday.

Tomato plants are now being set out in the fields. A large acreage is controlled for this year and if the crop is a good one the many factories here will have to run to capacity. Farmers are buying more labor saving machinery than ever. One dealer reports tractors and transplanters are especially in demand.

Mrs. Grover Allison, Oshawa, is spending some days in Picton.

Mr. Ross Hill has gone to Ogdensburg to join his boat for the season.

Mr. A. E. Fryer, Tofonto, has purchased Mrs. Blanche Hughe's farm at Bloomfield.

Mrs. Herbert Carson has returned to Toronto.

Mr. A. Reid, of Ormsby, is the new railway section man at Hillier. His family moved to Hillier this week.

The Picton baseball game which was to have been played at Tweed last Wednesday was postponed. The locals were advised that Tweed would be unable to play that day. Tweed plays Picton here next Wednesday afternoon.

Unestimated Damage Caused When Frost Nips Plants, Vines "Island" County Escapes Havoc

Ice as Thick as Plate Glass Formed in Some Sections of this County—Gardeners Suffer.

"Skallyhooling," as Service would put it, across the sky, Belleville last night was treated to one of the most gorgeous displays of the Aurora Boreal is seen in years. Over the entire northern sky, starting from eleven o'clock and gradually increasing in brilliancy until midnight when they slowly faded away, the northern lights danced and shimmered for an entire hour, shaming any fireworks display.

Some maintain that when the north ern lights are so much in evidence a change of weather is near. This would mean a warmer spring. The other school however holds that the "lights" mean that frost is about to strike the vicinity. It did.

The latter school was correct. Last nigg county last night suffered a severe frost, causing untold damage to tender tomato plants and bean plants. Speaking to the press this morning, T. W. Bamford, one of the largest market gardeners in the district, stated that he had suffered heavily from the frost. "I lost a large number of tomato plants," he said, "as well as bean plants. But the greatest loss of all as far as I am concerned is the killing of my marrows, squash and pumpkins, which I was growing for display at the fair this fall. I lost practically all of them." Mr. Bamford stated that some of his neighbors were just as unfortunate as he was.

Lew Johns, another truck gardener, on a large scale, was heavily hit by the frost also. He lost tomato and bean plants, as well as some peppers.

"Anything that wasn't covered," he said, "would be touched by frost and killed."

Reports from different section of Hastings this morning tend to show that the entire county was hard hit.

Seriously enough, Prince Edward County seems to have escaped the frost. One farmer from Consecon said that as far as he knows there was no frost in the entire county. "It was pretty chilly last night," he said, "but I did not have any of my plants covered and they were not touched by frost. None of my neighbors suffered any loss, either."

Another market gardener, hailing from Rossmore, said that they were not bothered by frost in his vicinity. "Of course," he said, "the reason might be that we are so close to the water, but I have not heard of any section of Prince Edward that suffered from frost."

Guessing the Frost Damage

Hundreds of thousand s of tender plants suffered in various parts of Hastin gs.

Ice formed to the thic kness of plate glass in some sections.

Cloudless sky, and still lness without wind marked the descent of frost o n the market gardens and farms.

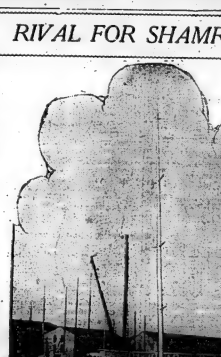
Autumn fairs will suf fer in their exhibitions-of plants through the frost damage for vegetables grown for competition w ere ruthlessly bitten by the icy visitant as well as the humbler plants destined for human consum ption alone.

Official readings from the pumphouse last night showed that the mercury touched freezing point. The readings are forty-two above for a high, at nine o'clock this morning, and thirty-six degrees above for a low, reached shortly after midnight. The pump-house is situated right on the water, and it was undoubtedly colder in the northern section of the country.

One farmer east of Belleville, was reported this morning as having lost twenty-five thousand tomato plants, practically his entire output. These plants were not insured and he will have a total loss.

Writs Issued for General Election

July 28th Parliament is Dissolved



Ottawa, May 31.—In final flourish of eye-filling elegance accomplished in finel handshakes of farewell and felicitations wrung, the 16th Parliament of Canada passed into history last night and the country was thrown into the hurly-burly of a general election.

Seated in the person-draped Speaker's chair of the Senate, surrounded by his glittering aides-de-camp Viscount Willingdon performed at 10:2(o'clock his official functions as the King's representative, reading the Speech from the Throne and giving the formal royal assent to some 350 or more bills, the work of the session.

Later, in the privacy of the Speaker's office, he signed the orders-in-council placed in his hands by Premier Mackenzie King authorizing the proclamation of Parliament's dissolution and the issuance of the writs for a general election on July 28.

As is their prerogative on opening and closing days, a few women sat in the Senators' places. But lacking was the brilliant array of evening gowns that feature an opening. Fashion struck not now in afternoon or street wear. Only a few Senators were present, while the faithful Commons crowded in confusion at the bar of the House. Galleries crowded to their utmost saw the House of Commons finish its business at 9.30 o'clock and attain thereby, with a comfortable margin of time the goal set for it yesterday by its leaders. Perhaps the commoners were worn down by the through sitting without dinner recess which they endured as an earlier announcement forecast.

RIVAL FOR SHAMROCK

Above is the racing contender, "Ya nkee," one of the four yachts built by our neighbors to compete for hon ors to race Sir Thomas Lipton's yacht, "Shamrock V." The mast of the Yan kee was stepped a few days ago and is 185 feet long and is hollow.

CONSERVATIVES AND LIBERALS WILL ENUMERATE

Liberal Enumerators List Is Completed And Names Announced

R. O'S INSTRUCTIONS

Conservative List Completed About Noon Today

In order to provide a correct Dominion voters' list for the coming election, enumerators have been appointed both by the Conservative and Liberal parties and every voter in the Dominion will be registered. In other elections the Provincial lists were used with additional by voters registering. This will be the first Dominion list in many years. So that the lists will be exact a Conservative enumerator will accompany a Liberal enumerator on his rounds and the lists will be doubly checked. The work of collecting the lists will commence on Monday next.

The city has been divided into wards and there has been appointed by both parties an enumerator for each. The Liberal organization have appointed their enumerators and these will meet this afternoon at the Liberal Club rooms for instructions by the Returning Officer and be handed their papers, which are to be filled in and returned to the Returning Officer. The Conservatives have not completed their list of enumerators but the full list will be obtainable the first of the week. The enumerators for the Conservative Party will meet in their club rooms this afternoon at two o'clock and receive their instructions. The list of Liberal enumerators are as follows:

HUGE WOLF STROLLS INTO FIELD WITH MAN

The wolves have by no means left Montcalm township, Mr. Wallace Rutledge reports seeing one in the field where he was working the other day. The monster strolled out of the woods into the field where he was harrowing, coming as close as thirty yards away, says the Bancroft Times.

HALF HOLIDAY ON TUESDAY, JUNE 3RD.

Mr. Charles E. Hanna, president of the Retail Merchants Association, explained to The Ontario Intelligencer that the half holiday next week will be on the third of June instead of on Wednesday, June 4th. Hereafter Wednesday afternoon half-holidays will be observed throughout whether there is another half-holiday in the week or not.

"Red" Hill Conquers Niagara's Pool was Twice Near Point of Tragedy

Niagara Falls, Ont., May 31.—William "Red" Hill, veteran riverman and daredevil, added another stunt to his already long list, Friday afternoon, when he went through the rapids in a barrel from the Maid of the Mist landing to Queenston docks. The trip took from 1.25 p.m. until 6.10.

Twice it seemed that he would never complete the trip, once between the two bridges and at the whirlpool. Many people seeing him swirl continuously round and round, left the banks, fearing there was no chance of escape for him. But when he finally completed the trip, he was received by cheering thousands at the Queenston dock. Beyond a cut on his right wrist he escaped unscathed.

MEMBERS HURRY TO HOMES FOR ELECTIONS

Official Nomination July 21st—House Speaker Lemieux Given Tribute by All Parties.

OTTAWA, May 31—CP—Halls of Parliament are today comparatively deserted. With the Sixteenth Parliament dissolved only a few hours, already members are hurrying home to prepare for the election to be held on July 28th. It is in strange contrast to the strenuous pace of the past few days, especially yesterday when the House of Commons with a deadline set for midnight, plunged through departmental estimates. Realizing that the estimates must be passed, that prorogation and dissolution must take place and election writs must be issued before midnight so the election might be held on the appointed day, the Commons bent to the task with will. Millions of dollars were voted in about as many seconds as it takes to tell about it. Item after item was approved as quickly as read by the Deputy Speaker of the House. Under the agreement of all parties, when the House re-handed for the afternoon session, it remained in session until all business was completed and prorogation performed.

Official nomination day will be on Monday, July 21, one week before election day.

Ottawa, May 31—CP— Speaker of the House of Commons since 1922 and member since 1896, Hon. Rudolphe Lemieux received a tribute from all parties just before the session broke up last night. In thanking the leaders of the parties for their expressions of gratitude, Mr. Lemieux probably spoke his last words as Speaker for it is customary to change the Speaker when a new parliament is elected.

BREAKS INTO JAIL SLAYS NEGRO, SUSPECT

Chickasha, Okla. May 31 (CP)— Henry Argo, negro, accused of attacking a white woman, was shot to death in Grady County jail early today by a member of the mob who is said to have slipped into the jail despite the guard at the door.

London, May 31 (CP)—The King had so far recovered from a recent illness with rheumatism, he made plans to leave Buckingham Palace tomorrow with the Queen to attend a concert by the New York Philharmonic Symphony Orchestra.

PICTON CHILD LOSES HIS LIFE

Run Down on Street, Bruce Hill Lives Only Few Minutes

Bruce Hill, tired 6 years, son of Mr and Mrs. Reginald Hill, Picton, died last evening as the result of a motor accident. The lad lived but a few minutes after being struck by a motor car driven by Charles A. Wright Manager of the Royal Bank at Picton. The latter was returning to town and did not see the boy, who ran across the road, just as the car reached the spot where he was playing. The driver stopped and rushed the injured lad to the office of Dr. Charles A. Pulbow, where he expired. Coroner Dr. O. A. Whiteman has ordered an inquest.

CADET DANCE

Socially successful in every way, the cadets of Belleville Collegiate Institute and Vocational School were hosts at a charming dance given in the gymnasium of the new school last night. One of the largest crowds ever to attend a social function at the collegiate was on hand last night and excellent music was supplied by Tommy Byrnes and his orchestra. This will be the last dance given by the collegiate this year.

DELIGHTFUL SOCIAL EVENING.

Anglican young people of this district including delegations from Tweed Roslin, Picton, Wellington and other points enjoyed a social evening at the Moose auditorium last night. The evening was devoted to cards and dancing with the Bon Ton Orchestra supplying the music. Mr. Jackson of the Canadian National Railways spoke to the young people on the advisability of an excursion to Rochester via Cobourg. Both Christ Church and St. Thomas' Anglican Young Peoples' Associations were well represented at the gathering which was one of the most successful ever held here.

DEGREE WORK AT ORANGE

The evening of May 29th was enjoyed by the members of L.O.L. 295, Tyendinaga, when the Royal Arch degree was conferred. Members of the order were present from Foxboro, Plainfield, Hillaway, Belleville and neighboring districts. The degree was most ably conferred under the direction of the Wor. Master Bro. W. Good fellow, assisted by the Past Master from the neighboring lodges. After the business of the evening was concluded, the visitors were treated to a small lunch before leaving for home.

Red Hill Conquers Whirlpool

thorities. Hill in the early morning hours took his barrel across the river and hid it near the upper bridge on the American side. At 1.15 he suddenly appeared and, quickly climbing inside, was towed out into the middle of the river where the rope was cut. He started to drift swiftly down the river and had gone a considerable distance when he was caught in a great eddy which swirled him far back up the river.

Try as he could, for an hour and three-quarters, he could not get out into the swift current, and it was only after ropes had been attached to the barrel and towed several hundred feet down the river that he could make headway.

Once in the middle of the river and currents, he was borne swiftly toward Lake Ontario. In 90 second from the time he struck the current he rocked into the whirlpool. Even in the great vortex he was not in much danger at first. He swirled around several times and then headed in toward the shore. When he felt the barrel touch rocks, he opened the lid and was examined by Dr. Davidson, who pronounced him fit and well.

His mother spent all afternoon in the aerial car over the whirlpool watching the first stunt she had ever seen her son perform. The women feared the worst and groundless rumors that his mangled body had been taken out at the whirlpool raised their fears to fever point. They sobbed in joy as Hill rose in his barrel, pushing the lid open, waving to them as he reached Queenston.

Hill wore a sweater and across his chest medals which he won overseas as well as three other medals for life saving. Hill has taken 117 bodies out of the Niagara and there were people here yesterday who feared that someone else would have that task for him.

Just 20 years ago Hill first performed the feat of going through the rapids. At that time he "borrowed" the barrel used by Bobby Leach in his stunt and went down as far as the whirlpool, where the lid came off and only the efforts of friends prevented his death.

When Hill first got into difficulty between the upper and lower bridges his helpers tried to persuade him to give up the trip, but he was insistent and persisted in continuing.

NOISE CALLED FOE OF WORKER'S EFFICIENCY CUT

Ten Per Cent Loss Caused in Efficiency in Noisy Office

WHAT EXPERTS SAY

New York—Girls lose nearly 10 per cent of their efficiency in a noisy office. The stupider their speech just about as susceptible, but scientists have not tested him as fully. These findings were reported to the American Acoustical Society at a symposium of noise. John S. Parkinson, of Johns Manville, gave reports of two concerns that the efficiency of their clerks increased respectively 10.4 per cent and 8 per cent by reducing the noise in their offices.

The amount of noise reduction was about the same as the difference between listening to street sounds with the head thrust out of a living room window, and while standing far back from the window. The clerks did more jobs per day and made 42 per cent less mistakes. They were mostly girls. The noises were of the ordinary office variety, including typewriters.

There are places of comparative quiet in the midst of all the noise of the skyscraper sections of New York and Chicago. The very best of these are the bottom floors of the setback portions of skyscrapers. Next best are the floors higher than the tops of surrounding buildings. The reason for the partial quiet in both cases is the same, and is the latest discovery in noise investigation.

The parallel walls of buildings facing on opposite sides of the street, like the sides of canyons, carry the surface sound almost undiminished clear to their tops. For example, Mr. Parkinson said, the tenth floor by actual test in such streets is no quieter than the street level. But the moment a floor rises above this canyon top the street sounds mostly abruptly. In their place is a blanket of sound, the rumble of the whole city nearby, but subdued. This carpet of sound lies uniformly everywhere close above the roofs. No one knows how high above the city it extends. Mr. Parkinson said that its top is not anywhere near reached at the 41st floor of the New York Life Building here, the highest point yet tested.

There are now at least two methods of shutting out street noise without closing the window. One is with particular boxes which are set in an open window and present an air ring sound to pass through tortuous passages lined with sound absorbing material. Mr. Parkinson said this method is expensive in noise reduction is omitting the window entirely. The other method which he said is two-thirds as efficient as closing the window is a baffle board somewhat like the familiar ventilator across the bottom sill, except that the baffle is curved. The boldest vehicles, in order of their rank at making properties, were shown in steeled units, one decked being the amount of change in noise that a human ear can just recognize. Aeroplane 115 decibles, subway 96, elevated 93, street car 75 except at crossings where it reaks 78. 5 and so just noses out motor trucks which rate 76 flat.

Five herds of elephants will be worked by Miss Betty Stevens, Alice Felky and Irene Watts, greatest of all women elephant trainers. These charming and daring ladies make these big brutes snap into a routine that a few years ago was considered impossible, and offers everything from a Charleston contest to a jungle tango.

Sells Floto program is absolutely new from start to finish this season and includes the great Cervantes troupe of acrobats, the Jellettes and the Adonis troupes of thrilling aerial stars; the Schwarz Sisters, famous German riding act; Kobelo, the funny Jap, who walks upstairs on his head; Mabel Pelkey, the dazzling lady gymnast, and the Flying Wards, providing many of the thrills of the circus. The 52 den menagerie is filled with rare and strange beasts of the jungle. And, of course, the Sells Floto Circus Clowns will be here and that means fun galore.

Tom Mix and Tony appear at every performance of the Sells Floto Circus. Matinee and night shows will be given here.

STEER PLOUGHS UP BROADWAY

Battles Another Steer in Horror and is Finally Killed with Gun

New York—He must have been an out-of-town steer because he made right for Broadway when he broke loose the other day from his pen on the Hudson waterfront. Thirty-ninth street is a westbound thoroughfare, but he didn't even stop to explain to traffic cops that he was a gentleman here himself. Disregarding the arrows and the lights he ploughed Broadwayward with the determination of 11 tourists on the loose, police whistling and honking motor horns adding just a little restful pilip to the exhilaration he was enjoying.

Once on Broadway, with a joyful snort, he started a parade. It's an old New York custom for mounted cops to lead parades, but they didn't lead this one. They couldn't even catch up with it. At 35th street he decided Broadway was over-rated, and headed east. Then he spied the tailoring establishment of Bartanis Brothers, with a window full of those nice light flannels to which a young man's fancy lightly turns in spring.

While the Bartanins fled in terror, the steer walked right in through the plate glass window. Somewhat clumsily and to their detriment, he investigated two large sewing machines and a pressing table. He had just finished a wow of a scrap with another steer in a big mirror when a man came along with a gun. And that's about all, except that there's one prodigal son who'll never be going back home from the gay White Way.

Use Miller's Worm Powders and the battle against worms is won These powders correct the morbid conditions of the stomach which nourish worms, and these destructive parasites cannot exist after they come in contact with the medicine. The worms are digested by the powders and are speedily evacuated with other refuse from the bowels. Soundness is imparted to the organs and the health of the child steadily improves.

TORONTO, May 20—We are unifying the whole Hydro System into a few major power zones. By linking up the system in this way, such as the Niagara System, Georgian Bay System, Nipissing System, will come specific benefits to the municipalities concerned," Hydro Commissioner Alfred Maguire said, when the above despatch was brought to his attention last evening.

WEDDED COUPLE ARE RECIPIENTS OF MANY GIFTS

A jolly crowd gathered at the home of Mr. John Ketcheson, Roslin, in honor of his daughter, Edna, and presented her with a beautiful dinner table. The address was read by Miss Nettie Delyea as follows:

Dear Mr. and Mrs. Ashley:—Your many friends have been pleased to learn that you have entered into the Holy Bonds of Matrimony. We felt we could not let this opportunity pass without expressing our good will and appreciation of your many good qualities. So we are assembled here this evening to extend to you our very best wishes for the continuance of a happy and prosperous life in your new home in Rawdon.

We take this opportunity of presenting to you this Dinner Table and trust that you may regard it not for its intrinsic value, but as a memorial of the best wishes of your friends and neighbors.

Signed on behalf of the community,
Mrs. Wm. Weir,
Mrs. H. Chisholm.

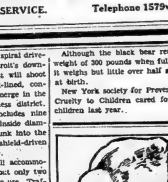
OFFERS ROUTE INTO CANADA

New 25 Million Dollar Tunnel Fulfils Old Dream

Detroit, Mich.—After this fall, the American traveler who wishes to cross into Canada from Detroit—as many an American traveler will—may have his choice of underground, bridge or water routes. By that time the new $25,000,000 tunnel, 100 feet below the bed of the Detroit river, separating Detroit and Windsor, Ont., will be completed, fulfilling a 50-year-old dream.

Last November a new bridge between the two cities—and countries—was opened to traffic as an alternative method of crossing to that ferries which have been operating for years and on which millions of Americans have crossed since Canada became a popular vacationing ground. The tunnel, offering a third choice of route, is now nearly complete.

Entering it, by way of a spiral driveway in the heart of Detroit's downtown section, the motorist will shoot through a mile of steel-lined, concrete-encased tube and emerge in the heart of Windsor's business district. The tunnel structure includes nine sections, each 31 feet in inside diameter, built on land and sunk into the river bottom, with a shield-driven land section on each side.



The tunnel roadway will accommodate three traffic lanes, but only two of them will be in regular use. Traffic will be handled according to the method used in the Holland tunnel, New York. At each end is a ventilating building, each housing 12 huge fans. There will also be a customs building at either end.

An Oil that "s Prized Everywhere.—Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil was put upon the market without any flourish over fifty years ago. It was put up to meet the wants of a small section, but as soon as its merits became known it had a whole continent for a field, and it is now known and prized throughout this continent. There is nothing equal to it.

Eagles build their nests of huge limbs and sticks and often construct homes weighing nearly a ton.

Although the black bear reaches a weight of 300 pounds when full grown it weighs but little over half a pound at birth.

New York society for Prevention of Cruelty to Children cared for 18,000 children last year.

GUIDES HELD LAST MEETING

Fine Work Done During Year Under Direction of Mrs. Branscombe

The Third Belleville Girl Guides held their closing meeting on May 21, after a season of good work. The average attendance has been 60. During the winter five skaters' badges were won — one artist's — one clerk's — and one toymaker's, besides the second and first class tests passed. The Guides earned money for new hats this year by collecting and selling papers, home-made cooking sale, and thrift shops. Those who have done the necessary work go to camp from July 2-16.

At Christmas, Company Three gave a tree and gifts and an evening's entertainment to the Home for the Aged and also filled two requests — one for gifts for the Babies' Home in Neerzath, India. The other for gifts for a family in Northern Ontario. Then magazines to Labrador for long winter evenings — and old silk stockings for the hooked rug work there among the Livers. All of which gave a very Happy Christmas to Belleville Guides and I feel sure added joy to their indefatigable chaplain, Mrs. Branscombe.

OBITUARY

MRS. C. S. GEEN

Thomasburg, May 31 (By Mail — There passed away on Thursday, May 22nd, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. C. J. Carleton, Mrs. Elizabeth Geen, relict of the late C. S. Geen, who predeceased her eighteen years. Mrs. Geen was in her eighty-fourth year. She had a most kind and sympathetic disposition, ready at all times with a kind word for everyone. She was a member of the Anglican church to which she was loyally devoted. Mrs. Geen leaves to mourn her loss, two daughters, Mrs. C. J. Carleton, Thomasburg; Mrs. G. A. Morton, Belleville; four sons, Albert and Murney, of Thomasburg; John, of Fuller; Charles of Hawkesbury.

The funeral was held from her home to Christ Church, Thomasburg, on Saturday afternoon at two o'clock. The large assemblage of mourners and sympathising friends was striking evidence of the popularity of the deceased. The services were conducted by Rev. F. A. Smith, assisted by Rev. A. L. Geen. The following floral tributes were received: Heart, Mrs. C. J. Carleton, Mr. and Mrs. Murney Geen and family; Spray, Mr. and Mrs. John Geen, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Geen, Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Morton, Mrs. H. J. Wood, Mr. and Mrs. Champlains and sons, Mr. and Mrs. H. Mouck and Miss Nettie Mouck, Mr. and Mrs. G. F. Bishop, Mr. and Mrs. Ritchie Geen and Mrs. R. S. Rutherford. The flower bearers were, Everett Geen, Harry Geen, Stanley Geen and Billie Bishop. Interment was made in Thomasburg cemetery, the bearers being, Messrs. Albert Beatty, Elisha Maynes, Albert Porter, Henry Blakely, James Brown and Wesley Morton.

Bayside

Bayside, May 31 (By Mail).—Nearly every farmer's wife on this street is prepared to keep tourists this season, it is said that two million tourists passed through Belleville last summer.

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Jenner are moving into Mrs. Palmer's home at Avon dale.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Morrison and family and Jack Gunian, of Hamilton, Mr. Andrew Gunian and his mother also Mr. and Mrs. Geo. M. Clapp spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Harold Steinburgh, of Wooler.

The Toronto Star Weekly says: — The merging of the City of Belleville and Town of Trenton into one municipality is foreseen as a possible sequel to the decision of the Dept. of Nation al Defense to build the shores of the Bay of Quinte between the two places. Already the intervening ten miles of the township of Sidney are being rapidly settled by new residents and business houses.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Yateman, Second Dunbar, Mr. and Mrs. Sidney, and Mr. and Mrs. R. Yateman, of Bayside, were recent visitors at Mr. H. Rose's.

Mr. Jarrett," who publishes the Quinte Sun, of Trenton, gave a fine address on "The Back Door of Canada", at the Rotary Club at the Quinte House, Trenton. Mr. Jarrett has travelled extensively on the Hudson Bay route and in Northern Ontario and sees great possibilities in this route in the future as being the short way to Europe via the Hudson Bay. President Ralph Bonter occupied the chair.

Mr. and Mrs. Miggison are moving to their new home adjoining Wilkie's church.

Mr. Harrison, formerly of Bayside, but who now lives at Redmerville, has purchased a farm, tractor.

Mrs. Bowler, of Trenton and others had their tulip beds destroyed by thieves recently.

Insect pests, according to the U.S. Department of Agriculture, do more than $2,000,000,000 worth of damage in this country annually.

TOOK BIRD FOUR DAYS TO ESCAPE

Had to Spril 23 Stories to Get Over Top of Hollow Building

Chicago—The bird has flown and quite a few staid financiers in the 23-story State Bank Building in the La Salle Street district can now go back to work without further ado.

The building is in the shape of a hollow square. Into this square the bird, believed to be a brown thrush, flew only to find there was not enough room between the building's four walls for it to spiral 23 stories to safety, and it was until four days later that it finally was able to wing its way over the top. Policemen, firemen and other had tried to rescue the bird before it solved its own problem.

But the big stock and bond men, the insurance brokers and the investment bankers who had spent hours watching the rescue efforts learned that a wren had been caught during the night in the same predicament as the thrush but had been unable to escape. The wren was found dead at the bottom of the square by a janitor.

RADIO FANS CORNER

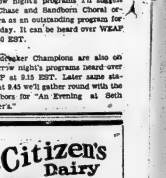
Well the reception last night wasn't a good example of reception at its best but I suppose seeing that we had such a good night Wednesday we can't expect anything so good for quite a while.

Like to line up a week end of good programs so tonight let's start out on the right foot by listening in to Amos 'n' Andy first per usual then the Dixie Circus which will give incidents in the life of a circus family, a clown and circus band under the direction of Ludwig Laurier too. This program will be heard over WJZ at 7 EST.

Also from WJZ and at 9.30 EST we can listen in to the Dutch Masters' Minstrels and hear Carson Robertson tickle that banjo of his and all the wisecracks of Paul Dumont and Al Bernard, end men.

At 7.30 EST the Del Monte program from WEAF and the guest stars will be Bernice Claire and Walter Pidgeon the stars of "Toast of the Legion". Other attractions during this program will be a chorus of mixed voices and an orchestra under the direction of Emil Polak.

B. A. Rolfe and his Lucky Strike orchestra at nine of course over WEAF and following immediately after the Ponce Sisters, Ethel and Dorothea, a vocal and instrumental duo.



Chic Sale will be the guest tomorrow night on the Liberty Bell Pilling Station program which will be heard over the Columbia system WABC and chain at 7.45 EST, Same station at 9 EST Will Rogers is scheduled for a half hour's fun.

While we're on the subject of tomorrow night's programs I'll suggest the Chase and Sandborn Choral orchestra as an outstanding program for that day. It can be heard over WEAF at 7.30 EST.

Sweepstaker Champions are also on tomorrow night's programs heard over WEAF at 9.15 EST. Later same station at 9.45 we'll gather round with the neighbors for "An Evening at Seth Parker's."

MOTORS LIKE BEER BOTTLES IN NEW PLANE

Rocket-Propelled Plane Will Shoot Up 40,000 Feet, Says Inventor

650 MILES HOUR

Berlin—A tiny motor about as big as a beer bottle, with characteristics of both a blast furnace and a refrigerator, may solve ocean flying, believes Dr. Paul Heylandt, liquid gas authority. Heylandt and Max Valier rocket car pioneer, believe their experiments will lead to development of a special type of rocket-propelled plane which will shoot up 40,000 feet and travel at 650 miles an hour.

The motor, an elongated, pistol-shaped drum of heavy steel", is a one-cylinder, valveless contraption, devoid of pistons or other movable parts. Into the front end liquid oxygen is sprayed while into the further end, near the exhaust, liquid fuel, such as wood alcohol benzine, gasoline, or even fuel oil is injected.

At the entrance points of both components into the motor there are spraying attachments which diffuse the liquids over the entire hollow inside. The liquid fuel is ignited as it comes in contact with the liquid oxygen .The result is a continuous, steady combustion which produces a recoil of 220 horse-power with a motor of only 11 pounds. The best German automobile motors produce only about half a horse-power of propulsive energy per pound.

As the two components explode, they emit a steady stream of smokeless, scotless fire about a yard long. The noise is deafening, and easily greater than that of the 12 motors of Dornier's "Do X" combined. The heat at the exhaust is such that, when Valier during one demonstration did not mix the two components correctly, the exhaust simply melted away. Cold produced by the liquid air is such that the conducting pipes accumulate a thick coat of frost.

"Our experiments with the rocket car are only a step toward our real goal a motor for aeroplanes intended to go up into the stratosphere," Dr. Heylandt observed. "One essential thing is that both components are so separated as to avert all danger of explosion.

"The rocket car will never be a practical proposition except for racing purposes." Dr. Heylandt stated. "Naturally, no police authorities could stand for a car making such a noise and powered as fast as a rocket car .to be economically efficient. must speed. As soon as possible, there fore, we must to experiment with a rocket plane."

BAD LUCK CAR KILLS DRIVER

Six in One Crash in 500 Mile Speedway Race

Speedway, Indianapolis, Ind.—Paul Marshall, Indianapolis mechanic in Dusenberg No. 36, in the annual 500-mile speedway race, died Friday afternoon of injuries suffered when the car hurdled a concrete wall and rolled from the track on the 44th lap.

Cy Marshall was expected to die of injuries suffered in the crash.

Marshall was an Indianapolis driver and qualified at 100.846 miles an hour. His was the unlucky thirteenth car to go out of the race, and the eleventh to figure in a bad wreck.

Cy Marshall suffered broken jaws and other injuries according to first reports from the hospital. The car went clear over the wall and rolled over.

Six cars piled up on the twentieth lap when "Red" Roberts, driving relief for Pete De Paolo in Dusenberg No. 5 went into a spin on the northeast turn in the eighteenth annual 500-mile speed race here. The other five crashed into De Paolo and all were thrown out of the race.

The Maserati 16-cylinder car, driven by Borzacchini, one of the pre-race favorites was first to be eliminated from competition. Spark plug trouble was given as the reason for withdrawal.

ENTER FORBIDDEN GATES OF OLD SAMARKAND TO WRITE

Foreign Scribes Gain Permits to Enter Ancient City

Samarkand, Russian Turkestan.—For the first time in modern history, a group of foreigners, newspaper correspondents have been permitted to enter the forbidden gates of Samarkand. Brushing aside all barriers which heretofore have existed against non-Russians traveling in Asiatic Russia which borders India, China, Afghanistan and Persia, the Soviet government allowed the egresspondents to see all the marvelous sights of Tamerlane's ancient citadel now the capital of Uzbekistan, a Soviet republic.

The writers and their wives attracted widespread attention from the Mohammedan natives, few of whom had ever before seen a foreigner. The local government authorities furnished special guides to show the visitors all the crumbling monuments of Samarkand's ancient splendor and glory. These include the famous Mosque of Bibi Khanum which Tamerlane built in honor of his favorite wife; the famous divinity school of Shir Dar, the magnificent registan or public square which the late Lord Curzon pronounced the noblest public place in either the ancient or modern world and other memorials of the conquest of Ghengis Khan and Tamerlane.

The foreign journalists had just come from the opening of the Turkestan-Siberian railroad line at Aina Bulak and a long tour of the Kazakistan Soviet republic which took them through regions of Central Asia untraversed by Europeans since the days of Marco Polo and other distinguished foreign travelers. As two powerful locomotives pulled the correspondents' special train across the wide steppes of Kazakistan which is area is almost as large as the whole of Europe, antelopes and other sporting game sped across the plain in terror. At every station groups of Kazak warriors, descendants of the hordes of Genghis Khan and Tamerlane, mounted on fine horses, camels and bullocks, greeted the foreign visitors whom they appeared to regard with mingled awe and apprehension.

At Alma Ata, capital of Kazakistan, the visitors saw the house in which Leon Trotzky, one-time Red army leader, spent two years exile before his deportation to Turkey more than a year ago. The inhabitants still spoke on Trotzky's stay in whispered tones. They also witnessed a thrilling exhibition of horsemanship by nomad men and women of the plains and the mounted Red army frontier guards.

Raynor Construction Co. Complete New Roads at Wellington

(Special to The Ontario Intelligencer)

Picton, May 30—The Raynor Construction Company has completed laying the new street at Wellington and has also paved East Main Street. Work is now being done on the Wauspoon and White Chapel roads. This Company will have soon completed the contracts here.

A very fine musical program was given in Picton United Church Wednesday evening, when the Welsh Imperial Players gave a harvest concert here. Their excellent program was enjoyed by a large crowd. R. Evlyn Davies is the conductor of this world-famous group.

Mr. Carman Burr was Hoostes at the Kiwanis Club meeting Wednesday night, and gave an excellent talk on the Insurance business.

Mrs Orcha Noble of Syracuse, N. Y. is visiting her mother, Mrs. Lillian Noble, and Miss Daisy Noble.

The Picton W.C.T.U. have donated $25 to the Deaconess Fund.

Decations to the Children's Shelter at Picton this week include a box of clothing from the Waupoos Women's Institute; books from Mrs. Joseph Brown and two lawn seats from Mrs. Donald Brown of Bloomfield. The Shelter is being improved and will soon be completely finished.

MAN BATTLES OLD FOE STILL

Insect Hordes in North Africa Costly to Mankind

Algiers—Man's age old fight with the insect hordes of Africa, a struggle in which he has sometimes come out second best, is a perennial combat in this region. Each year an army of men, armed with flame-throwers and chemicals, attacks and defeats tremendous masses of grasshoppers. The next year they must fight the battle all over again.

Although the hoppers, which are totally true locusts, have been descending upon the grain fields of Algiers, Egypt and Palestine since the dawn of history and made 1930 no exception to their rule of invasion, their life habits are not yet fully understood. One school of scientific thought believes that because they breed amid the sparse vegetation of wild areas they seek new pastures when that is devoured, taking to the air when the young attain wings, in such numbers as to cloud the sun.

Another theory is that the migratory instinct is preliminary to maturity. When that stage is reached the insects settle, breed and feed. Those who hold to this theory assert that the hoppers do not stop for food and then resume flight, but quit the air only when instinct bids them. Organization of a scientific campaign, world-wide in scope, is proposed as the only effective answer by Paul Vayssiere, of the Entomological Station at Paris and member of the national committee for the Study of Calamities.

Algeria alone spent a million dollars fighting grasshoppers in 1928 and 60,000 civilians and three regiments of troops formed skirmish lines along the Mediterranean coast during the height of the fall invasion of the insects. Since then the pests have descended upon the cotton fields of Egypt, crossed the Sinai peninsula and attacked the farms of Palestine.

Flame-throwers, used exactly as in war, have been successful in Algiers. Soldiers with tanks on their backs sometimes burn thick carpets of grass hoppers that cover several square miles. An older method, still used, is to erect mile-long barricades of metal sheets to direct the advancing pests towards deep trenches and boxes where burning saline or chemical kills them.

In some places natives advance with a strip of canvas a yard or so wide and several hundred feet long, driving it constantly to force the grasshoppers into trenches. So far the annual ravages by the pests have been a mere elaboration of old native methods. Vayssiere, therefore, urges a scientific study of the grasshoppers' customs and origin with a view to having world co-operation.

He says the pest affects not only northern Africa, but South and Central America, southern and southeastern Europe and parts of Asia Minor. It used also to attack the prairie wheat lands of the United States, but advancing cultivation destroyed its breeding grounds.

HALLOWAY W. M. S.

The regular meeting of the Halloway W.M.S. was held at the church on Wednesday, May 21st, and opened by singing hymn number 153 "Rescue The Perishing." After repeating the Lord's Prayer in unison the Scripture Lesson from St. John 2: 10,18, was read by Miss Myrtle Reid. Hymn No. 230 "Showers of Blessing" was sung and a reading, "A Tea Ceremony" was given by Mrs. Harry Townsend. The roll call was responded to by eight members and the minutes of the last meeting read and approved. A letter was read, which had been received from Mr. M. Craig thanking Halloway W.M.S. for assistance given them after the burning of their home. Collection amounted to 86 cents. Next meeting will be held at the church and some quilts quilted. A rainbow tea is to be held at the home of Mrs. Watson Reid early in June.

Mrs. Erneng Wilson closed the meeting with the benediction, after singing a verse of "There Is Work to Do For Jesus."

JUNE 3RD BIKE RACE INTERESTS NUMBER RIDERS

Young Racers Will Receive Very Generous Time Allowance

C.G.E. TEAM IN RELAY

The more experienced riders who compete in the Y.M.C.A. Trenton to Belleville Bicycle Race will need to look to their laurels this year. Last year's race was evidence of the fact that the younger and less experienced riders were not given sufficient time allowance to give them a chance against their more experienced opponents. Such will not be the case on Tuesday, however, as the officials in charge will see to it that the youngsters who have courage to tackle the ride are given better than a fair chance of winning some of the honors.

The prizes by the way will be worth while going after. There will be four in number, three prize prizes and one prize for the best time made in the race. Siers Limited local sports goods dealer and member of the Y's Mens' Club is donating an all wool lifeguard bathing suit which will go to the winner of first place. In addition to that he is giving a steel fishing rod to the rider making the best time. For second and third place winners, the Deseon Shirt Company will contribute a wind breaker and shirt. In event of the entry being sufficient large to warrant it, additional prizes will be added but unless the entry exceeds that of last year it is felt by the committee that four prizes is sufficient offering for the event.

C.G.E. TEAM IN RELAY

Contrary to expectations an entry was received at the Y.M.C.A. yesterday morning from the Canadian General Electric Athletic Club of Peterboro for the Trenton to Belleville Relay on the 3rd June. This Club were winners of the Walker Trophy last year but from the information received at the Y a couple of weeks ago, the local committee were of the opinion that they would not be represented in this year's race. With the assurance of an entry by last year's winners there is the likelihood of having two teams from Peterboro, the Y.M.C.A. also planning to bring down a team. From Trenton comes the word they will have two teams for the relay, the Scouts composing one and the other representing the Trenton High School. These along with the Belleville Collegiate Team, the team made up of public school boys and a Y team gives a promise of making the race an interesting event. Here it not for the fact that they have their annual field day on the same date the School for the Deaf would have entered a team.

LAWN TENNIS

BY WILLARD CROCKER

IX.-THE BACKHAND

The backhand shot is the mirror image of the forehand. Everything should be carried out to conform to laws of the forehand. Reverse proportions are the measure. The grip most easily taken is so placed the thumb up the handle of the racket, pointing towards the trademark. This will show the racket to be swung easily parallel to the ground and also allow the face of the racket to be perpendicular to the ground. The ball is met slightly in front of the body, on the rise. The right foot is forward and the weight starts from the left foot and travels forward onto the right. The body must be facing in a direction parallel to the net and never directly facing the net. This point is the commonest cause of faulty backhand strokes, when the player fails to turn far enough around to take his stroke. You must get that right foot in front and face in a direction parallel to the net. The rules of follow through are distinctly those of the forehand. Let your racket continue until the full swing is completed and never let your opponent see the back side of your racket. The two strokes to cultivate on the back hand are the crosscourt and straight down the sideline shots. The first into area No. 3 and the latter in area No. 1 on the opponents forehand corner. Always swing freely and confidently. Do not let the usual inferiority complex develop concerning your backhand. Concentrate with confidence.

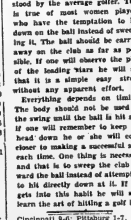
YOUTH VICTORIOUS IN AUTO CLASSIC

Billy Arnold Averages 100 Miles An Hour At Indianapolis

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., May 31—A boy just 21 years old, with determination written all over his youthful face, won the 500-mile automobile race at the Indianapolis motor speedway yesterday and a pot of gold worth $55,150.

With a record smashing crowd of 170,000 cheering him to victory, Billy Arnold of Chicago, the triumphant youngster, leading all the way except the first two laps, and making only one stop, won the race with a lead of ten miles, in 4,58.29.72, averaging 100.448 miles an hour.



William (Cliberty) Cantlon of Detroit, finished second, three laps behind the speeding Chicago youngster; Louis Schneider of Indianapolis was third, five laps behind the winner. Another Louie, Louie Meyer of South Gate, Cal., winner of the race in 1928, was fourth, with "Wild Bill" Cummings of Indianapolis fifth.

Just Fourteen Finish

Fourteen of the original 33 starters survived to finish due to an unprecedented series of casualties, which resulted in the tragic death of one contestant. The victim was Paul Marshall of Detroit, riding as a mechanician for his brother, Cy Marshall of Indianapolis. The accident in which their car figured was one of several that occurred on the treacherous north turn of the two and a half miles brick oval. The fatalities and injury to two other entrants and eliminating 17 other cars from the race.

Marshall met his death when their car, speeding at the rate of 100 miles an hour, crashed into a retaining wall at the banked curve of the track. Instead of coming out of the slide the car plunged up the track and bounded over upside down, falling 25 feet to the ground below. The mechanic was pinned beneath the racer, but his brother was catapulted free of the wreckage. The mechanic sustained a fractured skull and other injuries, from which he died a short time after reaching the hospital. His brother had a broken jaw and other injuries, but his condition tonight was said to be improving.

PICTORIAL GOLF INSTRUCTION
(BY R. B. MARTIN)

The Iron Club Sweep is a Valuable Stroke to Master

Iron club play is little understood by the average golfer. This is true of most women players who have the temptation to hit down on the ball instead of sweeping it. The ball should be carried away on the club as far as possible. If one will observe the play of the leading stars he will see that it is a simple easy stroke without any apparent effort.

Everything depends on timing. The body should not be used in the swing until the ball is hit and if one will remember to keep the head down he or she will come closer to making a successful shot each time. One thing is necessary and that is to sweep the club toward the ball instead of attempting to hit directly down at it. If one gets into this habit he will soon learn the art of hitting a good ball.

THE GIRL Plays the Game

By— Clotilda A. Crail

We hope no one had a bet on the game—but right, because if they did they certainly didn't make any money on it. The National Maids and the Frontenacs gave the fans a fine exhibition and lots of thrills just as was predicted in this column yesterday, but as far as deciding which team was the best, they didn't. Honors were shared equally both in errors, good plays, batting and scoring. The game ended 18-18, and the several hundred fans who lined the armouries lawn saw one of the tightest games play'd there in a long time.

Perhaps both teams should be judged leniently on the number of errors they made, because for the Frontenacs it was the first game of the year and for the National Maids the second. After all you cannot expect the girls to play perfect softball at the beginning of the season, but nevertheless the errors were many and serious. The National Maids infield was responsible for not a few of the Frontenac's runs and in the second innings the latter team gained only less than three counters through fumbles and overthrows. In the sixth the National Maids again came to the batting right and their errors gave the Frontenacs the lead once again.

The Frontenacs were right there with the goods at the beginning of the game when putting their four best clouters up to bat first they scored as many runs without a put-out. The innings ended 5-0 for them. The second innings again started off badly for the National Maids and their opponents gained four more runs. They came to life however in their half of the innings and after two home runs and a two base hit made respectively by Mary Greenleaf, Laura Melchior and Ada Hull, the score was reduced to 9-5 for the Frontenacs. In the third innings both teams played carefully with the result that only one runs were obtained by the Frontenacs and three by the Nationals. The fourth innings was the lucky one for the sometime Beavers and after the dust had cleared eight runs had crossed the plate to the Frontenacs' score and the score reversed 16-11 in their favor. Not to be outdone the Frontenacs continued the see-saw affair and netted five runs in the fifth through errors and bad playing on their opponents part and the score was tied, but in their half of the innings the Nationals obtained another counter and again forged ahead. The sixth and final innings was full of thrills, both teams playing cautiously. Few errors were made and the Frontenacs after a hard struggle succeeded in getting two runners across the plate which put them one run ahead. In their last chance to bat the National Maids needed but one to tie the score and two to win. Marie Genereaux first to bat hit a nice single, Ada Hull and Molly Gray were both fielded out, Genereaux meanwhile crossed the plate on an error. L. Melchior batted safely and the game ended when Pearl Tuttle was out at first. So ended a game packed full of excitement and a share of both good and bad plays.

A word for the pitchers. Molly Gray for the National Maids put up her usual good performance but she at no time troubled the experienced batters on the Frontenac team, who hit heavily all through the game. Norma Cooke, newcomer in the softball field put up a creditable performance for her first appearance. She has a nice little speed and with more practice will be able to put them over every time. She tired in the fifth and was replaced by Edna Smith who pitched steadily for the remainder of the game.

The National Maids new uniforms are certainly the nicest things that have ever been on the armouries lawn. The large number of fans at the game were favorably impressed and the girls all looked snappy and neat in their outfits. The bright colours of blue and red in the uniforms are very attractive.

ARGYLLS WENT TO BARRIEFIELD

150 Officers And Men Left At Noon Today For Camp

One hundred and fifty strong, officers and men of the Argyll Light Infantry left by bus today for Barriefield camp, near Kingston, where they will remain under canvas for the next three days, probably returning on Monday night.

Headed by Lieutenant Colonel Eric Kreiser, eighteen officers are accompanying their O. C. on the trip. These include: second in command, Major R. A. Green; Major Gilmour, Adjutant; Lieut. Quick, assistant adjutant; Major J. V. Doyle, Quartermaster; Major B. Gribble, Major Alford, Captain Robert Jones and Major Green, company commanders, Captain Tidswell, signallers; the following "Bevieenala also went—Lieuts. Carl Carson, T. Webster, Fred Lasier, J. Howard, J. Silvers, J. Heggerty, Frank Lougheed and Milton Davidson.

The band will not accompany the regiment on its trip to Barriefield. Instead, the regiment took the "Kilties" with it.

KINGSTON, Ont., May 31—CP — Three units of infantry, the Princess of Wales Own Rifles of Kingston, the Argyll Light Infantry of Belleville and the Brockville Rifles, went into camp at Barriefield here this afternoon and will remain there until the evening of June 3rd. In all over 500 men ing of June 3rd. In all over 500 men ing held in order that the many members of the infantry regiments to get training for infantry competition.

Watch U. S. Money!

Great are radio and the newspapers yesterday a radio newspaper flash from the Toronto Telegram sounded a warning against taking American money, without close scrutiny, as tens and twenties were being passed which upon close examination proved to be one and two-dollar U. S. bills cleverly raised with the aid of tobacco revenue stamps

A Belleville barber heard the broadcast and was duly impressed. Later in the evening a stranger entered the barber shop and had a shave tendering a twenty-dollar U.S. note.

"A-Wa! A-Wa! A-Wa!! as Amos would say, the barber suspicioned at once that his twenty-dollar customer might be trying to "shove the query.

"Sorry, I cannot change that," said the barber.

"What am I going to do?" said the stranger.

"Go out and get it changed," said the barber.

As the stranger left the shop he reached for his overcoat, but the barber suggested that he leave it there until he returned. He did so and returned in half an hour with a five dollar bill which the barber closely scrutinized before giving change. The stranger said he was just passing thru and expected to catch a train for Montreal in a few minutes.

He may have been all right but the barber was not taking chances.

Raised ties and twenties have been passed in Toronto, Oshawa and Montreal and counterfeit U. S. notes are being passed in various places.

Prince Edward County Contest

A letter was received at the Y.M.C.A. today from a member of the staff of the Picton Gazette announcing the Picton to Wellington Road Race to take place on July 1. This event it is understood will be a relay similar to the June third event from Trenton to Belleville. The writer was enquiring as to the possibility of local teams competing in the event and stated it was a part of the programme which Wellington are putting on in connection with a celebration and dedication of a new war memorial.

CAR BREAKS THROUGH IRON RAILINGS

At eleven o'clock last night, the police received a call to the corner of West Moira street and Cedar street, where a car owned by Frank Nolan, 82 Station street, had gone over the sidewalk breaking the iron railing, which protects the walk. The front wheels were down in the ditch and the rear wheels on the sidewalk. When the police arrived the owner of the car had gone and the car was removed to Grill's garage.

Motor Car Was Bumped

Yesterday afternoon at the corner of Bridge and Front streets, two cars were in a collision. George Cornell, 79 South John street, was travelling north on Front street followed by Mr. B. Cowper, 259 Charles street. Apparently the light went on and Cornell stopped in front without giving warning. The bumper on Cooper's car was bent and the rear left fender on the Cornell car was crumpled. Constable Evans investigated but the parties implicated came to no settlement.

TRENTON SUFFER DEFEAT IN RAY OF QUINTE LOOP

Tweed Dropped Out of League Owing to The Heavy Expense

(Special by Staff Reporter)

TRENTON, Ont., May 31.—Trenton's C.F.B. baseball team again was snowed under by Point Anne last evening in the local's first home game. The score, as near as the statistician were able to figure it, was 23 to 3 for Point Anne, and only seven innings were played.

Trenton used four pitchers in an effort to stop the avalanche of runs being scored against them, but it was no use. There seems to be a great dearth of pitching material in Trenton, and it was as much wildness and inability to field that was anything else that cost Trenton the game. Point Anne scored six runs in the first inning, and added the winner in the fourth when ten runners, jogged around the basse. In the fifth and sixth, the Fairmont boys added to whatever came across, in order to hasten the end of the game, and then, just to show that they could do it if they had to they only threw runs in in the seventh, the last inning.

Tweed has already dropped out of the Bay of Quinte League, owing to the heavy expense involved and poor support being given them, and it looks as though Trenton would be next, for there was hardly a score of fans on hand yesterday afternoon. Of course, the game was not widely advertised owing to the lack of time, it being postponed game from last Wednesday, and the weather was bad for best half, but little interest seems to be taken in the game in these parts.

Twig Woodley of Belleville, umpired the game, and Dave Tierney and Art Ritchie of Trenton, handled the bases. The line-ups—

Point Anne, E. Green, 2b; Caulin as; F. Goyer, c; J. Kerr, 3b; M. Green cf; W. Strahan rf; Pointer p; Hutchings lf; Bennett 1b.

Trenton—H. Long, 1b; M. Kennedy as; A. Scarivi, 3b; C. Cook, 2b; c; Bernard rf; Anderson, p; Wells cf; Mazzuca, c; Miller lf; W. McWhirter cf.

The next game on the schedule for Trenton is at Picton on June 6th, next Wednesday.

Poor Crowds at Softball Games

(Special by Staff Reporter)

TRENTON, Ont., May 31—Although the weather during the past week has interfered with the crowds attending, the Town softball league has been as busy as usual. On Thursday evening Gun Co. R. softball team decisively defeated the L.O.L. in a loosely played contest, and retained the leadership of the league. Although the Continentals came out on top of the Benedict Proctor team to the tune of 31 to 8. When weather conditions are such as expected that the large crowds of last summer will be on hand to witness these games, which are both fast and interesting.

Regiment Will Go Under Canvas

(Special by Staff Reporter)

TRENTON, Ont., May 31.—Four companies of the 57th Regiment will go into active training at Barriefield on July 5th and will remain there for two weeks, it has been announced in local circles. A company is stationed at Cobourg under Major R. E. Drope, another is at Kingston, under Major H. Price, the third is at Norwood, under command of Capt. C. O'Connor Fenton, and the fourth at Campbellford, under Major K. Bygott. Considerable drill has been done within the past month, and the troops are expected to make a good showing at the camp.

JUNIOR FARMERS PLAN SPORTS DAY

(Special by Staff Reporter)

TRENTON, Ont., May 31.—The Junior Farmers of Hastings, Prince Edward, Northumbriand, Durham, Peterborough, Lennox and Addington will hold their annual Field Day at Presqu'ile Point on July 4th. It has been decided. Preparations for the affair are already under way, and it promises to be an even greater success than it has been in past years.

BAYSIDE COUPLE MARK 55 YEARS MARRIED LIFE

Mr. And Mrs. H. Garrison Were Feted By Relatives

(Special by Staff Reporter)

TRENTON, Ont., May 31—Mr. and Mrs. H. Garrison of Bayside, recently celebrated the fifty-fifth anniversary of their wedding, and on Saturday last Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Townsend, of Holloway, entertained about thirty guests in their honour. Mr. and Mrs. Garrison are enjoying the best of health even though they are both advancing in age, and thoroughly enjoyed the occasion. Mrs. Palmer of Chatterton, a sister of the bride, who was bridesmaid at the wedding fifty-five years ago, was also present to celebrate the event.

The table, with dainty refreshments, had as its large storey cake in the middle with fifty-five yellow candles which presented a beautiful appearance when lighted. The colour scheme was carried out in yellow and white, tulips of these colours being placed all through the house. Many gifts were presented to the happy couple, and it was all a complete surprise to them, as they had not expected to spend the day with their daughter, Mrs. Townsend.

Other guests present included Mr. and Mrs. J. Garrison, Mr. and Mrs. A. Pinkle and Mr. and Mrs. S. Pinkle all of Belleville.

FORMER TRENTON MAN VICTIM OF BAD MUSHROOMS

(Special by Staff Reporter)

TRENTON, Ont., May 31.—News of the death in a Toronto hospital of Archie Alexander Nugent, a former resident of this town, came as a distinct shock to his many friends. Mr. Nugent, who is a brother of Clement Nugent, of the Front of Sidney, left Trenton some twenty years ago to the day, and, but he made visits while back to his old home town, and was well known and respected. Mr. Nugent was a victim of poisoned mushrooms which must have been a poisonous variety of mushrooms, and was ill only a short time. He died Thursday night last week. His mother and his son, both of whom also ate some of the mushrooms, although still ill, are reported to be better, and recover, doctors state. Deceased was born in Rawdon Township, near Wellman's Corners, and the remains will likely be brought back to Hastings County for interment.

ARE DISPUTING BURIAL

Body of Robert Hester Lies in Vault Pending Decision

Kingston, May 31.—The body of Robert Hunter, 79-year-old farmer, who died on May 19, is still lying in a vault in a Protestant cemetery, waiting for the dispute as to where it shall be buried is settled between his widow and his son. Three affidavits filed yesterday, support an injunction restraining the widow and her daughter from claiming the remains.

For most of his life Mr. Hunter was a prominent member and master of an Orange Lodge. Shortly before his death, however, he was converted to the Catholic faith. The affidavits filed yesterday seek to prove that he was not in his right mind at the time of the conversion.

FOUND DEAD ON BEACH

Mrs. Elsie Poole Had Been Missing From Home Two Days

Oshawa, May 31.—The body of Elsie E. Poole, wife of Arthur R. Poole, 99 Clifton Road, Toronto, was discovered on the beach of Lake Ontario, south of Pickering. Mrs. Poole had been missing from her home since last Wednesday, when she drove away in her car and the authorities are inclined to the belief that she drowned herself. She had been in poor health for some time. It is reported.

Mrs. Poole's car was noticed parked on a side road leading to the lake early yesterday morning and when it was still there last night, the police were notified. A woman's coat, hat and spectacles were found close to the car. Pickering police notified the Toronto authorities and learned that Mrs. Poole was missing.

RACER KILLS SPECTATORS

Four Dead, 20 Injured as Auto Plunges Into Grandstand

Winchester, Ind., May 31.—Four persons were killed and twenty injured, two probably fatally, yesterday, when a racing car on the dirt speedway here plunged over the south turn into the grandstand. Those killed were, T. F. Hale, aged 60 years, Middletown, Ind.; Ray Bird, aged about 35, Richmond, Ind.; Malcomb Jennings, aged about 30, farmer, of near Winchester, and John Edward Gaughan, aged 6, of Muncie, Ind.

Pern Kizer of Winchester, suffered injuries about the head, and physicians at the Winchester Hospital did not expect him to live.

Details of the accident were not immediately obtainable nor was the name of the race driver. His car, the "Silver Bullet," plunged into the crowd on the second lap of the second race of the day's program. The driver was slightly hurt, but aided in lifting the racer to release persons pinned beneath it, and then pushed it back on the track.

A spectator reported that a woman, believed to be Mrs. John Mohler, of Muncie, Ind., saved her baby from probable injury by tossing him into the air several feet over the heads of the crowd to safety. Mrs. Mohler's husband was among the injured.

HORSEMEN HERE FOR BIG MEET

Three Fine Purses Arranged For 2.12, 2.18, and 2.24 Classes

With the approach of the holiday on Tuesday, horsemen with their charges are beginning to drop into the city for the meet and the stables at the fair grounds present an animated appearance. Three races will be given on Tuesday, 2.12 class, 2.18 class and 2.24 class, all with purses of $300.00. This race meet is eagerly looked forward to by the horse lovers in this district and it is expected some of the best horses in training will be on hand. Many of the high class horses are on their way east for the big stakes in Quebec and the Maritime Provinces but are stopping over here to try and get a little out money. Yesterday "Vic" Chapman came in with three, one for each class. Two of them being top notchers. They are Gentry Todd, who raced with fine success in the old fall and summer and Bud Grattan, the sensational pacer formerly owned by Dr. Benson of this city who raised him and gave the colt his early training. The colt was sold last fall at the Dufferin to J. T. Whitley of Toronto for $2500.00. Dr. Whitley of Coderich is shipping a large stable here and also Fred Lowe, member of parliament for Simcoe. It is a question whether any local horses will be started as they have not received sufficient work yet. Eddie Jones of Peterboro will ship in Monday with a string as will other Peterboro owners. "Sandy" Waldie of Cobourg will be in with two Dustless Grattan and Ideal Grattan. The racing will start at 2 o'clock and Ald. George O. Tice will be in the stand. With fair and warm weather which is promised the Agricultural Society is looking forward to a splendid attendance.

NOTED DOCTOR COMES

Lord Moynihan will Officiate at Banting Laboratories

Toronto, May 31.—The new Banting laboratories for medical research, at the University of Toronto, will be officially opened September 16 and 17 by Lord Moynihan, president of the Royal College of Surgeons, who has arranged his visit to Canada in order to officiate. This was announced by Dean Alexander Primrose of the faculty of medicine to the medical alumni of the university at their annual dinner in the Royal York last night.

Dean Primrose said that he felt proud of Canada's accomplishment in getting the Royal College of Surgeons to hold primary examinations in this country every year. When speaking to Sir Hobart Waring of that body in London last January, Dr. Primrose was told that no matter how few students tried the examinations, men will be sent here to conduct them despite the enormous expense entailed.

"COPYRIGHT AND FOR SALE IN BOOK FORM AT ALL BOOK STORES"

On two different occasions when the geese were leaving here at five p.m. I telegraphed the C.P.R. agent at Stralak, Ontario, Canada (a small city about forty miles north-west of Sudbury, Ontario, or about four hundred and fifty miles north of my home. On both occasions I got returns before nine o'clock the next morning. My first reply was "Geese are crossing at Metagama." The next year, under similar conditions, the reply read, "Geese are passing at Spanish Forks and at Pogamasking." These three stations are on the main line of the C.P.R., about seventy to ninety miles north-west of Sudbury. All these three particular points the railroad is running nearly straight north and I doubt very much if the geese would be over four miles each of their east-and-west lines on their northern trip the two different years.

During the same period of time I have a list received from their winter home along what I called the south-east Atlantic Coast.

The following are the names and addresses of the gentlemen in the South who have reported the wild geese.

1. J. Lewis L., Lewark, Neg Head, Dare County, N.C.

2. Irvin Smith, Littleton, R. No. 4, N.C.

3. C. S. Boomer, Swan Quarter, N.C.

4. L. T. Johnson, Mamie, N.C.

5. Dr. J. G. Baum, Pines Island Club, Currick Sound, N.C.

6. E. W. Brumley, Woodligh, Currick County, N.C.

7. C. E. Topping, Jr., Box 76, R. 1, Swan Quarters, N.C.

8. J. C. Brisio, Richmond, Virginia.

9. Linden Archibald, Kennedy, Maryland.

10. Oliver T. Crammer, West Creek Ocean County, N.J.

I have received odd letters that have become mislaid, but besides what are quoted above, have had letters from the following addresses:

Guss P. Stunks, Lacrosse, Ind.; W. F. Sheridden, New Holland, N.C.; Geo. Checchoo, James Bay; Marshall I. Bradshaw, Tyleton, Md.; C. A. Ulmer, Rose Bay, N.C., (two tags); Francis Clark, Pine Island Club, Poplar Branch, N.C.; L./O. Turford, Powells Point, N.C.; William Solomon, Albany River, Hudson Bay; Haywood Whitehead, Townsend, Va. (two tags); Arch. Purdy, Hamilton Inlet, Labrador; M. C. Britt, Elizabeth City, N.C.; Simon Alisalbe, Sr., James Bay (five geese); Peter Hinlaiy, James Bay (one goose); James Oschgan, James Bay (one goose); E. C. Hallman, Tangier, Va.; Harry F. Smith, Holland, Mich; S. Archibald, Salt Water Lake, near James Bay, Ontario; (Hudson Bay Agent), Great Whale River, Ontario (two tags); E. Renouf, Port George Post, James Bay District (five tags).

I am here reproducing one letter from the South which gives us a fair explanation as to when the geese come to, and leave, their winter home.

Swan Quarter, N.C.
Nov. 15th, 1917.

Dear Sir,—

I killed a goose yesterday, the 14th of Nov., on the Lake of Matmoostate, Hyde Co., N.C., with a band on his left leg with your address on it. It said, "Write to Box 48, Kingsville, Ont." So as your request I am taking pleasure in doing so. Inside of metal band was a Bible verse; it said: "Keep yourselves in the love of God. Jude 1:21." You will please write me and tell me how you caught the geese, and when you put same on him and all about the geese in Canada, and their raising there. They come on our lakes about Oct. 15th, and stay here until March 15th. Then they all leave and go north to places unknown to us. Lake Matmoostate is a great place for hunting geese. There were about three hundred killed the day that I killed this one. Will close. Write me soon and a long letter, and tell me all you know about them.

With best wishes for you and yours, I am,

Yours very truly,
C. S. Boomer.

One of the most recent and interesting of the letters I have received is the following:

Hudson's Bay Service,
James Bay District, Canada,
Port George Post,
July 26th, 1913.
via Matlice, Ontario.

Dear Mr. Miner,—

I am enclosing herewith five tags taken off geese killed by my hunters in the vicinity of this post this year.

Should you ever desire further information I shall ever be glad to assist you in the excellent work which you are doing, to the best of my ability.

I am, however, rather afraid that some of the birds which recruse to your sanctuary are lulled there into a greater trust in mankind than is well for their continued well-being, as undoubtedly some of these birds, on leaving the sanctuary you afford them, fall very easy victims to gunners.

With great appreciation, I beg to remain.

Sincerely yours,
E. Renouf.

In 1910, Mr. Salisbury, of Toronto, one of our Canadian explorers, was in Baffin Land. There he ran across some Esquimaux with a goose that had my tag on it. They were superstitious about the goose, but when Mr. Salisbury explained it to them, they tore its skin off, and ate the goose, raw. This is away north of timber line, where the Esquimaux eat their meat raw. The dot on the map showing the migration of the geese, away to the north of Hudson Bay, is where Mr. Salisbury pointed out the place to me on his map.

CHAPTER XXIX.

Catching and Tagging the Wild Geese

This was a proposition that tested my staying qualities to a standstill, although it is true I had tagged lots of smaller birds, including the wild duck; but that was like coasting easily from a baby, too easy to be interesting.

Yes, someone has said, "the silly old goose!" But bear in mind that it is through this silly old goose's ability to outwit the human race that there is one living; we would have killed and eaten them all long ago, but they outwitted us and went over the top. So if they are silly, what is our number, if you please?

Well, silly or not, it took my little, single-cylinder brain over seven years to outwit them. Actually it stands them more than I did my financial obligations, and that's saying a whole lot. Very true, they will allow me to walk among them, and odd, wounded ones have eaten from my hand. But don't hold him, or interfere with his liberties as one note from his beak will alarm all the geese within a mile.

In November, 1919, there were fifty-five decks feeding here and when I pulled the trip-wire I caught fifty of them; but the "silly old goose" would walk by and say "A-h-h! A-h-h!" and my family would say "Ha! Ha!" The variety of contrivances I made during these seven years and the letters there were on my hands during that time, caused from cutting and hitting gas-pipe frames and trap doors and stretching poultry netting over the same, are blisters I will long remember. Then to see the geese come, glance at it and walk away, would make any human being feel small enough to pass a ferret in a gun-barrel. In fact this got to be a family joke. Little Jasper said, "Pope how many goose nels are you going to make this summer?" Yes, I am a believer in the words "Let man have dominion over all," but in this case I have surely been a poor actor.

At last a thought germinated that proved a success. I dug a canal forty feet wide and sixty feet long between two ponds. This canal was made at the mouth of the drain tile that supplies the ponds with spring water, the last water to freeze and the first to thaw out. A high gas pipe frame was built to cover the whole canal, with a trap-door at each end. This was neatly covered with two-inch mesh poultry netting, stretched good and tight to prevent it bagging and flapping in the wind. The trap-doors were left constantly up and our concentrated grain were educated to winter under this, in the open water at the mouth of this drain tile. This contrivance is at the north pond where the geese remain quite wild.

It was completed in December, 1921, and March, 1922, found me away from home on a lecturing tour. When I opened a letter from my boy saying, "Father, your goose-net is a success; we saw fully twenty-five following ours under, this morning," can you really blame me for reading it twice? In a week or so I arrived home and was greeted with these cheering words, "Father, there were dozens of geese feeding under the net last night. We are feeding shelled corn and wheat under the net and the wild geese go under without ours leading the way." Early the next morning I was up at dawn, and quite excited, for I was up in the little "chicken-story" long before the geese arrived from the lake; but sure enough when they came fully forty went under to feed. And they were just as good as caught, for my previous experience have taught me how to make a trap door that works to perfection. Just pictures, if possible, the way I was stepping around! Here I had been seven years catching one hundred and nine geese, and no two bunches were caught alike: in other words, every catch was an experimental failure! But now I am going to catch them by the hundreds. Yet I could not pull the trap-doors while the big flock is here, to frighten them all.

WHAT IS PARKING, OFFICIALS QUERY

Word Not Connected with Motor Vehicles Cause Confusion

Hamilton, May 31.—"Parking" as applied to motor cars, is perhaps one of the most commonly used words in the lexicon of contemporary speech. Certainly it gets plenty of plan in city hall circles. Yet, how many people are there who are prepared to state the exact definition of the word? Even supreme court judges admit inability to define its meaning. If a despatch from Sarnia can be accepted as proof. There, during the course of a court action, Justice Logie asked the question, "What is parking?" Judge John A. Barron, of Stratford, a reputed authority on traffic matters and author of a thick volume entitled Canadian Law of Motor Vehicles, admitted not knowing the meaning of the word. The former thought the word was synonymous with the term "parking artillery," making "parking" more of a permanent stop than merely a brief or sudden halt.

J. A. Pelton, assistant city solicitor who prepared the most recent draft of local traffic regulations, when asked at this morning for a definition of the word, gave what he said must be legally accepted as having a local application, the following, which he quoted from the city bylaw:

"Park, or 'parking,' when applied to a vehicle shall mean the stopping of such vehicle is permitted to stand for the duration of the time authorized by this bylaw at the stands assigned by section 3."

This section specifies the different stands assigned to commercial cars and stands throughout the city.

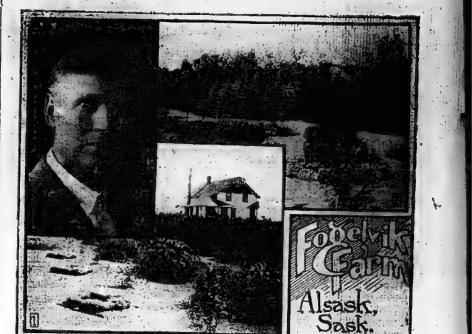
No Precedent

Mr. Pulton, in the course of gaining further enlightenment as to the meaning of the word "parking," looked up the dictionary and found a dictionary dealing with King's English. The word is given no application to motor vehicles whatsoever, though it does state that "park" is a space in the rear of an army occupied by artillery."

The word is known to be of old Anglo-Saxon derivation," Mr. Polson stated, "and no doubt was originally applied to the King's game reserve. The newest or accepted meaning of the word must have come through the channel of artillery."

Ald. T. Lewington, chairman of the civic traffic committee, said that so far as Hamilton was concerned, "parking" means a limit of 20 minutes for a car to remain in any one place, which is designated "no parking" area.

WOMEN ARE STILL ENTITLED TO COMPETE



Berlin, May 31. (CP).—The Olympic Congress defeated a motion to prevent women from participating in Olympic sports with the exception of gymnastics, swimming, tennis and skating. The women will be allowed to continue to take part in the regular track and Olympic games. The congress decided the duration of the Olympic games at Los Angeles would be sixteen days.

ORDINATION SERVICE

Cobourg, May 31.—Eight young men are to be received into full connection in the Bay of Quinte Conference this year. George F. Fish, William D. Craig, Wesley C. Smith, A. Morris Wootten, and Orloff R. Flyndall will be ordained here next Sunday by the President of the Conference. Rev. Edward Wilson Wallace, Chancellor of Victoria University, will preach at this service. W. J. Byers, Donald C. Gordon and Albert M. J. Gray, members of the Bay of Quinte Conference will be ordained by a Western Conference.

FIRST CANADIAN ENTRANT TO THE WORLD'S GRAIN EXHIBITION

Andred Anderson (inset) of Fogelvik Farm, Alsask, Sask., shares the honor with William Hudson of Kathryn, Alberta, for being the first entrant to the competitive classes of the World's Grain Exhibition and Conference to be held at Regina in 1932. Both applications arrived in the same mail. Picture No. 1 shows the farm home of Mr. and Mrs. Anderson, while No. 2 is a view of the grove and gardens surrounding the house, Mr. Anderson and Mr. Anderson farms 4,340 acres. In 1910, Mr. Anderson left Sweden and migrated to Canada in search of cheap land. Today he has a splendid farm and is one of the most successful farmers in the district.

PLEASURE YACHT HERE

En route to the Thousand Islands for a spring cruise, the pleasure yacht "Ean Soucie" hailing from Rochester, called at the port of Belleville today to take on provisions and fuel. Mr. Fisher stated that he had an excellent trip down Lake Ontario and through the Bay of Quinte from Toronto, encountering no rough weather, although it was rather cold.

BANKRUPTCY COURT

In Bankruptcy Court before Judge Fisher, N. D. Ponton, K.C., appeared for the Belleville Milling Company. He made a motion on behalf of R. J. PERMANENT CONCRETE HIGHWAYS

Concrete Highway in the Province of Quebec.

The Safest Roads of all to Drive on

How road-weary motorists welcome a clean smooth stretch of concrete highway. It at once spells relaxation, comfort, added safety.

At the same time, it means reduced fuel consumption, less wear and tear on tires and car . . . tangible economies particularly appreciated by commercial vehicle operators.

Concrete withstands the terrific grinding wear of modern traffic. Its upkeep costs are very low . . . so, where it predominates, budgets may be devoted almost en bloc to needed new mileage.

Ten Million Dollars a Mile

Chicago—A mile of pavement, that will cost $10,000,000, is under construction to link up Chicago's 30 miles of lakefront superhighway. It will connect the north shore drive with the south park boulevard system. This link, spanning the Chicago river, a ship canal, railroad yards, and docks, is expected to take 50,000 cars daily from over-burdened Michigan boulevard.

Objections of federal and state governments and scores of private owners were overcome. Permission to erect a viaduct over land and buildings were obtained. An engineering problem was to cut through 17 row of old warehouses. The non-stop lakefront highway now reaches 8,500 street numbers south, and 4,700 numbers on the north. Within the next three years it will reach Evanston, the northern city limit.

Completion of the highway to the city southern limits depends upon the speed with which new land is made along the lake front. Much of the outer drive south of the "loop" district is on land which a few years ago was lake floor. When north and south side outer drives are connected, motorists may speed through the city without running into the congested downtown district, or encountering the motorists thoroughfares of the west side.

French Budget Biggest Since Wartime Years

Paris—France has a round $2,000,000,000 budget this year, the biggest she has ever had if war expenses are excepted. In France this is $2,284,158,196 which figures roughly as $50 for each of the 40,000,000 people. This is about one-third more than the per capita expense of the United States Government. Half the French expense, however, is for war debts and reconstruction.

This budget was adopted after several months of wrangling. Although it is the biggest and is twice the gold value of prewar budgets, it marks the beginning of taxation deflation. Raymond Poincare, former premier, who was called to the rescue of the tumbling franc in 1926, demanded to load on some more taxes and chop off a lot of expenses. Until this year there have been no tax decreases, but now the burden is beginning to be lightened. Lower taxes probably will bring more revenue because the country is prosperous.

With the Young plan theoretically disposing of the war, the French Parliament has turned to social reforms that long have been contemplated but whose definite proposal always has been met with the answer: "Where is the money?" Premier Tardieu in his first ministry last winter, tried to maintain taxation at the old level and nurse along the sizeable surplus but parliament grew hungry for the money he wanted to save for reduction of debt and overthrew his government. He returned to power again but modified his financial views so that the budget barely balances now and the era of reduced taxes and increased social expenses has begun.

These social expenses are of many sorts increased pay for the vast army of functionaries higher pensions, eventual pensions for the great army of veterans, $30-a-year when they reach the age of 50 and $48 a year when they are 55. Disability calls for up to $50 a month. Tax reductions rest on stock market transactions, small business incomes, the taxe de luxe, farm incomes, coal, real estate transfers, hotel bills and similar things. To encourage tourists the head taxes for entering and leaving ports were abolished.

Aside from a vast plan of workmen's compensation and insurance to be made effective later by additional legislation, $268 legislation there is definite provision for $32,000,000 for school buildings, large appropriations for roads, and the eventual incorporation of 26,000 miles more of highways in the national system, cared for by the government.

Stage Set For Big Field Day

Marmora, May 30 (By Mail)—The fourth annual Dominion Day races promoted by the Deloro Amateur Athletic Association will be run off on July 1st. These races for which a section of the Marmora-Deloro highway supplies the course, are open to runners who have been residents of Hastings County since January 1st, 1930.

For the Senior race, the Kent Challenge Trophy is the award for the year's holding, with a replica cup for permanent possession. In 1927 and 1928 Charles Fairweather of old time was the winner, while Manley Emmory of Deloro secured the trophy last year. For this race, contestants must be under 21 years of age and for the Junior race, under 17 years of age on January 1st 1930.

The distances are approximately 6 and 3 miles respectively.

Further particulars will be gladly given to prospective contants by the Deloro Amateur Association.

HAD KIDNEY TROUBLE AND FOUND RELIEF

That's Why Mrs. L. Barroyae Recommends Dodd's Kidney Pills

She Suffered With Urinary Troubles—the After Effects of the "Flu"—Dodd's Kidney Pills Relieved Her

Hacketts Cove, N.S., May 26 (Special).—"I have been using Dodd's Kidney Pills for a long time," writes Mrs. L. Barroyne, a well known resident of this place. "I find them a splendid remedy for kidney trouble. I had been suffering with Urinary Trouble, the after effects of the 'Flu'. That has all disappeared now and I can thank Dodd's Kidney Pills for it. I would highly recommend them to anyone suffering with a similar trouble."

The reason Dodd's Kidney Pills have come to occupy such a prominent place in the family medicine chest is that so many of the ordinary every day ills come from sick kidneys. Rheumatism, Backache, Urinary Troubles, etc., can all be traced directly or indirectly to sick kidneys.

Dodd's Kidney Pills have built up their reputation as a Kidney remedy by the relief they give. Insist upon having Dodd's. the kidney pill your neighbours use.

IT'S WISE TO CHOOSE A SIX

From Every Standpoint it is wise to Choose a Chevrolet Six

Consider its low price, low operating cost and six-cylinder performance

MANY thousands of people are availing themselves of the advantages of six-cylinder performance because they realize how little it costs to operate a Chevrolet Six. And because Chevrolet is in the lowest price field—easily within the reach of all who can afford any automobile.

Operation and maintenance are equally inexpensive. No other car you can buy can surpass Chevrolet's economy of gasoline and oil! And Chevrolet service—available throughout the country—is remarkably economical. In fact, charges on many operations—including both parts and labor—are the lowest in the industry.

Once you drive a Chevrolet Six, you will never be satisfied with less. For nothing less than six cylinders can give you six cylinder smoothness. And Chevrolet is the lowest priced six cylinder car. Moreover, the Chevrolet 50-horsepower motor is the most powerful in its class. That is why Chevrolet is faster—quicker at the "get-away"—a better climber on the hills!

The new Chevrolet Six is equipped with "Body by Fisher"—the most beautifully designed in the industry. No other car in the price field offers you this outstanding advantage!

Your Canada in a Chevrolet Six this summer—it's all worth seeing. The former Hudson's Bay Company post, Fort Camosun, — now Victoria, the beautiful capital of British Columbia,— boasts these Parliament Buildings, said to be the finest structure of their kind on the continent and containing three excellent museums, one of history, another of minerals, and a third of botany.

It will take you only a few minutes to discover why it is wise to buy a Chevrolet Six. When you inspect its Fisher Body—and get a demonstration of its smooth six-cylinder performance—you will instantly realize why it commands a high re-sale value. See the Chevrolet Six today—drive it yourself! Ask about General Motors' Owner Service Policy and the G.M.A.C., General Motors' Own Deferred Payment Plan.

In other pink uniforms, ten nurses of the St. John's Hospital school of nursing, Trenton, received their graduation diplomas in the chapel of the hospital from the hands of Professor H. G. G. Norris of the Trinity College, the graduation exercises being held the past week. Among the ten graduates was Miss Annie Hetherington, of Picton, who is called by her many friends in Deseronto, she being the daughter of Mr. Robert Hetherington and the late Mr. Hetherington. A further honour is conferred upon Miss Hetherington she having won the general proficiency prize for the year. Her many friends here extend to her congratulations on her success. Her mother, Mrs. Hetherington, Mrs. Edward Smith and Mr. Harbaud, attended the graduation exercises.

Correct Manners

Mrs. Cornelius Beekman

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:—I have a friend who is a bride-to-be and she is quite worried over some details of the wedding reception. Noticing in your valuable paper you give advice along this line will you kindly help her solve her problem. It is to be a church wedding with about forty guests, invited to a reception at the house afterwards. A buffet luncheon is to be served with guests standing around dining-room, but a bride's table in the middle of the room. The point is this:—should the parents on both sides sit down with the bridal party? And should the two young men ushers sit down when there are no lady escorts? There will be one bridesmaid and of course she will sit with the best man. Thanking you in advance for your kindness, and help.

PERPLEXED.

Dear Perplexed: I shall be very glad to help your friend plan her wedding preparations but I am afraid that I disagree with the arrangement she has already outlined. When you are going to have a luncheon in buffet style, don't you think it is better to carry it out altogether according to that idea? It is not usual, you know, at a buffet luncheon to have any of the guests seated at a table. A bride's table is arranged so that guests are served from it, but they are grouped about the room, either standing or seated. If the luncheon is not buffet a popular method is to have a central larger table for the bridal party and smaller tables for the rest of the guests. At the bride's table are seated the bride and groom, the maid of honor and the groomsman, the ushers and the bridesmaids, the bride's father with the groom's mother, and the bride's mother with the groom's father, or nearest relative. If the bride cuts the wedding cake the first slices are given to those at the bridal table. Where you are having no bridesmaids it would be correct for the ushers to escort a near relative of the bride and groom to a place at the bride's table.

RENOVATING REGENT THEATRE

Manager George H. Parham of the Belle Theatre announced today that the Regent theatre would be closed tonight for an indefinite period until renovations has been completed. The theatre will be newly decorated and painted both inside and out. Asked if a change of policy was coming at the Belle, Manager Forham stated there was a possibility of a change of policy but that the management of the change has made no announcement.

Fashionably Speaking

By Lucille

In selecting window shades, drapories and curtains it must always be remembered that such appurtenances have very practical uses. First, they must be designed as to so soften and diffuse the strong natural light that it will be more restful to the eyes and less injurious to the interior furnishings. Secondly, these window fixtures should assure privacy when desirable. And lastly, they should soften the harsh and undecorative lines of the average window.

All too frequently these practical uses are forgotten in adhering to some temporary fad with the result that the home owner soon realizes that the window appurtenances are unsatisfactory, but doesn't know just what to do about it.

It is quite generally agreed that the best light regulator is the roller shade. Many innovations have been attempted, but all have been only moderately successful and in no instance nearly so satisfactory as the window itself. Now, with the new finer materials, and more attractive colors that may be obtained, the use of window shades is being recommended almost everywhere, both from a standpoint of utility as well as appearance. In some instances, where exterior harmony of color is greatly desired, two shades may be used; the outer shades being uniform in color throughout the home and the interior harmonizing with the color scheme of each room. Double colored shades are used to obtain the same effect, but these must necessarily be opaque, and therefore, do not serve so well as light regulators.

Draperies bring character and individuality to the room interrupting the monotony of the wall areas by their soft folds. In planning draperies the purpose of the room must be considered first. If the room is to be formal, draperies should be full length, straight hanging and of luxurious materials. If quaint, draperies should be of unpretentious material tied back in gay abandon giving a subtle charm. Each room, though, is really a special problem, and must be studied in order to emphasize the best points of the window and the room itself. For instance, if in the formal room, the windows are exceptionally tall and narrow, the broken line of the tie-back should be used. Also, in the informal room, if the windows are low and wide, and the ceiling low the straight hanging drapery is best adapted.

For the room which has a limited amount of light, it is best to dispense with draperies entirely, using only glass or casement curtains. On the other hand if there are a great many windows, draperies should be used, but the pattern should not be so emphatic a to be overpowering—too much pattern. A good rule to follow in the selection of color is to repeat the hue of the wall in the drapery letting the other colors of the fabric blend with the other colors of the room.

Fashionably speaking,
LUCILLE.

Today's Poem

LOST PLAYMATE

The other night you went away,
And stars hung low—
You could not stay and play with me
You had to go.

The other day you played with me,
We had a dream—
You could not stay and play with me
Now,
You joined life's stream.

And now I play alone with dreams
The whole day through;
The dream I play with most, it seems,
Plays around you.

That other night you said goodbye
And stars hung low,
I could not cry—that other night
Was years ago.

Advice to Lovelorn

Beatrice Fairfax

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

We have been married six months now and oh, things are so wrong, we quarrel terribly. I believe it is all on account of jealousy. When my husband and I go out together he doesn't seem to notice me at all, he just has a good time with the others and it hurts me so. I love him so much that I'm jealous and can't help it. The people we go with are all older than we are —my husband seems to get a big kick out of going round with older people.

Lonesome Bride.

The time has come, my dear Lonesome Bride, for you to take a brace. Try not to be so jealous, and if you can't help it, at least learn to conceal your feelings. People are unconsciously cruel, sometimes, and doubtless these older people may not realize that you jealous. Don't watch your husband when you are with other people. Try and interest yourself in some agreeable person who is there, and above all, don't be melancholy around the house. Try to be lively and sweet-like, don't forget—

"Laugh and the world laughs with you, weep and you weep alone."

SHE DOES NOT SEEM TO CARE

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am very much in love with a girl and one day I asked her for her picture, but she said she didn't have any. I then wrote her a letter and told her I loved her but she didn't answer it. I wrote her another letter asking her if she would meet me that evening, she said she had to go to a dance. Do you think this girl loves me.

Persistent Suitor.

To be frank with you, my dear Persistent Suitor, I do not think the girl has given any indications of caring for you. Sometimes girls who are given coquettes make a business of turning a man down, in between times, they read him on to a smiling acceptance now and then, but this one seems to have adopted a NO policy to everything. My advice is to look up another girl.

Sturdy Childhood

The sturdy child—the bright, active little chap is the one everybody loves. It is only the sickly, fretful child who is not attractive. It is the birthright of every child to be sturdy and well—to be able to make everyone admire him. Therefore, mothers if yours is not attractive it's your fault, not his. He must be ailing and it is up to you to see that he gets well—that he is given a medicine that will quickly make him well and keep him well.

Baby's Own Tablets are especially designed for infants and young children. There is nothing to equal them for the regulation of the stomach and bowels—the cause of most of the ills from which little ones suffer. Baby's Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

MOTHERS now learn value of MAGNESIA

Because it is so helpful in keeping babies and children healthy and happy, every mother should know about Phillips Milk of Magnesia.

This harmless, almost tasteless preparation is most effective in relieving those symptoms of babies and children generally caused by souring food in the little digestive tract, such as sour-belching, frequent vomiting, feverishness, colds. As a mild laxative, it acts gently, but certainly, to open the little bowels in constipation, children's diseases.

A teaspoonful of Phillips Milk of Magnesia does the work of half a pint of lime water in neutralizing cow's milk for infant feeding, and preventing hard curds. Its many uses for mother and child are fully explained in the interesting book "Useful Information." It will be sent you, FREE. Write The Chas. H. Phillips Chemical Co., Windsor, Ont.

In buying, be sure to get genuine Phillips Milk of Magnesia. Doctors have prescribed it for over 50 years.

Fashion Fancies

The spirit of the lovely Helen of Troy has been recaptured by the artists of fashion. No longer need women recall, with a tinge of envy, the legend of that historical Greek beauty. Instead they may emulate her romantic charms as they saunter through the ultra modern ballrooms of today. Many of the newest formal evening gowns follow directly the sculptural lines of the Grecian robes that graced the famous Helen.

One such must have been the inspiration for the model sketched above of ethereal blue crepe elizabeth with its straight, unbroken silhouette. The bodice of the gown, which is entirely pleated to the hipline, is held in place by narrow banding. The banding is also used to finish the interesting decolletage. Pleats are released below the hipline, falling gracefully in folds to the floor, and forming a short train.

THE RAINBOW

The fairies built a bridge
From Here to Far-Away—
Of pleasure and mine
Upon an April day
The fairies built a bridge
As shimmering as tear,
As lovely as a dream,
From Far-Away to Here.

They borrowed from the sun.
They bargained with the moon,
A million gem they stole
From gardens rich with June;
With crystal of the rain,
With sapphire from the sea,
With turquoise from the sky,
They built it cunningly.

Then, lest some alien step
Its airy arch might scale,
They hid each rainbow-end
In opal-tinted veil—
And never through the years,
On any April day,
Has mortal crossed the bridge
From Here to Far-Away.

Sophia Clough has just published another of her charming stories, and if you aren't acquainted with Mrs. Clough by all means let this new book of hers "Song-bird" be the means of introduction. Mrs. Clough has an easy style, a gentle wit that is always keen and her stories are a delight in a restless day.

Mrs. Clough was born in England and has spent much of her life in America. Her husband was Dennis Clough who was connected with the stage as an actor and manager, and for some time Mrs. Clough's talents were directed to the theatre. In 1924 Mrs. Clough's first novel appeared. It was "Matilda, Governess of the English" and was warmly received. It was followed by "Ernestine-Sophie," "Jeanne Margot," "A Common Cheat," "Spring," and now, "Song-Bird."

"Song-Bird is the romance of a Spanish opera singer. The plot was suggested by a tale once heard of a continental singer, but the voice, accurately described is that of the world famous Carmen Emma Calve, whom Mrs. Clough worshipped as a girl at Covent Garden.

Mrs. Clough is a writer who takes keen delight in her work. She has said "You know, my idea of Heaven would be to go to prison with a typewriter and a box of paper."

Perhaps You've Heard

It is interesting to know just where certain books found their titles. Many of them are familiar to you, for they are taken from Biblical passages, and here is a list of a few well-known books and the sources of their titles.

Paths of Glory, by Irvin S. Cobb—"The path of glory leads but to the grave." Grey's Elegy."

"The old order changeth, yielding place to new.

And God fulfills Himself in many ways."

Lest one good custom should corrupt the world." Tennyson, "The Passing of Arthur."

A Far Country, by Winston Churchill—

"The younger son gathered all together, and took his journey into a far country, and there wasted his substance with riotous living." Luke 15:13.

ODTAA, by John Masefield—

The initial letters of "One Damn Thing After Another," a fitting description of the book.

Little Ships, by Kathleen Norris—"Little ships stay near the shore, Larger ships may venture more."
Unknown.

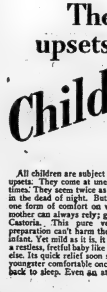
The Hoofbeats of Spring, by Sylvia Thompson—

"When the hoofbeats of Spring are on windier days,
The mother of months in meadow or plain
Fills the shadows and windy places
With lisp of leaves and ripple of rain." Swinburne, "Atlanta in Calydon."

The Inside of the Cup, by Winston Churchill—

"We make clean the inside of the cup and of the platter, but within they are full of extortion and excess."

Matthew 23:25.



Precious Bane, by Mary Webb—

"Let none admire
That riches grow in Hell; that soil may best deserve the precious bane."
Milton "Paradise Lost" Bk. 1.

THIRTEEN SHEEP KILLED

Thirteen sheep, the property of Edgar Pascoe of East Whitby Township, were worried to death by dogs while roaming near his home. Mr. Pascoe heard the commotion in the field, going out found the flock of 26 animals exhausted and saw the two dogs which had been chasing them escaping over a fence.

The upsets of Children

All children are subject to little upsets. They come at unexpected times. They seem twice as serious in the dead of night. But there's one form of comfort on which a mother can always rely; good old Castoria. This pure vegetable preparation can't harm the tiniest infant. Yet mild as it is, it soothes a restless, fretful baby like nothing else. Its quick relief soon sees the youngsters comfortable once more, back to sleep. Even an attack of colic, or diarrhea, yields to the soothing influence of Castoria.

Keep Castoria in mind, and keep a bottle in the house—always. Give a few drops to any child whose tongue is coated, or whose breath is bad. Continue with Castoria until the child is grown! Every drugstore has Castoria; the genuine has Chas. H. Fletcher's signature on the wrapper.

"This Nerve Food Keeps me feeling fine"

THE high tension of modern life is an enormous strain on the nerves.

The nerves have been unable to adjust themselves to the changed conditions of life and the result is dread discomfort from headaches, irritability, indigestion and sleeplessness.

When the nerves become exhausted there are feelings of great fatigue and failure of the vital organs to properly perform their parts.

The most effective treatment with which to restore the exhausted nervous system is Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

This fact has been proven in so many thousands of cases that Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is now generally recognized as the standard prescription for troubles of this nature.

Takes Pleasure in Recommending Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

To the woman in the home illness is almost a calamity. Many a woman carries on with her household duties when she is feeling ready to drop. Her head aches, she is easily tired, is depressed and has not and has no appetite. In a word she is anaemic and badly needs help—the healthful help that only Williams' Pink Pills can give her. These pills make rich, red blood which brings new strength and energy to weak, despondent sufferers. Concerning them, Mrs. Paul Ball, Coin du Banc, Que., says: "I was badly run-down, slept poorly, and awoke as tired as when I went to bed. My appetite was poor and I felt miserable. I took six boxes of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and they completely renewed my health."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

LAST WEEK FOR CLEARANCE TO U.S.

Ottawa, May 31.—It is expected that this is the last week that clearances, will be granted liquor from Canada designed for the United States. It is likely the bill preventing such clearances will come into effect when it receives the royal assent before Parliament prorogates.

STUNTING

Stunting by a young flier of Ottawa has resulted in a call for his resignation. He flew in a sensational manner over housetops and upset the nerves of the residents.

This madcap flight of his will restrict flying and doubtless restrictions will follow which will mean the banning of such performances.

Flying is dangerous enough for fliers when they are in normal flights let alone stunts. The public must be protected from sensation makers and such fliers from themselves. Mad fliers should not be licensed to fly for flying is a public matter as well as a private concern. concern.

ARCHITECTURE

Woolworth Building in New York which since 1912 has been the highest building in the world is now the second. The Chrysler Building is the highest ever designed for occupancy by man.

Where does it end? No one believes the Chrysler will be the last building to get nearest the stars. Some one is even now in his brain cells planning a taller skyscraper.

The same is true in Toronto. The Star building was for a short space of time the highest, now the Bank of Commerce is the superlative.

Skyscraping is unknown in Belleville, where fourth floors are somewhat rare and are less occupied.

But the skyscraper has a beauty all its own. Steel has made possible these heaven-piercing pyramids of stone and metal. In the Middle Ages without steel, architects tried and succeeded in church construction in building sanctuaries of supreme beauty out of stone with a maximum of light through colored glass held in place by slim shafts of stone. The skyscraper seems such a development.

The Chrysler Building is modern in its design and color scheme. It like the Woolworth is characteristically American, the U.S. spirit being emphasized in size, that is in height and in line. The value of building lots and congestion cooperated towards the skyscraper development.

What the Canadian spirit in building will ultimately come to express is difficult to say offhand. It doubtless will resemble in some form the American spirit but doubtless it will become characteristically Canadian.

A skyscraper in Belleville might be exotic and might be out of place if buildings represent the spirit of the people and conditions generally.

AFTER 27 YEARS

Twenty-three years ago a fire in Ottawa resulted in the burial of some jars of plum jam which were unearthed only a few days ago. Students, true to their principles, tested the long-hidden preserves and had a delectable feast.

Old cellars could bring to light many things but few would care to indulge in some preserves for over a quarter of a century.

The story is a tribute to the preserving qualities of sugar and was highly entertaining.

WHY SO MUCH WRITING

The urge to write seems one of the strangest of attractions. Those in the writing game often wish they had selected another occupation, but for the one in the game there are hundreds seeking admission. One does not require to go to the larger cities of the world to realize this, but it is apparent even in this part of this country where there are many scores of people writing verse and short stories which never see the stage of the printed leaf. Whether coals to Newcastle is one that is difficult to see for the way is a hard one to any success beyond the mediocre. Scarcely a day passes but contributions of verse and story wait upon editorial departments of newspapers seeking an outlet of their musings whether for pay or free.

What is true here is generally true. In the United States there are said to be forty thousand poets slowly starving to death. Unless they can manage to awaken their fellow-countrymen to a sense of the need of poetry in the world, they are going to throw up the quest of the muses and settle down to mundane activities.

As a last resort they have started a magazine called "Temporary Nation," which will calls poets to the need of organization. They will have some queer aims. One is that every book of verse submitted for publication should be passed upon by a poet, another is criticisms should be from a recognized poet, another is poems should be paid for at a much higher rate than prose and every course in poetry at an educational institution ought to be taught by a practising poet."

Those who make a living by poetry in the States can be counted on the fingers of one hand when it leads Miss Lowell, Poetry magazine to say, "No wonder they are hungry, almost the 40,000 of them."

It is doubtful if organization will bring the result sought. It will probably come some other way.

The ideal state will be when the public feels the need of poetry. Then it will be in demand and magazines will be forced to bid high for fine work. There must be a mutual enthusiasm for the poetic art by poets and by public. That Utopia does not yet exist. If the people can be brought by organization or by any other means to feel the need of poetry, the ideal condition will have arrived.

SIDELIGHTS

OMNIPOTENCE

My Father God how great Thou Art,
The Ruler of the countless spheres,
And yet Thou standest at my bed,
Of pain, and calmest all my fears.

Thy greatness overawes my soul,
Thy gentleness is balm divine,
Sweet touch of healing from above.
Oh, let Thy rays upon me shine.

Thou comest in the morning hours,
Refreshing dew from Heaven above,
And when the sun sets in the west,
I feel my Fathers shielding love.

Thy blessing raised the widow's son,
Made lame to walk, o'ped eyes of blind,
Oh, touch us with Thy gracious hand,
In thee alone our health we find.

As knelt the lepers at Thy feet,
We kneel, coldess, we plead Thy word.
Our faith is strong, though weak our frame,
Thy powers the same, Thou mighty Lord.

If strong Thy hand to raise the dead,
To keep the mighty worlds in course,
Say but the word—Thy will is done,
My heart obeys Thy sov'reign force.

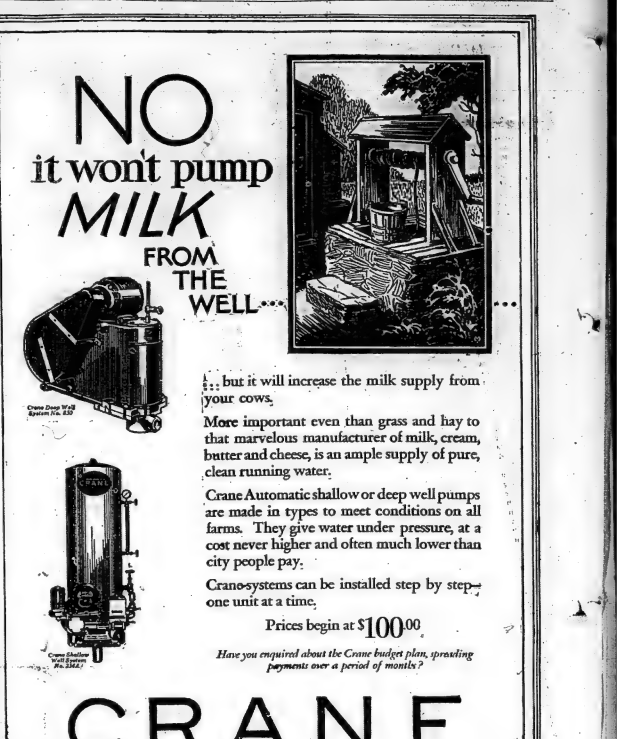
MODERN ETIQUETTE

By Roberta Lee

Q.—When is the dinner coat worn?



A.—It is worn almost everywhere that evening clothes are worn, except to very formal affairs.

Q.—When choice is possible, to which side of a woman should a man sit?

A.—To the right side.

Q.—What is the first rule of etiquette?

A.—Never do anything that is unpleasant to others.

Butter and Cheese Prices Again oDwn

Cheese Exporters Have to Lower Quotations to Obtain Business

Montreal, May 31.—Local cheese exporters had to lower their prices again Thursday to obtain business. Western colored cheese, waxed, became 16 1-2c per lb., while easterns were 16c per lb., waxed, down 1-4c from the previous day, and 1-2c below the week's opening levels. The export season is now considering in cheese and, while shipments so far have been on the light side, they are due to increase weekly from now on. The United Kingdom is the big importer of Canadian cheese, and the market there is weak. New Zealand cheese was 2s. lower yesterday in England. Receipts of cheese in Montreal yesterday were 863 boxes, as against 967 boxes on the same day last week, and 1,706 boxes on the corresponding day last year.

The butter market also was weaker. The wholesale level for cariots of Eastern Townships No. 1 pasteurized was 30c per lb. Even at this low level the lowest in years, sellers were having difficulty finding a buyer. No one seemed to want to take any large quantity of butter, a feeling of hesitancy contributing to the nervousness in this respect. To the retail trade solids were quoted at 31c per lb., and prints at 32c per lb. Receipts, 109 boxes; week ago 128 boxes; year ago 44 boxes.

There is a downward trend to prices on the lower grades of eggs, in wholesale carlot trading and this is causing a corresponding reduction in quotations to retailers. Fresh firsts have been dropped 1c per dozen by some wholesale houses. Seconds were similarly lowered at the week's opening. Extras and specials held unchanged. Receipts, 3,238 cases; week ago 2,942 cases year ago 3,266 cases. Prices to the retail trade follow:

Special brands ..... 38c per doz.
Fresh extras ..... 36-37c per doz.
Fresh firsts ..... 33-34c per doz.
Fresh seconds ..... 30c per doz.

On the potato market the feature is the swing from old to new potatoes. Prices also are dropping steadily, both for new and old grades. Of the new potatoes the demand is now being supplied by South Carolina shipments, which are selling in a jobbing way off track here, per 150-lb. bbls. at $7.75 for No. 1 grade, and $5.75 for No. 2 grade. Next week Virginia and North Carolina new potatoes will be here. Old potatoes are quoted per 90 lbs. in bulk, in car lots, ex-track here at $1.65 to $1.75 for New Brunswick Green Mountains, and $1.50 for Quebecs.

BANTAMACS PLAN APPROVED

Kingston, May 31.—The proposition of the Department of National Defense to have the old stone enfrance at Tete-de-Pont Barracks moved back to make traffic safer at this point —the Provincial Highway Department, the Government and the City of Kingston, each to contribute one-third of the estimated cost, $2,500—has met with the approval of the Board of Works. But the board expressed the opinion that the Department of National Defence should also give consideration to the original plan of the board, that of having a portion of the barrack's wall at the corner leading to the causeway, put back five feet.

WARNED AGAINST U.S. $20 BILLS

Quebec, May 31.—Instructions have been issued to the managers of the Quebec Liquor Commission stores not to accept $20 American bills, it was learned reliably. It is claimed that there are a number of bills which have been in circulation, which are not considered to be genuine. This order only affects the denomination referred to above.

BOX MAY CONTAIN JEWELS

New York, May 31.—Police announced that a safe deposit box held by Robert Nelson and believed to contain about $200,00: worth of jewels had been found in the First National Bank of Chicago. Gems valued at a million dollars were found in Nelson's deposit boxes here Tuesday. He is charged with receiving stolen goods.

Lenore Martin was on her way to the hospital to see her husband. Tom and as the ride was a long one from the loop, she had time for meditation —it seemed now that her rides to the hospital every night were her only time she had her thoughts to herself. Tom fretted every night because she didn't come in the daytime, but she had told him that it was best that she come at night, and when he asked why, she had changed the subject.

She must never let him know the reason—heavens no. She and the doctor had argued that out—neither it would worry him more by knowing or not knowing. Dr. Graves had said:

"You should stop his worrying by telling him."

She had replied, "I know him, Doctor. He'll worry more by knowing."

How well she remembered the many times she had tried to get Tom to talk about business, let it learn the ins and out of his work. He had always gotten angry. Once he had said:

"Good grief, Lenore, you don't know a darned thing about business—no head at all for it. Just because you worked in my line of business before we were married doesn't mean you have a business head. You take care of home and Mary Jane—I'll bring in the money."

As an afterthought—"What's the matter—getting tired of what we've got?" and the argument would up in a jumble of fiery words—she had got so she never asked about business any more, though there were times when she would've liked to hear it—why, Jack Dole always talked with Fanny —Henry Ade continually bragged about Ray helping him and advising him, but Tom was stubborn in that—nothing for.

Things would be a month since Tom had entered the hospital, and she knew he would ask why Mr. Marlboro didn't come out and tell him about business—she had told him that if Marlboro, one of their very dear friends, was taking half a day from his own office each day to help Tom in business as much as possible.

After kissing Tom, asking him how he'd, etc., his first question was—

"Why doesn't Marlboro come out and let me know what's going on? I had a deal with Mattson Co. hanging in the air, and lord knows if that falls through we'll lose money by the bucketful. Have you seen him?"

"No," Lenore answered. "I haven't seen him, but I'm sure everything is going fine. Wasn't Miss Haller in yesterday afternoon to see you?"

Miss Haller was Tom's bookkeeper and "right-hand man" in his small office as he always said.

"Yes, she came out, but she knew nothing about the Mattson deal. Said Marlboro was handling that. I'm getting damned sore. He might ease my mind and let me know what's going on."

"It's a shame," he continued, "you don't know anything about business—you could go down there and find out everything for me."

Lenore smiled. "You always go peeved at me when I did want to know anything about the business, as that is the result. You're coming home day after tomorrow, though, so don't worry."

Ever since Tom had been ill Lenore's biggest problem besides his physical condition had been to worry about business. She had done everything possible to make him comfortable, yet he was always fretting about business. His friends, neighbors, two of the boys at the office, Miss Haller and Mary Jane, all had visited him at the hospital. He had piled them all with questions—all of no avail. They had told him everything was going along fine. Mr. Marlboro was taking charge in the afternoon for him the orders were going out fine, but they didn't know about the Mattson deal.

The next afternoon Tom's office force was surprised and shocked to see him come slowly in with the aid of the taxi driver. Miss Haller and Jack Driver both jumped up to assist him.

"Help me into my office, please, Miss Haller, and then pay this man. I'm about done up with the exertion of getting here. Supposed to come home tomorrow, but bullied Doc Graves into letting me out today."

By this time they had reached his office and the door opened and out stepped Lenore. Surprise was written in her face on seeing him, but she quickly took Miss Haller's place at his side exclaiming.

"Good gracious, Tom, why in the world didn't you don't here when you weren't supped to even leave until tomorrow?" She continued, "Why didn't you let me know?"

"Let you know," he replied exasperation filling his voice, "you couldn't be reached at home—you've never been at home since I've been in the hospital."

He dropped heavily into his chair at the same time noticing the letters, etc., on the desk showing some one had been working.

"Where's Marlboro?"

"You'd have to know sometime," Lenore hastily replied, "and it might just as well be now. I've been handling the business since you've been sick—that's why I couldn't come to the hospital during the day."

A WIFE'S BUSINESS—CAL TWO.

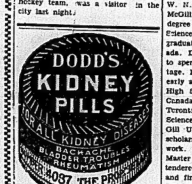
Tom was too surprised to talk—he just looked at Lenore and Miss Haller—shyly, his face got red and then he said:

"Jerd, honey, after all I've said about you knowing nothing about business—the height of my shame would be been if you had conquered the Mattson Co. and gotten their order."

Lenore reached in the drawer and handed him a yellow sheet. "I did get their order yesterday morning," Lenore replied, "so all your worrying is over. I'd had explained the whole thing to Tom, but you were always so stubborn about your business that I kept still—the boys in the office and Miss Haller all promised to keep still about it, and so tell the truth I've worked pretty hard to keep things going—I've interviewed all four of the Mattson Bros. with the result that when I went over there again yesterday morning they signed on the dotted line."

Tom's face showed his surprise — it was blood red from shame, too, and Miss Haller reading the situation quietly slipped out leaving Lenore and Tom alone.

"Oh, honey, I'm a fool if there ever was one—but a lucky fool to have such a wife. You know more about your darned business than I do."



Lenore smiled and walked across to where he was sitting, took his face between her hands, kissed him and said:

"No, old stubborn thing, I didn't know more—I just helped out. This is my office, dear, and my domain as my home—there are times when I need your help at home, and you have found there are times when you need me here in the office. Let's go fifty-fifty on our work and we'll find we have a happier marriage."

Dr. Charles Sankey Has Had Brilliant Academic Career

After a brilliant scholastic career, Mr. Charles Sankey, nephew of Col. W. H. Fenton has graduated from McGill University, Montreal, with the degree of Doctor of Philosophy in Science. He is probably the youngest graduate holding this degree in Canada. Dr. Sankey will arrive shortly to spend his vacation at Sidney cottage. Dr. Sankey at a comparatively early age, graduated from Belleville High School and enrolled at Upper Canada College. At the University of Toronto he obtained his Bachelor of Science degree. He then went to McGill University and was awarded a scholarship of $800 for post graduate work. Last year he graduated as Master of Science at McGill and was tendered another scholarship of $750 and finally was awarded $800 by the Federal Council of Research in Canada.

Dr. Sankey has occupied important posts in University Literary Societies and was regarded as one of the foremost of the young debaters in college circles. He spent several summers in research activities at the International Pulp and Paper Mill at Iroquois Falls. Dr. Sankey's former instructors at Belleville Collegiate and Toronto University are proud of his Academic achievements and predict a great career for him in the field of science and philosophy.

Congratuloted on Birthday

Mr. George Wallbridge Today Celebrates His 58th Birthday

Congratulations are being received today by Mr. George Wallbridge, well-known and highly respected citizen of Belleville, on the attainment of his 58th birthday.

Mr. Wallbridge was born in this city, received his education here, and with the exception of a few years, spent in Boston, has resided in Belleville all his life. He was at one time joint principal of The Ontario Business College when that institution was first established. Upon the death of his father, Mr. Wallbridge took over the managements of the Wallbridge and Clarke stores and successfully carried on the business, since the year 1871 until last year when he handed over the active management of his son, Mr. Fred Wallbridge.

Mr. Wallbridge was married to Miss L. Clarke, daughter of the late Henry Clarke, in the early seventies and of this happy union there were born nine children, six of whom are still living. Those residing in the city are Dr. F. O. Wallbridge, Bridge street east, Mr. A. R. Wallbridge, Mr. Fred Wallbridge and Miss Amy Wallbridge. Those residing at distant points are Mr. J. E. Wallbridge, K.C., of Edmonton, Alberta and Mr. J. D. Wallbridge of Saskatchewan.

Mr. Wallbridge is a member of St. Thomas' Anglican church and has always taken a great interest in its organizations. He is in the best of health and his many friends in the city join in wishing him many more years of active life.

Mr. Wallbridge had the great happiness of celebrating the golden anniversary of his wedding ten years ago. Mrs. Wallbridge died a few years later.

Broadcasting the R-100

When the R-100, Great Britain's huge new dirigible, arrives in the Dominion shortly, there will be no stones for any Canadian being ignorant of her visit. The news will be broadcast throughout Canada by the Trans-Canada Broadcasting Company from coast to coast over the radio programme transmission system of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company's Telegraphs.

The arrangements will include a twenty-four hour service on the day of arrival and will be put out through stations in Quebec, Montreal, Toronto, London, Winnipeg, Regina, Saskatoon, Edmonton, Red Deer, Calgary, Vancouver, Fleming and Yorkton, Sask. Messages from the airship will be broadcast as she approaches the 78-mile radius and will include a description of the mooring ons of the most interesting and exciting moments in the whole programme. This will be broadcast by T. D'Arcy Finn, managing editor of the "Ottawa Citizen" as chief announcer. The broadcast of the arrival will be supplemented during the two succeeding days by bulletin services and descriptions of special events. Lay-out shows the R-100 in flight; the kitchen of the air liner, and the St. Hubert mooring mast.

NEW GILLETTE BLADE and RAZOR

SHORTEN your daily shaving time. no more wiping—no more cut towels

YOUR work ends when your shave ends, with this New Gillette Blade and Razor. Simply turn guard at right angles, retighten, rinse under hot running water and shake dry.

This one improvement alone is worth the price of the new Gillette. Yet it is only one of many pleasing changes that you'll find in this new razor and blade.

"Razor pull," for instance, won't bother you any more. The New Gillette prevents it for two reasons: First, the corners of the razor are reinforced with sturdy legs of extra metal that stand a lot of abuse. Second, even if you should dent these legs the blade is no longer held at the corners, so no hard results from dropping. Look at the new blade, and note how the corners are cut out.

Note too that the new blade ends are square, not round, for safer handling with wet fingers and easier shaving around mouth, nose and ears.

QUICK FACTS

1. New blade can be used in your old Gillette
2. New protected edge new blade resists rust
3. Cut-out corners of blade prevent "razor pull"
4. To clean, guard at right angles . . . then retighten . . . shake
5. New shape guard clings to your face while shaving closely
6. New shape guard keeps skin smooth, naturally
7. No projecting parts to blades edges
8. Reinforced razor corners a real advance if dropped
9. Square blade ends safer handle
10. Shaves easier around mouth, nose, ears
11. New blades same price as old

Arrangements have been completed whereby the arrival in Canada of the R-100, Britain's dirigible, will be broadcast through out Canada and the United States by the Trans-Canada Broadcasting Company and the National Broadcasting Company, according to announcement recently made by R. V. Ashcroft, manager of the former company. The official broadcast, which includes the arrival of the ship and attendant ceremonies, will be carried from coast to coast of the Dominion over the new radio programme broadcasting transmission system of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company's telegraphs.

Welcoming the latest addition to the Canadian Pacific Railway's fleet of 19 passenger vessels on ocean and coastal service in British Columbia, Vancouver recently congratulated the railway on its initiative and foresight in building upon the west coast of Canada a service second to none, on the occasion of the arrival of the "Princess Elizabeth" at the Pacific port. The sister ship, "Princess Joan" arrived at Victoria the following day. The "Elizabeth" was welcomed by the Mayor of Vancouver.

Marking the passing of another milestone in the history of the company, the recently constructed Canadian Pacific branch line from Ellington to Vegreville, a distance of about 30 miles, was declared open for traffic recently with the arrival of the first passenger train at the Vegreville station.

With a record reservation list indicating a very busy season ahead, the Banff Springs Hotel welcomed its first guests of the year May 15. Considerable improvement work has been done on the 18-hole golf course which was virtually ready for play on opening day.

Development of fruit growing on the prairies has been one of the features of agricultural progress in recent years in western Canada. Patches of native gooseberries, currants and raspberries have evolved into orchards containing many varieties of plums, cherries, apples and small fruits. The largest acreages are devoted to strawberries and raspberries.

A recent official compilation shows that farm live stock in Canada in 1929 was valued at $864,167,800 as compared with $856,472,000 in 1928. Canada's poultry population in 1929 numbered 69,899,782, valued at $43,854,000.

A forest in embryo—250 acres of jack and white pine—has been planted by the Saskatchewan forestry service in the Prince Albert region. R. P. Elsler, forestry engineer, states that the transplanting of 2,000,000 nursery seedlings and stock is the largest of such programmes in the history of the province.

While the official opening of the Welland Ship Canal, constructed at a cost of $120,000,000, will not take place until next July, the northern section was unofficially opened to traffic recently when the steamer Georgian entered Lock No. 1 from Port Weller, the Lake Ontario end of the canal, and passed through to Lake Erie.

ENEMIES MEET

JASPER B. SINCLAIR

The mediocrity of November eleventh dawned crisp and cold. A thin mist shrouded the slope of the Argonne, hanging low over scrubby trees and the marked slopes.

Lt. Holcomb frowned as he crawled forward over the damp ground.

"Could nonsense!" he growled. "Handing a fellow out on patrol just a few hours before the war's going to end! What's the use of scouting on this of all mornings?"

Cringle, close to the shelter of creepy bush that bordered a tiny stream he edged nearer the German lines.

"A fine time to get bumped off!" It was a morbid thought, impelling a surging hatred for the officer who had sent him on this dangerous mission with the rumored armistice only a few hours away. It seemed a foolish gesture, as though headquarters doubted the cessation of hostilities was really at hand.

The dull thud of the guns mocked him. Instinctively he wondered if this were the last day of fighting. Supposing—

The sudden rattle of a machine gun made him flop the ground as the bullets clipped through the mist. Then the gun went silent again.

Orderly Stan Holcombe returned his forward crawl. The hill sloped gently upwards in the direction of the German lines.

When Stan reached the crest he raised his head cautiously to survey his surroundings. Ahead, all was tense and quite.

He glanced back toward his own lines. Then he shrank down in dismay. A few yards in his rear he had glimpsed a spiked helmet jutting out of a shell hole. A German scout was on guard again.

"Fool!" Why couldn't he have sent in his own trenches? Now it's either him or me. We can't both get away safe!"

For many minutes Stan lay tense, waiting for a movement in his rear. Grim silence shrouded the slope.

Once he raised his head for another glimpse. The bark of a Maxim made him duck back quickly.

Minutes passed. Then the crackle of his gun, grazing the crest of the hill with their steel-jacketed messengers.

It was broad daylight now. No chance to go forward or crawl back to his own lines. Then he sensed a faint movement close at hand. The scrape of bobnails against the hard ground. The rattle of some rocks fall into a shell hole.

Instantly he knew the German was stalking him. He drew his revolver, fingering the weapon carefully. Again he looked up. Again the Maxim made him draw back, a bullet glancing off his helmet.

All was still once more, but he knew that the German was nearer than before.

Friendly Stan Cringle himself out of the depression that sheltered him, edging away to the right. He wasn't going to be trapped if he could help it.

He mustered not if the armistice were close at hand. Death was infinitely closer. The thought fanned a smouldering hatred in his heart. Not a hatred for the foe that stalked him, but for the grim senselessness of it all.

"Here we are stalking each other like a couple of animals," he muttered. "Burrowing into the earth to save our lives; in another hour or so we'll be able to stand up and shout for joy . . . and we don't get each other in the meantime!"

So the grim drama went on. Each movement of the German scout was countered by Stan edging further to the right in a desperate attempt to outflank him.

Both men realized the utter futility of reaching their own lines. Success lay only in reaching the other.

Meanwhile the mists had faded and the sun was mounting higher in a clear sky.

Overhead the shells of German and American batteries arched across the slope. Early in the morning the guns had been firing in sporadic bursts. Now they had swelled into a crescendo of sound that shook the earth.

A bullet clipped the earth close to Stan's shoulder. He shuddered, clinging closer to the damp ground.

Moments of former duty drifted across his mind. They seemed far away and indistinct. Chateau Thierry and Mont Sec. It was there he had been awarded his medal. A paltry thing it seemed now. Not a badge for valor, but a token of other men's lives!

Suddenly Stan's nerves went taut. The ground shook and heaved in protest of the disruption of its surface; the air itself trembled from the mighty detonations. Then the guns spluttered and died!

The crackle of a few machine guns melted into silence.... a grim, terrifying silence, pregnant with disbelief and doubt.

The only sound was the distant whirrin gof an airplane, high in the sky. Stan raised up on his knees, refusing it to unleash some of its bombs. But it was winging its way back behind the lines.

Minutes passed.....minutes that seemed an eternity in their passing. Still Stan dared not hope to be shrunk from theteareful truth that the armistice was a reality.

Doubtingly he raised himself. He was still alive. It was not a dream! Then he heard shouts coming from his own trenches.....shouts of joy and laughter. Real, unrestrained laughter .....a trifle hysterical perhaps, but genuine none the less.

Cautiously Stan rose to his hands and knees, ready to duck at the first blink of a Maxim. But none came. Slowly and hesitantly he rose to his feet, stretching his aching limbs.

Within a few yards of him the German scout was standing up, his eyes still expressive of doubt.

Then Stan dropped his revolver back in his holster. The German was slinging his automatic rifle over his shoulder.

Stan paused and stepped forward. "Well, I guess that's the end!" he murmured.

"Jal" muttered the German, a slow smile overspreading his face. "Speak English?" gasped Stan. "Nein!"

The American shrugged. Then he pulled out a package of cigarettes. They were damp and broken. He offered them to the German.

The other smiled, then sighed contentedly as he puffed on the cigarette.

For a moment Stan stared at him in silence. He was just a boy, good looking and virile. There was no hate in his blue eyes. Only an awed expression that bordered doubt that he was still alive.

Hate, after all, is not an enduring passion. An hour at battle it may be fanned into a white-heat, then recedes and melt into nothing.

Stan Holcombe shrugged again. Then he held out his hand. The German grunted his response to the friendly gesture.

Standing there on the steel-furrowed crest beneath the noon-day sun the pair shook hands in solemn alliance.

WINDSOR PAPER MULCH

GARDENERS FARMERS!

Boost Your Income
Save Increased Labour
This Easy Simple Way

Scientific paper mulch farming has brought such amazing and extremely profitable advantages to growers throughout the world that it is well destined to revolutionize agriculture. . . Strips of inexpensive paper mulch, laid and anchored between the crop rows, enables the crop to yield from ¼ to 5 times more abundantly and to mature from 10 days to 3 weeks earlier . . . Paper mulch directs the rainfall and the sun's heat into the ground and holds it captive at all times, thus providing a plentiful supply of warmth and moisture around the plant roots, even during the coldest, driest growing weather. Thus protected from cold and drought, the plants grow stronger, healthier and yield bigger, much better quality fruits, vegetables, corn, etc. . . . Weeding is also eliminated because paper mulch smothers the weeds. . . . Insect and mildew control cultivation is rendered unnecessary. Send coupon now for full particulars, or get them from—

The Archers above illustrate the difference between the planes of the sun's rays at the equator and at the poles. Paper, unlike the other one not.

An easy method of laying mulch paper, banks, boards or earth.

What IS Windsor Paper Mulch?

Windsor paper mulch is a durably strong, tough paper able to resist the rigors of the weather. It is specially treated with asphalt to make it waterproof. It is black to absorb the heat of the sun's heat through to the soil.

3 reasons why you should drive Marquette... before you buy any car...

1. Built by McLaughlin-Buick

After more than two decades devoted to the making of fine cars McLaughlin-Buick has put the wealth of its long experience into the construction of Marquette. McLaughlin-Buick outsells all other cars in its fine car field because of its pronounced superiority; and these same advantages of McLaughlin-Buick engineering and manufacture are faithfully reproduced in Marquette . . . stamping it as

2. A Great Performer

Marquette's powerful engine . . . possessing the largest piston displacement in its field . . . reveals that marked brilliance in hill-climbing, stamina and reliability which you would naturally expect in a product of McLaughlin-Buick. It has won Dominion-wide recognition as a truly great performer . . . a leader in all that makes for swift, spirited motor car performance.

3. $26,000,000 in Sales

During the comparatively few months that it has been on the market Marquette has won more than $26,000,000 in sales. This fact alone is a very convincing indication of Marquette's high value. And the three reasons here enumerated make it well worth your while to see and make a thorough test of Marquette's quite exceptional abilities.

Ask us about the General Motors Owner Service Policy, most complete in the automotive industry; and, if you wish, make use of the G.M.A.C., General Motors' own plan of easy payments.

Marquette and McLaughlin-Buick models range in price from $1243 to $1100, at factory, Oshawa, Ontario.

"I can't prove it, but I find calves on that range with the ends of their tongues slit an' wearin' the Triangle B brand."

CHAPTER XV

"I have never had any experience heretofore with rustlers, Tom. Tongue slitting is a new one on me. Why do they do it?"

"So the calf can no longer suckle his mother an' will have to start rustlin' a livin' on grass right off."

"Oh, I see. That means the calf will leave its mother and, of course, once it has done that, there is no way of identifying it as that cow's calf. To all intents and purposes it's a maverick and the assumption is that the first man who finds it is free to use his iron on it."

Tom Bledsoe nodded. "Dad for the cow's udder to have her calf forcibly weaned before due time, Mr. Burney."

"Are the same tactics followed on our cattle north of the line, Tom?"

Bledsoe nodded. "Not to such an extent, however. We can watch our step closer an' Bruce daren't take the chance he does in El Cajon Bonita where he is immune from United States law."

"The hyena! Who is Miguel Callegas?"

"A half-breed Irishman. His mother was an Italian, an' he became a naturalized citizen of Mexico. During the Madero rebellion he was a general an' more recently he's become a sort o' bandit, but claimin' to be a patriot. He's the law in that part of Mexico an' after eighteen years o' war an' riot, about all the Mexican government can do is bandle the tough ones an' leave the little ones alone until they get too bad. He's got the local federal officials buffaloed, an' they're sort o' cateein' to him in the hope he won't organize a revolution again 'em. He does about what he pleases."

"Has Mr. Graydon complained to the Mexican federal officials about him?"

"No, sir. Ain't had nothin' to complain about. All we got is suspicion. Martin Bruce don't own a hectare o' land in Mexico, but the king's got a stand title to El Cajon Bonita an we figger Bruce wants it, an' has set Callegos up to makin' things so uncomfortable an' unprofitable there will pull out to have less an' bloodshed; then Bruce'll take it over an' range his cattle on it. I wouldn't be surprised if Callegos is his silent partner, doin' the dirty work for his share."

"Well, as a cattle range, El Cajon Bonita is certainly worth fighting for, Tom. It's well watered and I never did see such a thick growth of grama grass anywhere else. So the situation has resolved itself to this. We've got to keep a force of men down there sufficient to stand off Callegos. That's too expensive and dangerous. To leave our cattle there alone and unprotected means that presently every head of stock we've got there will disappear. That's too expensive, also. So the third alternative is to go down there and wipe this fellow Callegos and his men clear off the map. And that's the plan I've adopted."

"Ain't no other way out," the gloomy Quaker assented. "But Art Graydon, he never suggested that an' the king couldn't on account o' bein' responsible if he did, for the killin' of a lot of his good men. An' then there's the international complications to consider. Mr. Burney, the situation has sure had the king goin'."

"Well, he isn't sending me down there. I've volunteered and he isn't going to know when I start or when I finish, until he gets the news of the clean-up. I figure that with thirty good men I can take care of two hundred of the Callegos followers, but to be successful we must be superbly equipped, superbly mounted, well trained and have a definite plan of campaign. From which we must not diverge, once the action is joined. Once we wipe out the Callegos gang, Martin Bruce will keep clear of El Cajon Bonita and it will be long before another bandit adventurer undertakes to start something with us. I expect to get the law on Bruce in this state and jail him."

"He's too smart to be caught branding the king's calves himself."

"A master is responsible for the acts of his servants, Tom, and the servants will be easier to catch than the cautious Mr. Bruce. Once I get an indictment voted against him in this state he'll remain in Arizona; then some night we'll sweep down on his headquarters on the Triangle B, burn it, and run his criminal riders off the range, unless by doing good detective work, we are able first to land most of them in jail.

"This situation doesn't present any insuperable obstacles, Tom. All it requires is some resolution, a definite plans and a ruthless follow-through. Before I get through with Martin Bruce he'll sell his range and all his cattle to the king and pull out of New Mexico forever."

"All the king has ever needed is the right general manager an' in thee he has found the man, Mr. Burney. I'll be right proud to help out."

"Thanks, Tom, I know you will. I expect to clean the situation up in thirty days, although unforeseen complications may require more time. It would not be fair to have a good man like you marking time on the same old salary, so from the first of July your salary is upped fifty dollars a month."

"Thanks. That makes me the highest-paid ridin' boss on the Bardin payroll, don't it?" Bledsoe replied pridefully. He rose. "Well, I reckon I'd better be off. I'll tell the boys of thy plans an' select the dependables."

Ken Burney watched him depart into the night. Good old sergeant-major," he murmured. "And what a blood-thirsty old Quaker you turned out to be." He picked up the telephone and called the king. Muriel Bardin answered. "I want to speak to His Majesty," he announced.

"About Tom Bledsoe?" she queried.

"Good guess."

"His Majesty has retired and may not be disturbed. I'll take the message."

"Very well. Tell him, please, that I have raised Tom Bledsoe's wages fifty dollars a month, because I have discovered in him a man after my own heart. If the king had been acquainted even remotely with Tom Bledsoe, I wouldn't be his general manager tonight."

"How interesting! Well, why not turn the job over to Tom Bledsoe right away, Mr. Burney? I'm sure it is not going to be one you are going to enjoy."

"That is where you are greatly mistaken, Miss Bardin. I'm going to enjoy it immensely. Tom Bledsoe's going to help me, though."

"I'm disappointed in you, Mr. Burney. I thought you were a gentleman."

"Oh, come, no, no, my dear child, Miss Muriel. No gentleman ever gets the thrill out of life that I do. I know because I've been a gentleman. Now I prefer to be a roughneck."

"What's much too bad, Mr. Burney. Good night." And she hung up.

"Poor old king," Burney murmured, "she must be giving him a rough ride about me. As if it's any of her business." he murmured and switched off the light.

At the same moment Muriel Bardin stood beside the king's bed and delivered his general manager's message. Whereat His Majesty smiled a satisfied smile.

"Dad, I was going to invite him over to dinner after all," Muriel announced.

"Take with me," said the king. "Good night, honey."

Immediately after breakfast Tom Bledsoe reported to the new general manager. "Well, I have found good men signed up for thee, Mr. Burney," he announced.

"Fast work. How many saddle horses have you got in the remuda?"

"About three hundred."

"Cut me out six bays, two buckskins with black points; five light bays with blazed faces and white socks; five blacks or very dark bays, five chestnuts, two palaminos; one solrrel and two black-and-white pintos. Heres the list to aid your memory."

"Thanks. Send over to me three of your fastest wing shots with pistols, wearing two guns each. I'm going to Huachita in the general manager's automobile and these three are to be my bodyguard. Hand-pick 'em, Tom. While I'm gone rake a few men and round up the horses I require."

Within ten minutes the trio reported. One of them, it developed, was Art Graydon's chauffeur when he was not otherwise engaged, and he had to report that Mr. Graydon planned to use the ranch car that day.

Ken Burney telephoned the king.

"Well, what now?" His Majesty demanded.

"I want to borrow your car for the day."

"Sorry, Ken. I haven't one, but I'll ask my daughter to loan you hers. Wait a minute."

The minute passed and then Muriel Bardin came on the line. "Father tells me you want to borrow my car, Mr. Burney?"

"If you please, Miss Muriel, provided it's a five passenger one."

"It is. What do you want it for and where do you wish to go?"

"What it for a murder car, I'm going into Mexico," he replied jestingly.

"You can't have it."

"Not to owe me a forty-mile ride on horseback to Huachita?"

"No."

"You have a heart of stone," he replied and hung up. Half an hour later she saw him, on his pinto horse accompanied by three heavily armed riders, pass down the road in front of the king's castle. He waved at her; she shook her small fist at him, where at he drew a cashine from the saddle bags and exhibited it "I may never come back," he called.

"Who cares?" she cried back.

"I do," the king, from his seat on the eastern veranda, reminded her. "Seems to me you're unnecessarily nasty toward that boy."

"When you get through with him, Dad, you should buy him a first-class passage to China and give him a letter of introduction to Chang-so-lin. Chang could doubtless use him at a huge salary to murder missionaries."

"Is that so?" said the king. "Well, well, well. Notice that horse he was riding? That's the one you fell heir to after Burney's been killed."

"I shall not accept him. What are he and those three ruffians with him going to do now"

"I should say, offhand, however, that he's going down to El Cajon Bonita to bump off Miguel Callegos."

"Oh, Dad, this is dreadful."

"Interesting at any rate."

"You must stop him."

The king dropped his chin on his breast and commenced to snore loudly.

"Then I'll stop him," the girl cried.

His Majesty opened one eye and gazed upon his progeny. "Why?"

"I don't want him to kill Miguel Callegos."

"That the only reason?"

"I don't want Miguel Callegos to kill him."

"Why?"

"Because—"

"Who cares?" he taunted her and commenced to snore again. Muriel commenced to weep. "Hey! Hey! said the king. He was instantly distressed. "Very well, honey. You hop into your car and overtake Sir Knight and tell him your father says he is not to kill Miguel Callegos, today unless Miguel Callegos kills him first; in which event I imagine those three roodles with him will take care of Callegos."

Ten minutes later Ken Burney and his riders pulled off to one side of the road to let a car go by. To Ken's amazement it stopped and Muriel Bardin was in it.

"My father says you're not to kill Miguel Callegos today," she cried excitedly.

He touched two fingers to his forehead in the Oriental sign of fealty. "I hear and I obey. I hadn't intended killing him today, anyhow."

"And you are not to permit him to kill you, either, Mr. Burney."

He turned to his men. "Boys, you hear that? Guard me well. My especial compliments to His Majesty, and tell him please, that I'll be back when I return."

He lifted his hat and rode on, but before the girl had detected a mocking light in his black eyes and a shrewd little smile on his humorous mobile mouth. Furious, she returned to the king.

"Well," he greeted her, "what did he say?"

He said he'd obey."

"Good. Did he say anything about laying off Martin Bruce?"

"No."

"Gosh, I forgot to tell you to tell him to lay off Martin. He's gone to Huachita and Martin and some of his braves are there, I hear. My, my, I'm afraid I'm liable to lose my new general manager before I've even had a chance to break him in. There's only one thing that will comfort me for his loss, however, and that's the desk of Martin Bruce." He sighed and tucked in his napkin. "We will hope for the best," he added gloomily.

His daughter eyed at him in wide-eyed horror and left the room.

At Huachita, about four o'clock, Ken Burney and his bodyguard put their horses up at the livery stable, and in single file walked up the middle of the street to the International Hotel. On the front porch Martin Bruce sat with two friends, discussing cattle and the weather. He eyed the approaching quartet, decided he was outnumbered and nodded affably to Ken Burney, who came up alongside him and said arrogantly:

"Mr. Bruce, you're leaving town at once. I can't feel comfortable in Huachita with you here, too, so take the next train we'll if you care to pull out under your own power."

"I was goin' to take the next train west anyhow, son," Bruce replied evenly, "but just for that I'm going to stay and see how you like it." His blue eyes bored upward at Burney from under his shaggy eyebrows; to the verdict type it would have been apparent he meant exactly what he said; that he preferred to stay and die, fighting an army, rather than leave town under compulsion.
